Vichy, France, July 10.—(AP) —A Vichy proposal of armistice to end the month-old Syrian war between Vichy forces and Allied troops ran into puzzling complications today as Vice-Premier Darlan returned from Paris conferences with German officials.

The war continued and a contradiction in Vichy statements cropped up.

Yesterday the Vichy controlled Telemondial News Agency announced that Vichy was studying Allied conditions for an armistice, requested by Gen. Henri Dentz, High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief in Syria and Lebanon.

Today a French statement said: "No reply has yet been made by the British authorities to General Dentz, who, on the contrary, found himself faced with redoubled British attacks on all fronts and who learned with sorrow that pamphlets offensive to his dignity and military honor were being distributed at Beirut by British agents".

Dentz asked for terms on Tuesday.

As a prelude (or possibly part of the armistice) British authorities demanded Wednesday that Beirut, capital of Lebanon, be declared on open city and yielded without bloodshed to the Allied siege forces. Vichy sources called this an ultimatum to Dentz and said it was conveyed in leaflets dropped on Beirut by the Royal Air Force.

Not Content With Terms

(Whether the ultimatum and the asserted insult to Dentz were the same was not clear.

(A spokesman in Berlin said that Vichy actually had received British terms and described them as "conditions such as would be imposed on the bitterest enemy but scarcely on a former ally for whom England still professes concern and hope."

Lashley Quads Ready for Home

Louisville, Ky., July 10—(AP)—The Lashley quads—John, Beulah, Mildred and Martine — are going home to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Porter Lashley, in Leitchfield, Ky., in a few days.

For the first time since the babies were born at the Lashley farm home four months ago, the parents were allowed to hold them in their arms late yesterday. Heretofore they had had to be content with gazing at them through plate-glass windows.

The babies are all fat and healthy now. John, the frailest at birth, now weighs the most, 15 pounds 13 1-2 ounces; Martine heaviest of the girls, weighing 11 pounds 13 1-2 inches; Martine weighs 12 pounds 10 ounces and Mildred 12 pounds 7 1-2 ounces.

Lashley is building a special nursery for the quads and plans to take them home in about three weeks.

WOMAN GRANTED SPECIAL MESSAGE

Fort Erie, Ont., July 10 —(CP)— Mrs. Julia Shosho, native Albanian, prevented from returning to her home in Buffalo after a visit here with her family during the Fourth of July holiday, has been granted a special message by Washington for her readmittance to the United States.

Mrs. Shosho, who came here with her husband and two children, was refused entry to her adopted country because she failed to produce an alien identification card before leaving the United States.

To obtain reentry, a new passport was needed, and in her case would have been a matter six months to a year in being issued. Her case brought a special ruling of the United States State Department.

Mr. Shosho, naturalized since 1928, and his children, were not prevented from returning to their home, but remained here until the trouble was ironed out.

RED RASPBERRIES TAKE ANOTHER DROP

Red raspberries dropped another five cents per box on the local market this morning with good quality berries selling at straight 25c per quart while the blue variety sold at two boxes for 45c or as in some cases at 20c per box. The last of the strawberries for the current season went at 20c per box.

Huckleberries held steady at 25c per quart, being offered by only one vendor who doubted that they would decline to any lower figure this year. Gooseberries sold at two boxes for 25c or at 50c per six-quart basket. Red currants were 10c and black currants 25c per box. Early potatoes declined to 65c per peck.

RUBBISH PILE GIVES BRIGADE RUN

With cleaning up operations in full swing after the conclusion of the Rotary Karnival which since last Friday evening had been held in Victoria Park, a fiercely burning rubbish pile, which had been started by employees resulted in the fire brigade being called to the scene early on Thursday morning. Prompt action on the part of the department prevented any spread of the blaze, however, and the fire was quickly brought under control.

On Wednesday smoke issuing from the chimney atop the roof of the Hannah Bakery on Front Street, led passers-by into the belief that the building was afire and an alarm was turned in. Investigation into the smoke disclosed that the smoke from the chimney was rolling in dense clouds to the ground with no fire being in evidence.

Earl of Athlone Visits Airport At Trenton

The Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of Canada dropped literally and figuratively out of a blue sky yesterday afternoon to conduct an informal inspection of the Royal Canadian Air Force station near Trenton.

The visit took the place of one scheduled for some time ago, but which did not take place due to unforeseen circumstances.

His Excellency was not accompanied by the Princess Alice, but Sir Shelden Redfern and Major Goff, aide-de-camp were members of the official party. The Governor-General was greeted on his arrival by Group Captain T. A. Laurence and officers of his staff and immediately made an informal inspection of the several phases of training, housing, equipment and quarters.

Following the inspection the Governor-General was taken on a tour of the immediate Bay of Quinte in one of the station's crack ambulance boats. Previous to the boat-tour His Excellency took a keen interest in his inspection of a guard of honor composed of one hundred picked airmen of the station personnel. Later the distinguished guest and his entourage were guests at the officer's mess.

Garage Operators Meet at Tweed

Several General Motors Officials Welcomed at Banquet

Tweed, July 10—(Special)—The Garage Operators' Association of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties held a dinner at the Huyck House on Tuesday evening. There was an attendance of about sixty garagemen who assemble regularly to discuss problems of common interest. This was the first dinner of this kind to be held in Tweed and the local garagemen were gratified with the attendance.

Mr. Ken Vivian of Shannonville, President of the Association, was in the chair and welcomed a number of guests including several General Motors' officials. Mr. Orliff Lloyd, Belleville, Secretary of the Association, read the minutes of the last meeting which was held at Picton after which J. J. Trudeau, of Belleville, introduced the new members and gave the report of the Advisory Committee.

A report was given to the meeting that information will probably be received in a short time from the oil controller in regard to the Sunday closing of all gasoline stations. Following discussion in which various opinions were expressed all service station men agreed to co-operate to the fullest extent with the oil controller with regard to this matter.

Should be More Co-operation

Secretary Lloyd read the minutes of the Provincial Directors' meeting at Windsor. Messrs. J. J. Trudeau and Edward Aylett expressed the opinion that the branch organizations should co-operate more fully with the Provincial Garage Operators' Association which was doing a splendid work.

The annual picnic will be held at the Sandbanks, Prince Edward County on August 13th and the committee reported all preparations had been completed.

The officials of General Motors who were present at the dinner included Messrs. Frank Maitland and Patrick Burke of the Service Promotion Department and Mr. Eric Thompson of the Service Department. They were introduced by C. Ed. Way, local dealer and spoke briefly.

Following the discussion the General Motors' officials presented a film "On to Victory," depicting Canada's industrial war effort. These films were most interesting and a motion of thanks was made by E. W. Jones, local dealer.

Half-Inch Fall Of Rain Welcomed In Tweed District

Tweed — The long period of drought was broken on Monday afternoon with a half-inch fall of rain. The welcome precipitation, followed by cloudy weather and intermittent showers throughout the night and on Tuesday, has moistened the parched ground and provided much-needed moisture for the drooping vegetation and burned pastures.

Two visiting fishermen to Stoco Lake on Sunday returned with a string of thirteen fine pickerel and a large pike.

During the past twelve months the pupils of Tweed Consolidated School have purchased more than $1000 worth of War Savings Stamps and Certificates. This is an average of slightly over $5.00 for each pupil in the school and compares favorably with what is being done in schools elsewhere. During the past school year the pupils and staff have forwarded approximately $200 to the British War Victims' Fund, sponsored by The Evening Telegram.

INSPECTOR'S COMMENT

Giving evidence of an academic brilliancy not shown by a High School entrance candidate for the past ten years, according to Public School Inspector J. R. Pickering, Master Boyd Upper, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Upper, 144 Foster Ave., and Miss Carolyn Morden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Morden, 219 George Street, were awarded the Board of Education Medal and the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire prize, respectively, it was announced today.

In making the awards Inspector Pickering stated that both prize-winning students turned in papers that were exceptional.

"The papers turned in by Boyd Upper were exceptional. I do not remember ever having seen as good entrance papers and I have hunted the records of this entrance board for the last ten years and have found no one who took as high a percentage as Boyd has," he said.

In a letter to I.O.D.E. officials, Inspector Pickering stated, "The papers this year were of very excellent quality. I have hunted the entrance board records for ten years and I have not found a case when the winner of your prize secured higher marks on the examination then Carolyn Morden has."

45 Girls, Women Given Interviews

Approximately 45 girls and women of 20 years and over crowded into the office of the local Employment Bureau Service this morning waiting to be interviewed regarding employment in the recently constructed munitions plant at Pickering, Ontario. The influx of women to the local office is the direct result of a call for female munition workers issued from the plant last week.

Starting shortly before ten o'clock the girls and women were interviewed singly by a representative of Canadian Industries Limited under whose supervision the new plant will be operated. Applicants were required to give proof that their age was 20 years or over, present a clean bill of health and pass a stipulated personnel test.

While it is not known when successful applicants will begin work at the Pickering plant, information from Oshawa this morning stated that several girls had already been taken on with the plant having begun operations. The date which local women will be permitted to begin work will, it is thought be dependent upon the completion of living accommodations which are being constructed. Women will receive an initial wage of 30c per hour and will live in supervised quarters close to their work, their board costing $6 to $7 per week.

POLICE COURT

Actually there were no traffic cases in the weekly county traffic court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., at the Court House this morning.

Written pleas of guilty, accompanied by the payment of the minimum fine, were accepted from three residents of Thurlow Township who were in default of their yearly dog tax.

M. G. Miller, an aged man who was found wandering at large upon the Provincial Highways last week and remanded into custody on a charge of vagrancy, was released by His Worship this morning and warned to refrain from loitering within the Belleville area in the future. He willingly beat a hasty retreat from the Court House.

Two khaki-clad soldier boys partook of a meal in the Quinte Cafe late last night and then hastily ran from the premises. Later P. C. Wright apprehended one of the alleged culprits in an intoxicated condition on Station Street. The soldier was detained at the police station awaiting military escort.

Radio Play on Bombing Causes Many Inquiries

'If It Happened Here' Presented During 'Army Day' by CBC on French Network.

Montreal, July 10—(CP)—Halifax bombed . . . Rimouski and Quebec City burned to the ground . . . Montreal captured by Nazi troops landed by air transport . . .

Those startling phrases, from a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation skit intended to give an idea of what might happen if the Nazis invaded Canada, jolted unsuspecting Quebec radio listeners last night and sent a brief flood of telephone calls into newspaper offices and radio stations across the province.

It began in a radio skit titled "If It Happened Here," presented during an "Army Day" program and broadcast over the CBC's French network which embraces stations in Montreal, Quebec, New Carlisle, Rimouski, Chicoutimi and Hull.

The scene for the skit was a house party, with couples dancing to a dance orchestra. Suddenly an announcer cut in with a "flash" news bulletin, reporting that Halifax had been bombed by more then 100 Nazi air raiders, the harbor set aflame.

Bulletins Follow Bulletins

Then, in quick succession, came other bulletins, telling of the flight of the raiders up the St. Lawrence River valley, the bombing of Rimouski and Quebec and the landing of enemy troops after the Royal Canadian Air Force had shot down four transports in air fights.

The bulletins ended with a German voice coming over the air, reporting that the Nazis had captured Montreal and seized the radio stations. The skit itself ended with two youths regretting their failure to enlist before the "invasion."

Recruiting Stimulant

A recruiting stimulant, the broadcast was realistic, in fact too realistic for some listeners, who were unaware that it was merely part of a CBC feature. Several were reported to have fainted after hearing the news.

The CBC studios here, where the broadcast originated, reported handling 30 telephone calls within 15 minutes while the program was on the air. Newspapers and police stations in Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa reported similar calls.

Some of those inquiring were reported to be frightened while others just asked if the reports were "true." Their reaction, in some cases, was similar to that when Orson Welles made his famed broadcast in 1938 on the invasion from Mars.

Eddie Baudry of Montreal, who wrote the script for the CBC presentation, commented tersely that "perhaps it will do them good" when advised of the reaction of his broadcast. He could not understand, he said, why anyone should be frightened by the program.

PREMIER INSPECTS WAR MACHINES

Mr. King Says We Are Reaching a Time Which Will Mark Transition in War Development

Winnipeg, July 10 (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King returned to Winnipeg today, ending a western tour which he started three weeks ago.

He has inspected and talked to thousands of men of all branches of the armed services watched their manoeuvres on land, sea and in the air, and has inspected closely the machines of modern war.

Coming from Brandon the Prime Minister today will speak at a service club luncheon, and later review the army training centre here. He will leave tonight to return directly to Ottawa.

He spent a busy day at Brandon visiting the No. 2 Manning Pool, Royal Canadian Air Force, and the No. 12 Service Flying School of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

To the airmen the Prime Minister expressed confidence that the spirit which saved Britain last year would ultimately triumph and restore freedom to those countries in which it has been destroyed by Hitlerism.

"We now are reaching a time that will mark a transition in the war's developments," he said.

Occupation of Iceland

He spoke of the United States occupation of Iceland, and declared: "It will help maintain the freedom of the North Atlantic for convoy of men and materials from Canada to Britain. That marks a very positive change for the better in the development of affairs at this time."

At Camp Shilo, the Prime Minister witnessed a parade of more than 3,000 troops, an artillery target display and an anti-tank attack staged with Bren units using tracer bullets against dummy tanks across the big gun range.

He crouched inside a concrete observation post during the artillery display, and later sat in the saddle at the controls of a mobile anti-tank gun.

"When I get back to Ottawa I will be a real warrior," he observed.

TRAINING PLANE CRASHES, 2 KILLED

Eyewitnesses Say Machine Went Into a Tail Spin Before Crashing

Okotosk, Alta., July 10.—(CP)—Temporary Sgt. Pilot J. A. Malin, instructor, of Ponoka, Alta., and LAC. J. W. Daly of Los Angeles, were killed last night when their light training plane from the High River, Alta., elementary flying training school, crashed two miles northwest of here.

D. K. Yorath, manager of the school operated by the Calgary Aero Club under the Commonwealth Air Training plan, said the plane was engaged in a routine training flight. He said an official court inquiry will be held by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Daly is survived by his parents in Los Angeles. Malin, who completed his training at Central Flying School, Trenton, Ont., is survived by his widow, one child and his mother, all of Ponoka.

Eye-witnesses, who watched the plane descend over a hill, said it seemed to go into a tail spin before crashing. There were four other planes flying overhead at the time

Okotosk is 25 milies south of Calgary.

French Perfume Oils Valued at $120,000 Seized by British Jersey City, N.J., July 10—(AP)—Seizure of $120,000 worth of rare French perfume oils by the British authorities when the American export liner Excambion stopped at Bermuda was disclosed yesterday with the ship's arrival.

The flower essences were taken from Henri Robert who had packed them in his personal luggage for delivery to the American firm of Coty, Inc.

The British Consulate General Office said the oils probably were seized because they originated in occupied France, which is under British blockade, and because they were not accompanied by a British export permit. The spokesman added that the British authorities presumed that purchase of any material in a Nazi-controlled area would help the Nazis economically.

ICELAND

The occupation of Iceland by American troops, with Iceland's consent, has lent the world a sense of security. Everywhere in the world except among the Axis partners a strongly confident note is sounded. The great democracy of the United States through its President as Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy has occupied the island for the purpose of defence and security of the Western Hemisphere. Yesterday it was stated at Washington that from the standpoint of defence of the United States any dividing line between the hemisphere is non-existent. The step guards the North Atlantic rout.

The importance of Mr. Roosevelt's act is seen in his words that he has "Issued orders to the Navy that any necessary steps be taken to insure the safety of communications in the approaches between Iceland and the United States and all other strategic outposts."

So important is this step that Mr. Churchill has called it one of the most important things that have happened since this war began. Many great events have happened in the last six months and this he says is one of the greatest. The free world believes likewise.

HITLER'S COMMUNIQUES

After the Germans turned against Russia, it is said Adolf Hitler took charge of editing the army communiques, and at once a decided change was noticed from the usually cold statements of the past to the new style of German communiques in which promises play a part. Hitler, being a master of promises only to break them, promised the German people victories, great events and what else. Some one wrote into a communique that "the first five days of operations furnished proof that the Soviet armies had been ready to attack Central Europe." It would not appear that any German general wrote that. It sounds more like the voice of Adolf Hitler interjecting a political aspect into the army statement.

Then, it is pointed out in the New York Times that on June 29th "contrary to all previous practice and in a perfect blare of radio propaganda, twelve successive communiques were released, loaded with such phrases as "bloody, bitter, hand-to-hand conflict," "heroic attack" and "countless enemy armored cars." Goering's pilots were credited with the unbelievable destruction of 4,107 Russian planes against a loss of 150. Again a promise was combined with a politiial conclusion, 'The surrounded armies either will capitulate or be destroyed, sealing the fate of numerous Soviet divisions intended for a central thrust against Germany.'"

Hitler would be such a one as to inject politics into a statement of the army, to promise great events to come, or to picture bloody battles. It was no staff officer did that.

If Hitler is writing or editing, rephrasing or rewriting communiques in whole or in part it seems fair inference that his move against Russia has far more import than the world knows. Previously Hitler has been content seemingly to trust to the German High Command and the propaganda department. For some reason now he has to paint a picture of the Russian campaign and to picture it as more rosy than it actually is.

Hitler, evidently is trying to beat American aid in its fulness coming to Britain, lunged against Russia to replenish his resources and he must have known the stakes he was gambling for were very high and that his risks were even greater. It must be so when he goes to the east front and takes a hand as editor of the German High Command's statements.

The lunge against Russia is typically Hitler-like—like the gambler staking so much upon one cast. His whole plan had been slowly and steadily to build up strength over years and then when he decided to strike, to strike suddenly and with what he thought irresistible force to try to win a phenomenally swift and brief war. The British and the Allies have taken matters out of his hands and he has been forced to strike with the fury of a criminal seeing himself steadily being cornered by the British blockade and the uneasiness of a Europe ready to sabotage him and his system.

BY

A PROPHET SPEAKS

In one of the toughest concentration camps in Hungary languishes a beautiful young Hungarian seeress. Startlingly true in her earlier prophecies she unfortunately foretold that "the war will end in 1942 with Hitler's death and the collapse of Nazism." "But," she added, "the belligerent powers will be so exhausted there will be no victor. Whoever survives will live to see a new and better world."

Adolf the Wolf fumed and raved in his Berchesgaden lair when he heard the prophecy. And the attractive young lady, Boriska Silbiger, will prophesy no more—at least duing the war.

Startlingly True

Before foretelling Hitler's death, Boriska made this prediction. "America will enter the war in 1942 and the Axis will ask for an armistice in that year."

Startlingly true was her forecast in 1935. Here it is. "In January of the following year the king of a mighty empire will suddenly die. He will be succeeded by his eldest son but the reign of his successor will not exceed 12 months after which time he will renounce the throne." The death of George V and Edward's abdication is readily seen here.

War

Her 1939 forecast issued in November 1938 astonished Europe. "War looms ahead," she predicted, "and will break out in 1939. In March, 1939, the European crisis will reach its turning point. But there will be no war till September. Before the new Great War starts, the Spanish Civil War will be over."

"Russia," she continues, "will start certain negotiations, which however, she will suddenly terminate, having unexpectedly found an important ally. A man whose initial is M (Molotoff) will step into the forefront of world politics."

"By the end of the year," the remarkable forecast predicted, "all Europe will be in the war. Italy will unexpectedly enter into a bold and daring enterprise, much to her injury. Great Britain will suffer. But this country will show a united and powerful front toward the world. She will go into lengthy disputes with a country allied with her."

Here Boriska foretold the debacles of Italy in the Balkans and Africa, and of France. "America," she said, "will not enter the war in 1940, but she will make a great change in her policy at the end of the year. Japan," continues the remarkable document," will begin to move at the end of the year. She will try to start trouble in the East but will be checked by a western power."

Other Prophecies

Here are more of the outstanding forecasts made by Boriska:—

"One of the most important parts in the war will be played by Ireland."

"Trouble will brew in South America."

"Austria, as a nation, will be no more by the end of 1939."

"There will be chaos in Czecho-Slovakia and Benes will flee his country."

"In 1939 all effort to avoid bloodshed will be of no avail and there will be war. It will spread to other nations in Europe and even across the seas will be involved. Only in 1942 will there come peace."

Then Borsika made her startling prophecy about Hitler's death. She said his career would be ended swiftly and dramatically. This sounds like a prophecy of suicide but she did not specify further.

After the War

Extending her forecast to the period after the war, the young seeress foretold: "The world after the peace will be so different and there will be such social and national upheavals that it is impossible to describe it."

Further proof of the accuracy of the young Hungarian's remarkable forecasts is seen in her statement in 1933 "that in the following year a king whose name begins with A would die and that a Nazi leader would be murdered by his best friend." True enough, King Alexander of Yugoslavia was assassinated and Fritz Roehm was murdered by order of Hitler and Goering.

Hitler, like other dictators, believes in prophecies. Napoleon carried "The Book of Fate" taken from an Egyptian pyramid, and which he believed carried forecast of the future.

A HOME AND INDEPENDENCE

A home and independence — the right to dig and sow,
'Tis these the worldwide over all mortals long to know.
From them comes childhood's laughter and Age's calm content.
A home and independence — for them man's years are spent.

A home and independence— both roof and walls to own.
The dream of man and woman since Eden's trees were grown.
A home for rest and shelter, with that the right to choose.
'Tis these that brave men die for and tyrants all refuse.

A home and independence— Earth knows no grander theme;
For these our songs are written, of these all mortals dream.
A bit of ground for garden, the right to think and plan!

Stalin's Great Speech

Many of us have looked upon Stalin as pretty much of a despotic ruffian. It is not necessary to change our view of him to admit that his speech to his people this week (the text of which was printed in The Journal) was a masterful performance; lucid, eloquent, marked by understanding and historical perspective.

Hitler's speeches suggest the tribal chief beating the tom-tom, are hysterical, savage, lardered with hate, long, ungrammatical, tiresome. Stalin, on the other hand, was moderate, clear, concise. Dealing with Germany's aggression against his country as a British statesman might have dealt with it, defending the Soviet's past record skilfully, accepting British and United States offers of aid gratefully, he proceeded to deal with the military position with realistic clarity.

Clearly proud and confident of the valor of the Red Army, he did not seek to hide defeats nor to minimize danger, but instead gave a clue to Russian strategy. Thus:

"In case of a forced retreat of Red Army units, all rolling stock must be evacuated, the enemy must not be left a single engine, a single railway car, not a single pound of grain or a gallon of fuel.

"Collective farmers must drive off all their cattle and turn over their grain to the safe-keeping of state authorities for transportation to the rear. All valuable property, including non-ferrous metals, grains and fuel which cannot be withdrawn must without fail be destroyed."

This is the strategy of the "scorched land": the strategy with which China has baffled Japan — with which Russia once baffled Napoleon.

Stalin's speech, finally, was far from being the speech of a beaten leader. On the contrary, it was shot through with determination, with confidence. This man, who has lived his life dangerously, is tough.—Ottawa Journal.

Tale of a Termagant In the First Floor Back

Read a tale of Miss Minerva. Don't know her? Nonsense, why of course you do. Everyone does who ever took a furnished room by the week. Maybe to you she answered by some other name, simple or select, ranging from Miss Bonanza Brown to Mrs. Montmorency-Fitzwigglesway. You've not only met Miss Minerva, you've probably known her rather well. Dodged her long ago, or perhaps it was yesterday, when the moment came to pass over the amount that must be paid to keep a share of the roof overhead, a legitimately come by latch key in pocket, plus the right to boil an egg on a strange gas stove in somebody else's kitchen.

But no matter how, or when, or where you met Miss Minerva, she is the prototype of all those ladies, as alike as ungraded apples, who, having known better days, never lose sight of the fact, and are now seeking pittance or pin money by providing a home of sorts for anyone in search of a temporary parking place for travelling bags, tooth brush, and self.

To this wholesale hospitality there are some restrictions. Many a room-letter refuses to have a petticoat-wearer about the place, preferring to give time and attention to somebody's sons and to nobody's daughters. Others prefer to make business girls their problem and responsibility. Girls who must have a place to hang garments fresh from immersion in the community bathroom basin. Girls who dry handkerchiefs on mirrors, and thoughtlessly place hot curling irons exactly where they will do the greatest damage. Girls who seem to subsist on bananas, crackers and jam ,and leave the evidence of eating for the Miss Minervas of this world to remove.

Miss Minerva has learned all this and more. No longer minds being a member of that great Sorority devoted to keeping the home radiator as cool or as hot as it should be for the comfort of young persons who are meeting a very big world in a very big way. She has submerged class consciousness. Set aside the Victorianism of her youth, and attained a knowledge of things as they are.

In her case, "Dear Papa" once a merchant of means, had done what he could to keep her from want. Left her the old family home and such stocks and bonds as he had thought adequate to support her until such time as an "Omit flowers" would follow her name in the column dedicated to those who have rejoined their ancestors. But the old gentleman had miscalculated. He could not foresee several slumps and a couple of wars. So it wasn't long before the house was as well draped with mortgages as a Christmas tree with tinsel. What had seemed dependable sources of income in turn were added to the passed-dividend list, leaving enough to meet semi-annual payments to save the place, and little with which to appease a grocer, or mollify a milkman.

Knowing that similar attacks of acute financial depression were too frequent among her friends for her own bad luck to bring help, Miss Minerva faced the facts. Found her first asset in what had long been the "spare" room. This she offered to the public for what it would bring. From that moment her worries, woes and interests widened.

A succession of pretty, pleasant, and nice girls soon filled the whole house to overflowing. The best cooking soon decided that playing with the keys of her own kitchen range would be a welcome change from using her fingers on some one else's typewriter—and so got married. The cleverest were often transferred to more important desks in other cities. The most conscientious were always called home to look after a sick relation.

At times, life for Miss Matilda was about as quiet as the China sea struck by a typhoon. Normally there was only a sword, sharp as that named for Damocles, swinging over head. The old girls' pluck and good breeding saw her through a multitude of troubles, some of them not untinged with enjoyment. She gave much beyond the terms of the bond, including a marvellous patience concerning a roomer's deferred payments, whether forgotten on purpose, or unmade because of the impossibility of turning a firm's polite "We regret" notice into a negotiable instrument.

The first floor back had been empty for some time when, against her better judgment, Miss Minerva rented it to the Termagant. That, of course, wasn't a name that appeared on her mail. It just expressed Miss Minerva's reaction to her new roomer's personality. She was strident, heavy-footed, her laughter raucous, her comments uncomplimentary, and her conceit prodigious.

Asked to surrender her room, the Termagant refused. Threw out dark hints concerning Rental Boards. Threatened reprisals in which Miss Minerva's cherished name would be bathed in publicity. Feeling that any recourse to legal means would make her dear Papa stir uneasily in his funeral urn, his devoted daughter turned to other plans. There was another method, she was sure, of ousting the undesired, and she searched for it. Found it, of all places, in the pantry. Inspiration came with sight of a small box-like contraption in one corner. Picking it up she was prepared for great adventure. Carefully carrying her burden she made her way to the first floor back.

Always the Termagant was home by ten. Almost one might regulate a clock by the click of her latch key. Of this Miss Minerva took full advantage. At one minute to the hour she did what she had to do. Quickly lifted one corner of the Termagent's couch. Emptied the contents of the box between the sheets, put the bedding back in place, and made her own quarters with three seconds to spare.

Then, unsuspecting, the Termagant was stamping upstairs and slamming her door so the whole house shook. It seemed but a moment before the air was filled with invective, the sort that once called for brown soap solution as a mouth wash. "Mice", was the high note in the staccato outpouring which sank to deep base with the words, "In my bed." "Not for a fortune" summed up the aggrieved one would she remain a minute longer, and as no one offered her money to reconsider she departed then and there, her luggage going next day.

Miss Minerva was satisfied for without fuss she had got rid of the unwanted. Her method might not be useful to an irate landlord with a tenant to whom an additional dollar's rent is an imposition to be fought tooth and nail. But it has the merit of cheapness. All it cost was a new mouse trap to catch the four-footed occupants of the third floor back, and a generous piece of cheese with which to bait it. Moral? Well, if there is one who wants it?—Ottawa Journal.

BRAIN TRUST

Many slang words and phrases come and go in the course of the ever-changing political situation in America.

Most such words and phrases are completely forgotten in a short time; others are embalmed in the history of the events and retain only a historic significance, while now and then one gains a permanent place in the language.

Among the many words and phrases coined in connection with the New Deal one that bears all the earmarks of a permanent contribution to the language is "brain trust."

The original brain trust has passed into history, but the term continues to be a part of our every-day language.

A recent edition of Webster's New International Dictionary defines "brain trust" as "a group of college teachers acting as advisers to President F. D. Roosevelt."

During his first campaign for the presidency in 1932 Franklin D. Roosevelt sought the advice of a number of able college professors, notably Raymond Moley, Rexford G. Tugwell, and Adolf A. Berle, Jr., all of Columbia University.

Roosevelt at first referred to this group of intimate advisers on national affairs as his "privy council."

During the summer of 1932 James Kiernan, now famous in connection with "Information, Please," referred to this group of Roosevelt advisers as the "brains trust."

This new label, modified to "brain trust," caught on and was adopted even by the Democratic presidential nominee himself.

After Roosevelt became President the term "brain trust" was employed to include continually changing group of advisors, some of whom were in the federal service and others in private positions.

Among the men who have been classed as brain-trusters at one time or another are Samuel Rosenman, George F. Warren, Frank A. Pearson, William I. Myers, M. L. Wilson, Moredcai Exekiel, James H. Rogers, O. M. W. Sprague, Leo Wolman, John Dickinson, Arthur E. Morgan, Thomas G. Corcoran, Benjamin V. Cohen, Frank Taussig, James P. Warburg, William C. Bullitt, Leon Henderson, Harry L. Hopkins, William O. Douglas, James M. Landis and a number of others.

The Roosevelt brain trust as an institution is a thing of the past. Today there are no real brain-trusters among the President's intimate advisers in the original sense of the term.

But "brain trust" in the sense of a group of intimate, behind-the-scenes, expert advisers survive and the term has all the earmarks of a permanent resident in the English vocabulary.

Hitler Cannot Dare to Face War of Attrition

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Evidence that Hitler has met an unexpected and perhaps dangerous chick in Russian is detectable even in his own terse and uncommunicative war reports from his headquarters at the front.

Even if one ignores completely the Russian victory claims, the situation is the same. There has been a four-day Nazi setback. Exactly how serious it may be cannot be accurately judged; but the danger in the situation for the Germans and their hitchhiking Finnish, Rumanian and other allies is obvious.

The whole Nazi war effort against Britain as well as Russia is being jeopardized by delay. That Hitler's generals are making strenuous efforts to overcome it, perhaps under the whiplash of his tongue, can be reasonably deduced.

For what appears to have happened is that Red Army resistance, coupled with ever-increasing German transport difficulties on so vast a battle front, have threatened Nazi legions with loss of their greatest asset, mobility. From lessons of the First Great War German experts fashioned "blitzkrieg" equipment and technique. It was designed to achieve a war of motion and avoid such position warfare as raged in France for four terrible years.

Definite Threat

Berlin advices picture heavy Nazi reinforcements pouring eastward to back up mechanized thrusts and regain mobility. For if the attack on the Stalin Line, as yet reached only here or there, bogs down for weeks or even days, a return to position warfare such as Hitler dare not risk is threatened in the East.

It might last for months, even years. And glittering as have been Hitler's blitzkrieg victories elsewhere, he has gained little in economic resources to arm him for a long war. It was for that reason he turned savagely on Russia.

In position warfare it is manpower, not machine power, that counts; and Russia has manpower to spare. Hitler dare not risk a war of attrition in the East that would bleed him white while Britain steadily gains strength in the West with American help.

Nazi propagandists, explaining the brief, vague communiques from Hitler's headquarters, say that a vast new attack is in preparation. This may well be true, for Hitler cannot stop now, nor long delay his promised smashing of Red Army resistance.

The German people, hitherto remote from air war alarms, are feeling day by day and night after night the force of British air power. Even if the material damage to Nazi war plants is as slight as Berlin claims, which cannot be true, the effect on German morale cannot be ignored.

Airmen Called Back

There is some indication that German Air Force units shifted to the Russian front have been recalled westward for retaliation against England. The Berlin explanation, no doubt, is that Russian air power has been broken and some of the planes can be spared.

It is not convincing. A more logical probability is that there have been murmurs in Germany demanding protection. Perhaps some of the German people are softly asking questions about the delayed fulfilment of Hitler's promise to achieve quick and conclusive victories in Russia. Instead of those victories, he faces developments definitely unfavorable on two, if not three, fronts.

Vichy has asked the British for an armistice in Syria. That will mean a new barrier to Nazi-Fascist attack on British lifelines in Egypt In the Atlantic, joint American-British occupation of Iceland has placed that strategic key to the sea war in the West out of Hitler's reach, and probably greatly increased British chances of warding off sea strangulation indefinitely.

The Stars Say

For Friday, July 11

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE GENERAL trend of events on this day, according to adverse astral influences, may be toward the difficult and dangerous. A disintegrating and under-mining force is possibly at work, thwarting and frustrating even the best-laid plans and well thought out objectives. There are signs of misinterpretation, fraud and trickery and sinister and stubborn obstacles as well as sudden and unlooked for upsets and delays. These may be fundamental and deeprooted, and would not be vanquished or remedied by superficial, impetuous or erratic moves or methods. Change with caution, make decisions slowly and preserve the health. There may be an unexpected social or romantic adventure, to compensate.

Those whose birthday it is may be called upon to cope with a sudden, deeprooted and tenacious obstacle to their cherished plans, with surprising upheaval, delay or other disintegrating visitation. Winning out against this will require sound reasoning, deep study of underlying impediments and slow decisions, as erratic, rash and impulsive moves would be disastrous. Check nervous tension, husband resources and be comforted and strengthened by a surprising social, domestic or emotional visitation. Keep alert to fraud and treachery in all business relations.

A child born on this day may have much originality and profound talents but may be subject to frustration and reversals, with nervous tension and perhaps erratic temperament, unless given careful supervision in early life.

CHARLOTTE RUSSE 300 CALS.
CHOCOLATE LOAF CAKE 100 CALS.

Even Desserts are Allowed

The plump lady who bravely refuses desserts to reduce, yet gets plumper every day!

It does seem a puzzle, but if the lady isn't calory-wise it's quite easy to understand.

A calory chart shows it isn't always the "tempters" that have the fat-making calories; lots of innocent-looking foods teem with them! Then, there are tasty low-calory foods on which you can lose 20 pounds in 10 weeks!

Yes, you're right to refuse Charlotte Russe (300 calories) and fruit punch (227 calories). But then don't go home and eat generously of such foods as breaded veal cutlet (250 a serving) and lima beans (200 a cup).

Cleverly choose the low-calory snacks at your parties. Chocolate loaf cake has only 100 calories in a modest piece, lemonade only 72 a glass. In your regular meals substitute the same way. Roast veal has only 100 calories a serving, string beans 42 a cup.

Mission Band Rally ForKingstonPresbytery At West Huntingdon

In spite of the intense heat over one hundred children, Mission Band leaders and friends gathered in St. Andrews' Church, West Huntingdon, on Saturday, June 28, 1941, for the Annual Mission Band Rally of Kingston Presbyterial.

Mrs. W. H. V. Walker of Stirling, occupied the chair and opened the meeting with the Call to Worship and Hymn 763.

Shirley Ormiston of Stirling, conducted the devotional part which consisted of a very interesting illustrated story by Miss Gena Spry. Five little girls from Stirling sang "Children of Jerusalem." Betty Cole recited John 1: 1-18 verses, for the Scripture lesson which was followed by prayer by Mary Agnes Fox.

The Roll Call was answered by a verse of Scripture. The following Bands: Belleville, Burnbrae, Deseronto, Madoc, Roslin, Stirling and West Huntingdon were well represented.

The Mission Band report of last year's rally was read and apoted. Jean Haggerty of West Huntingdon, welcomed the visiting Bands to West Huntingdon and Miss Margaret Douglas of Deseronto, replied.

Mrs. Walker spoke a few words regarding the banner which is given to the Band obtaining the highest standing during the year. Mrs. William Shaw of Ivanhoe, one of the judges, gave the report of the different bands. Mrs. Walker then presented the banner to Deseronto Band which stood highest.

A demonstration of the "Honour Member Test" was given by Jean Babcooke of Deseronto, who repeated a passage of Scripture. Miss Ramsay, returned missionary from Formosa, presented the Honour Member pin to Jean.

Mrs. MacDonald of Roslin, read greetings from Mrs. Darling and from Mrs. Robertson of Kemptville. Hymn 768 was sunfl after which the offering was taken by Allan Wallace and Billie McInroy.

Miss Yvonne Little of Burnbrae, played an instrumental number after which little Margaret Casey, of Belleville, gave a reading. Allan Wallace of West Huntingdon, also gave a reading.

The Madoc Band sang a chorus. Margie Haggerty and Joyce Wallace of West Huntingdon, sang a duet, accompanied by Muriel Thompson.

Miss Ramsay, returned missionary from Formosa, was introduced to the rally by Mrs. Walker. Miss Ramsay, in a very interesting way described her first trip to Formosa, telling about the physical features of the country and the languages of the people. She described the living conditions and customs of the people, the Sunday schools and the methods used to teach the people about Jesus. She concluded her fine address by singing "Jesus Bids Us Shine" in the Formosa language. Two verses of the same hymn were sung by the rally members.

Mrs. Hunter of Madoc, expressed the thanks and appreciation of the Rally to Miss Ramsay, which was seconded by Mrs. Vernon Weir, of Belleville.

The meeting closed with two verses of 772 and the National Anthem. Rev. W. H. V. Walker pronounced the benediction.

The ladies of West Huntingdon W.M.S. and the Mission Band members served a very tasty lunch at the conclusion of the meeting.

'Swiss-German' Nudist Colony Under Probe

Officers Believe Colony Housed Radio Transmitting Station

Panama, July 10 (AP)—A police captain aired his suspicions yesterday that a "Swiss-German" nudist colony where 10 persons were killed and eight wounded yesterday in a gunfight with police had housed a radio transmitting station which suddenly disappeared.

Capt. Antonio E. Hoff told investigators he went to the colony near the Costa Rican border Monday to require the nudists to register and comply with other Panama immigration regulations, and was refused when he demanded admission to a mysterious house in the camp.

He was told two ailing women were in the house and that they could not be disturbed. Upon his return with police reinforcements later the building was gone. The captain said he had been turned away from the house by the colony leader, a Swiss-German named Carlos Lehner.

The only surviving man of the colony, Gottfried Werren, 82, told officials he had advised Lehner to comply with the law and avoid trouble with authorities, but that Lehner threatened to expel him from the colony. Werren, a Swiss, told of seeing his wife and 18-year-old daughter die in the conflict that followed.

The wounded were six women and two children.

All Trainees at Peterborough Volunteer for Active Service

Lt. Col. O. E. Keeler, M.C., of Belleville, in Charge of the Camp

ENTIRE STAFF READY

Peterborough, Ont., July 10 (CP)—Announcement was made here by Lt. Col. E. O. Keeler, Officer Commanding the Peterborough Training Centre, that all of the men in the Centre had volunteered for active service. A similar incident occurred at the Cornwall Training Centre last week.

When the appeal was made by Col. Keeler here, Wednesday morning, all of the men signified in less than 15 minutes their willingness to serve in any part of the world.

The Cornwall and Peterborough Training centres are the only two in Military District No. 3 with headquarters at Kingston and the response of the two centres is believed to have set a record for the Dominion.

Along with the 120 reserve recruits received two weeks ago the entire administrative and training staff of the Centre have also signified their willingness to serve in the Active Service Force. The men selected their own branch of the services and of the 24-year-old recruits who reported at the centre two weeks ago for two months' basic training, 42 of them were accepted yesterday for active service with the R.C.A.F.

A group of 12 French Canadians and four recruits of Polish origin who are not conversant with the English language were approached in their native tongues by interpreters at the Centre and all of them joined the Active Service Force. While no definite figures were given by the military authorities it is believed there is between 500 and 600 men at the Centre.

A New Method of Treating Scabies The Itch

The treatment of scabies, the itch, for many years has been the use of sulphur baths and sulphur ointment. The sulphur smothers the tiny insects and destroys their eggs. While this treatment is successful in most cases, there are "stubborn" cases that have lasted for a long time and outworn the patience of the physician and the patient. One of the reasons for failure in some cases is that the clothing of the patient was not thoroughly sterilized and using this clothing was the cause of prolonging the itch.

Now that men are collected in military and other camps, scabies is becoming even a greater problem than during the last war so that any treatment that is effective and prevents continuance of symptoms is naturally welcome.

In searching for a treatment other than by sulphur, Dr. R. E. King, in the British Medical Journal, reports the use of a method of treatment with benzyl bensoate. In a series of 100 cases of scabies occurring in a military establishment, 80 per cent of which were infected for longer than two weeks, treatment by one application of the benzyl bensoate lotion proved completely successful. There were no unpleasant after-effects except a burning sensation of the skin which usually lasted for fifteen minutes. In three severe chronic cases with an intense skin irritation, the application of the lotion was repeated after four days because of the nightly itching. This second application cleared up the itching and irritation.

The lotion consists of equal parts of benzyl bensoate, denatured alcohol, and soft soap. After a thorough scrubbing of the whole body with soft soap and a ten-minute soak in a bath at 100 degrees Fahrenheit, the lotion is applied vigorously for five minutes with a pig bristle shaving brush. After the first application dries, another one is applied, the clothes worn before treatment are put on and twenty-four hours later a bath is taken and clean clothes are put on. The portions of skin showing severe infection must be treated as vigorously as the unbroken skin.

As many have no success with sulphur baths and ointment, and others dislike the prolonged sulphur treatment sometimes necessary, this 24-hour method should be worth trying.

'Subway Series' Chances Bright As Major Players Resume Play With Yanks, Dodgers in Front

Yankees Are Hot but the Indians Have Several Soft Spots in Schedule

MANY NIGHT GAMES

BY SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

This is the day when the second guessers have to put the all-star game back in the cracker barrel to save something for next winter.

They'll have to forget the argument over whether Claude Passeau or Deacon Will McKechnie was the official goat, or whether Cecil Travis shouldn't cut a little piece of the hero's pie for throwing a body block at Billy Herman and spoiling the game-winning double play try in the ninth inning at Detroit.

Because the big leagues pick up the pennant chases again today and tonight, and from here on, it's "every man for theirself", as they say over in Brooklyn. They're also saying in Flatbush that nothing can stop the Dodgers now in the National League.

If that's the case—with the daffiness boys leading the Cardinals by three full games—it begins to look as if the chances for the first "subway series" in four years are bright.

Indians Have Soft Spot

At the same time, Cleveland's second-place Indians, who lately have been giving Manager Roger Peckinpaugh bad dreams, pick a soft touch in the Athletics to open their home stand, while Boston's Red Sox bring a four-game winning run into Detroit and Washington invades Chicago.

Five of the games are night games. In addition to the St. Louis, Cleveland and Chicago shindigs in the American League, the night card also finds the Cardinals invading the polo grounds to meet the Giants and the Phillies entertaining Pittsburgh Pirates in Philadelphia.

Most important get-together in the senior circuit, however, has Cincinnati Reds, who have won three of their last four tussles—two straight against St. Louis—tangling with the Dodgers in Brooklyn under the sun. Elmer Riddle, the undefeated Red Rookie, is elected to be the giant killer in this one. Deacon Will has named him to try to snap the Dodgers three-game winning string.

END OF ROAD?

Charlie Gehringer, veteran Detroit second baseman, may be at the end of the road he has travelled along for the past 16 years in the major leagues. Batting just above .200 in contrast to his life-time mark of .326. Charlie was replaced late in the Tigers game against St. Louis Cards by young Boyd Perry.

Ralph Guldahl, PGA Tourney's Hot Golfer

Opens 36-Hole Third Round Against the Defending Champion, Byron Nelson

SNEAD STILL IN

By LOUDON KELLY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Denver, July 10 (AP)—Texas Ralph Guldahl, of the sloping shoulders and intense concentration, is the man that hunch players in the galleries are talking about at the 24th P.G.A. tournament.

Gulhahl opened today's 36-hole third round against defending champion Byron Nelson, another Texan, and the 1940 winner from Toledo, Ohio, is up against a veteran whose golf has been as sizzling as the mountain sunshine that has preceded afternoon wind and showers during the first three days of the tourney.

So far Guldahl is seven under par for 65 holes, counting the qualifying trials. He exudes confidence, asserting that "My game has been improving every day."

It was a day of 48 man-to-man skirmishes vivid with drama, heartaches, electric finishes and the high tension tingle of four extra-hole battles, one for 23 holes involving medalist Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va.

Snead was two holes behind Earl Martin, Inglewood, Calif., unknown, when he collared him on the 17th and 18th despite shaky golf. The Canadian open champion finally pinched Martin off on the fifth overtime green.

Only two ex-winners are left on the mountain-bordered premises, Denny Shute and Gene Sarazen, playing his 21st P.G.A. tournament.

Dominic (Lefty) Barbaro, B and B left-hander, kept eight Ottawa hits well scattered while his teammates were touching Andy Broder, Ottawa pitcher, for nine hits and six walks.

Edney, Harrison of Kingston Win Robertson Cup to Take Top Honors in Doubles Tourney

Score Three Wins With 42 Plus 21 Points—Campbellford Rink Second

40 RINKS COMPETE

Kingston's bowling pair of Edney and Harrison drove through to a dynamic win to take the Robertson Cup and the championship of the annual Scotch Doubles sponsored by the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club here on Wednesday. Forty clubs, representing teams from Cornwall in the east to Peterborough in the further extremity of district of lawn bowling helped to swell the largest attendance of lawn bowlers to compete over the new Belleville greens. Second in line was the team of Walt Wiggins and Stan Archer of Campbellford, who won the H. A. Fish Trophy.

Prior to the tournament, lawn bowlers from all parts of Eastern Ontario bowed their heads to the memory of the late Harry Heagle, one of Kingston's outstanding bowlers. As the club flag slowly dipped to half-staff the haunting notes of Last Post rang through the afternoon air. A fine eulogy to the late bowler was paid by Cliff Argue, games chairman of the Belleville Club.

The tournament was perhaps one of the most colorful of any held here. The greens were par excellence and the members of the host club went all out in their effort to provide one of the best bowling entertainments seen here in a long time. They provided a patriotic motif and the competing teams enjoyed themselves in an aura of Union Jacks and bunting.

The bowling gentlemen were inwardly satisfied at any and all times of the tournament due to the fine efforts of the ladies of the host club who provided refreshments.

Robertson Cup—Won by Kingston Team, composed of Edney, Harrison with a score of 42 plus 21.

H. A. Fish. Trophy, Campbellford, (Walter Wiggins, J Archer), 42 plus 14.

Third game high— H. Tilley, C. Hyde, Belleville, 42 plus 4.

Three games high—A. Wonnacott and D. Rowe, Belleville, forty plus three.

Two games high—Ted Green, J. Topping, forty-one plus ten.

INDEFINITELY SUSPENDED

Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, has been "indefinitely suspended" for the "use of obscene and abusive language" to Umpire Steve Basil during a Chicago-Cleveland game in Chicago. William Harridge, president of the American league, declared Dykes will "remain under suspension until he can satisfy the American league office that he will fall in line with the other seven managers of our league."

Toronto Leafs Defeat Orioles After 13 Losses

Frank Colman's Two-Run Homer Deciding Blow of Contest

BISONS ADVANCE

(By The Associated Press)

Tom Hafey, Baltimore third baseman who turned pitcher—a la Bucky Walters—knows what it feels like to toil in vain on the mound because of poor support.

Benched as a third sacker because of his weak hitting, Hafey made his pitching debut last night against Toronto Maple Leafs, International Baseball League cellar dwellers. He turned in a six-hit effort, but gave up one too many as Frank Colman's two-run homer helped the Leafs to a 4-3 victory in the second game of two at Toronto. The Orioles won the opener 8-3. It was Toronto's first victory in the last 13 games.

Buffalo's second-place Bisons advanced nearer the league-leading Newark Bears by swamping Syracuse Chiefs 12 to 4 while the Bruins split two with Rochester.

Freddy Hutchinson marked up his 16th victory of the campaign holding the Chiefs to seven hits and aiding his own cause with a pair of doubles and a single. He fanned six.

Rochester Red Wings gained an even break with the Bears through a 2-1 triumph in the 13-inning nightcap, after dropping the twilight encounter 5-1. Hy Vanderberg was the pitching victor in the second game.

Hank Borowy hurled three-hit ball in the opener as the Bears gathered five runs in the third frame for an easy conquest.

Montreal Royals took a 6-3 victory from Jersey City Giants and climbed to within a half-game of third place, behind the expert pitching of Ed Head. The Brooklyn farmhand tossed a five-hitter for his 11th victory.

Bawden, Major Hook Up in Hurler's Duel

Corbys Score Four in First to Coast to 5-2 Victory

CORBYS OUTHIT

Batting all the way around with one to good in the first inning Corby's scored four runs and touched Archie Major for as many hits including a homer, a triple and a double at Coleman's Flats last evening as they defeated Reliance 5-2 in what turned out to be a pitcher's battle and retained their margin on the top rung of the Men's Softball League.

With the exception of the first inning when the winners got away to a flying start the game turned out to be as nice a hurling duel as has been seen this season with Major setting the hard-hitting Corby crew down for the balance of the game without a semblance of a hit, while Reliance nicked Johnnie Bawden for a total of nine scattered hits. In the strikeout column, however, Bawden bested his opponent, whiffing ten Reliance batters, while Major struck out three and walked an equal number.

After Reliance had put two men aboard in the initial half of the first inning to leave them stranded as LaBonne fanned, Jimmie Barriage started Corby's away with a rousing triple to be scored by Ronsky's one base blow. Kiser hit for the circuit and was followed by Bawden's double, who subsequently scored on a fielder's choice.

A walk to Bawden to start the third inning away netted Corby's their final run of the game as the infield messed up bunts by Henn and Chuck Barriage, with Bawden scoring as Tuttle hit into a force-out at third.

Two Doubles Score Run

Reliance scored their first run as the result of two two-base clouts by LaBonne and Goyer in the fourth inning with LaBonne scoring again in the seventh as he singled and took second on an overthrow to score on Goyer's single. Reliance made a determined effort to pull the game out of the fire in the final frame as Snodden, batting for Major, beat out a bunt and worked around to third as Cy Barriage dropped Gowe's drive to left after two were out. Bawden bore down to get the third man as he struck out Andy Gray, leaving his two teammates stranded.

Gray with two singles and a double led all the hitters of the night with LaBonne and Goyer also hitting well, connecting for a double and single apiece. Kiser, for the winners, hit for the circuit with Jimmie Barriage hitting for a triple and Bawden a double.

Line-ups:

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

After due consideration the Departments of National Revenue at Ottawa announced that amateur sports would escape the twenty per cent excise tax recently imposed on tickets of admission to spectator entertainments. Also all sporting events for charitable purposes will not be taxable. "Any benefit to a promoter or private organization from sports events means the admissions of the events are subject to the tax, however," explained department heads yesterday. However, the spokesman did not make it clear regarding receipts that are divided between amateur clubs and promoters. Where a straight silver collection is taken with the spectator having the option of paying for the privilege of seeing sporting events, if he so desires, cannot be taxed.

Sport fans attending amateur hockey and ball games are prone to gaze upon capacity filled stadiums and pass remarks about the great profits and surpluses that must go with the operation of a winning club. However, this is seldom the case and only recently Kingston Bill Walshe brings to light just one or two of the problems that confront amateur sports heads, even long after the cheers of victory have died. Here is a concrete case for an example, as published by Mister Walshe:

"The cheering for the hockey may be over but for those who have to foot the bills there are still a few worries, which is one of the many reasons why amateur clubs that develop professional players deserve some return from the wealthy clubs for their work. At present Wally Elmer, backer, coach, manager, etc., of the Kingston juniors, is waiting for his share of the professional payments for Nick Knott under the new agreement that teams developing big league players get a bonus from the N.H.L. Wally can use the money to pay a few doctors' bills that he was presented with for injuries suffered in the hockey season that only recently mended. There is a bill for Shrimp White, who suffered a broken arm in the last series with Ottawa. Arnie Jarrells was hurt in the last Belleville game and Bitsy Gray was hurt in the scheduled play with R.M.C. Just a few of the worries in running teams."

No tilt has gone into extra innings.

Joe McGraw and Connie Mack, rival managers of the first game in 1933, were also opposing pilots in the 1905 World's Series — first recognized by the National Commission.

No opposing team has ever been held to less than three hits.

No batter has connected for the circuit with the bases full in any game.

Viewing the expansion of amateur hockey in the U.S.A., and more particularly pertaining to Ned Vitarelli, Peterboro Fred Craig says:

"The Eastern United States League, 'amateur' hockey loop across the border will have seven clubs next winter, the latest addition being Johnstown, Pa., club, the entry of which may mean a new spot for Ned Vitarelli next winter. The Peterboro pepper pot has always been a prime favorite with Pick Hines, until recently manager of the Baltimore Orioles and Hines is to take over the new club as manager-coach and director at Johnstown. Undoubtedly he will try to take Vitarelli along with him. Ching Johnston, old Ranger defence star is named as the man most likely to succeed Hines at Baltimore. The famous Ching was coach of the Minneapolis club of the American Association for several years and last season was handling an amateur club at Marquette, Mich."

FAMOUS HOUSES SUFFER IN RAIDS

Catharine Parr's House, Old Curiosity Shop and Dr. Johnson's Home Are Damaged

Homes where British celebrities once lived have suffered in the indiscriminate bombing of London. This third in a series of five articles tells how some of them have been affected.

BY PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 10.—(CP)—Houses where some of Britain's celebrities once lived have felt the devastating impact of Nazi bombs in the air attacks upon London.

One victim is the house where Catharine Parr lived before her marriage to King Henry VIII and for some years afterward. One of the most historic dwellings in the City, it was built in 1450. It has been wrecked. Four blackened walls, two stone Tudor fireplaces and a 14-foot wide chimney are all that is left.

When the house was wired for electricity in 1923, many interesting relics were discovered. They included private letters dating back to 1580, invitations to card parties in Hatton Garden, dated 1735, and a 17th century pack of playing cards.

Nevill's Court, a quiet backwater near Fleet St., has suffered from incendiary bombs. Its one remaining house, No. 10 was destroyed by fire. It was claimed to be one of the oldest houses in the city. No. 10 was built two years before the great fire of 1666.

Old Curiosity Shop Damaged

The old curiosity shop near Lincoln's Inn Fields, which Charles Dickens made famous, has suffered blast damage from nearby bombs. It is now closed—few tourists come to the capital to gaze at the curios in its windows.

Dr. Johnson's house in Gough Square, off Fleet Street, was damaged by incendiaries. It was here the sturdy old doctor compiled his dictionary.

A bomb falling nearby damaged the Mansion House, home of the City of London's Lord Mayors. The Egyptian Hall where people can dine together while others watch from the galleries was strewn with wreckage. Its huge windows, depicting historical scenes such as the sealing of Magna Carta and the death of Wat Tyler were destroyed. The biggest of the magnificent crystal chandeliers in the reception hall was shattered. The structure of the building, however was unimpaired.

General Motors' Picnic Is Held At Tweed Park

Tweed, July 10.—(Special)—The annual General Motors' picnic was held at Tweed Memorial Park on Wednesday afternoon, July 9, with a good attendance of members from Lindsay, Stirling, Madoc, Trenton, Parham, Belleville, Kingston, Shannonville Picton, Tweed and other points. Dinner and supper were served on the grounds by the Tweed Horticultural Society assisted by a number of other ladies of the town.

The President is Jack Simonette Pontiac-Buick dealer of Parham and the Secretary-Treasurer is Frank Knight, St. Remy Motors, Kingston. The day was ideal and the situation on the shores of Stoco Lake, made a perfect combination for an enjoyable day.

A splendid programme of sports had been arranged by Felix LeSage, local dealer who was assisted by Norman Mantel, Belleville, Pat Burke, Oshawa, and C. E. Way, Tweed. Valuable prizes were donated by associate companies and the various events were keenly contested.

NEW RACKETEER ATTACHES SELF TO WAR EFFORT

Fraudulent Collector Secures Salvage in Name of Canada's National Salvage Campaign Without Being Associated With it and Later Sells for Own Gain

PUBLIC IS WARNED

Ottawa, July 10—Canada, has a new type of "racketeer." He is attaching himself to Canada's war effort. He collects salvage in the name of the National Salvage Campaign, without being in any way associated with the drive, and later sells the salvage for his own personal gain. He works chiefly in rural areas.

Look out for him, is the warning of Canada's National Salvage Office.

"We have had far too many complaints about these smooth persons," declares William Knightley, Salvage Office supervisor. "Their activities are despicable. They can be prosecuted for fraudulency. In fact, several charges have already been laid."

The technique of the new "racketeer" is simple. He calls at a home and asks for salvage materials in the name of the Red Cross or some other well-known local salvage organization. He takes whatever he can get by this expedient to the nearest dealer, sells it, and pockets the money. He infringes on the law by gaining money fraudulently.

But prevention is better than cure, the supervisor said.

"Farmers and rural housewives who gather salvage for bona fide voluntary local salvage organizations should make certain that the persons who call to pick it up are accredited representatives and salvage organizations should have their collectors carry a document of identification. Those precautions would nip in the bud the activities of the 'racketeers' who prey on the generosity of the public," added Mr. Knightley.

Halifax Expected In London Shortly Says News Chronicle

London, July 10 (CP)—The News Chronicle said today that Viscount Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, is expected in London soon and will not return to Washington.

The former Foreign Secretary "will resume activities as a member of the War Cabinet" because prominent Americans believe he has been hampered as envoy "by his attitude at the time of Munich and during the Civil War in Spain," the newspaper said.

An authoritative source, however, called the story "a stab in the dark" and said there was nothing to indicate that the ambassador would not return to Washington.

Washington, July 10 (AP)—Told that the London News Chronicle had said Viscount Halifax, the British ambassador, would go to London soon and would not return to Washington, the British Embassy today issued the following statement.

"This is merely speculative comment by a British newspaper whose political views are independent and often not in accord with the established policies of His Majesty's Government. We have, of course, no confirmation of the suggestion in the message."

Spencer Family Picnic Is Gala Event At Colborne

The Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes floated side by side on the lawn of Mrs. Harriett Chatterson, Colborne, Ontario, where the sixth annual Spencer reunion was held on Tuesday, July 1st.

The happy gathering sat down to a sumptuous repast at noon served from attractive tables set up on the spacious lawn. Following the noon meal the election of officers took place which resulted in all officers being returned unanimously. President, Mr. H. W. Jones, Toronto; secretary, Miss Mary Bell; treasurer, Mrs. Oscar Lightle, Bewdley.

During the afternoon Mrs. H. W. Jones, Toronto, presented Mrs. Harriet Chatterson with a pretty lace table cloth for her faithful attendance at these gatherings. Mr. H. W. Jones, Toronto, read the address which accompanied the gift. Mrs. Chatterson thanked those present for their thoughtfulness and extended a hearty welcome to each and every one saying she was glad to be able to attend the reunion gatherings. Mrs. Chatterson is one of the three original Spencers still living. The other two are Mrs. Charles Sullivan, Rochester, N.Y., who was present and Mrs. Ethel Holcomb, Lima, Ohio, who was absent due to illness.

Mrs. Fred Barlow, Belleville, then presented Mr. H. W. Jones, Toronto, with a beautiful pen and pencil set, on behalf of those present for his faithful service, untiring efforts and ever increasing interest in these gatherings. Miss Mary Bell, Kingston, read the address which accompanied this gift. Mr. Jones, who was completely taken by surprise, replied in a few well chosen words. "For they are jolly good fellows" was then sung.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in races, playing games, taking pictures, music, community singing and reminiscing.

At six o'clock all sat down to enjoy another very tempting meal. Before all reluctantly parted for their respective homes the National Anthem was sung bringing another happy day to a close.

The next annual reunion will be held at Cobourg Park, on July 1, 1942.

Due to illness the attendance was not as large as previously. Gordon Bell, Kingston, who has always been a regular attendant was unable to be present due to the fact he is attacched to the P.W.O.R. and was attending military camp at Connaught Ranges, Ottawa.

Among those present were:

RAF Airman Drops Note to Italians How to Surrender

London, July 10 (CP)—An authoritative source today gave this description of the surrender of an Italian detachment in Ethiopia:

A British pilot, flying low on reconnaissance, saw a white flag flown by the troops. He scribbled a note and dropped it. The note directed the Italians to go to Sardo in the Dessye area and to lay down their arms.

They went without an escort.

New York, July 10 —(CP)— In a front-page editorial addressed "to the President and Congress," the New York Post today "calls on the United State to declare war immediately on Nazi Germany."

The editorial's heading stretched across the full width of the page, topping the day's news in the Post, an Independent Democratic evening paper which has strongly endorsed every move made by President Roosevelt to support Great Britain.

The editorial goes on:—

"The United States is in fact in the war already. The American people sympathize with heroic Britain and would damn Nazism to the blackest pit. Our acts of official assistance to Britain have become a colossal offence beyond hope of pardon from a Hitler victorious.... and endorsed the occupation of Iceland as a step in the right direction. He said he was expressing only his own views.

Voicing his approval of the Iceland move, Willkie told reporters it was necessary "particularly in view of the German threat to take" the island.

He declined—as did Mr. Roosevelt the day before—to say whether he had information that Germany was planning to capture the island.

"We have no choice today between war and peace. We cannot choose immunity for ourselves from the common desolation. Our al-

By declaring war now, the Post asserted, "we lift the world from despair to a vision of peace—peace on our democratic terms, not on slave terms". It would be the "The clap of doom to Hitler's unfortunates".

The Post listed these motives for immediate United States entry into the war:—

"In entering this war, our compelling motives will be self-preservation. But the essential war-aim cannot stop there, nor be stopped, any more than the springtime.

"We shall fight to preserve our life and liberty as Americans.

"We shall fight until we have destroyed Hitler, Nazism and the current Axis brand of predatory dictatorship.

"We shall fight for a decent chance to continue as free men and women on our American soil, working in our own way toward justice and a fuller life.

"And in winning we shall confer inevitably upon the other nations a chance for them also to work out their destinies according to their own natures, a chance to go their ways in freedom—the one basic chance which Adolf Hitler would have withheld forever from the world.

"We shall fight because we must, and no stress or sacrifice can be too severe; the issue is life itself."

Ban Against Use of U.S. Recruits Outside Hemisphere Remains

Washington, July 10.—(AP)—The ban against use of United States selective service recruits outside the western hemisphere appeared likely today to remain unchanged for the present, despite the recommendation of the army general staff.

Authoritative reports were that Congressional leaders have advised President Roosevelt they cannot win approval at this time for the necessary legislation.

Well-advised informants said Mr. Roosevelt was inclined to agree with the recommendation of Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, that both trainees and National guardsmen be made legally available for duty outside of the hemisphere, should the need arise.

The President nevertheless decided against seeking action for the present in view of the adverse congressional outlook. He was represented, however, as interested in several plans which would permit a certain number of trainees to be inducted into the regular army for a longer period than the present one-year term. Members of the regular army may be sent anywhere under orders of the President.

Any action of these plans appeared unlikely before July 17—the date which selective service headquarters fixed yesterday for the lottery here that will determine the order in which the young men who registered July 1 will be subject to call for training.

There will be a miniature edition of the first selective service drawing last October, when the service sequence of 16,500,000 was involved.

Another plan under study was said to involve an adaptation of the system in Canada by which only volunteers are taken for active service either at home or abroad.

Those urging this sytsem, a spokesman said, have advised the President that Canada is obtaining an ample number of volunteers.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DON GILBERT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The industrial and maritime centres of Italy, which in recent months had been unmolested by British bombs, are again receiving the attention of the Royal Air Force.

Naples, third city of Italy and about the size of Montreal, was attacked by R.A.F. bombers during the night. The Neapolitan suburbs contain aircraft factories and other establishments engaged in war production. These were damaged in frequent raids last winter

Syracuse, the Sicilian port less than 100 miles from British airfields in Malta, was visited in the daylight hours yesterday. Earlier in the week, an afternoon raid on Palermo, principal city and port of Sicily, caused havoc among shipping in the harbor.

Thus it appears that Britain, having made good Prime Minister Churchill's promise to tear the Italian Empire asunder, is now turning to the Italian Kingdom itself.

As the nights grow steadily longer, an effort by the R.A.F. to deal wavering Italy a knockout punch may be expected.

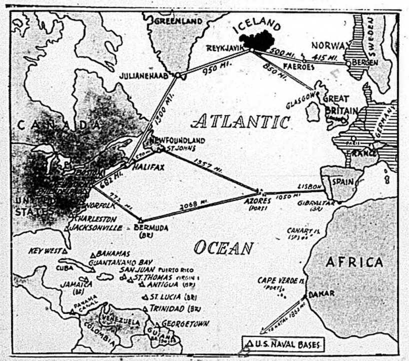
May Prove End of Fascists

The hate which the Italians, particularly northern Italians, hold for the Germans is well known. Devastation at home, added to his disasters in Africa, may prove the end of Mussolini and his Fascists.

The long nights also will allow the R.A.F. to shift the weight of its attacks from the battered areas of western and northwestern Germany to eastern and southern regions. Particularly will industrial Silesia, which rivals the Ruhr in its importance to the German war machine, feel the fury of British bombs.

Last night the ancient city of Aachen—the Aix-la-Chapelle of history and now the centre of an important mining area—was the main objective of the R.A.F. another heavy attack was made on industry and communications at Osnabruck, which lies west of Hanover.

ICELAND ADDED TO U.S. IRON RING IN ATLANTIC



The United States "iron ring" of defence bases has been strengthened still farther by the sensational occupation of Iceland, on the edge of the European war zone, and by arrival of United States forces in the British island of Trinidad, off the South American coast, and in British Guiana, in South America, bases acquired in the destroyer trade. Following American occupation of Iceland, talk has arisen that Portugal's Azores or Cape Verde islands may be occupied shortly to forestall any possible Nazi move in that direction and to provide the United States with still more far-flung Atlantic bases.

Blitz Bits

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Can. Press Staff Writer)

Here's hoping G. A. Isaacs, M.P., doesn't read the caption on this column. Presiding at Kingston Police Court, he told a witness not to speak of a "blitz."

"We have a good British word for it—raid," he said. "We don't want to imitate the Germans."

Six hundred bundles of cedar wood used to encase graphite in pencils were seized in a ship bound for Hamburg. They will be used in pencils for the British forces.

The Southern Railway subscribed nearly $2,225,000 toward a London and Provincial War Weapons Week.

Dr. Margaret Thomson and Nurse Wallace of St. Mary's Hospital for Women and Children, tunnelled through debris during an air raid to tend two victims.

The Ministry of Food's Advice Bureau is giving lessons on cooking to Brighton men whose wives were evacuated.

Miss M. Riches won the Gilt Cross, highest Girl Guides award for gallantry, for remaining on telephone duty at an A.R.P. post for 16 hours after the wall beside her desk was blown in by a bomb. Wardens found her under the desk, still working the telephone.

Dry Weather May Increase Price of Milk

Toronto, July 10 (CP)— W. H. Willmot, Secretary of the Ontario Milk Producers' Association, said today if the dry weather continues in Ontario, it will only be a short time before milk prices are raised.

"I don't know how much the increase will be, but it will have to be sufficient to meet the increased cost," he said.

He said farmers are feeding winter rations to milch cattle on most milk producing farms, and little or no surplus milk is reaching dairies.

Crop reports throughout the province also show a shortage. Hay is less than 60 per cent normal; corn and mangel crops, owing to poor germination have failed and in turnip districts the output will be below average.

TIGERS MAY WITHDRAW

Hamilton, July 10 (CP)—Hamilton Tigers may withdraw from the Interprovincial Football Union before the 1941 season opens Sept. 27, it was learned today from a club official who said the executive recently voted unanimously to withdraw.

Loss of eight men to the army, navy and air force including Doug Turner, snapback in 1940, and the fact that Jack Craig, backfielder, had joined the Provincial Police and is stationed at Port Arthur, led to the decision, the official said.

Enemy Shipping Blasted by RAF

London, July 10—(CP)—British bombing planes attacked the French coast today and blasted at enemy shipping, hitting six ships and leaving each a total loss, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

A communique said 12 German planes were destroyed in the raids and that the same number of British planes were lost.

The enemy shipping was attacked by Blenheim bombers in the ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre, the Air Ministry stated. The six ships hit totalled more than 20,000 tons, it was stated.

Quays, dockside buildings and gun placements also were bombed.

Mrs. Roosevelt Applies Brakes Prevents Crash

Boston, July 10 —(AP)— Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's swift application of the brakes of her automobile in which the President's mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt was a passenger, averted a collision yesterday with another car at an East Boston intersection.

Members of the party, travelling in two automobiles to the family summer home at Campobello Island, N.B., said Mrs. Roosevelt halted her car just in time to avoid colliding with a machine that passed through the intersection against a red light.

20 STITCHES REQUIRED TO CLOSE WOUNDS

Roscoe Sine, aged 17, of Zion's Hill was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital shortly after midnight on Wednesday suffering from extensive facial lacerations sustained as the result of a motor accident on the Foxboro road when he was reported to have been cut by flying glass. About twenty stitches were required to close gashes in the lad's face and forehead which fortunately were not deep, although the youth lost considerable blood. Dr. G. S. Cronk attended the youth who was permitted to leave for his home today.

MINISTER REPLIES IN THE HOUSE TO CRITICISM

Aircraft Production Minister Unwilling to Accept Member's Assertion

GIVES EXPLANATION

London, July 10 (CP)—Replying for the Government to House of Commons criticism of the Government's record on war supplies, Lt.-Col. J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, Minister of Aircraft Production, declared today he was unable to accept the assertion of Lieut. Rupert Brabner, Conservative, that 70 to 80 per cent of the British tanks in Greece "were out of commission before they saw the enemy."

Col. Moore-Brabazon also answered a criticism that some United States-built planes had to be altered so as to reduce their speed by 30 m.p.h., declaring:—

"There is no reason to object to speed being slowed down for operational reasons."

The accumulation of some inactive United States planes in this country, he said, was due to Britain taking over French orders and because alterations had to be made before they could be used by the Royal Air Force. These planes, he added, now are doing "splendid work."

Can Concentrate

On members' complaints that there were 30 types of United States planes in Britain, Col. Moore-Brabazon said:—

"It is only lately that there has been unified construction in America, but when the general (American) industry has been organized, certain types will fall away and we should be able to concentrate, as in England, on several basic types."

James Henderson Stewart, Liberal National, charged that "thousands upon thousands" of British and Imperial soldiers had been left to die or to be captured in the Middle East because they "were denied weapons with which to defend themselves."

Mr. Henderson, who spoke before Col. Moore-Brabazon, brought up again the criticisms made by Lieut. Brabner, who served in Crete with the fleet air arm and told of the alleged shortcomings of the British tanks in his maiden speech yesterday.

"I am giving away no military secrets when I say that the account given in debate yesterday by my honorable and gallant friend of the shortage of guns and tanks is abundantly true," Mr. Stewart said.

Cried For Weapons

Every morning during eight months of army service from which he had just obtained leave, Mr. Stewart said, Middle East cables laid on his desk "cried for weapons of any kind."

"It was a cry which pierced the hearts of everyone of us whose duty it was to read those dread documents.

"One had the vision of those men, comrades whom we knew, lying there battered, bleeding, parched and hungry. Thousands upon thousands of them were left there to die or fall into Nazi captivity. Why? Because those men were denied weapons with which to defend themselves."

Mr. Stewart recalled a recent remark by Labor Minister Ernest Bevin to workers: "I don't care how much you earn so long as you give me the gods." The member asked if this most questionable statement represented "considered policy of the cabinet."

He asked for rigid enforcement of the Emergency Powers Act which provided for mobilization of industry 13 months ago and said Britain must abandon the "timorous and futile business of appealing to men to do their duty in time of war."

Wives of service men are "living on one fifth of the money earned by munitions workers," he said. Mr. Bevin, he added, "has called some of us Fifth Columnists. "He'd better be careful that he not soon be dubbed the most dangerous Fifth Columnist of all?

WAS FLEET GIVEN ORDERS TO SHOOT? CAPITAL ASKS

U.S. Protective Occupation of Iceland Stirs Questions at Washington

COL. KNOX'S WORDS

Washington, July 10 (AP)—The top question in the capital today was whether the Atlantic fleet got shooting orders when the United States began protective occupation of Iceland.

It revived the recurrent earlier question whether shooting already had occurred, and the Senate Naval Committee met to decide whether sufficient grounds existed for an investigation of previously denied reports of clashes between U. S. naval patrols and Nazi sea raiders.

The discussion on the latest defence move in the Atlantic also included Wendell L. Willkie's advocacy of American bases in Scotland and Northern Ireland, and the disagreement on Capitol Hill over the propriety of Senator Burton Wheeler, Montana Democrat and noted Isolationist, in forecasting the occupation of Iceland in advance—an action criticized by Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Col. Knox's Reference

On the shooting question, the opinion of many legislators was that Navy Secretary Frank Knox had plainly implied that the Atlantic fleet had orders to open fire if necessary to deal with hostile activity along American communication lines at sea.

They held that was the obvious interpretation of the Secretary's remarks at his press conference yesterday, even though he carefully avoided use of the word "shooting."

When the question was raised, Knox informed newsmen that President Roosevelt had instructed the navy what to do if it became necessary to shoot in order to protect the Atlantic approaches to U. S. bases from "hostile activity or threat thereof," as Mr. Roosevent phrased it.

Knox referred specifically to the passage in Mr. Roosevelt's message to Congress on the occupation of Iceland, which read:

"I have consequently issued orders to the Navy that all necessary steps be taken to insure the safety of communication in the approaches between Iceland and the United States, as well as on the seas between the United States and other strategic outposts."

"If the Navy has to shoot to do what the President says, will it shoot?" a reporter asked. Knox referred him to the phrase "all necessary steps" in the President's message, and remarked there was "no room for any doubt" as to its meaning.

Wendell Willkie's Talk

Willkie also avoided the word "shooting" in an interview yesterday after a luncheon talk with the President. He termed it essential to keep the sea lanes to Britain open ternative is delay; nothing more. It is postponement of the evil day to a day still more evil when our strength will be relatively less. . .

"Since this is our war, we must fight. There is no honesty in asking the British to give their lives while we only supply the tools. That is like the rich draftees of our civil war days, hiring their substitutes."

The unsuccessful 1940 Republican presidential nominee asserted that he thought "the people are determined to see England through and that they will support the President in any necessary moves he may make, at least to see that our production is delivered to the British."

Discuss Wheeler

Elsewhere in the capital, the Iceland discussion found Senators Robert Taft (Rep-Ohio) and Claude Pepper (Dem-Fla) at loggerheads over whether Wheeler deserved reproof for his advance forecast of the protective occupation.

They aired their conflicting views after the White House made public Mr. Churchill's message expressing concern over an "announcement made on July 3"—the date of Wheeler's forecast—because it was of a kind that jeopardizes lives.

"The United States is not at war," Taft declared. "Not only did Senator Wheeler have every right to reveal any facts about an expedition to Iceland which came to his attention, but the President of the United States had no right to conceal from the people the fact that for weeks he has been planning a secret expedition to Iceland which I believe he had no right to order.

"Mr. Churchill has no business interfering in the affairs of the United States."

Pepper, on the other hand, asserted that "Undoubtedly Prime Minister Churchill reflects the concern that everybody responsible for the safety of our armed forces as well as for the national interest experiences about men in the Congress who apparently regard themselves as under no responsibility with respect to disclosures of information of a military character."

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Kitchener, Ont. July 10—(CP)— William Dixon of Preston was arrested at his home last night and charged with the theft of a Liberty Bank containing $25 from a Waterloo home Saturday night.

Butter Market Quiet—Egg Supplies Drop

Toronto, July 10.—Top-grade egg prices advanced ½ cent a dozen yesterday as lack of fresh supplies grew more pronounced to dealers on the Toronto open produce market. The butter market was quiet, but prices managed to hold steady under light offerings.

Prices on all grades moved up ½ to 1 cent a dozen on the egg market as receipts continued so light as to raise thought and comment on a scarcity. It was pionted out, however, that the lack is due to nothing more than the usual seasonal decline, exaggerated by a little better than usual consumption and large export orders. Demand was excellent and prices in the country dealer section on Grades A-large and A-medium at the close were 32 and 31 cents a dozen, respectively. Receipts on the butter market also continued extremely light, but trading was slow due to spotty demand. Prices remained steady and dealers were asking 34 cents a pound for first-grade creamery solids at the close.

Window Display By Red Cross Shown in City

Demonstrating to local citizens the many ways in which much needed assistance is given to the war effort through supplying articles of clothing and shipments of food to victims of ruthless bombing raids over England, an attractive window display sponsored by the Red Cross and which in on exhibition at a local drug store is commanding considerable attention.

Parcels of canned goods and other food for distribution by the Red Cross to British prisoners of war are displayed as well as numerous sweaters, pairs of socks and other articles of clothing that have been knitted by members of district women's organizations. Complete clothing sets for British civilian bomb victims together with parcels containing infant layettes and hospital supplies are also exhibited.

In many cases women's institutes and other organizations, as well as Red Cross branches have allotted themselves quotas in the supply of needed articles of clothing. Their work and really a worthwhile effort in the supply of needed comforts for unfortunate bomb victims is indeed to be commended.

Mr. Paul Knabenshue, FOREGROUND, wearing dark shirt and sandals, is pictured outside the American legation at Baghdad, as British soldiers took over the legation for protection and for the protective residence of British subjects, during the British war in Iraq, recently. Mr. Knabenshue is U.S. minister resident and consul-general in Baghdad, the post he has held since 1932.

ANTI-BLITZ UNITS IN NORTHERN IRELAND

Mechanized units predominate in Britain's new reconnaissance corps in Northern Ireland. In the event of invasion by German forces, this Irish section of the corps will face the many problems of combat with greater mobility and speed than ever before. On TOP a motorcycle company is raising dust as it moves into action across a sandy track of country. BELOW some Bren carriers speed across country to an "invasion point" during manoeuvres.

Strong Probability Prime Minister May Fly to England

Brandon, Man., July 10 (CP) —Persons close to Prime Minister Mackenzie King believe there is a strong probability that he may fly to England in the near future for a conference of Empire statesmen.

The Prime Minister's only comment on this contingency was made early in his present tour of western Canada when he said how necessary and valuable it was for him to get an intimate picture of Canada's war effort in action before proceeding to any conference of Empire Prime Ministers in the Empire's capital;. He is expected to visit western Ontario shortly.

On his tour Mr. King has inspected and talked with thousands of men in all branches of the armed services. He has watched them in all their activities on land and sea and in the air and has examined closely the machines of modern war.

WHOLESALE PRICES DOWN

Ottawa, July 10—(CP)—Appearance on markets of new potatoes, rains in the western wheat areas, British market requirements and warm weather were all factors in the prices Canadians had to pay for goods they required last week, when the weekly index for wholesale prices dropped for the first time in nine weeks.

The drop was a minor one, index figures reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics being 90.4 for the week ending June 27 and 90.3 for the week ending July 4.

4 Nazi Planes Destroyed

(Nazi sources in Berlin acknowledged the R.A.F. had raided several places in western Germany but, as usual, claimed damage was limited largely to residential sections.)

The British Isles had comparative respite from night raiders for the first time in three nights. Four German planes were destroyed.

The Nazis confined activity almost entirely to coastal areas of Britain, although some bombs were dropped in southeast Scotland and East Anglia. Damage was slight and there were no casualties.

The two German centres were attacked heavily, the Air Ministry said. Lighter forces of bombers which, however, carried heavy bomb loads, blasted objectives at Bielefeld and Muenster in Germany, and docks at Ostend, a potential invasion base on the coast of occupied France.

It was the fifth successive night attack on Muenster. In Bielefeld also has been an objective in recent R.A.F. raids, including one of Tuesday night.

Tons of Explosives Dropped

Big bombers dropped tons of high explosives on Aachen and Osnabruck in weather conducive to aiming and observation of damage. The frontier town of Aachen lies in an industrial area rich in coal and minerals. Fires were started there and the bombs did much damage to industrial buildings.

Four British planes were lost.

The Air Ministry announced that the crew of one bomber reported missing from operations the night of July 1 had been rescued at sea and was safe in Britain.

Striking deeper into Germany as the summer nights lengthen, the R.A.F. made a successful raid on a large erzatz gasoline plant at Leuna Tuesday night. Approximately 550 miles from London, the plant is the most distant target bombed since Britain began the never-ending attacks on Nazi territory June 16.

NAZIS BELIEVED

Farther north, Nazi forces operating from Finland appeared to be aiming a thrust at rail communications between Leningrad and Murmansk, vital railhead and ice-free port. These forces were reported yesterday to have seized the frontier town of Salla, 75 miles west of the rail line.

Interest in Berlin centred on the northern operations as no word was forthcoming concerning activities in the central sector, where bitter fighting was reported in the drive toward Moscow by way of Minsk and Smolensk.

The High Command confined itself yesterday to the statement that fighting was continuing on the entire eastern front. The reported capture of Salla was not mentioned officially.

Unable to Use Artillery

The Nazi commentary, Dienst aus Deutschland, speaking of the Arctic drive, claimed German troops had broken through the Titowka Heights fortifications after considerable difficulties since the terrain prevented use of artillery.

The feeling in Berlin today was that the world's two largest armies are fighting a decisive battle and the Lokal Anzeiger asserted that "not until now have the great masses of the armies come into deployment".

There was little news from the southern sector, though Berlin sources claimed general progress there included actions of Hungarian and Rumanian as well as German forces, with Kiev and Odessa the main objectives.

Salla, claimed by the Germans in the north, lies only 10 miles within the new Russian border. The town became Russian in the 1940 peace with Finland.

Huff's Island

Huff's Island — On Wednesday afternoon the executive of the W.I. met at the home of Mrs. P. B. Hamilton to plan the year's program. At the conclusion of their duties lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. D. Hatfield on the birth of a son, July 3rd., in Belleville General Hospital.

A very successful lawn social sponsored by the Merrymakers' Club was held Thursday evening on the lawn of Mr. E. Hall's home. The grounds were decorated with flags and bunting and the girls of the club wore sashes of red, white and blue crepe paper. Amusements consisted of bingo, fortune-telling, and a fish pond. Two solos by Mrs. Milton Wood were much appreciated. Ice cream and cakes were served and soft drinks sold on the grounds. A very satisfactory sum was realized from this event.

Congratulations to Miss Pearl Hall who has passed her Entrance examinations.

Mrs. Barber, Misses Florence and Jean Barber, Picton, and Miss Owen were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hatfield and Miss M. Hatfield.

Miss Lois Gorman was a supper guest of Miss O. Nightingale on Sunday.

Pte. K. Motley, Peterboro, spent the week-end at his home.

BELIEF EXPRESSED

Earlier belief was expressed in some quarters in London that Dentz would accept the armistice terms without delay. Official quarters gave no hint of what the terms might be, though one source said they would not be harsh and that the chief concern of the Allies was to ensure Syrian independence free from Nazi influence.

The first steps toward the proposed armistice, Reuters said, were taken during the recent visit of Jacques Benoit-Mechin, vice chairman of the Vichy cabinet, to Ankara. The suggestion was conveyed at that time to the British ambassador in the Turkish capital that the Vichy Government was willing to discuss peace, the agency added.

(Vichy dispatches said the British terms were being studied.)

Ally Patrols Near Beirut

Allied patrols were reputed within sight of Beirut, and a military spokesmen said fighting would go on in all sectors until definite conclusion of an armistice.

After a mopping up of the Vichy defence positions at Damour, Australian patrols went north yesterday along the coastal road to the towers of radio Orient, the Beirut transmitting station six miles below the city, dispatches from Jerusalem said.

A spokesman said a large proportion of the Damour garrison, which had held out since June 26 under shelling from land and sea, had been captured with a number of guns and much material. Some of the defenders escaped inland.

Described as Hopeless

Position of Dentz was described by the spokesman as hopeless, barring heavy reinforcements of which there was no sign. Dentz's men, as well as the local population, were reported short of gasoline and food.

(The announcement in Vichy that an armistice had been requested said peace was desired to stop the "grievous blood-shed in a combat daily more unequal."

(Dentz submitted the request through the United Staes consul at Beiru, a communique said.)

Free French headquarters reported today its forces suffered 1,200 to 1,300 casualties in the month of fighting in Syria.

VICHY PROPOSAL

(Informed British quarters in London said the Vichy situation showed "the usual Goebbels attempt to muddle the situation in everyone's mind." The armistice terms were described as extremely generous.)

Darlan returned by special train from Paris and at once conferred with Chief of State Petain on the armistice proposal and his conversations with German officials at the occupied capital and then talked with Defence Minister Gen. Charles Huntziger on Syria.

Vichy sources meanwhile said the United States had been notified through diplomatic channels about the R.A.F. sinking of the French transport St. Didier in the Turkish harbor of Adalia.

It was through the United States Consul at Beirut, the French statement today recalled, that Dentz sent his request for an immediate suspension of hostilities.

Two Officers of W.A.A.F. Being Sent to Canada

London, July 10 (CP Cable)—Two officers of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force are being sent to Canada where they will be attached to the Department of National Defence for Air to advise the authorities regarding formation of a Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force, it was announced by the Air Ministry Wednesday.

Ottawa, July 10 (CP)—Organization of a Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force already is well-advanced," officials said in commenting on a London dispatch that two officers of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force are being sent to Canada to advise authorities on formation of the Canadian service.

An Air Force spokesman said recruiting in the C.W.A.A.F. was expected to begin shortly.

An announcement from R.C.A.F. headquarters recently said C.W.A.A.F. members would not be called on for flying duties but would release men for other duties by serving as cooks, mess waitresses, light motor vehicle drivers, fabric workers clerks, telephone operators, equipment assistants, and general duties.

Red Army Holding Firm

Near Bobruisk, where earlier communiques said the Germans were attempting unsuccessfully to fight their way across the fortified Dnieper, the Red army still holding firm, the war bulletin reported.

A similar unyielding defence was reported to the south, in the Novograd Vonynski sector of the western Ukraine and in Bessarabia.

Destruction of 100 German tanks was credited to the Red air fleet in operations yesterday afternoon. Bombers were said to have continued their attacks throughout last night on German forces on the Baltic and Ukraine flanks.

An earlier communique said the principal German attacks were made in efforts to break through the Ostrov, Polotsk and Novograd Volynski sectors where the enemy has been held up by withering fire and bayonets for a week.

Coincides With Statement

Reports of steady stiffening of Soviet resistance coincided with a statement last night by the Soviet Vice Commissar for Foreign Affairs, S. A. Losovsky, that the lightning methods the Nazis used in the Polish and French campaigns are failing in Russia despite the advantage the enemy held at the outset by surprise attack.

Losovsky declared the Germans, going all-out for a quick decision, hurled 10,000 tanks against the Russian front in the first onslaught—kept so secret, he said, that Nazi troops knew only an hour in advance that blow was to be launched.

The Soviet information bureau said the Red air fleet bombed the Nazi-used Rumanian Black Sea port of Constana again yesterday, as well as the ports of Tulce and Sulina, and raided the Rumanian oil fields in the Ploesti area.

Heavy damage has been reported both to the ports, from which German operations in the Black Sea are based, and to the oil fields whose fuel is vital to the German war machine.

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

CHAPTER FORTY

"TERRY TURNED on Natalie hotly. "A woman in love can't afford any such luxuries as pride. After all, what does standing on your dignity and wrapping yourself in pride and self-esteem get you—except your heart in a sling?"

Natalie looked at her helplessly, eyes filled with tears, her lips tremulous.

"But, Terry—how? I don't even know how to start fighting for Brooks," she admitted frankly.

"By making him see that you're loveliest woman in the world—but most of all by letting him see that you adore him completely," said Terry.

Natalie's eyes widened. "But I thought every woman was supposed to keep her man guessing. Never let him know how much she cares for him——"

"That's the kind of eye-wash that's responsible for a heck of a lot of divorces," snapped Terry. "It's all right before you've hooked him, my gal. But after you're married to the guy, then he wants to be sure. He wants to know you're crazy about him. He wants to feel that you think he's just about the most colossal achievement since the Panama canal. Make believe you think he's smarter than Henry Ford and wittier than Alexander Woollcott—things like that."

"Terry, you're a fool—but a SWEET fool," Natalie stammered.

"Most of all, though, Natalie, you want him to know you love him. You're so—well, so sort of cynical about love; all the time throwing out smart cracks about romance and things like that——" began Terry.

"But Brooks and I are modern—sophisticated," Natalie cut in almost harshly. "We don't believe in love."

Terry stared at her as though she had uttered some unforgivable blasphemy. "My sainted aunt's Christmas cactus!" she murmured absurdly. "You don't believe—good grief, Natalie, no wonder your man's out snuggle-pupping with another woman! I gave you credit for more sense."

"It was Brooks himself who suggested that love was all right in the movies and sappy songs, but that it didn't exist in real life," began Natalie defensively.

"And that was your cue to drape yourself effectively around his neck and murmur in sweet, honeyed tones, 'I know—but, darling, WE'RE different,'" said Terry vigorously and then she paused and studied Natalie curiously. "It's funny. I've read tons of stories about you and thought how much fun it must be to sweep into a snooty, high-hat shop and say, "I'll have that, and that, and that'—and not even ask the price; and have your picture snapped by all the nightclub photographers and the newsreel men. I used to envy you But you're really an object of pity, aren't you?"

"An object of pity?" Natalie gasped.

"You heard me—an object of pity," snapped Terry. "Why, good gosh, any ten - dollar - a - week clerk can be in love. And, as one who speaks from experience, being in love is just about the grandest thing that ever happened to anybody! But you go around saying there ain't no sich animal—" She made a little sound indicative of disgust as she turned sharply away.

The door behind Natalie was pushed and Tom thrust his head in at the opening. "Hey, what gives?" he demanded. "Is it impolite if we fellows out here admit that we're starving by inches? Personally, I'm pretty tall, and that increases the agony."

"Coming up," said Terry curtly, and went back to the kitchen.

Natalie stood still, drawn to her full height, a dazed, bewildered look on her face and in her tormented eyes.

Tom looked at her keenly. Then he said friendly and cordial, "Sounded as though you and the brat were having words, Mrs. Marchbanks. But don't take the youngster too seriously. She means well—and she's not a bad sort."

Natalie looked up at him and it seemed as though a light had suddenly been turned on behind her eyes.

"A bad sort? She's—marvelous, Mr. Forman. She's really superb!" she stammered and caught her breath. Her face was radiant with a new, wild hope.

Tom stared at her curiously. When she showed no disposition to explain, he said briskly, "I'd better hop down to your place and let Brooks know you are dining here."

"No," said Natalie almost sharply. "I'll go. And we may just decide to have a bite there. So—if I don't come right back with him, don't wait on us."

Natalie as though her attention had been caught by his tone as much as his words, looked swiftly at him. A wave of color dyed her lovely face before she turned, brushed past him, and was gone out into the tropical darkness.

Tom grinned to himself in the sudden emptiness of the pantry, then went on into the kitchen, sniffing hungrily.

Terry looked up as he came into the room. "I told you dinner was nearly ready," she said sharply.

To her own amazement, Betsy heard herself say, as she whirled about, "That's MY husband you're speaking to—not yours!"

"Gosh—I'm sorry," said Terry. "I didn't mean to bark at you, Tom!"

"You better hadnt, my lady—or I'll darn well turn you across my knee," Tom told her darkly. But his startled eyes were still on Betsy's face; on Betsy's eyes that had flashed with anger and resentment that Terry should dare to speak so shortly to Tom. For a moment Betsy and Tom stared at each other, breathless—shaken. Then Betsy turned away, knowing that her face was scarlet and that her eyes no longer dared meet that very disturbing look in Tom's eyes.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was late for supper again today, being the 3rd time this week and seeming like a lot of times with the week only up to Thursday, and ma was giving pop a second helping already and I started to sit down at my place like somebody that thought nothing special was happening, and pop said to ma, O by the way, is there anything to this report that Benny has been seen around the nayborhood?

It hardly seems possible, I'm sure he would of dropped in to pay his respects for old time sake, ma said, My, it scarcely seems any time since he was a regular visitor at meal times she said and pop said, Well, I'd hardly say regular, my deer, we shouldn't exaggerate, but he did pop in from time to time in his eccentric way.

Aw G, pop, good night, ma, how could I help it, I bet I asked 6 different people what time it was and they all told me different and some didn't even know, I said, and pop said, Do you remember the quaint and original excuses he used to give to explain his unseasonable appearances? Most of them had to do with the element of time, as I recall, he said.

O deer yes, some of them were quite intricate, I always thought he'd end up by being a great mathematician, like Dr. Einstein, and perhaps that's just what he is right now, how can we tell? ma said, and pop said, By gollies look who's here?

Meaning me, and ma said, Well how odd, he reminds me very strongly of Benny, do you think it can be a mirage so far away from the desert? and pop said, Well hardly, just a coincidence, perhaps, Maybe it's another boy by the same name, what do you say if we adopt him and try him out? he said.

Why yes, it might be quite an intristing experiment, ma said.

The result being I ate my supper feeling partly lucky.

Prospective Fathers As Fire Wardens On Hospital Roof

London, July 10 (AP)—Prospective fathers with a jittery desire to pace are doing it in shifts now on the roof of a suburban maternity hospital—and acting as fire wardens at the same time.

The idea was proposed by one of the men, who thought such an official occupation would be better than pointless walking through the hospital corridors while awaiting the stork.

QUICKLY RELIEVED PILE TORTURE RECTAL SORENESS AND

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money

AT THE McCARTHY

"Broadway Limited"

Hal Roach's latest film production, "Broadway Limited," which is now playing at the McCarthy theatre, is a gay, fast-paced comedy, brilliantly directed by Gordon Douglas. Based on a screen play by Rian James, "Broadway Limited" has in its principal roles, Marjorie Woodworth, Dennis O'Keefe, Victor McLaglen, Patsy Kelly, Leonid Kinskey, Zazu Pitts and George E. Stone—a line-up of Hollywood's leading comics and funsters.

"Broadway Limited" unreels a laugh-filled, swift-paced story of the great film star, April Tremaine, who is en route from the west coast to New York accompanied by her film director and a fan magazine publicity woman. As a publicity stunt, the public is led to believe that Miss Tremaine is the mother of a baby girl. But at the time of this announcement, the baby of a socially prominent family is kidnapped, and identifying marks on Miss Tremaine's baby are similar to those of the child that has disappeared. This inevitably leads to a whole series of dramatic incidents, which are packed with suspence and surprise. How the picture finally winds up provides a tense and exciting finish.

Marjorie Woodworth, whose blonde and glamorous beauty is remarkably like that of the late Jean Harlow, is making her first bid for stardom in "Broadway Limited" and her performance as the film star is real and convincing. Dennis O'Keefe as her leading man in the role of a young doctor, is another newcomer who acquits himself as a down-to-earth Thespian. Such other well knowns as Victor McLaglen, Patsy Kelly, Zazu Pitts and Leonid Kinskey turn in some very bright and light-hearted portrayals in supporting roles.

Gordon Douglas' direction of the merry story, some of which takes place aboard the famous Pennsylvania crack train between Chicago and New York, proves him once again to be a complete master of the comedy technique which demands zest, color and movement. In summing up, it must be said that with "Broadway Limited," Hal Roach has turned up with another winner for those who like to laugh and be entertained.

The East Side Kids

In addition to "Broadway Limited" a second laugh-packed feature presentation The East Side Kids in "Pride of the Bowery" is also now playing at the McCarthy, plus a new cartoon novelty "It Happened to Crusoe."

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Wagons Roll at Night"

Being a pushover for anything that even faintly smells of the sawdust and tanbark, this movie-goer would feel like a chump if he couldn't report enthusiastically on a picture like "The Wagons Roll at Night," now at the Capitol theatre, as satisfying a piece of circus celluloid as has glided through the projectors in many moons. Atmospherically the picture jumps through the flaming hoop at the crack of the ringmaster's whip.

Story is about Humphrey Bogart's two-bit carnival which has tough going until Eddie Albert, a country bumpkin, successfully routs an escaped lion, is inveigled into becoming a lion tamer, and eventually puts the show in the big-time circuits. But Bogart, the boss, is a queer duck; he has no use for his performers or anything that goes with the circus. One of his ironclad rules is that none of them is ever to have anything to do with his sweet, innocent young sister (Joan Leslie) who has been brought up to believe that the seamy side of life doesn't exist. Just as you know however, Eddie and the gal promptly fall in love .... whereupon brother Bogart fiendishly arranges things so that Eddie will go into a cage with a crazed lion and be chewed to a pulp. Sure it's medodramatic, but it's told well and with enough spine-tingling excitement in the last reel alone to keep everyone supremely happy about the whole thing.

The players all work hard to make "The Wagons Roll at Night" a good semi-dramatic offering, and their efforts have been expertly blended by the skilful direction of Roy Enright.

All of which makes "The Wagons Roll at Night" a first-class melodrama with plenty of appeal for the action sector....and for all those who always wanted to (but never did) run away with a circus.

The same program includes a late news reel, a colored cartoon, "Toy Trouble", and the first chapter of the thrilling new serial, "The Mysterious Doctor Satan." Also the latest edition of the Canada Carries On series will be shown. "Churchill's Island" is undoubtedly the finest yet in this series.

AT THE BELLE

"One Night In Lisbon"

When Hollywood turns its eyes toward the war—anything can happen. And something interesting certainly did happen last night at the Belle Theatre when we saw "One Night In Lisbon," Paramount's streamlined up - to - the - minute romance co-starring Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray.

The picture opens in blacked-out London. A Yankee pilot who has just ferried a bomber across the Atlantic to the R.A.F. picks his way through the street debris of a recent blitz. An air-raid warden peddles up on a bicycle.

At which the flier ducks into a nearby underground tunnel for safety. All right. So far so good, it's what you'd expect. Then it happens! What starts out to be a grim film reminder of war-torn Europe and marching men suddenly turns into a rollicking comedy that captures the first laugh out of Europe today.

Edward H. Griffith lives up to his reputation for producing pictures with realistic backgrounds when he succeeded in getting Paramount's London office to record actual air-raid sirens and screaming planes during a Nazi air blitz. He dubbed the hair-raising sound track into the opening of the film when Madeleine and Fred duck into the air-raid shelter where they first discover each other.

But even this real-life melodrama is turned into crackling laughter when the breezy American gets hit by a bolt of lightning love and takes the English beauty by storm. Fred's dynamic romancing shocks her, then overwhelms her. But her conservative inhibitions are shed one by one as the Yankee pursues her from shelter to bedlam to Lisbon.

Setting a new high in their fourth venture together, Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray are ably assisted by Patricia Morison, Billie Burke, John Loder, Dame May Whitty, Edmund Gwenn, Reginald Denny and Billy Gilbert. It's an exceptional show that should be included in your list of entertainment "musts."

Only Wishes He Had Known About Syntona Years Ago

Suffered Long Time With Acid Stomach, Gastritis, Headaches, Dizzy Spells and Constipation. Pains Extended Into Neck and Shoulders.

When the stomach is out of order and food fails to digest, but ferments, causing a full, bloated sensation; when the back aches and the kidneys do not function properly; when the bowels are constipated and you have headaches, dizzy spells, tired feelings and nerves are on edge, take a treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and you, too, may find your suffering can be ended without the aid of harsh drugs or depressors. Here, for example, is the interesting experience of Mr. John Welch, 84 Adelaide St., London, Ontario:

"For years my stomach was in such a condition that I had to be so careful what I ate, and it just kept getting worse until it seemed almost all food just soured in my stomach and caused gas, bloat and cramps. My tongue was constantly coated, my bowels were constipated and I was subject to dizzy, bilious spells when spots would float before my eyes and I would usually end up with a dull, heavy ache in my head. The pains extended down the back of my neck and into my shoulders. Lately, my back became so sore and stiff I could hardly straighten up.

JOHN WELCH

"I kept reading about how Syntona helped so many people who suffered similarly and finally I decided to try it. That was just a few weeks ago, but today I feel like a different person. I could tell it was helping my stomach from the first bottle. Then, the pains gradually left my back and shoulders and my nerves became relaxed so I could get a good night's sleep. I am free of dizzy spells and headaches now, my bowels are more regular and my whole system feels toned up and improved."

RUSSIAN STRATEGY IN FORMER FIGHTS 'WEAR THEM DOWN'

This is one of a Canadian Press series on Soviet Army strategy and tactics by a Canadian who commanded the Mackenzie-Papineau battalion of Canadian volunteers in the Spanish Republican army.

Written For The Canadian Press by

E. CECIL SMITH

Soviet grand strategy is based on the belief that the country will have to fight a long war, perhaps on several fronts, during which the great resources of the Soviet Union and the weight of its man and machine power will gradually wear down the enemy.

It differs radically from the time-table "blitz" theories of Fascism which call for the building up of everything for a sudden attack which must carry all before it.

The Russian idea is expressed in the tactics of continually increased pressure, to be cumulatively brought to bear until the enemy cracks.

This I gathered from discussion with a good many Red Army officers in Spain, some of whom translated for me articles from Soviet military publications and from their field service regulations.

An effort was made to modify this tactic and strategy to the Spanish war, but it eventually failed because Spain has not the resources or manpower of Russia and was not capable of producing all its military needs at home, since some of the most important arsenals were in the hands of the Fascists.

Great Resources

Therefore imports had to be depended on, but the non-intervention regulations prevented the republic from importing all its needs, while somehow not affecting the imports of Franco. But the Soviet Union is not republican Spain. It has great factories and resources, enormous man power, and great spaces over which to manoeuvre. In the last two respects it somewhat resembles China.

In the short campaigns of 1936 and 1939 against Japan in the east and in the Finnish War of 1939-40 we have been able to see this tactic in practice. While perhaps not so blatantly dramatic as the German time-table assaults, the so-called "blitz" it has proved effective and decisive. The Red Army won all these engagements by gradually putting into the struggle the weight of its local strength.

Against Hitler and his stooges in the present conflict they will probably have to exert themselves to the limit, for Russian officers with whom I spoke were quite plain in their belief that victory does not go to the piker in war any more than it does in a poker game.

But in 1939 they expressed themselves as well prepared for the contingency and capable of winning out. Since then the Red Army, Air Force and Navy have certainly been greatly strengthened, and on May 1 Marshal Timoshenko stated that the army equipment had again been remodernized within the last three years.

Every Russian officer with whom I discussed the question accepted the dictum of Clausewitz that "war is only the continuation of state policy by other means," i.e., by violence. They seemed to believe that war is only resorted to, as a general rule, when other means of achieving the aims of state policy have failed.

"The complete overthrow of the enemy is the natural end of war," they also used to say. To me this seems to be acceptance of the theory of total war, of the inclusion of the whole population in support of the army, and the attack on all the enemy's means of production, communication and public opinion.

War From Air

Finland is an example of this. During that war the Russians had entire domination of the air, and their bombing attacks completely disorganized production and communications, so that when the front was cracked the Finnish general staff had not the ability to move troops and supplies to the threatened quarters.

But we have the word of the Finnish government itself that during these terrible bombardments which continued day and night, for three months, only 430 civilians lost their lives and the property of only 10,000 private persons was seriously damaged. These statements appeared early this year in many Canadian newspapers.

Russian officers in Spain sometimes remarked that it was a pity that the republic could not use many of the arms and tactics of the Red Army, for they would have resulted in a rapid victory for democracy in the peninsula.

It is well to remember that most of the startling ideas sprung by Hitler in this war were scoffed at by western "experts" when first propounded and tried out in Russian monoeuvres. In the early '30s it was a great joke when the Soviet Union began to train parachute troops. On every side experts told us they would all be shot down before they reached the ground.

When an entire division, with its arms, were landed by parachute and glider in the Russian manoeuvres of 1936, and theoretically won the day for their side, it was considered a thing to be laughed at as proof of Slavic inability to be realistic. Even a year or so ago, when Russian planes carried light tanks and artillery forward in the occupation of Bessarabia, the whole thing was passed off as a publicity stunt.

But Crete and the Low Countries proved that this was no pipe dream, and Hitler's plans for the invasion of England itself are based to a large degree on novel theories and ideas of Red Army experts.

Tanks For Tractors

Canada has long been a major producer of automobiles, but only in the last few weeks did we produce our first tank. Russia, coming rather late into this field, soon specialized in huge tractor plants, which almost immediately were turning out tanks by the hundred and thousand. Whether some of the first tanks were of very great military value is not the important thing today. The important thing is that there exists in Russia a considerable body of skilled labor, capable of producing the latest models of tanks in rapid time, in plants geared for years to war production.

Eighteen months ago Russia was producing planes on the assembly belt plan. This was "pooh-poohed" as ridiculous. Everybody knew that a plane was something which had to be built individually, or else it would be dangerous to fly. Perhaps some of the first Russian planes so produced were dangerous to fly. But has anyone the nerve to laugh at the idea today.

Whatever mistakes the Soviet Union may make in this present war certainly won't be as a result of the Russians not being willing to try something new. For those Russians whom I met in Spain certainly proved themselves capable of adapting themselves to new conditions faster than most of us, whose earlier training in British and Canadian armies made Spanish conditions seem almost impossible at times.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma said, I think I'd better dash another hurried note off to my sister Fanny before she takes my silence for golden consent and sends little Herbit on to us while she and Albit go off on that trip. I mean she doesn't show the slightest sign of with-drawing the request, in spite of my pointed hints that we dont approve of the idea, ma said.

Yee gods have you heard from her again? pop said, and ma said, Well, just a short letter going into more details about little Herbit's caracteristics and what Fanny calls his originalities. It seems he is particularly original in his appetite, wich often seems to be null and void during regular meal times. Fanny claims it's not unusuual for him to sit throgh an entire dinner without touching a mouthfull, just sitting there prattling about anything that pops into his head, chirping away like a bird as Fanny discribes it, and not feeling a single pang of appetite till he sees the dishes being cleared away, ma said.

Tell her I'm very strict with children, pop said. Tell her I shut them up in dark closits at the slightest provocation, he said, and ma said, Fanny also writes that Herbit has an incurable thirst for knollege, and not to be surprised if he keeps insisting on knowing who Mr. So and So is or who is Mrs. So and So whenever we start discussing people he doesn't happen to know.

Tell her I bind and gag them before I chuck them in the dark closit, pop said, and ma said, I hardly know what to say, I dont like to say anything that's not 50 per cent true, so I think I'll just say we're totally uncertain of our plans so please not to take anything for granted, I'll write her right away.

Wich she hurry up did.

Salt Tablets Overcome Hazards to Health Created by Heat

Many industrial plants and many golf clubs are now providing their employees and their patrons with little tablets made of common table salt. Special dispensers have been developed which are placed beside the drinking water fountains. In the industrial plants the employees are encouraged to take one of these tablets every time they take a drink of water. It has been found by actual studies that this helps to eliminate the occurrence of heat stroke or heat exhaustion.

The human body is unable to adjust itself satisfactorily to high temperatures for a long time. The workers who are most likely to develop heat stroke or heat cramps are miners, firemen, laundry workers and kitchen workers, but many a golfer who tries to play thirty-six holes of golf in a day may collapse half way around because he failed to realize that the human body needs help in such a situation.

Some years ago a study was made of the miners in Boulder City, Nevada. It was found that heat cramps which occurred in these miners were associated with disturbances which resulted from a lack of salt in the body. A British investigator named Haldane found that miners at work may lose as much as five and a half pounds in an hour. A person in a Turkish bath may lose two pounds in an hour.

When large amounts of salt solution are taken into the body the effects of heat cramps and heat stroke disappear. The blood of a person suffering from heat stroke is found to contain less salt than normally.

In some industries all of the drinking water is modified by the addition of salt. This serves to protect even those workers who will not realize the importance of taking a salt tablet at fairly frequent intervals. In Great Britain miners are supplied with salted beer and are told that the food which they take daily should be salted liberally.

Our number of cases of sunstroke, heat stroke and heat exhaustion is relatively slight for the year as a whole, but in the summer the number of cases rises quite definitely. The number of deaths from heat stroke vary, of course, with the severity of the temperature during the summer, but it has reached as high as 4,000 in one year.

RUSSIANS SAY NAZI ARMORED DIVISIONS HALTED

* * * * * * * * *

VICHY DECLARES ALLIED TERMS 'UNACCEPTABLE'

Communique Says Lull Has Descended Along Battle Lines

20th DAY OF CAMPAIGN

Moscow, July 11 —(AP)— The Red army in 19 days of give-and-take fighting has won a respite from the German drive, the Kremlin indicated today.

Unless the Russians had suddenly adopted the secretive technique of the German High Command, today's communique implied that the German armies, like an unwinding steelspring, had played themselves out in their part-way invasion, still short of breaching the Stalin Line.

"Nothing particular occurred on the fronts during last night," said the announcement, thus laconically accounting for all sectors of a 2,000-mile battleline from the Arctic shore to the Black Sea.

There was nothing later than the report covering the night on the front. Reports for the 20th day of battle were still unpublished.

Russia Can Organize

(How soon and if the Germans could "rewind" their military machine for a new assault was the problem. But whatever time the Germans required also was time for the Russians to organize their own defences for a new thrust or even to prepare counter-offensive action.)

Today's communique was almost word for word a repitition in part of last night's: "Nothing of consequence occurred on the front." It had capped a series of victory reports, including claims that many thousands of the Germans had been crushed in counter-attacks.

The only active phase of the war seemed to be the aerial, and even there the latest reports were on ysterday's actions.

In attacking German airfields, Russian aviators encountered Nazi fighters who gave large-scale battle, it was said. and 28 enemy planes were shot down. Reds said six Soviet planes were lost.

Glimpses of Struggle Given

Although the Red army contended it had successfully parried the rain of mechanized blows aimed at a knockout and had now brought the enemy to a standstill, it gave a few glimpses of the titanic struggle which raged for nearly three weeks across the plains of eastern Europe.

One detail was supplied of the battle west of Moscow where the Russians yesterday reported a German division destroyed and another routed.

A formidable tank offensive was met by a hail of artillery fire which left 70 Nazi tanks flaming, smoking and rent, said the Soviet communique, but even then the Nazis attempted a second attack.

Again some dozens of tanks were declared to have been the victims of Soviet artillerymen and bombers.

Made Slight Penetration

However, the Germans came on and succeeded in making a slight penetration of the Soviet lines.

Then an entire German infantry division was reported thrown into the breach.

But before it could deploy in German News Agency Concedes Drive in Bialystok-Minsk Area Comes to Standstill in Several Places

EXTRAVAGANT CLAIMS

Berlin, July 11 — (AP) — Germany's drive eastward from the Bialystok-Minsk area is stalled at several places, D.N.B. German news agency, conceded today, but a military spokesman claimed the Red Army has lost 1,000,000 men killed and captured and declared "Russian military collapse is inevitable."

The spokesman called attention to what he called a crescendo in the language of the High Command. Its communique three days ago, he asserted, said operations were proceeding "on schedule," the next day "successfully" and yesterday "relentlessly."

"In view of the careful language of the High Command's bulletins," he said, "this leaves readers to draw their own conclusions."

Dienst Aus Deutschland, Nazi commentary, acknowledge that Russian tanks were mammoth — some weighing 120 tons, it said—but expressed the conviction that they could not "materially influence the progress of operations."

Because of their slowness and dependence on highways, the Dienst said, "these "rolling fortresses" are unable to execute surprise actions of any kind. The Dienst claimed that Germany's middle-sized tanks, capable of striking across country, were superior.

Had to Clear Roads is Claim

The Dienst argued that "already a weighty portion of the Russian army has been eliminated."

The halt in the German advances was attributed by the Nazi agency D.N.B. to the necessity of clearing roads of wrecked Red Army machines.

"Unimaginable chaos" prevails among Red troops withdrawing from the Bialystok-Minsk zone, D.N.B. claimed, adding that the Russian losses were "comparable only with the slaughter in the greatest battles of the last war." (The D.N.B. estimate of the number killed and captured is the same as that given by a Russian spokesman on Monday for dead and wounded Germans.)

German artillery, supported by the Air Force, poured a "devastating fire on retreating columns" which, D.N.B. claimed, "left so much material behind that some of it had to be shoved aside to permit the advance of German troops."

The Agency called the halt a brief one and said that in several places roads had to be cleared of "a mass of abandoned, shot-to-pieces and burned out tanks and vehicles."

"Part of immense amounts of war materials had to be shoved aside to blaze a trail for the German troops," it said.

This declaration followed the High Command's tally of alleged immense Red army losses of men and equipment, claimed first in a special bulletin last night and repeated in today's communique

U.S. TECHNICIANS WORK FOR BRITISH IN NORTH IRELAND

TOTAL NOT DISCLOSED

London, July 11—(CP)—The Foreign Office said today "some technicians and laborers from the United States are engaged in connection with certain works that are proceeding in Northern Ireland."

"All these, however, are direct employees of the British Government," the statement added.

"They had entered into employment in the exercise of their perfectly legal right to accept such occupation, and it is equally open to any other United States citizens who may desire to aid the British cause to engage themselves in Britain."

The Foreign Office said that reports the United States is establishing an air base in Northern Ireland "are not borne out by information available in London."

The statement was issued after London evening newspapers had published reports from New York of construction of a naval and air base by 400 American technicians.

It was the first official confirmation that U.S. technicians and laborers were engaged on a British construction project, but its nature was not disclosed.

Informed sources said they had no authority to disclose how many men were working on it or how long they had been engaged.

Washington, July 11 — (AP)— President Roosevelt declared today he would not be surprised if American steel had gone into 50 British bases and if American workmen all over the world were being paid by the British Government.

This, he said, was perfectly legal.

The President made his statement at a Press conference where the question of construction of United States bases in Northern Ireland or Scotland arose. Senator Burton Wheeler, (Dem. Montana), had said he had information such construction was under way.

When a reporter remarked that there seemed to be some substantiation from abroad for Wheeler's contentions, the President said whatever was being done was being accomplished either through straight purchases by the British Government or under the Lease-Lend Act.

President Not Surprised

It was then he went on to say he would not be surprised if Americans were working for Britain all over the world and United States steel was being used in bases from Canada to South Africa and elsewhere.

Mr. Roosevelt had no comment on the suggestion of Wendell L. Willkie that U.S. bases be established in the British Isles.

Wheeler asserted yesterday that cargoes of materials already had been sent to Northern Ireland and Scotland for construction of United States naval bases.

The Montana Democrat thus trumped the charge made by Senator Robert Taft (Rep. Ohio) yesterday that the United States is engaged in constructing air bases in both countries, but for the use

Hundreds of Canadians With Forks And Scythes Harvest English Crops

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, July 11 (CP)—Shouldering pitchforks in place of rifles and handling scythes instead of tommy guns, hundreds of Canadian troops are working in the harvest fields of England.

One Canadian division initiated a farm help scheme, sending 50 soldiers every two weeks to farms in many parts of England. Canadian farmer-soldiers pitch hay in Shropshire and Sussex, milk cows and do chores in the Midlands or Lancashire, and tend fruit orchards in Devon or hop fields in Kent.

"It is aiding our men of the 2nd division to get an understanding of the difficulties English farmers are up against in wartime," he said. "I am very anxious that our farmer-soldiers help the farmers here and that they make new friends in circles where they will be understood and appreciated.

"I hope that this will help develop a greater exchange of farming ideas between the English and Canadians after the war."

Daylight RAF Raiders Follow Up Night Blasting Of Rhineland in Germany

London, July 11 (CP)—Royal Air Force heavy bombers, with a fighter escort, attacked the shipyard at Le Trait, west of Rouen on the German-occupied French coast, this morning, it was authoritatively reported. One German fighter was destroyed, it was said, but all the British planes returned.

After a brief lull the trans-channel air "traffic" picked up sharply late in the afternoon until the drone of fighter and bomber engines became almost incessant.

Heat haze obscured most of the planes but it was evident that heavy attacks were in progress.

English coast residents were awakened by a series of heavy explosions which appeared to emanate from the Calais and Boulogne districts. The blasting began shortly after last midnight and scores of British planes roared over the Channel in brilliant moonlight until just before dawn.

An observer at Deal described the attacks as "one of the heaviest and longest bombardments of ports and objectives farther inland" since start of the war. Terrific noise of bursting bombs and anti-aircraft fire made sleep impossible.

Range Far Inland

The raid slacked off just before 3 a.m., then it was resumed with increased intensity, continuing until after 5 o'clock. This time the rumble of explosions appeared to come from far inland.

(Nazi sources in Berlin said the R.A.F. bombed several points in Western Germany during the night and admitted damage and casualties.)

The Air Ministry said that in overnight attacks on Germany and occupied France, heavy war industries in Cologne and other objectives in the Rhineland were bombed. Large fires were started by the super-bombs and were seen clearly despite unfavorable weather conditions.

Raiders Over Britain

Docks at Ostend, Calais and Boulogne on the channel coast also were attacked and great loads of bombs dropped. From these night operations two British planes were lost.

Nazi night raiders meanwhile concentrated on England's northeast coast.

Some damage and a number of casualties were reported from one coast town, but the Air Ministry said that elsewhere there was little damage and few casualties.

At least two of the riders were shot down and anti-aircraft guns forced the Germans to flee.

Many Dog Fights

In the fiercest of air battles in recent weeks Germany lost 16 fighters and Britain 11 planes yesterday, the Air Ministry said. During the dog-fighting, British bombers hit six Naxi coastal ships.

The ships, totalling more than 20,000 tons, were total losses after the fierce pounding, which included bombing of quays, dockside buildings and gun emplacements at Cherbourg and Le Havre. A chemical plant and railway sidings near Bethune, France, also were blasted with extra-heavy bombs.

Fighter pilots with the bombers had nothing but praise for the accuracy of the bomb-aimers and reported that great damage was done to all targets. The docks attacked were left a blazing mass.

MIGHTY NEW NAZI DRIVE IN RUSSIA SAID UNDERWAY

Russian Resistance Much Stronger Than Germany Anticipated

REST PERIOD OVER

London, July 11 —(CP)— It was reported reliably but without confirmation today that a mighty new German offensive, aimed at overwhelming results, is under way in Russia.

These reports said an offensive pointed at Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev is to be backed with the full might of Hitler's mechanized divisions.

One neutral source expressed the opinion that if the Germans push as far in the next 10 days as they did in the first seven of the campaign on the eastern front "they will have gone a long way toward winning the initial campaign of the Russian war."

The depth of their drives in the first thrusts toward Moscow and Kiev, the Russian Ukraine capital, was estimated by observers here at about 120 miles.

Rest Period Ends

A rest period for the German forces after 14 days of very hard fighting now has ended, the source said.

The halt came because of two reasons, it added, difficulty of supply and exhaustion of tank troops, but now "the Nazis will throw everything in the way of mobile troops, armored, mechanized and motorized divisions into the offensive."

Any optimism over Russian strength in the past 48 hours should be "tempered by memories of similar pauses of the Germans in Flanders, France and Greece," this commentator cautioned.

But, he said, it is "definite that Russian resistance has been much stronger than anticipated by the Germans."

Col. Donovan Named Coordinator of Defence Information

Washington, July 11.—(AP)— President Roosevelt today appointed William J. Donovan co-ordinator of information bearing on the defence program.

BALFOUR TO VIEW AT FIRST HAND AIR TRAINING

British Under-Secretary for Air Flies to Canada to Inspect Camps

PLAN IS PRAISED

Charlottetown, July 11 (CP)—The training of pilots in Canada is of "vital importance" to the growth of the Royal Air Force, according to Capt. H. H. Balfour, British under-secretary for Air, who has flown to Canada for a first-hand view of the training scheme in action.

Capt. Balfour and seven British and Canadian officials who crossed the Atlantic in a United States-made bomber were to take off today for Montreal on the last leg of their flight. They were to have landed there yesterday, but darkness caused them to come down on the Charlottetown airport.

Canada's big part in the expansion of the R.A.F. was emphasized by the under-secretary in a brief interview before he retired last night. "The growth of the R.A.F. is great," he said, "but it can only grow as the foundation training progresses.

Doing Wonderful Work

"That is why the training in Canada is of vital importance. What the Canadian and British young men in Canada are doing is expanding the bomber and fighter forces of the R.A.F."

"Canadian airmen are doing wonderful work with the R.A.F." he added.

Capt. Balfour said he planned to visit all R.A.F. schools in the Dominion. He did not disclose the length of his stay, but said he would be back here in ten days during the course of his inspection.

An R.A.F. officer, Group Capt. E. A. Blake, was first to welcome him last night when he set foot on Canadian soil on his third visit to this country. The officer commands the R.A.F.. General Reconnaissance School here.

GERMAN MAJOR GENERAL IS REPORTED KILLED

Berlin, July 11 (AP)—Berlin newspapers yesterday said Maj.-Gen. Otto Lancelle, commander of an infantry division, had been killed in action.

NAZIS ATTEMPT TO PROLONG WAR IN LEVANT STATES

German Air Transports Reported to Have Landed Troops at Aleppo

FERRIED FROM GREECE

Ankara, Turkey, July 10 (Delayed) (AP)—German air transports were reported today to have landed Vichy reinforcements in Aleppo in an attempt to prolong resistance in Syria.

British sources said waves of German-type aircraft had been seen en route from German-held Greece, where a Vichy division has been reported aboard ship at the Port of Salonika, but unable to continue to Syria because of the tight naval blockade.

Since the sinking of the Vichy transport Saint Didier July 4 it had been assumed Vichy had no further hope of getting fresh troops.

British sources said the report of air-borne reinforcements might mean a hard battle in Northern Syria before Vichy resistance could be broken.

Ferried From Greece

If the Germans provided as many as 200 air transports, observers here estimated, about 15,000 troops could be ferried from Greece to Syria in three days ,although they could not take along heavy equipment.

German pressure in Vichy for a prolonged defence was said to have increased in the face of continued Allied advances. But the flight from Syria or French ships—interpreted by some as a sign of the approaching end of the struggle—continued. The arrival of two additional French fleet auxiliaries at the Turkish port of Alexandretta raised the total there to 13.

Hear Russia to Free Polish Prisoners To Fight Nazis and For Border Concessions

London, July 11 —(CP)— Soviet Russia will release 300,000 Polish prisoners on the condition that Poland make border concessions as well as guarantee that the freed men will fight against Germany, a reliable source said today.

The demand for border concessions and other problems arising from the proposed release of the prisoners were discussed today, the source said, by Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, Polish Prime Minister, Anthony Biddle, United States Ambassador to Poland, and John Winant, United States Ambassador to Britain.

Ottawa, July 11 (CP)—Total sales of war savings certificates "from inception of the movement" to June 30 stand at $70,985,674, Finance Minister Ilsley announced today. Subscriptions in the current calendar year total $44,544,566.

During May 1,067,703 applications were received, Mr. Ilsley said.

In the first six months this year 5,056,498 individual applications were received at National Headquarters and the largest day's total of individual applications was recorded on June 30 when 110,818 were received.

"With the successful completion of the Victory loan, plans now are being formulated for a renewed intensification of war savings activities throughout the Dominion during the fall months," Mr. Ilsley said.

"War Savings Certificates and Victory Loans are the two principal means available to the government of borrowing the savings of Canadians for war purposes.

"While tax revenues are moving upward, due in part to higher tax rates, the expanding volume of expenditures for war purposes makes just as necessary as ever the faithful support by the Canadian people or our loan campaigns.

"We must not relax our efforts in any quarter until victory is achieved."

The War Savings Campaign was launched May 27, 1940.

Allied Conditions For Armistice in Syria Rejected

Petain Gov't Claims Terms Implied Recognition of Free French Movement

LIST OF 'TEN POINTS'

Vichy, France, July 11—(AP) — The Petain government, after studying Allied terms for an armistice in Syria, announced today it had found them unacceptable and indications were that the fight would go on.

"The English text (of Armistice conditions) is in basis and in form unacceptable for the French government", said the announcement.

It added that the terms "seemed to have been edited precisely to prevent all possibility of eventual agreement on the points in question".

The Allied terms, Vichy claimed, implied Vichy recognition of the Free French movement. The Petainists called this an attack on "the dignity of the nation".

The Petainists said the Allied note, given in response to a Vichy truce overture, "clearly showed Great Britain's will to conquer territories under mandate".

The Petainists declared "it is impossible for the French government to treat with De Gaullist leaders, traitors to their country".

Cabinet Rejects Proposals

After conferences among Defence Minister Charles Huntziger, Gen. Maxine Weygand, North Africa Chieftain, and Vice-Premier Jean Darlan, the entire Vichy Cabinet met in late afternoon and reported unanimous rejection of the proposals.

(The possibility still stood that Gen. Henri Dentz, High Commissioner for Syria, confronted by overpowering Allied thrusts through the mandate territory, might come to terms on his own responsibility.)

Vichy spokesmen said Dentz would "take decisions made necessary by the situation on the spot". It was Dentz who last Tuesday asked the Allies to cease firing pending negotiation of an armistice.

London, July 11 —(AP)— An informed source said today the British Government replied to the request of High Commissioner Henri Dentz for an armistice to end the Syrian war with a 10-point statement.

The statement, as outlined by the source, follows:—

1. Britain has no territorial demands on Syria or Lebanon, but wishes to insure that they are not used as sea or air bases against Britain.

2. French interests in the Levant area are to be protected by the Free French under a Syrian independence guaranteed by Britain.

3. All war material is to be delivered to Britain and the means of communication are to be undamaged.

4-5-6-. Option is to be granted to officers and men and civil servants to return to France or to join the Free French forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, under whom they would retain their ranks, salaries and pensions.

7. A grant of amnesty.

8. Syria and Lebanon to join the sterling bloc.

9. German and Italian representatives to be handed over to Britain.

10. All warships to be left in the harbors and Britain to be responsible for them.

This source said the terms of the British reply were delayed in delivery because of difficulties of communication.

Cairo, July 11 —(AP)— The British Middle East Command mentioned for the first time today the armistice request of Gen. Henri Dentz, the Vichy commander in Syria, and added merely that "further details are awaited."

It announced Allied forces still were closing in on Beirut and advancing also toward Aleppo and Homs, the only other important positions still held by Vichy forces in Syria.

Former Coal Miners To Register for Work In Pits in Britain

London, July 11 (CP Cable)—Former coal miners between the ages of 20 and 60 who had been employed in the industry for six months or more since the beginning of 1935, will be compelled to register July 17 and 18 for work in the pits, it was announced today.

After registration it will be decided whether the former miners are currently employed in work of national importance. If so, they will remain on their present jobs; otherwise they will return to the pits to help in the campaign to increase the output of coal.

GRADUATION PARTY HELD BY AIR FORCE

The clubrooms of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch No. 201 was the setting for a gay graduation party last night when one hundred and twenty members of the Central Training School of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton, celebrated the finishing of their course.

The graduates were entertained by a fine musical program and at the conclusion refreshments were served. Squadron-Leader Denton Massey and other officers and instructors addressed the graduates briefly complimenting them on their showing and deportment as a class.

W. H. TOWNSEND WINNER OF DOLL

When dainty little Elizabeth Rush, an American visitor in the city drew Ticket No. 1673 from the container at the Rotary Karnival on Wednesday night, she brought Mr. Walter H. Townsend, 226 Charles Street his first luck of the year. Mr. Townsend won the Dollar-Covered Dolly whose garb alone was worth twenty-five dollars.

Past-President Percy McGuire and members of the Karnival Committee officiated at the drawing which took place a few minutes after eleven o'clock near the tent where tickets for the doll had been on sale during the five days of the Carnival.

Mr. Townsend, stated that he had promised a lady, who had sold him the winning ticket, the gift of the doll.

FAIRLY GOOD YIELDS OF CANNING PEAS SEEN IN DISTRICT

Despite the fact that the recent drought took a heavy toll from pea and other crops some fairly good yields of canning peas have been reported in various parts of the district.

Clifford Barber, Huff's Island, farmer, had nine and one-quarter tons of shelled peas from six acres while George Fowler, Massassaga, had one and one-half tons from a single acre. General yields however were well below normal and in some sections the crop was only twenty-per cent of that of normal years.

Night Service Station Attendant Beats Masked Man

Swinging a chair as his only means of protection when attacked by a masked man, Floyd Morden, night service station attendant at the Shell gas station at the corner of Coleman and Bridge Streets, successfully beat off his assailant shortly after three o'clock this morning.

Morden told city police later he was sitting inside of the service station, when a man appeared at the door. "When I looked up there he stood with a mask over his face and his right hand in his pocket. He mumbled something about my opening the cash register. I got off the chair and then suddenly I grabbed the chair and swung it at his head. After I hit him he reeled backwards out of the door, but when I went to follow up, he hit me in the face," Mr. Morden told Constables Arnott and Evans as he displayed a bruised face.

The man then ran south and jumped a fence, disappearing in the darkness. Morden told police the man was between 35 and 40 years old, stood about five foot seven inches tall and had auburn hair. He failed to obtain anything, as Mr. Morden protected his employer's property.

Cheese Board Will Function As Constituted

A suggestion that, due to the pre-established price of 15 5-8 cents per pound at Montreal which must be paid for all cheese boarded, the regular weekly meetings of the Belleville Cheese Board were unnecessary and that cheese salesmen might utilise time spent attending them to better advantage on the farm was forwarded by one of its members at the regular cheese meeting on Thursday evening.

It was suggested by this member that the cheese board meet only once per month and that cheese salesmen report number of cheese for sale each week to the buyers. This procedure was objected to by Mr. W. S. Cook, cheese exporter, who stated that any such move would tend to disorganize the cheese board. "If we ever let the cheese board drop, we'll never get it back," he said.

Mr. F. S. Mallory, Secretary of the Cheese Board, at this point stated if any of the salesmen did not feel able to attend the board meetings it was their privilege to inform him of the number of cheese they had for sale and he would board them each week. The difficulty in this system, however, he said, was to get word back to the factory representative after the cheese were sold.

It was felt by Mr. W. H. Montgomery, R.R. Carrying Place, that to discontinue regular meetings of the board would lose for salesmen a personal touch, which, he said, was greatly instrumental in the success of the organization. After considerable discussion, however, it was voted, that no action be taken on the subject.

Difficulty for the president of the cheese board to determine, which buyer was entitled to first selection of cheese on the board, when bids were called resulted in a new system being arranged. Previously the buyer, who first called his bid was entitled to first selection but as the price is now pre-established and all buyers called their bids at practically the same moment, it was decided it would be much fairer to all concerned if buyers were to rotate in their right of first selection.

POLICE COURT

For the first time since parallel parking was reintroduced in Belleville, motorists appeared in City Police Court before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today, charged with double parking, contrary to city Bylaw No. 3260.

"These double parkers are a nuisance and a hindrance to traffic in general," stated Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson when James Hickey, local taximan, appeared and pleaded guilty to a charge of double parking. A fine of two dollars and costs was imposed, but Hickey stated he would not pay it. "One week in default," replied His Worship.

"This man left his car double parked for nearly an hour," commented Chief Kidd, when Leo Bougard appeared on a similar charge.

"I did not know the regulations," pleaded Bougard, who was also convicted and paid $3.25 fine and costs.

Edwin Levitt, 18, was fined $10 and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of driving a motor car without adequate breaks and also paid one dollar for failing to produce his driver's licence.

Jan Smarzyk, who stated he was a native of Poland and had only been in Canada a few months, appeared on a charge of failing to produce his National Registration card. Smarzyk was remanded until a check-up of his story could be made through Ottawa.

Five inebriates appeared on charges of intoxication, three being given jail sentences as repeaters.

Following on the announcement that the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville, and the Provincial Normal and Model School in Toronto would not be re-opened as schools of the Province, in view of the fact that these institutions are to be turned over for the duration of the war and a reasonable time thereafter to the Department of Defence for accommodation for 1,500 airmen in these buildings as Initial Training Schools for the Commonwealth Air Plan, it was stated that negotiations made with the Toronto Board of Education to secure Normal School accommodation at Earl Kitchener Public School, at the corner of Pape and Mortimer Avenues. The Board will meet in special session today to consider the Province's request.

Aside from the significant enlargement of the air training program, the move breaks a long and honorable tradition of education at a school which was founded by Ontario's historically great figure in education, Dr. Egerton Ryerson. The Toronto Normal School was founded in 1847 by Dr. Ryerson when he was Chief Superintendent of Education. Its first sessions were held in the Provincial education department and it was transferred to the Gould Street buildings in 1858.

Both the Normal and the Model Schools boast graduates who have made marked impressions on the life of the Dominion, and for long years an atmosphere of cherished distinction has been attached to enrolment in the Model School. Registration for 1940-4 at the Model School was 452, and 313 at the Normal School. Enrolment at the School for the Deaf is 309. These students will be accommodated in special classes established in five or six centres throughout the Province, said Mr. Nixon.

The Acting Minister stated that the Model School had outlived its usefulness, and that it has been found more satisfactory to have the teachers trained in school rooms rather in model schools. It was the last Model School in Ontario.

In transferring the two institutions, the number of Ontario building in rent-free loan to the Federal Government has been raised to nine

Plans For Carnival Made

Plans for the approaching Kiwanis Street Carnival were outlined by Jack McVeigh, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and Mills Marr in charge of the car draw, and George Lee, who with Frank Domenico and Cliff Baragar directed the last large draw run by the club. As usual Frank Domenico will be in charge of games with Wilfrid Laporte handling the finances. Al Reynolds looking after publicity, and George Fordyce in charge of refreshments. The construction of the booths will be in charge of Fire Chief Lynch and the special prizes will be looked after by Vincent Freeman while the Kiwanis ladies will have charge of the hope chest as in former years. There will be a number of new games this year and in all the Kiwanians are planning for two big nights on August 20th and 21st with the big draw on the car to be a feature of the closing night. No members of the Kiwanis Club will be eligible to win the car but members of their families will be.

Rev. Mr. Chatreau spoke of the necessity of preserving the historical perspective as to Russia referred to the recent history of Russia and spoke of communism as having originated in German philosophy, saying it is more nearly identical with Nazism than different from it.

He asked the members of the club to think these matters over carefully while thanking God for the prospect of a setback in East Europe to Hitler's erstwhile march of conquest.

German Pressure On Japan Increases

New York, July 11—(CP)—The New York Times says today that according to advices received here yesterday from the Far East German pressure on Japan has increased at least tenfold since the outbreak of the Soviet-German hostilities.

"The German plans call for an immediate attack involving the Siberian maritime provinces by Japanese forces, thereby causing a diversion and forcing Soviet Russia to fight on two fronts. German Gestapo and military agents are bolstering their arguments by saying that more than 1,000,000 political prisoners are immured in Siberia who are willing and eager to become guerrilla fighters against the Soviets if Japan will extend even a semblance of assistance.

"The German advice to Japan calls for the Japanese navy to make a sudden descent upon Vladivostok, while the Japanese army would strike through outer Mongolia, thus cutting off the maritime provinces and rendering the Soviet far eastern army useless, without communications or bases.

"However, the German proposals are receiving a mixed reception in Tokyo, where Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka is advocating a drive against the Soviets while Home Minister Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma is stanchly backing a southward drive toward The Netherlands Indies and Singapore."

Couple Confident Goal Is Near

Santa Ana, Calif., July 11 (AP)—Two searchers for the legendary lost city of the Mayas came home yesterday, wearied by months of jungle travel but confident their goal is near.

Dana Lamb and his wife, Ginger, had been in Southern Mexico exploring the unmapped wildernesses of Chiapas and neighboring states.

They reach several ruined cities and sighted many others, all jungle-locked, from the air. Then, from an airplane, they saw an impressive mass of ruins.

"We were quite sure this was the lost city," said Lamb in an interview yesterday, "and through further research, in Mexico and elsewhere, we have become convinced it is.

"We were unable because of bad weather to make verification flights. It would take five months to reach the city by land.

The explorer said he found the records of an airplane pilot who crashed in a great ruined city several years ago.

"The man stumbled into a vault lined with what must have been the books of the Mayas—written on sheets of hammered gold," said Lamb.

"He found his way to civilization and organized an expedition to return to the city, but went insane before the journey started."

Yarker Branch to Remain Closed, C.N.R. Informs Tweed Council

Tweed—Tweed village council met on Wednesday evening, July 9th with Reeve C. H. Kerr in the chair. Members present were Councillors S. B. Rollins, E. W. Jones, J. Fobert, S. A. McCarey.

Clerk G. D. C. Morton read a letter from the Supt. of the Canadian National Railways acknowledging receipt of a communication from Tweed Council re the closing of the Yarker branch line. It stated that there was no new development or prospect of sufficient business to warrant the department in retaining the sub-division. For this reason they could not comply with the request for delay in the abandonment of the Tweed-Yarker line.

It was pointed out by Reeve Kerr that the town had no municipal flag-pole. After some discussion the matter of securing a pole was left in the hand of the Reeve with powers to act. Council also approved an expenditure for paint to renovate the interior of the jail.

The following accounts were ordered paid:

A. M. Alexander $13.00; Bell Telephone 23.26; J. C. Hayes 3.05; Quinn and Quinn 41.50; F. B. Foster 13.00; P. C. Barnett 13.00; H. Sinclair 13.00; C. P. Railway 5.06; Judge C. A. Cameron 10.00; Alfred Davis 8.00; Tweed Hydro 193.25; Tweed News 18.75; Beatty Bros. 27.90; Simeon Rawley 3.00; Albert Baker 2.70; Brunner Mond 28.19; J. G. Frost, 8.00; Kerr and Co. 53.50; A. M. Rayburn 14.56; Mrs. M. Woods 20.15.

The July meeting of the executive of Tweed Red Cross Branch was held in the Veterans' Hall on Tuesday evening. The President, W. E. Tummon, presided. Members present were: Mrs. M. J. Quinn, Mrs. J. C. Hayes, Mrs. Jno. McNaught; Mrs. Geo. Clarke; Mrs. Fred Mitchell; Mrs. S. A. McCarey; Mrs. S. B. Rollins; S. B. Rollins, S. H. Connor.

Moved by S. B. Rollins, seconded by Mrs. McNaught that Tweed Red Cross continue the practice of giving gifts of sox, sweaters, cigarettes etc. to Tweed boys who enlist for active service in the Canadian forces.

A communication was received from Red Cross headquarters regarding the refund of sales tax paid by Red Cross branches for materials used for refugee and civilian relief.

A report of the financial position of Tweed Red Cross Branch showed that there was a considerable deficit with some outstanding unpaid bills.

There was considerable discussion following this report and suggestions were offered by several of the members for the raising of money for Red Cross purposes. Mr. S. B. Rollins was named to interview the Parks Board regarding the holding of a dance at the Pavilion with the net proceeds being turned over to the Red Cross.

A committee was named to consider the holding of other events during the summer for the same purpose. The following were named to this committee: S. B. Rollins, convener; C. H. Kerr, Reeve; T. W. Beatty; W. S. Gordon; H. W. Crosbie; K. A. McNeil; F. W. Clark; Mrs. Ray Quinn; Mrs. T. E. Moffat.

The ladies who have given a great deal of their time and energy to Red Cross activities were becoming somewhat discouraged owing to the scarcity of funds with which to carry on their work. They felt that this was due to the lack of interest displayed by the men and the opinion was expressed that this war affected the men as well as the women of Tweed, and that they should feel their responsibility to the extent of providing the women with the necessary funds to carry on their work.

Mr. W. E. Tummon president of Tweed Branch said that he found it difficult to attend all the meetings of the branch and that it would be wise to have a president who lived in Tweed and who might keep in close touch with the situation. He offered to tender his resignation as President. This the executive was loath to accept and appointed Mr. S. B. Rollins to preside over meetings which Mr. Tummon would be unable to attend.

'CANADA'S MODERN ARMY'

Canadians who desire a full comprehension of modern mechanism in war and how Canada is arming her soldiers should see the booklet issued by the Director of Public Information, Ottawa, under the authority of the Minister of National War Services. This booklet 'Canada's Modern Army' gives a full picture of the army of Canada today in illustrations with captions.

Our army today is, in a physical sense, new and different, but in spirit it carries on from the past. Self-reliant and efficient, it is a fast-growing, complex organization which combines the usefulness and skill of the soldier with the striking power of the modern war machine.

The booklet shows how the glorious traditions of service and courage which are associated with the story of Canada's army are carried into the mechanized army of today. Pages of history have been emblazoned with the exploits of Canadian troops in the Nile campaign, in South Africa, in France and in Flanders, and it is well said, "At Ypres it was Canadian gallantry and stamina that saved the day. The battle of the Somme added fresh glory to Canadian arms. Vimy Ridge and Passchendaele, Amiens and Cambria—these battle names are eternally linked with the courage of the Canadian soldiers of the past."

Those who have seen Canadian units at drill or in manoeuvres, or have visited the camps know that in the modern army the Canadian soldier preserves his soul and spirit. He is immensely effective by his spirit and by the fact that he is equipped with latest war implements.

These young men are defending native land and Empire and helping to fight the world's battle for liberation from the curse of the Nazi dragon. The call goes out for men to man the machines, the best in the world—and the cry will not go unanswered as scenes at camps show.

The Canadian army is composed of the brave who are taking part in the greatest crusade and most holy cause that has ever called men to arms and dedicated them to service.

THREE MONTHS' FIRES IN ONTARIO

Fire losses in Ontario in the second quarter of 1941 bring to light the fact that twenty-two persons lost their lives of whom 13 were children, six men and three women. There were 17 men, three women and four children injured.

The loss for April, May and June was $1,891,844 (insurance $1,546,896) in a total of 4,567 fires. For the first half of the year the loss was $899,530 in 7,997 fires, the number of fires decreasing 937 and the loss being $721,602 lower than in the same period of 1940.

In the first six months of the year 18 criminal charges were laid, one being a charge of murder which faces a man of 77 as the result of a fire in which four children lost their lives. Mysterious fires in Islington district were solved with the arrest of and plea of guilty by a store clerk on charges concerning four of the most serious fires.

4,541 fires are classified as due to chimneys, flues, cupolas and stacks 271, stoves, furnaces, boilers and pipes 394, hot ashes, coal and open fires 285, sparks on roofs (wooden shingles) 295, (fabricated roofs) 19, exposure fires 23, smoking cigars, cigarettes, carelessness in smoking, 1,104, for a loss of $152,332 of which insurance paid was $145,262, matches 289, lights other than electric 89, electric 368, lightning (unrodded buildings) 101, rodded before 1922, 0, rodded since 1922, 2, spontaneous combustion in barns, 1, all others, 31, petroleum and products 105, incendiarism 15, miscellaneous 418, unknown 731.

In industry there were 106 fires with a loss of $257,837 in the past three months. The first six months show a slight increase in fire frequency in industry but the amount of the fire loss is lower in both average loss per fire and in the total. The one incendiary fire in the second quarter was not in a war industry. There are no known cases of sabotage or attempted sabotage by fire or explosion in the first half year.

HISTORIC POETRY

When Wendell Willkie went to England President Roosevelt gave him a personal letter to Mr. Churchill in which he quoted from Longfellow's poem, "The Building of the Ship":

Sail on, thou Ship of State,
Sail on, O Union, strong and great!
Humanity with all its fears,
With all the hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate.
We know what Master laid thy keel,
What Workmen wrought thy ribs of steel
Who made each mast, each sail, and rope
What anvils rang, what hammers beat,
In what a forge and what a heat
Were shaped the anchors of thy rope!
Fear not each sudden sound and shock,
'Tis of the wave and not the rock;
'Tis but the flapping of the sail,
And not a rent made by the gale!
In spite of rock and tempest's roar,
In spite of false lights on the shore,
Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea!
Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee,
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee,—are all with thee!

Prime Minister Churchill, in his radio address of Sunday, April 27th, wound up by quoting the poem of Arthur Hugh Clough, "Say Not the Struggle Naught Availeth":

Say not the struggle naught availeth,
The labour and the wounds are vain,
The enemy faints not, nor faileth,
And as things have been, they remain.

If hopes were dupes, fears may be liars;
It may be, in yon smoke concealed,
Your comrades chase e'en now the fliers
And, but for you, possess the field.

For the tired waves, vainly breaking,
Seem here no painful inch to gain,
Far back through creeks and inlets making,
Comes silent, flooding, the main.

And not by eastern windows only,
When daylight comes, comes in the light;
In front, the sun climbs slow, how slowly!
But westward, look, the land is bright!

"OLD CURIOSITY SHOP destroyed by Nazi bombs," says a news despatch. These Nazis are certainly razing the Dickens.

THE SUCCESSFUL SALESMAN'S CREED

I BELIEVE in the store where I am employed.

I BELIEVE in the merchandise I am selling.

I BELIEVE that I am the personal representative of my employer and my attitude reflects the attitude of the store towards the public.

I BELIEVE the thing that goes the farthest towards making shopping worthwhile, that costs the least and does the most, is a pleasant smile.

I BELIEVE that my job depends upon my employer being able to make a profit on my services, and that it is up to me to make my services so profitable that it is a good business proposition to reward me accordingly.

I BELIEVE that a customer who leaves home, walks to my store, comes inside and asks to see merchandise, has gone 90% of the way towards a sale. My job is to show the same appreciation I should expect if I were in the customer's place.

I BELIEVE that customers like intelligent discussions, but detest arguments. It is easy to win an argument and lose a sale.

I BELIEVE that every customer is prepared to buy a little better article than asked for, and that every customer needs some article not asked for. My experience tells me what to suggest, and using this experience builds up my sales volume and makes my services a profitable investment for my employer.

I BELIEVE that it pays me to remember that I, too, am a customer of some other business house and that I, too, appreciate receiving the same smiling service I like to give others.

I BELIEVE that I am a good salesman and my good service will transform a cranky customer into one who enjoys buying from me and my store.

I BELIEVE and know, that is really the customer who pays my salary, and it is good business for me to stand in good with the customer.

THE CUSTOMER

The customer is always right!—
the merchant's point of view.
A policy which settles what all clerks must say and do.
But standing at the counters with the eager buying throng,
The customer I'm certain is quite often in the wrong.

It's business for the merchant to insist on the pretense
That the customer is gifted with uncommon, common sense.
But remembering the patience of some clerks I have in mind,
At times I'll say the customer is cruel and unkind.

Some customers are selfish, some are arrogant with pride.
They demand a better treatment than they themselves provide;
But I'm sure a lot of trouble in this troubled world 'twould save
If as graciously as salesfolk did the customers behave.

Oh it's not behind the counter
we should always put the blame.
The customer is often stooping
low to deeds of shame;
And 'twould save a lot of heartache and make easier the work
Were the customer as patient and as pleasant as the clerk.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Some Military Aspects of the Russian Campaign

New York, July 11.—In the year 1938, Colonel Braun, German strategical expert, writing in the military weekly "Militaer-Wochenblatt", gave the exact blueprint of the blitzkrieg, and described the prerequisites of its success.

He said: "The attacker disregards international law and starts the offensive without any declaration of war. On the eve of the attack fast mechanical forces are deployed along the border. The attack starts at dawn, with driving fury, superior force and tremendous speed, eliminating all existing border defenses within the first few hours, and penetrating deeply into the hinterland. Concurrently, the air force attacks a single all-important vital point in the interior, destroying it within a short space of time. Parachutists and air-borne infantry are landed at other strategical points in the interior, destroying all vital power stations, commercial centres, bridges and Government headquarters. The blitzkrieg must show decisive results within two or three days, accomplishing all objectives and leaving mopping-up operations to the infantry. Prerequisites of successful blitzkrieg are suitable terrain, absolutely assured surprise element, overwhelmingly superior attacking forces, with enormous reserves in the background, co-ordination of all combat units, uninterrupted supplies and favorable weather conditions. Its ultimate success depends on 100 per cent luck."

The model of the successful blitzkrieg was the campaign against France, where all of Colonel Braun's conditions were fulfilled. The Nazis had swept through Holland and Belgium and penetrated into the hinterland through Sedan by May 15—five days from the beginning of the onslaught. From first to last there was negligible loss of German lives. Within three days the morale of France was shattered; in five the Battle of France was known to be lost by many military experts.

Defenses of Stalin Line are Tricky

Let us now apply Colonel Braun's formula to Russia. The campaign began a fortnight ago, and two days later Hitler announced that a decision of world importance would be announced the next day. That decision has not occurred yet.

Colonel Braun's formula, which worked out in France, calls for "the elimination of all existing border defenses within the first few hours". The border defenses of the Soviet Union are the Stalin Line, and they have certainly not been eliminated. The Germans claim to have penetrated it at certain points, but their despatches on Wednesday complained of "tricky defenses".

The defenses of the Stalin Line are, indeed, tricky. There are not like the Maginot defenses, built in a more or less straight line, but are constructed like a maze. One series of fortifications will have another series behind it, and only partly overlapping lineally. Then a second series will be there, on the line of the first series, so that an attacking army, having broken through number one, approaching number two, may find the defenders of number three in its rear. It is a come-on system.

How well acquainted the Germans are with the fortifications is not known, but it is certain that Nazi intelligence officials have not enjoyed the run of the place as they have in the simple-minded and trusting democracies. The secretiveness of Russia is fully as great as that of Germany.

Elements of Surprise Lacking

The terrain is suitable enough to fulfil the colonel's prerequisites; bu thow "absolutely assured" was the "surprise element"? The Russians had been assembling on this frontier, perhaps, for the purpose of a diplomatic, not a military, showdown with the Nazis. But they may have had some warning. For, again, the Communist espionage service is extremely good and thoroughly modern.

Again, how "overwhelmingly superior" are the attacking forces? They are certainly greatly superior in material of all sorts, planes, tanks and gunpower.

But how superior are they in man-power, at the spot, and in reserves?

Manpower—if it is willing to fight bitterly—counts in modern war. It counted in Spain, for instance, where it took the Fascists, who were overwhelmingly superior in all technical and mechanical means, four years to defeat the numerically superior and recklessly fighting loyalists. Incidentally, the Russians have the benefit of that campaign, with its highly effective guerrilla tactics.

Never Had July Snow Before

"Favorable weather conditions" have not universally prevailed, according to the Nazis, who claim to have been held back by snowstorms in places, incidentally, where it has never been known to snow in July. Maybe they lied as an excuse, but they have got to get a decision by mid-September, when rain, mud and snow will be the Russians' most effective ally against mechanized forces.

Certainly the Germans are encountering in Russia very different conditions than in any previous campaign. The battle at the Stalin Line is a battle, not a blitz. It is prolonged way beyond the essential schedule of Colonel Braun's formula. And this time the British are unceasingly pounding the rear with the Royal Air Force.

It is well to believe only those things in which German and Russian communiques agree. Both admit terrific losses of life. And here the Russians have a double advantage, physically and physchologically. They are biologically more fecund than the Germans, and there are more than three times as many Russians as there are Germans.

These facts influence the psychology of nations. The French, for instance, had a horror of loss of life, realizing their diminishing numbers. Also, the further east one moves the cheaper human life becomes. The Germans are more reckless of life than the French, the Russians are more reckless than the Germans.

May Be Turning Point of War

What happens in Russia is also extremely important to German morale in the further course of the war. For the first time the Nazis are encountering an army of great numbers that fights, and for the first time there is the terrific loss of life that the blitz is supposed to avoid. As German mothers receive the news of the death of their sons, the enthusiasm for another battle on the beaches of England, with another great army that also intends to fight, may wane.

It is nothing to count on. Hitler once said: "The Germans endured Attila the Hun and the Thirty Years' War, and they can endure me."

Just the same, if the Russians keep on as they are doing, this campaign may be the turning point of the war. The "hundred per cent luck" of Hitler is certainly not here. Seventy per cent, or sixty per cent, but not a hundred per cent.

And, since the idea of invincibility is one of the greatest assets in his whole armory, this change of "luck" is important.

You'd Be Surprised!

CAPE TO CAIRO RAILROAD

It was that great empire-builder, Cecil Rhodes, who first envisioned a continuous railroad line from Capetown in South Africa to Cairo in Egypt.

The original dream was not just a railroad connection between Capetown and Cairo, but a British-controlled railway running the full length of the Dark Continent entirely over British or British-controlled territory.

The phrase, "Cape-to-Cairo Railroad," was a good slogan, it caught the public fancy and it became part of our language.

Millions of people, fascinated by the name, have a vague notion that a company was organized to undertake the ambitious project and that the Cape to Cairo Railroad is not only under actual construction but is nearing completion.

When the continuous railway line from one end of Africa to the other was first conceived the British Empire did not control contiguous territory all the way from Capetown to Cairo.

This condition was not realized until 1918, at the close of the World War, when the British obtained control of German East Africa.

Besides, the African terrain made such a continuous railroad commercially impractical.

Accordingly the original dream of a continuous All-British Cape-to-Cairo rail line was abandoned and a combination rail-and-water route decided upon instead.

The stretch of railroad from Capetown to Bulawayo in Southern Rhodesia was completed in 1897.

Two years later work was started on the stretch north of Bulawayo and by 1909 it had been completed to the Katanga district of the Belgian Congo.

By 1899 a stretch of railroad from the north as far as Khartum in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan had been completed, and by 1930 this line had reached the southern boundary of the Sudan and the northern boundary of British Uganda.

Since then considerable work has been done on various sections of the combination rail-and-water route from Capetown to Cairo.

When completed the system will be 5,700 miles long, but of this distance about 2,000 miles will consist of water transportation.

The dream of a continuous Cape-to-Cairo Railroad has not been realized and is not likely to be realized soon, if ever.

Picnic Enjoyed

St. Andrew's Church Sunday School picnic was an enjoyable event at the Outlet Wednesday afternoon. The day was clear and bright and proved ideal for the outing. The picnic was formerly an annual affair but for a few years past had been neglected, and this year was revived by the popular pastor, Rev. S. R. Foreman.

About 85 children and adults motored out to the resort in cars and truck, leaving at one-thirty. Games and races were keenly contested. The nail driving contest for women provided excitement for contestants and spectators alike as the ladies wielded the hammer with great precision, some even making the fire fly as they drove a five-inch nail into a block of hard wood. The winners in order were Mrs H. Campney, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. VanVlack.

Other sport results were:

Miss Jones' class, 20 yard dash, Geo. Cole, Ronnie Young, Cameron Miller.

Mrs. Cahoon's class, potato race, Barbara MacStevens, Shirley Scott, Patsy Hogle.

Men's race on all "fours", Harry Campney, H. L. Vancleaf, Ralph Gibson.

Two long tables were filled with many good things to eat and the happy, hungry crowd did full justice to the delectable viands.

100 Tons Collected

One hundred tons of materials were collected during the local salvage campaign, L. B. Calnan, announced yesterday. These were sold, realizing the sum of $1,031.43. Sponsored by Picton War Emergency Committee in co-operation with the Red Cross, their share of the proceeds will be used for purchasing of materials by the latter society. Town and country schools aided in the drive and received a portion of the receipts, amounting to $512 of this, the greater part was given by the schools to the British War Victims' Fund and some to the Red Cross.

For the time being efforts will be confined to the town where salvage bags have been placed in the homes.

The first collection found iron as the most remunerative material, bringing in $547 paper was second selling for $219.

73 Babies Born In Local Hospital During June

An all-time high in the number of births registered at the Belleville General Hospital in any one month was established during June when 73 babies were born, the nearest approach to this record being in March, 1941, when 67 births were registered. The average number of births recorded at the hospital each month has been approximately 55.

The ratio of males to females in births registered at the hospital during June was 37 to 36 in favor of males, this also constituting something in the way of a record insofar as hospital records show it to be the first time that male births predominated over the female. Hospital authorities lightly suggested that the predominance of males over females during the past month bore out a popular belief that during wartime nature assists in counteracting the losses of manpower in battle by increasing the ratio of male children born.

The number of births at the hospital in July will also be considerably above normal if the present birthrate keeps up, according to hospital authorities, who stated that on Wednesday of this week a third record in vital statistics had been established. For the first time in the history of the hospital, on Wednesday two infants were born at exactly the same time. At 12.10 p.m. a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gunton, of Trenton, and a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Madison, also of Trenton.

STARK—FARLEY

Marmora, (Special) — A quiet, but pretty wedding took place in St. Margaret Mary's Church, Ottawa, on Saturday, July fifth, when Miss Jennie Olivia Farley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Farley, was united in marriage to Mr. Glen J. Stark, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clinton Stark, Tilbury, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Burke.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and had as her only attendant her sister, Miss Marjorie Farley, while Mr. Dale Stark was groomsman for his brother.

The bride wore a model gown of pink organza with a white coronet and harmonizing accessories carried a white satin bound prayer book and wore a corsage of Sweetheart roses and bouvardia. Her attendant had chosen a turquoise sheer with matching hat and accessories with a corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 156 Sunnyside Avenue, after which Mr. and Mrs. Stark left on a motor trip. For travelling the bride wore a redingote ensemble in powder blue, white accessories and matched pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. They will reside in Sudbury.

Guests from out of town included Miss Jacqueline Samson, Sudbury, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. James Clinton Stark, Mr. Dale Stark, and Master Murray Stark, Tilbury, Ont.; Miss Bernita Miller, Scranton, Penn.; Mr. Thomas Farley, R.C.A.F., Toronto, and Mr. Patrick Farley, Montreal. Miss Farley, former member of the staff of Marmora High School, will receive the best wishes of a host of friends in Marmora.

AT THE BELLE

"The Great American Broadcast"

The 20th Century-Fox production, "The Great American Broadcast", opens at the Belle Theatre next with that sensational trio of "Tin Pan Alley", Alice Faye, John Payne, and Jack Oakie, Cesar Romero, the star of Tall, Dark and Handsome", is starred with them in the hit.

"The Great American Broadcast" is the tuneful story of radio broadcasting keyed to a gay note. Skillfully reflecting the mood of the period spanned by the picture, are the catchy numbers written especially for the film by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren. You'll come out whistling "Run Little Raindrop, Run", "Long Ago Last Night", "I Take to You", "I've Got a Bone to Pick With You", "The Great American Broadcast", "Where You Are", and "It's All in a Lifetime".

The story is gay, and yet dramatic. Alice, John, Jack, and Cesar are four people filled with confidence and courage as they strive to make America musically conscious via the airwaves, something that's never been done before. They put over the first broadcast of opera and boxing, and put across the idea of a nation-wide hook-up.

That sensational dance team, the Nicholas Brothers, are even more devastating than in "Tin Pan Alley" and 'Down Argentine Way." Radia's favorites, The Four Inkspots, blot out your blues; and those comics of the Folies Bergere, The Wiere Brothers will have the patrons of the Belle Theatre in stitches as they go through their incomparable comedy routines.

The same program includes the Belle news of the day, and a coloured cartoon. "Winners of the West" will be shown Saturday matinee only.

Ankara, July 11 (AP)—Eleven French warships and armed auxiliaries from Beirut, Lebanese capital besieged by the allies, took refuge today in the Turkish harbor of Alexandretta and all their crews have been interned, including the Vice Admiral commanding the Syrian fleet.

Additional French vessels were reported en route to Turkey, British patrols apparently were making no attempt to capture them at sea.

Hears Japan Avoids Nazi-Soviet War

Shanghai, July 11 (CP)—The Japanese Government has decided to stay clear of the German-Russian war for the present but may make a move against French Indo-China in the near future, reliable persons arriving from Tokyo said today.

These sources said the Japanese have been influenced in their police by estimates that Russia still has 32 divisionns of her Asiatic front, 12 of them mechanized, and despite the Russian-Japanese Neutrality Pact has moved but three divisions west.

It was reported also that Russia still has a sizeable air force within range of Japan's vulnerable centres of population.

The Japanese are reported to have but 220,000 in 12 divisions in Manchoukuo, only two of them mechanized.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

The Double Value of Exercise for Overweights

The average athlete, after giving up his special line of athletics, usually begins to put on weight. A little extra fat doesn't bother him but when he finds his abdomen becoming prominent, he decides to take up some game that will keep him more active or else take some regular abdominal exercises at home.

This little extra exercise, providing he does not increase his food intake, is usually sufficient to prevent further enlargement of abdomen and may cut down his waist measurement by one or two inches.

Unfortunately with athletes and with others who decide to take more exercise, the appetite increases and as more food is eaten, there is little or no loss of weight. What they do not understand is that exercise uses up body tissues and fat tissue is the first to be used up by exercise, because it is not an active tissue in itself, simply so much fuel. If the regular amount of food is eaten, not an increased amount due to an increased appetite demanding more food, then the excess fat on the body will be burned up by exercise and thus weight reduced.

Exercise has a two-fold action on the body. First, the exercised muscle heats the body, burns up the fat, and fat tissue is replaced by muscle tissue. It is certainly a great thing for the body to trade off its fat, inactive, useless tissue for muscle tissue that is active and gives strength.

Second, when an individual trades his fat tissue for active muscle tissue, he has a different outlook on life and on his body. The fact that he has more muscle—active—and less heavy fat—inactive—tissue causes him to actually want to take exercise. On the other hand, the excess fat tissue he has been carrying has caused him to feel lazy and not want to exercise or play games. With this extra muscle and with this extra or new desire to exercise, he will become stronger and there is little or no change for fat to accumulate on his body.

In speaking of the great amount of benefit obtained by overweights by exercise, I have in mind those who are young or middle-aged, who have in the past years taken regular exercise or played games.

For those overweights of middle age or older, who have not exercised for years, heavy exercise should not be taken until after a thorough examination of heart and bloodvessels by the family physician. Walking and light home exercise helps everybody.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Broadway Limited"

Two grand laugh hits, "Broadway Limited," starring Victor McLaglen, Dennis O'Keefe, Patsy Kelly, Zasu Pitts and Marjorie Woolworth plus "Pride of the Bowery" featuring The East Side Kids, Hollywood's new addition of real talented, rough and ready juvenile players, is currently showing at the McCarthy Theatre and for both adults and children this excellent program is highly recommended. An amusing cartoon, "It Happened To Caruso" and a new chapter of "The Green Archer" is also presented. Tomorrow the performance is continuous from one-thirty o'clock.

Robert Taylor comes to the McCarthy Theatre screen next week in "A Yank at Oxford," the widely heralded picture made against authentic backgrounds in England with an American-British cast which includes such well-known American screen figures as Lionel Barrymore and Maureen O'Sullivan and such British favorites as "Gone With the Wind" Vivien Leigh and Edmund Gwenn, who recently scored such a triumph in "An Englishman's Home."

Taylor plays the star athlete of a small American college who is awarded a scholarship to Oxford where he promptly falls in love with Miss O'Sullivan but incurs the enmity of her brother, a rival undergraduate. His humiliations, comedy experiences, defeats and triumphs afford the story a wide variety of romantic and dramatic phases which culminate in a thrilling crew race between Oxford and Cambridge.

Home Facial Every Night

This party model uses texture cream to correct complexion faults.

By HELEN FOLLETT

The woman who covers her face with cream and then starts to give her complexion a good drubbing may be a conscientious beauty worker, but she could improve her technique. The proper routine is to use a light cream for the purpose of removing make up and surface dust. After that a soapy washing tepid rinsing, gentle drying. She has then conditioned her skin for the five-minute facial. All this should be done at night so the cream can remain on to soften the epidermal surface.

Use upward movements; down strokes only increase a saggy state if it is present. Up the throat to the chin, from chin to temples, from chin tip along the jaw line to the ears. Up and down on the forehead. We take it for granted that the hair is carefully bound, so it will not catch up the only emollient.

Frown Lines

Should there be signs of frown lines, place the thumb at lower end, first finger about it. Keep the finger stationary, iron upward with the thumb, a movement that will lift the flesh out of the grooves. Do little circles on the forehead if railroad tracks trek across it. Work the cream in at the wings of the nose where blackheads lurk.

So far, so good. Now for a brisk tapping and hammering, the purpose being to strengthen underlying fibers and to order the blood streams about their business.

Have an ice cube at hand, frisk it over the surface of the skin. An excellent practice, this, if pores are enlarged, if the skin is inclined to be oily. It tightens sagging tissues, the beginning of wrinkles.

Even those women who have facials at the beauty shop should be faithful to this treatment every night. The feminine face gets a lot of wear and tear, especially when the world is standing on its ear, and there is no such thing as giving the skin too much attention. It's easier to prevent facial gullies than to erase them, so get an early start.

Historical Landmark Now Being Wrecked

Point Traverse, July 11—One of the few remaining historical landmarks in the township of South Marysburg is under the wrecker's hammer and within a short time this once inspiring edifice will be dismantled and hauled away to serve some useful purpose.

In this vicinity there was erected some sixty-four years ago, the Carman Church, one of the finest of such structural type of buildings in the County of Prince Edward.

Construction of the church began in 1877. For some forty-nine years it served the public, but owing to a fast dwindling attendance, it closed its doors in October, 1926.

Mr. Clayton Stoufles, Milford garageman, is the purchaser of the ancient church.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, July 12

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AN EXTREMELY lively and enterprising day is read from interesting planetary auspices. Things will move in all directions under high tempo with workaday matters as well as personal, social, cultural and festive occasions bringing excitement as well as much pleasure and profit. The young are especially joyous and fortunate, with courtship and marriage looming large and all manifestations of friendly interest and human welfare spurring to activity. There may be need of some conservatism in outlay of funds and litigation is threatened.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an unusually lively and exciting year, with all affairs moving in exhilarating grooves, both in the business and private life. Business should be promising, with new things under fine stimuli for success and expansion. But shun extravagance, false values and even dubious promises, although surprising friendships, even romance, are of utmost importance in the progress and happiness of the year. There may be some menace of litigation, unless astuteness be exercised. Youth should find joy and prosperity.

A child born on this day should be exceedingly talented, versatile and energetic and should have a happy, romantic and successful career, although prone to show extravagance and perhaps bombast.

SCIENCE'S NEW DEVELOPMENTS OVERCOMES DEFICIENCY IN GLAND SECRETIONS

The glands of internal secretion secrete the materials they develop directly into the blood.

There are other glands, such as those which develop saliva or tears, which pour their secretions directly into various cavities of the body, or even outside the body.

The glands which send their secretions into the interior of the body by way of the blood are the thyroid and the parathyroid, the pituitary, the adrenals, the pancreas, possible the stomach and the intestines, and the nex glands. Other tissues such as the thymus, the liver, the spleen or the heart and kidneys may also develop secretions, but these are not as yet well established.

The adrenal glands are two small structures lying just above each of the kidneys. They develop at least two different secretions which are absolutely necessary to the maintenance of life and health. The secretions from the outer portion of the adrenal gland, or the cortex, are absolutely indispensable. The body can survive without the secretion from the internal portion, the medulla.

Several investigators feel that the cortex of the adrenal gland may develop several different hormones—internal secretions.

We learn about the effects of the internal secretions as we learn about the effects of vitamins — largely by what happens when they are absent. The first signs of a deficiency in the adrenal gland are fatigue and inability to work, with weak heart action and low blood pressure. There will, usually, be also a loss of appetite and pains in the back, abdomen and legs. As the disorder progresses there may be nervous and mental symptoms with loss of sleep. Eventually the effects on the mind begin to appear, with irritability, irrationality and poor judgment, finally leading to convulsions. Obviously a person with these symptoms is seriously sick.

There is nothing more dramatic in medicine than the remarkable improvement which occurs when cortin, the internal secretion of the cortex of the adrenal gland, is injected into the body. Observers have discovered that a deficiency of this material brings about a change in the way in which the body uses ordinary salt. Animals which are deprived of their adrenal glands excrete sodium salts rapidly. It has been found that the giving of ordinary salt simultaneously with the cortin makes it possible to use less cortin than otherwise. This is of the greatest importance, because this extract of the adrenal gland is a costly substance. Quite recently scientists have developed a synthetic substance which can take the place of cortin in some instances.

The glands of the human body are intimately related to each other in an interlocking chain. Thus the absence of one gland may have serious effects on the functions of other glands. It is known that a deficiency of the adrenal gland has important repercussions on the sex glands. Men are adversely affected when a deficiency of the adrenals occurs and eventually the cells of the sex glands themselves will degenerate. In women, most of the periodic functions associated with normal activity disappear. The woman is unable to have a child. If the glands become diseased and deficient while the mother is nursing a baby, she finds herself unable to produce milk.

In all glandular disorders it is of the utmost importance to have an early diagnosis. The doctor may then determine whether or not the condition can be reached surgically or whether the patient is to be kept as nearly normal as possible by the administration of the substitute material which is available for some glands.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Sub-Deb Falls In Love

Do I believe in love?

With all my heart, and more than ever. In these troubled days, above all times, the world needs love, and plenty of it.

And yet there are cases where I would lower the flame of love, if I could, so that it might burn more brightly later on.

These reflections are the result of a letter that came to me the other day from a 14-year-old girl named Doris.

Now, Doris has been so precocious as to fall in love with a boy two years older than herself. It's real love, she says; love that will last for a lifetime. It's the most important thing that could possibly happen to her. It transfigures her whole life. She is ecstatically, unspeakably happy, and Jim, her boy friend, is in the same condition.

But Doris didn't write merely to tell me this. She has a complaint to make against her parents, who refuse to take her love affair seriously. She's too young, they tell her, and too inexperienced. Too young, they say, even to call herself engaged, for a girl shouldn't bind herself by an agreement to marry that couldn't possibly be fulfilled for half a dozen years. In fact, she's nothing but a child, her mother says, and she mustn't talk or think about love for years to come.

The parents are right, of course. All the sensible arguments are against poor little Doris' love-affair. But how is she to be weaned from love, this girl who has a heart so made for loving? And, after all, isn't it more or less the fault of her parents' generation that she ever thought of herself as a marriageable miss?

In the past few years, very young girls have been encouraged to grow up at a fast pace. Little sisters who formerly wore pigtails, flat heels, went to bed at nine o'clock and had no social existence whatever have been allowed to imitate the ways of the eighteen-year-olds. They have their own parties, their own beaux, their own evening clothes — and, of course, their own problems.

In fashionable circles, the girl of this age is known as a "sub-deb" and receives a good deal of adult attention. A popular magazine has a department devoted to her. A book of widely-read short stories, of which she is the heroine, has just been published. Clothes are especially designed for her. The parties that she goes to can hardly be distinguished from her older sister's parties. This funny, charming, unformed little person is suddenly leading what is almost a grown-up life.

With many girls, this scheme may work very well. They can act like puppies and kittens in the daytime and like imitation grown-ups at night, yet suffer no harm.

But supposing, like Doris, they come to have grown-up emotions? It's really very natural, after all. The friendly boy school-mate, who sometimes went so far as to treat her to a few sundaes at the drugstore, seems like a different being they they're both wearing party clothes and dancing together late at night. He may seem much nicer. He may even seem romantic. He may, in his charming, boyish way, make love. And any shy, untaught creature, may, as Doris has done, surrender her heart.

It would only be by a miracle that such a love could last. Yet it should be treated tenderly and with respect. Parents faced with such a situation need to have a great deal of tact and understanding. I have written Doris what I considered good advice. But she needs a deeply loving mother to stand by her, too.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

FORMAL CHURCH WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am to have a formal church wedding in July, it will be in the morning and will be followed by a reception. Will you please answer some questions that are puzzling me?

1. My married brother is to give me away. Would he be the best man also?

2. I am having a maid of honour and a bridesmaid. Would there have to be another man in the party besides my brother? Is it considered correct to have only one bridesmaid? Please tell me the order in which we should come into and leave the church.

3. What should be the seating-arrangements at the table.

Florence

1. It isn't wise to double-up on the duties of the members of the wedding party — this is very awkward and confusing. Your fiance should choose his best man; his brother, if he has one, or his cousin or best friend.

2. Customarily, in order to balance the wedding procession, there is an even number of bridesmaids. Also, if your wedding is to be a formal one, or even on the side of formality, you will need ushers to seat the guests.

In the procession, the ushers walk first, two by two; then the maid of honor alone; then you on your brother's right arm. In the recessional, you and the groom walk together leading; and (in the plan I like best), then the maid of honor, alone; the bridesmaids, two by two; and last, the ushers, two by two.

Receiving Line

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My cousin is to be married in August, and the reception — because the bride's parents are from out-of-town and are not very well known in the city in which we live — is to be held at the groom's home. We are perplexed about the formation of the receiving line. There will be the bride's mother and father, the groom's mother and father, the maid of honor, and four bridesmaids. Will you please advise us?

Therese

Since this is an unusual procedure I think it would be more convenient and sensible to reverse the customary positions of the parents in the receiving line. In this case, the groom's parents who are the hosts and who are the ones who know the guests, might stand first in the line: the bride's parents next: then the groom; at his right, the bride; at her right, the maid of honor, and then the bridesmaids. Then the groom's parents would have an easier opportunity of first greeting their guests and then introducing them to the bride's parents.

The Art of Singing Well Can Be Studied at Home

LA-LA-LA-LA-LA
LAY-LAY-LAY-LAY-LAY

Bathroom Soloist To Radio Star

Hold that note! Maybe your bathroom baritone—or tenor—could be trained to make a big impression on a radio audience!

That's not such an impossible idea, you know. Nearly everyone has the physical equipment for singing well. You only need to learn how to use your lungs, throat and resonators to best advantage.

One of the first things is to coordinate your breathing and your singing. Draw air into the lower part of the lungs and speak rapidly the phrase "la-la la-la-la." Repeat with other vowel sounds—"lay," "lee," "lo," "loo."

When you've adjusted your intake of air so you can speak these phrases evenly, sing them as in the music with our sketch. Use the middle of your voice, strive for a sustained stream of sound and breathe where the V (breath sign) indicates.

Then try singing up and down the scale with all notes equal in tone and your throat muscles perfectly relaxed. Not so easy? Simple exercises help you do it.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of TEACH YOURSELF TO SING to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Fresh Air Best Rouge—and Free

Gypsy Markoff, noted accordion player of the Waldorf, does daily deep breathing exercises

By HELEN FOLLETT

Fresh air is a wonderful cosmetic. Doesn't cost a nickel. It is a lung washing agent. When you air-wash your lungs the blood streams start hopping. Hopping blood streams make rosy cheeks. So chuck the rouge pad and grow your own blushes.

If breathing were not automatic, didn't take care of itself, some of our lazy girls would pine away and die. As it is, they ventilate only the upper portions of their bellows. Shallow breathers seldom have well-developed chests or clear, rosy complexion coloring.

Deep Breathing

Many benefits come through the rhythmical movement of the diaphragm. As the diaphragm is exercised the liver is compressed, the stomach and intestinal tract are stimulated so that they are likely to function well. The muscles and tissues of the torso are toned and strengthened.

Ladies who are weeping over waistlines that have got out of hand and lost their slender measurements will be benefitted by regular sessions of deep breathing. Let them, with each inhalation, lift the chest high, try to pull themselves apart at the waistline. Stretching movements of that kind disturb fat cells and make them melt. They just can't stand it.

When awakening in the morning, slip far down in the bed, rest the finger tips against the headboard. Inhale, stretch the arms; exhale and relax the arms.

Before going to sleep, lie on your back, hands at your sides, body relaxed. Inhale slowly and deeply through the nostrils. Exhale through the lips. This habit will make sleep more refreshing. These suggestions should be grabbed up by the girls who think that calesthenics are too much bother.

A Youthful, Tailored Style

By ANNE ADAMS

There's a fresh, keen, ready-for-anything air about this simple dress by Anne Adams, Pattern 4717. That smart buttoning from neck to hem saves you labor in both stitching-up and ironing the frock, letting you spread it out in a single flat piece. The smart round neckline is young; there's a charming sweetheart version too. Part-way seams at the shoulders give a yoke-effect and hold the bodice fullness in gathers below. That inset belt makes your waist look grandly lithe and slim; the skirt is very simple, with just front panelling for nice style. Have the short sleeves straight-edged or gayly scalloped, and you might add ric-rac to pick up the color of the buttons.

Pattern 4717 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1-4 yards 35-inch fabric.

May Use Aluminum Atop Monument At Nation's Capital

Washington, July 11 ((AP)—The piece of aluminum that forms the gleaming tip of the Washington monument may be melted and made a part of a bomber or fighting plane.

An informed source said yesterday F. H. La Guardia, civilian defence chief, is discussing with Interior Secretary Harold Ickes, keeper of the monument, the possibility of taking down the piece to open the Defence Aluminum Scrap Campaign which La Guardia will head.

Probably no other piece of metal has been viewed by so many people as this tip of the monument capstone. It was placed there almost 60 years ago.

Nine inches high, it was reported to be the largest aluminum casting in the world in 1880, when it was made, now, however, it is small in comparison with other castings of this metal.

Indians and Cardinals Show They're Going to Give League Leaders a Run for Bunting

Yankees and Dodgers Unable to Gain Ground Over Second Place Clubs

DIMAG STILL HITTING

By BILL BONI

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Though they can turn out to be duds, there were definite indications today that Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Cardinals aren't going to give up the baseball pennant races without a struggle.

At the moment, the battles are just as they were before the all-star contest, with New York Yankees 3½ games up on Cleveland in the American League, Brooklyn Dodgers three games to the good over the Cards in the National.

The Yanks, opening a swing through the West, got in five innings last night before it rained in St. Louis. That proved just enough for Joe Dimaggio to run his hitting streak to 49 straight and for Lefty Gomez to blank the Browns 1-0 on five hits. At the same time, the Indians were beating the Athletics 3-2 with Bobby Feller setting the A's down on six safeties and then clinching the victory No. 17 by scoring the deciding run after belting a triple in the ninth.

Dimaggio, with storm clouds looming overhead, bounced a drive off shortstop Alan Strange's glove for a single in the first inning. In the next frame Joe Gordon lofted a homer and that concluded the festivities for the evening.

Cardinals Strike Back

In the other circuit the Dodgers also were kept from widening their margin. In one of the program's two afternoon games they tamed Cincinnati Reds 8-3 on Kirby Higbe's second straight five-hitter and timely hitting by Cookie Lavagetto, Billy Herman and Ducky Medwick.

But the Cardinals stuck right on their heels. In a free-swinging contest that involved five homers and eight pitchers, the Red Birds first ran up an 8-0 lead, saw it disappear in one inning, then came back with five more to blast New York Giants 13-9 and end their own five-game losing streak.

Night Ball Popular

With one exception all of the night tilts were financial testimonials to the popularity of baseball under lights. The night's top crowd, 34,849, was at the Polo Grounds; 32,280 turned out to honor Feller and watch him win the 99th game of his career; 17,949 at Chicago saw the White Sox support John Rigney's seven-hit hurling with a 14-hit assault of their own to down the Washington Senators 5-2, and the lure of the Dimaggio streak was strong enough to attract 12,682 second-biggest crowd of the year, at St. Louis.

The National League Phillies, winners of but two of their last 14 games, were whipped 6-3 by Pittsburgh Pirates.

The other day game, also in the National League, produced the neatest hurling duel of them all. The Chicago Cubs' Vern Olsen came out the winner 3-1 over Boston Braves' Al Javery.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By the Associated Press)

Bob Feller, Indians—Pitched six-hit ball and clouted single and three-bagger that figured in all of Tribe scoring against A's.

Vern Olsen, Cubs—Held Braves to seven safeties and singled to drive in run in 3-1 triumph.

Coaker Triplett, Cardinals—His three-run circuit clout was big blow in defeat of Giants.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By DOUGLAS AMARON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It could happen only in Wartime. Part of the Carlton Hayes Hospital cricket field was turned over for agricultural purposes; a ground rule was introduced giving a batsman four runs but declaring him out if he hit a ball into the plowed ground. This is how the official entry on the score card read after the first batsman whacked a ball into the forbidden area:

"Fox, plowed out, B. Winter, 4."

Mrs. Phyllis Plumtree, member of the British Women's Sculling crew at the Australian Centenary Regatta in 1934, has given birth to twins, a son and a daughter. Mrs. Plumtree is the daughter of J. H. Taylor, five times British open golf champion.

Jackie (Kid) Berg, veteran lightweight boxer, lost the fight but won the crowd's cheers when he stepped into the welterweight class against Ernie Roderick, British and Empire champion. Berg was perpetual motion itself as he tore into Roderick in each of the 10 rounds, but the champion stood his ground, took punishment without flinching and accumulated points steadily with accurate, heavy punching.

Former Caddies Meet in P.G.A. Quarter-Finals

SARAZEN STILL IN

By RUSS NEWLAND

(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Denver, Colo., July 11 (AP) — A couple of ex-Texas caddies—rivals since Fort Worth schoolboy days—squared off today in the "main event" of quarter-final matches of the 1941 National Professional Golfers Association championship.

It was defending champion Byron Nelson against "golfer of the year" Benny Hogan over 36 holes and take your pick. There was little to choose between the two.

Hogan, 138 pounds of dynamite, had an edge over his bulkier rival in long shots from the tee but Nelson matched this as the greatest iron hitter in the game.

The three other quarter-final clashes today also were framed in unusual settings—gate attractions in any tournament.

Gene Sarazen and Denny Shute matched shots in the "battle of veterans; colorful Sam Snead, Canadian champion and the mile-long walloper on a mile high course, against P. G. A. freshman Lloyd Mangrum and Jimmy Hines renewing with Vic Ghezzi a feud postponed when Hines was forced to default because of a hand infection.

The Sarazen-Shute "dogfight" brought together the oldest survivors in the field. As a boy wonder, tenacious little Sarazen won the first of his three P. G. A. championships in 1922. He's 39 years old now and still shooting with the best of them.

Shute, 36, twice won the title but until today never faced Sarazen in P.G.A. match play.

Largest Night Crowd in Some Years, 14,023, Watches Proceedings

LEAFS BEATEN

By The Associated Press

Whenever the international baseball league-leading Newark Bears and second-place Buffalo Bisons tangle science goes by the boards and both swing from the heels.

The largest crowd to attend a night game in Buffalo in several years—14,023—turned out last night anticipating a slugging match—and wasn't disappointed as the clubs split a double-header by trading home-run punches. The Bears won the abbreviated twilight contest 5-3 and the Bisons romped away with the night-cap 7-2.

Frank Kelleher, Newark's league leading home-run producer, connected with his 25th of the season while teammate Henry Majeski banged out his 11th to provide the Bruins with the margin of victory in the opener.

The Bisons turned the tables in the second game with Dutch Meyer and Ed Parsons each hitting a pair of round-trippers to make Pitcher Hal White's task comparatively easy.

The Montreal-Rochester third-place feud was brought to a momentary standstill when both clubs met defeat before Baltimore and Syracuse, who are battling for sixth place. Baltimore nosed out Montreal 2-1, and Syracuse swamped Rochester 13-2.

Manager Tony Cuccinello's pinch-hit triple with the bases loaded gave Jersey City Giants three runs needed for a 4-1 victory over Toronto Leafs in their series opener.

Sunday Morning Class, Toronto Softball Team To Play Here for Charity

Sunday Morning Class, Toronto's outstanding girls' softball team, will play two games of softball at the Armouries lawn on Civic Holliday against an all-star team to be selected from the personnel of the Belleville Ladies' Softball League, President Ted Schwab of the local girls' league announced today. All proceeds of the games will be given to the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund.

Frank Doughty, manager of the Sunday Morning Class team, promised to bring to Belleville his full line-up and all playing personnel, including Kay and Marie Genereaux, former Point Anne girls who commenced their softball career in Belleville and today are considered two of the outstanding players in the Sunnyside Girls' Softball League in Toronto. Manager Doughty agreed to bring his all-star girls' nine to Belleville at no cost to the local organization, that is staging the event, with the understanding that all proceeds to be given to the Red Cross British War Victims' Fund.

Included in the S.M.C. line-up for the games will be Marge McDonald, ace Toronto pitcher, and her mound partner, Kay Mann, to say nothing of Kay Genereaux, the leading home run hitter of the Sunday Morning Class team.

Manager Doughty agreed to exchange batteries with a team to be selected from the City Girls' Softball League in order to assure the softball fans of Belleville a real thrill in their favorite pastime. "We will be in Belleville on Civic Holday and will co-operate in any manner with your association to assure the public of Belleville an outstanding day of girls' softball. Our full team will make the trip on Civic Holiday," Manager Doughty stated in a telegram to President Schwab today.

Balmy Beach May Replace Tigers In the Big Four

Hamilton Decides Not to Enter Due to Many Players Being Overseas

OTHER TEAMS READY

Hamilton, July 11—(CP)—The familiar black and yellow colors of Hamilton Tigers will be missing from the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union senior series next fall unless a decision to disband, made by club executives, is rescinded.

Last night Frank Sherman, President of the Tigers, announced the club has definitely decided to withdraw from the union. Mr. Sherman said the union will be notified of the withdrawal in the course of the next few days.

The Tigers' President said the decision not to operate a team for the 1941 season was reached following a meeting of 17 of the 21 club directors.

Hamilton's withdrawal now leaves the big four group with three teams—Ottawa Roughriders, Toronto Argonauts and Montreal. Hamilton's decision to remain out is expected to give Balmy Beach of Toronto a chance to enter the union. The Ontario Rugby Football Union team has been after a berth for some time and it was believed here that they would be invited to fill the gap now open.

(James McCaffrey, President of the big four union and business manager of Ottawa Roughriders, Eastern Canada champions, said in Ottawa before it was learned that Hamilton had decided to withdraw that Argonauts and Montreal's unnamed entry had signified intention to operate this year "but if Hamilton drops out they may choose to reconsider their decision.")

Following Mr. Sherman's announcement other Hamilton officials told of the "extreme difficulty" Tigers would meet in fielding a team. One of them said that an official of a Hamilton munitions plant where several prospective players are employed flatly refused to make any concessions of time off for football players in the plant "because it is not conducive to good morale."

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

by
GEO. E. WATKIN.

Wednesday's tournament was a real success. Cliff did a real job and everyone should be satisfied.

John, our green's man sure put that roller to work: the result brought good keen bowling and there were lots of real close games.

The winners you already know, but here are are some of highlights of the less fortunate.

Mr. R. Casement and Harry Ackerman were nosed out on the last end by Herb Tilley after winning their first two games with a good margin. Better luck next time.

Was glad to see Arthur McGee playing again. It is good to see the old faces.

It is impossible to beat up Harper's milk, and Davie Davison is hard to beat at the insurance game but on the greens ,"Oh my".

Bill Springer and Archer McGee put up a good fight for a couple of the younger boys. Stay with it you will improve with age.

Thanks ladies your eats were all that could be desired.

Keep next Wednesday open. There is going to be a game 'Mixed.'

Col. Bonisteel and Ray Grant were side tracked. But Ray will get you in the end.

The games committee has been enlarged and will go into session tonight. They include Cliff Argue (chairman), Doug. Row, Abe Wonnacott, Davie Davison, John Bean and yours truly. Our club games will start on Tuesday night. Keep this date open and every Tuesday and Thursday night for the balance of the season.

There are enough players in the afternoon squad now to make up a good round room of doubles. Get busy.

Here is the list of players available: Herb. Middleton, Col. Bonisteel, Herb. Tilley, Mr. Casement, Arthur McGee, Morley Duff, F. Harper, C. Sulman, C. Iley, Harry Ackerman, Bill Springer, Joe Black Fred Perry, C. McGuire and I could be used for a spare.

If you are interested I would be pleased to draw you up and arrange your games. This is carried out very successfully in several Toronto Clubs. To keep interest in your club you must have competition.

Col. Bonisteel and Fred Lewis were playing a game doubles and the following conversation took place.

Col.:—Fred have you lost any weight yet.

Fred: I guess about five pounds.

George: (Hearing conversation.) How much do you weigh boys?

Fred: Well I guess the two of us would go about five hundred.

George: Well Charlie Sulman weighed two hundred and ten when he started to bowl forty years ago. When your have bowled thirty-seven more years you will weigh less than he does today.

Col: "Well skat my cats"!

Between Innings

(GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT)

Here's how New York Times John Keiran viewed the ninth annual major league All-Star game in condensed form. "Information Please John" said:-"But the ninth inning was the pay-off. The National Leaguers were two runs to the good. Three more outs would give them the game with something to spare. But with one out, Ken Keltner of the Indians scratched a hit off Eddie Miller's chest at shortstop. Flash Gordon added a clean hit to right centre. Cecil Travis walked. Bases full, Joe DiMaggio up. Claude Passeau was in deadly peril.

Well, he got by that with only one run when Joe forced Travis at second on a grounder to Miller. Herman's throw for a double play was a little late and a little wide or the game would have ended right there. But it didn't end by just that narrow margin and Theodore Samuel Williams of the Fenway Millionaires took the game and the glory with a rousing homer to the right-field penthouse section. It was the final and crushing blow of the day."

Exponents of the game of billiards, that is to say those who make a thorough study of the game, differ somewhat in their opinions as to the origin of the game. We have heard some say the game was first played in England, others contend that France saw the birth of billiards, but as far as we can make out a game similar to billiards or pool was played as early as 400 B.C. by the ancient Greeks. However, the French feel that the real start of modern billiards was in France. They state the game acquired its name in France, which perhaps is true. "Billie" a French word, means "stick" and billiards is a game where the stick (cue) plays the vital part. But that doesn't mean the French were the earliest billiardists. However, two historians of French ancestry give credit to England. Bouillet, in a dictionary of his time, declared that "billiards appears to be derived from the game of bowls" and added that "the game was anciently known in England where, perhaps, it was invented." The Irish scoff at both England and France, and point to the fact that when Catkire More (Conn Cetchathach), King of Ireland in the second century, died, he left "fifty billiard balls made of brass, with the pools and cues also made of brass." Shakespeare causes Cleopatra, during the absence of Anthony (and that was long, long ago) to invite an attendant in this fashion—"Let us to billiards. Come Charmain." In the earliest eras, billiards was played on the floor, the lads shooting the ball around the room. Later four railings were built to confine play to a limited space and eventually the game uplifted and became a table pastime. The Spaniards introduced billiards into the United States in 1565, when a family from Spain arrived in the town that now is St. Augustine, Florida, and the game has undergone many revolutionary changes since.

Do you remember when Don Bradman, Australia's great batsman, made a record score of 334 not out for test cricket 11 years ago today. Bradman made his great score at Leeds, England, breaking the record of 298 runs set in 1903 by R. E. Foster. The mark stood until 1938 when Leonard Hutton, Yorkshire, made 364 at London.

Coach Dizzy Dean of the Cubs announced that he reached a decision this week on an offer from St. Louis to become a broadcaster on a three-year contract for $10,000 a year. Before game of June 28, he sought the advice of Manager Frankie Frisch of the Pirates, who tried radio work for a while in Boston. Frisch advised Diz to grab the offer before the St. Louis sponsors changed their minds.

Here's one for the book:

In a ninth-inning batting surge, an entire nine-man lineup his safely enabling the Wenatchee Chiefs to make up a five-run deficit and defeat the Tacoma Tigers, 12 to 11, in a Western International League game June 15.

Going into the last of the ninth five runs behind, the leadoff man hit safely. The next eight followed suit, all singles—until six runs came in to win the game.

All nine men had hit safely in turn six men had scored, the game was won, the bases were still loaded, and there was still no one out.

SPORT SPICE—Corby's A.C. let it be known they are to be fully considered in the O.A.S.A. race this season. . . . Last evening they downed the "B-A" team from Kingston 3-0 in as nice a game as one would wish. . . . Johnnie Bawden and Connie Harris shared the Corby's mound chore and let Bang Jordan's Limestone City "mushballers" down with exactly five hits and no runs. . . . The Hamilton Tigers have withdrawn from the big four football picture for the duration. . . .

Agricultural Reports by Counties

Extracts from report submitted by agricultural representatives issued by the Ontaio Department of Agriculture include:

PRINCE EDWARD — With the exception of tomatoes and apples, all crops are the poorest in years.

LENNOX & ADDINGTON -Pasture is very short in the southern part of the County. Spring grain yields will be light, oats and particularly barley are headed out but very short. Recent rains will help the late varieties in some districts. Corn and root crops are growing well. Hay is practically all cut. New seeded fields are poor but older alfalfa gave a good cut.

FRONTENAC—Recent rains will be a great help in filling out the grain and lengthening the straw in all grains. The situation is more hopeful than it appeared to be a week ago. Root and potato crops will also be greatly helped and an average crop may result.

NORTHUMBERLAND — Pasture is very scarce and some dairymen have turned their milking herds into fields of spring sown grain. Some fall rye and early fields of fall wheat have been cut during the last few days. The majority of farmers have practically completed haying operations. Potatoes are showing rather poor growth and a light yield is expected.

PETERBOROUGH — The crop situation steadily becomes worse on account of dry weather. Pastures have dried up. Milk flow has been reduced. Prospects for winter feed are poor. Turnip seed has failed to germinate. Vegetable crops are poor. Rain is very badly needed.

Chinese Hold Tag Day on Saturday

China is now entering the fifth year of its gallant defence against the Japanese invader. For four years Britain's heroic ally in the Far East have displayed a heroic gallantry that has commanded the admiration of the entire world. China's armies, poorly equipped, short of arms and ammunition have thrust back the Japanese armies time and again.

Saturday is the last day of China Week being observed by Canadian Chinese throughout the Dominion. For six days the red, white and blue of China has fluttered from flag staffs throughout the country in tribute to our allies.

In Belleville the Chinese are holding a Tag Day in an effort to raise vitally-needed funds with which to buy medical supplies, food and necessities for their war torn countrymen. It is a splendid cause and one worthy of patronage, Belleville's Chinese look to a generous public to assist them in their venture. Every cent raised through this medium will be spent for supplies and equipment for China's armies and civil population. Help the Chinese and you help Britain.

Corby's Shut Out B.A. Victorias Of Kingston 3-0

Bawden and Harris Limit Visitors to Five Safeties in Contest

CORBYS GET 12 HITS

A pre-season look into what might possibly happen in Eastern Ontario O.A.S.A. playdowns was permitted Belleville fans at Coleman Flats on Thursday evening when the relative strength of Belleville and Kingston teams was demonstrated with Corby's defeating the B. A. Victorias of Kingston 3-0 in a closely fought pitcher's battle.

Snappy fielding on the part of both teams was a feature of the contest as Bawden and Harris shared hurling honors for Corby's, limiting the visitors to five singles, with the victors clouting Sharpe, the Kingston twirler, for a total of twelve safeties, Hamilton's double to start the second inning being the only extra base clout of the evening.

Belleville pitchers were ahead of the batters practically throughout the entire game with the Kingston team threatening only on three different occasions. With Bawden hurling the first four frames the Victorias got two aboard in the first inning by virtue of a hit and a walk but failed to score as Jimmy Barriage took Jordan's lifter for the final out. Again in the fourth singles by See and Jordan put Bawden in a temporary hole but Bawden bore down to retire the side without a score, striking out the third batter.

Hits Well Scattered

Although Corby's connected for an even dozen hits, Sharpe kept them well scattered and it was not until the third when an error followed by singles from Kiser, Bawden and Hamilton netted two runs. The final run of the game was scored in the seventh when Gringham dropped Harris' fly with Harris subsequently scoring on Tuttle's one base blow. From the fifth until the ninth the visitors were unable to connect safely with Harris' offerings but got two aboard in the final frame as Gringham and Sughru singled in succession with Gringham being caught between second and third. Lunberg dropped Sharpe's easy lifter to centre to put Harris in a hole but Rawley lifted to Kiser to end the game.

During his four inning sojourn on the mound Bawden fanned five and gave up three hits, while walking one. Harris in five innings struck out four, walked two and gave up an equal number of hits. Sharpe on the other hand fanned four in nine innings and walked two, his teammates coming through with a double play in the fourth.

Lineups: Kingston—Rawley, c; Kinnear, cf; Boneham, ss; See, 3b; Jordan, 2b; Gringham lf; Sughru, rf; Colliver, 1b and Sharpe p. Corby's—J. Barriage, lf; Ronsky, 3b; Henn, 2b; Kiser, rf; Cy Barriage, ss; Bawden and Harris, p; Hamilton, 1b; Tuttle, c; Whalen and Lunberg, cf.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

The cottage was in darkness when Natalie reached it, and she told herself she was a fool to have her heart drop like that, just because Brooks wasn't sitting here waiting for her.

She went in, switching on the lights, assuring herself that he really was gone. In the bedroom the closet door was partly ajar and there were unmistakably evidences that Brooks had changed clothes. The tropical white that all men here wore when they went to the mainland, were gone. Poor darling! He had been upset by that scene with the newspaper men. Then she remembered the scene on the beach when Brooks had put his arms about June and kissed her and she set her teeth hard.

She stood very still there in the pretty, colorful room, while her memory went back to the day when she and Brooks had talked about love. Brooks had been amused and cynical, had denied any belief in such a thing. "Well—maybe he didn't mean it any more than you did," she told herself shakily. "You lied, too — remember? You told him you didn't believe in love either. Maybe he was lying, too—you hope!"

She tried to manage a laugh, but it wasn't very successful. And then suddenly, her eyes brightening, she went to the closet, rummaged among the delicate, cobwebby garments hanging there, and selected a negligee that was a froth of peach-colored chiffon and fragile creamy lace; the sort of garment any girl would dream of having in her trousseau. In the bathroom, she ran a hot tub, poured bath salts lavishly into the steaming water, and laughed at herself for the rising excitement that went through her.

Fresh from her tub, she donned the satin nightdress that matched the negligee. She had never been more lovely in her life, and she knew it. She went back into the living room, turned out all the lamps but one, and sat down in a cushioned wicker chair to wait.

Her senses were very keen; she was almost sharply conscious of the beating of the surf on the beach; the sound of night creatures from the jungle behind the line of cottages. She heard the sound of a footstep on the shell path outside, and her heart lifted. A man's footsteps on the veranda, and then at the door. Her knees were wet tissue paper—she couldn't stand up. She could only sit there in her wicker chair, her heart hammering like mad, and wait.

The door opened—and her heart fell. For the man who stood there was not Brooks — but Donald Heath.

His face was taut and white behind his sun-tan. His eyes were bitter, but when he spoke his voice was casual, almost matter-of-fact, as he said, "I thought you should know that they've gone away together."

"Your husband," he explained, answering the question he saw in her eyes. "And my wife. I saw them on the mainland just now. I took the newspaper guys across and saw them on the train to be sure they'd get off the island. And on my way back to the pier, I saw your husband and my wife getting into a taxi—all dressed up plumb regardless, both of them."

Natalie's heart lay like a stone in her breast. For a long moment she could not speak, but at last she forced her stiff lips to say heavily. "Then you know, too."

"I know what?" he demanded.

"That they're in love with each other," said Natalie steadily.

Donald made a little sound half an oath, half an explosive, mirthless laugh. "Oh, for Pete's sake—" he began, annoyed.

"I saw them on the beach this afternoon," said Natalie, her eyes wide and sick, as though she had been dealt a blow whose pain was almost beyond endurance. "She was crying. Brooks had her in his arms, trying to comfort her — and he —kissed her—"

"I don't know what that meant, and I don't care. I only know that June loves ME. Nobody in the world could possibly convince me of anything else."

"You're that sure she loves you—and yet you're breaking up your marriage and sending her to Hollywood alone?"

Donald's jaw set hard and he said grimly, "I have no right to chain her down to ordinary married life— the kind I can give her. She's a genius— and genius belongs to the world, not to just one broken-down hack of a newspaper guy—"

"You fool!" Natalie's voice cut like a whiplash across his words. "You poor, blind fool! Oh, you can't possibly mean that. You're just excusing yourself. You're letting her go because you don't love her—"

"Don't I?" Donald's voice rode high above hers, beating hers to silence. "If I don't love her, why is it like tearing the very heart out of my body to let her go?"

He seemed to hear his own voice and it silenced him for a moment; then he managed a faint grin and made a little gesture with a hand that was not too steady. "Sorry to go melodramatic on you," he apologized. "I don't seem to be at my best tonight, somehow—"

"That's because you love her, and you're too stubborn to admit it, and because of some crazy thing that men call pride and use to torture the women who are fools enough to love them," said Natalie savagely. "If what you're doing to June—yes, and what Brooks is doing to me— is the mark of what you call self-respect, then I'd like to meet a man who didn't have any. And now—will you please get out of here? I've had just about as much of your noble behavior as I can take for one night."

Donald was white and his face was stiff with rage and surprise. For a moment he stood there, hesitant, as though about to say something more. And then he set his jaw hard, turned, and stalked out.

Natalie stood very still for a moment, the rapid rising and falling of her breast stirring the soft chiffon and satin of her garments. Then, her mouth a set white line, she turned off the last light and went into the bedroom. Deliberately, she closed and locked the door; and her mouth curled in a little sneer of self-scorn. She had never had to close the door against Brooks in their brief, painful honeymoon, for Brooks had never so much as come near that door. They were no more really man and wife than they had been when they had stood before the minister that day which now seemed so many years ago.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was starting to read her letters at breakfist, saying to pop, O, good news, Willyum.

Pass it, please, pop said, and ma said, We dont need to expect a visitation from little Herbit after all. My sister Fanny writes to say they've changed their mind and they're going to take him along on the trip, he said.

Wowie, for this relief much thanks, pop said, and ma said, Echo says amen. Now I wonder what ever induced them to change their mind so drastically? she said.

Me not saying anything but having an idea it might of been on account of the letter I wrote little Herbit and stuck in the envelope with ma's letter to Ant Fanny, saying, Deer Herbit, I heard the good news about you coming to stay with us while Ant Fanny and Uncle Albit take a trip in the car, and I cant hardly wait for us 2 can have a lot of fun together. One swell thing we can do is go up on the roof and fly kites. Sometimes I go up there alone and fly my kite, but it's kind of too dangerous that way because every once in a white I start slipping off the edge with one foot before I realize how close I am, but if we're both up there together we can yell at each other if we notice each other running too close to the edge. Say Herbit, I hope you dont mind the smell of fewmigation, because our house is still full of it. I'm up out of bed again and I dont feel so sick now, and the doctor wasn't sure what was a matter with me except it was some kind of a contagious fever in the bones and mussels, but anyways the whole house has been fewmigated so if there are any germs left they are probably so weak from the fewmigation they cant hurt you much, so hurry up, your loving cousin Benny Potts.

Lively but negligible advances were Warner Bros., Loew's and Paramount. Support was accorded U.S. Steel, Great Northern, N.Y, Central, Westinghouse, United Aircraft and American Smelting.

Supplies Short On Produce Market

Toronto, July 11 — With fresh receipts not sufficient to meet the good local demand, prices on top-grade eggs were pushed 1 cent a dozen higher in trading on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. A shortage of supplies was also very evident on the butter market, with the result that all grades registered gains of 1-2c a pound.

Many buyers were forced to go unsatisfied as exceptionally good demand and extremely light receipts prevailed on the egg market. Advances of 1 cent a dozen were registered in both the country dealer and retail section of trading. Spot prices were quoted as follows at yesterday's close: Grade A-large, 33 cents; grade A-medium, 32 cents; grade A-pullets, 26 cents. Grade B remained unchanged at 25 cents a dozen, while grade C advanced 1-2 cent.

Despite the fact that, as reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, creamery butter production in Canada for June has shown increases of 1 per cent over the June make of 1940 and 23 per cent as compared with the output of the preceding month, receipts on the local market have been very light recently. The market held firm yesterday and some early sales of first-grade butter at 34 1-4 cents a pound were reported, but offerings at this price were soon cleaned up and the price rested at 34 1-2 cents at the close. Dealers said that it was difficult to get offerings even at the advanced price.

Montreal Produce

15 Live in Lifeboat 7 Days on 3 Biscuits, Quarter Pint Water Each Day

(By The Canadian Press)

Two Londoners, members of the crew of a British merchantman sunk by a German raider in mid-Atlantic, said in Canada that they and 13 others lived seven days in a lifeboat on three biscuits and a quarter of a pint of water daily.

Charles Dryden said, "We were shelled without warning but our anti-submarine gunner got in one shot before he was ordered to cease fire because of the heavier gunfire from the enemy ship. When the order came to abandon ship the firing was too heavy and the darkness so black we could only jump overboard and hope for the best.

The 15 were picked up by another British merchantman but 29 shipmates are believed to be prisoners aboard the raider.

TWO YOUTHS ARRESTED AT PORT HOPE

Port Hope, Ont., July 11—(CP)—Laurie Westmorand, 17, and William Menary, 17, were arrested by police early today following an alleged attempt to enter Deputy Reeve J. L. Moncrief's service station. A neighbor warned police who found the boys a short distance from the scene.

Westmorand said he lived at 18 King Street, Kingston and Menary, who first gave the name of Jack Foster, claimed to reside at 14 King St., Kingston. Afterwards the youths told police they were from Hamilton.

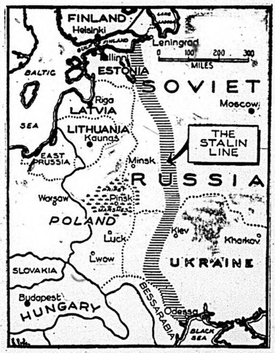
CAN PANZERS BUCK THE STALIN LINE?



This map shows the course of the Stalin line of fortifications that runs from the Gulf of Finland south for some 1,100 miles to the Black Sea. Although little is known of the defence system, it is believed that the line combines the best features of the Maginot and Siegfried lines. Most bloody battles of the war will be fought here, for the line is deep and, contrary to what the Nazi propaganda mouthpieces say, can not be pierced in any one day of fighting. The section marked with the arrow is at approximately the spot where, Germans claim, they have reached the outer fortifications. This spot is about 300 miles from Moscow.

Healy, who is 63, was a member of the Parliament of Westminster

Halifax Plans Trip To London for 3 Weeks

Washington, July 11 — (AP)—Lord Halifax, British ambassador, hopes to return to London for a short visit some time in August.

The ambassador told newspapermen his purpose would be to discuss the international situation with his Foreign Office.

Answering questions, he said that his plans were to return to the United States after perhaps three of Great Britain.

(In London, the Foreign Office said today that "some technicians and laborers from the United States are engaged in connection with certain works" in Northern Ireland but that all are direct employees of the British Government. Statements that the U.S. is establishing an air base in Northern Ireland, the Foreign Office added, "are not borne out by information available in London.")

May Question Knox

At the same time, Senator Walter George, Georgia Democrat, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, announced he is opposed to dispatching American armed forces to any additional points outside the western hemisphere. He said he doubted reasons existed to justify further action in this regard.

With the question of additional Atlantic bases suddenly to the fore, members of the Senate Naval Committee decided to ask Navy Secretary Frank Knox for information on the subject when he appears before the body today. Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, also was asked to appear.

To Ask Specific Question

The committee convened to inquire into reports that shooting has occurred in the past during encounters between vessels of the U.S. Atlantic patrol and Nazi naval units. Committee members said Knox would be asked specifically whether the Navy planned bases in Northern Ireland and Scotland.

Knox has emphatically denied at his press conference all precious "shooting" reports, and there have been no official announcements of naval casualties due to hostile action since the inauguration of the Atlantic patrol. The only loss reported was that of a big patrol plane with a crew of seven, missing since July 3. Indications were the plane disappeared while operating near the North Atlantic coastline.

Wheeler, who forecast American occupation of Iceland, declined to say where he had received the report regarding new trans-Atlantic bases.

Received Advice

"I received advices some time ago", he told reporters, "that the administration is planning the construction of American Naval bases not only in Northern Ireland, but in Scotland, and that materials and supplies for the work already have been shipped over.

"I do not know whether construction actually has started'.

Taft, during his speech in the Senate yesterday, said his information was that the United States already is constructing air bases in Northern Ireland for Britain and Senator John Danaher, (Rep. Connecticut), joined in with a claim that "American workmen by the hundreds have been constructing a naval base in northern Ireland for weeks just as they were preliminary to the Iceland situation"

Purely Business Deal

Neither Taft nor Danaher amplified on this point, but there was some speculation whether their reference concerned the recent announcement that a New York firm of contractors had been employed by the British Government to do some construction work in the British Isles. British officials said then that it was a business deal between a private company and the British Government.

In this connection, one official pointed out that President Roosevelt personally had given his approval to American citizens going abroad for non-combatant work, and likewise had said that there was nothing to stop Americans from enlisting in British or Chinese military forces provided they did not take the oath of allegiance.

Reiterates Challenge

Wheeler told reporters that "If we are going to have naval bases in Ireland and Scotland it means that we are actually going into the war." He added that he wished to reiterate his challenge to President Roosevelt "to come to Congress and ask for a declaration of war instead of trying to take us in through the back door."

Recalling Prime Minister Churchill's suggestion that the British and American navies co-operate in guarding the North Atlantic supply lanes, Wheeler said he understood "there already have been some talks between our navy people and the British looking toward some sort of 'pooling' arrangement."

"We don't have any foreign policy of our own any more," he added. "Our policy is to give Churchill everything he asks for.'

Ireland Admits Project

Belfast, July 11 —(CP)— Technicians and workers from the United States are engaged on a construction project of an undisclosed nature in Northern Ireland.

(In London the Foreign Office said these Americans were "direct employees of the British government" and asserted that reports that the United States is establishing an air base in Northern Ireland "are not borne out by information available in London.")

People of Northern Ireland have given many evidences of the popularity of the Americans. Bands are buying copies of "The Star Spangled Banner" to play in their honor. The Americans spend their money freely and some are said to have handed out pound notes for tips, mistaking them for dollar bills.

The United States contingent celebrated the Fourth of July by going to Dublin, the capital of Eire.

Informed sources here said they had no knowledge of any construction by the United States government.

Statements by United States Senators Burton Wheeler and Robert Taft charging materials were on the way and building had begun were considered "surprising" by these sources.

Reluctant to Discuss Question

Government officials generally were reluctant to discuss the subject but Finance Minister John Barbour said:

"It is a matter for the British Government, but there is not the slighest doubt that America would have an enthusiastic welcome in what Herbert Morrison (British Home Secretary) called a few days ago this ferociously-loyal part of the British Isles."

The Northern Whig and Belfast Post said editorially:

"The establishment of American bases here may be nearer than is realized. For obvious reasons speculation is undesirable. It is unfortunate that such premature revelations, whether true or not, should be made across the Atlantic."

Another newspaper, the Belfast Telegraph, said, "We hope that if military and naval occupation of the whole or part of Northern Ireland foreshadowed by Senator Taft takes place it will form part of a bold and aggressive campaign by Britain and America, which will strike resounding blows at the enemy's land, air and sea power in the West while he is too deeply committed to the attack on Russia to employ his full strength elsewhere."

COMMUNIQUE

mushrooming tactics, the Russians said, Soviet tanks and motorized units charged up and cut it off, and Soviet planes began strafing.

Bitter warfare behind the German lines also was told in the communique, which said a detachment of guerillas stole up to a village in which a German motorcycle detachment was bivouacked. Of 88 motorcyclists, it was said, only 12 escaped.

Among German prisoners, it was said, were engineers who until a few weeks ago were stationed in France to prepare for the invasion of Britain.

which, for the fourth successive day, made no new claims to gains on the huge, fiercely contested Baltic-to-Black Sea front.

The High Command's claim was that nearly 324,000 Russians were captured in mopping-up operations around Bialystok and Minsk.

Termed Great Trap

A special communique termed the reported trap as "the greatest material and envelopement battle in the history of the world." The net was said to have closed when two Nazi Spearheads met in a drive towards Moscow.

Material captured according to the communique, included 3,332 tanks, 1,809 guns and an enormous quantity of supplies, and brought to a total of 7,615 tanks and 4,423 guns the number destroyed or captured since the invasion began June 22nd.

Meanwhile, omission of details regarding the campaign elsewhere was claimed to be in line with the High Command's policy of "mystifying the enemy with silence." The only official word of the fighting was that it was progressing satisfactorily.

Bialystok and Minsk where the encirclement was said to have taken place now lie well behind the German front lines. The Germans first claimed the Russians were trapped there June 29, and said then that the two Russian armies being encircled "either will capitulate or be destroyed."

Berlin Takes Hand in Syrian Situation

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, July 11 (AP).—Pending developments to clarify what seems a Russian checkmate to the German blitz, events elsewhere claim attention. And not least among them, since it possibly reflects Hitler's perturbation over the slow-up in Russia, is the confusion in Vichy over the Syrian armistice negotiations.

Until Vice-Premier Darlan returned to Vichy from German-occupied France there was no confusion. Vichy admitted that armistice terms had been asked by the French commander in the Levant States, and that the battle there was increasingly hopeless. It was added that terms had been received and were being studied in Vichy and Beirut.

Then Darlan got back to Vichy from further "collaboration" conferences with German authorities in Paris. An official Vichy announcement said the British command had failed to answer a request for terms and, instead, was pushing the attack and heaping insults on the French commander in Syria, General Dentz.

The Berlin radio chimed in with the statment that Vichy had not authorized an armistice. It admitted terms had been asked and received, contradicting Vichy, but said they were unacceptably harsh. Just what to make of it was a puzzle, except in one respect.

There seems no doubt that Berlin has taken a hand in the proceedings. Admiral Darlan must have received orders to defer a French surrender in the Levant. Possibly until Hitler is in position to offset its effect by announcement of a great victory in Russia.

Whatever the reason for the confusion in Vichy, it would take much to remove the suspicion that Darlan got Nazi orders in Paris to delay matters. Nor is it wholly unlikely that Berlin fears the German slow-up in Russia may minimise the effect of the deal by which Hitler immobilised Turkey in preparation for the Nazi-Soviet war.

British-Free French conquest of Syria and Lebanon must be a matter of prime interest to Turkey, nominally an inactive ally of Britain despite the Berlin-Ankara non-aggression pact. It means direct British-Turkish contacts on a wide front and removes the threat of Turkish isolation from Britain.

With final collapse of Vichy resistance in the Levant, all land frontiers of Turkey-in-Asia would abut on those of countries aligned against the Axis. Even neutral Iran is in the camp of the British-Russian associates against Hitlerism.

That might well make a tremendous difference to Turkey, particularly if the Red army proves able to balk German thrusts for months instead of days or weeks. Nor can Hitler, in view of his own cynical disregard of treaty obligations, trust too much to the value of the Nazi-Turkish peace pact if the war in Russia seems going against him.

The virtual Allied conquest of Syria might not serve to sway Turkish policy away from Berlin influence if its full completion can be delayed until the Nazi armies produce their promised major victory in Russia. Coming right now, a French surrender might seriously complicate matters in the Mediterranean theatre for Germany. For there can be little doubt that Moscow and London are leaving no stone unturned in Ankara to draw Turkey into the fight in the east on Hitler's flank.

As means to that end, the British bombing attacks on Italy and on Italian garrisons in Greece and Turkey could be significant. They may foreshadow an immediate British air and sea offensive on Hilter's Fascist running-mate, and a British-Free French assault on Axis forces in North Africa once the Syrian campaign ends.

From the British-Russian viewpoint, that also might have good effect in Turkey.

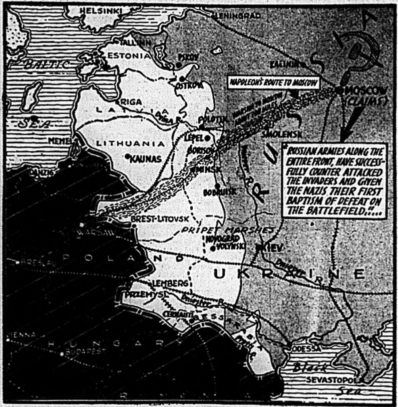
BATTLEGROUND OF GIANT ARMIES



Out of the fog of claims and counter claims by the opposing high commands in the Battle of Russia it is now becoming evident that the Nazi invaders are meeting much more resistance than they had expected. Berlin still claims that the invasion is being carried out "according to plan," but have had no gains to report for the past five days—since they said their spearheads had reached the Stalin line. Moscow now comes up with the claim that not only has the Red army stopped the Nazi drives, but actually has driven the Nazis back at several points by counter-attack. The Soviets say that the Red army has inflicted losses of 1,000,000 dead and wounded on the Germans.

U.S. MAY PREPARE TRADE BLACK LIST

Reported Considering Completion of Worldwide List of Firms Serving as Nazi Purchasing Agents

Washington, July 11 (AP)—United States defence officials, determined to end leakage of American goods to Germany, were reported giving serious consideration today to the compilation of a world-wide list of firms which serve as Nazi purchasing agents.

Britain is known to have a "blacklist," as such listings are called when prepared by belligerent governments, and presumably this information has been made available to American officials for such use as they desire.

Other sources of information understood to be at the disposal of Brig.-Gen. Russell L. Maxwell, export control chief, include an inventory being made by the treasury of foreign assets frozen in the U.S. and data on Nazi activities in South American gathered by the office of Commercial and Cultural Relations between the American republics.

Death Toll in Mine Explosion Now 11

Leeds, Ala., July 11 —(AP)— The death toll in an explosion-wrecked wing of Acmar Coal Mine No. 6 mounted to 11 today and rescue crews struggled through tons of debris. Volunteers working by lamplight succeeded in extracting nine bodies before daylight. Two remained buried.

The miners, nine negroes and two white men, were trapped in the mine's eighth entry, more than a mile underground, yesterday by what Company Chief Deputy Herbert Ginright described as "a local gas explosion."

The mine, one of the largest commercial producers in Alabama, is owned and operated by the Alabama Fuel & Iron Company.

Welles said the United States still was negotiating for the release of two other Americans, also taken prisoner when the Zamzam was sunk and who were wounded when the raider fired on the passenger ship.

Famed Buildings Which Nazis Have Bombed

Charterhouse, Monument of Ancient London, Wrecked in Heavy Air Raid

Among historic buildings in London batered by Nazi bombs is Charterhouse. This article, fourth of a series of five, tells how it suffered.

By PAT USSHER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 11 (CP)—Charterhouse, one of London's most impressive monuments to the past, was wrecked in a heavy air raid on London.

Most of its stately old Tudor buildings were gutted although more modern quarters escaped. Of the older sections, only the 16th century entrance gatehouse, the chapel and part of Washhouse Court remain. The fine hammer roof of the great hall was destroyed and the gallery damaged. This hall, where the Carthusian Monastery brethren dined, was considered one of the finest Elizabethan rooms in existence.

The master's lodge, the registrar's house, the brothers' library, the Wray library, the tapestry room, the museum and the music room were reduced to shells. Some of the valuable books and tapestries they contained had been removed.

Cloister Ruined

The Cloister, containing memorials of many famous Carthusians, was ruined. In the rubble, still intact, are tablets to John Wesley, the founder of the Methodist Church, and Roger Williams, a scholar of Charterhouse in 1624 and "founder of the State of Rhode Island and a founder of religious liberty in America."

The ancient chapel of the Carthusian Monastery, in which Charterhouse had its origin, was saved by a member of St. Bart's Hospital. He broke away a burning beam which had carried fire to the chapel organ staircase.

Tyburn Convent, near the site of Tyburn Tree where many Roman Catholics were executed, has escaped serious damage though houses alongside it were wrecked. It is the home of the Adorers of the Sacred Heart of Jesus of Montmartre, a religious community dating from 1897. The community settled in London in 1901 after being expelled from France. Every April there is a "walk from Newgate (site of the old prison) to Tyburn" when Benediction is given from the balcony to thousands of kneeling men and women.

Westminster School

Bombs also have mutilated Westminister School's buildings close to Westminster Abbey. The College, built from plans drawn up by Wren, was left a charred and roofless wreck. So as the School, the historic Hall of Assembly, centuries ago was a monks' dormitory. The lower floor of the College consisting of the King's scholars living rooms, was piled with rubble, burned timbers and twisted girders.

The School, where students struggled for pancakes on Shrove Tuesday, was the worst spectacle. The floor was thick with blackened roof timbers, slates and metalwork. Its beautiful old roof was destroyed. Bookcases and pictures there survived, including a picture of an athletic team taking in 1937. One of the players was Ribbentrop's son. The School moved to Herefordshire after the outbreak of war.

15 WELSH MINERS KILLED IN BLAST

Dead Include 14-Year-Old Boy Hired a Few Hours Before Explosion

Glamorgan Wales, July 11—(CP Cable)—Fifteen coal miners were killed last night in an explosion at the Rhigos colliery near Neath in Glamorganshire. The blast collapsed several workings.

Nearly 70 men were working in the pit when the explosion, cause unknown, occurred a mile inside the colliery. Rescue parties, hindered by the collapsed workings, fought through terrific heat to the scene of the accident.

Injured miners brought to the surface were treated on the ground under moonlight until an improvived the sinking of the Egyptian nearby farm. The dead included a 14-year-old boy hired a few hours before the explosion.

THREE INSTRUCTORS KILLED

Augusta, Ga., July 11 —(AP)— Collision of two United States Air Force training planes killed three instructors of the Georgia Aero Tech training school yesterday. A cadet parachuted to safety. Killed were J. W. Dionne, 30, Green Bay, Wisc.; D. C. Bush, 26, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; and J. W. Yawn, Jr., Graceville, Fla.

HELPING RUSSIAN CAUSE

Moscow, July 11 (AP)—The Russian communique related today how Red army scouts seized two armed men in civilian clothes in a raid into Finland and found them to be pro-Russian Norwegian guerilla fighters behind the Finnish lines.

The captives named Merner and Larson, already had destroyed two bridges and killed some German guards, the communique said.

PREMIER ON WAY BACK AFTER TOUR

Expresses Hope Tour Would Serve to Remove Any Excuse for Raising Conscription Issue

Winnipeg, July 11—(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King was bound for Ottawa today after a study of Western Canada's war effort.

The final day of the Prime Minister's western tour was featured by a luncheon address in which he expressed the hope that his efforts of the last three weeks had, as far as the current recruiting drive was concerned, "served to remove any excuse for raising in Canada the issue of conscription for service overseas".

"I believe my efforts have encouraged and assisted others who have been engaged in the recruiting campaign", he said.

In getting a first hand knowledge of the Great British Commonwealth Air Training Plan the Prime Minister while in Winnipeg talked over the two-way radio to a pilot of a bomber flying 40 miles northwest of the city. The pilot was C. W. McCollum of Walters, Okla.

Earlier Mr. King took the salute of 1,400 soldiers during a review in Assiniboine Park.

New Bond of Brotherhood

He told them that by uniting in freedom's forces, the fighting men of Canada and other nations of the British Commonwealth, being joined by an increasing number of volunteers from the United States, were forging a new bond of friendship—a new brotherhood of inestimable value to the world when the war was over. Continuing he said:

"The purpose of my trip through the West has been to give me an opportunity to see the work of the different defence forces. I only wish that every citizen of Canada would have shared that trip with me.

"I hope that every one of you realizes how much Canada values your services . . . The cause for which you are prepared to fight is the cause of freedom".

Welcomes Anzac Fliers

The Prime Minister welcomed Australian and New Zealand airmen at the No 3 Wireless School where he paused at every classroom. At the Winnipeg Air Observers School, he examined and learned about an electrically-operated camera and how to use a bombsight in the nose of a bomber.

In his luncheon address, the Prime Minister told of the "inspiration it has been to me to see what is being so splendidly achieved throughout Western Canada in the furtherance of Canada's war effort".

He warned that the Nazi menace is drawing ever closer to the North American hemisphere and "the possibility of invasion is something that can no longer be ignored".

Mr. King also said that when the appropriate time comes for him to visit Britain he would be able to speak with greater authority of the effort of the Canadian people.

Provincial Constable Dies of Injuries

Lindsay, Ont., July 11 —(CP)— Provincial Constable George McPherson of Minden, injured in a highway accident near here June 11, died at midnight in Ross Memorial Hospital here.

Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson announced there would be no inquest since a charge of dangerous driving had been laid against Murray Childs of Matheson, Ont., driver of the car in which McPherson was a passenger.

The accident, which occurred a half mile south of Minden on Highway 35, also resulted in the driver suffering a fractured leg.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Soviet government today issued its shortest account of military operations since the German invasion began June 22, its communique merely stating the "nothing particular occurred on the fronts during last night" and then turning to activities of the Soviet air forces.

The Germans, for their part, placed emphasis on clean-up operations around Bialystok and Minsk, which a special communique from Hitler's headquarters Thursday night described as "the greatest encirclement battle in world history."

The fact fighting has by Nazi admission only now been concluded around Bialystok seems to bear out Soviet accounts of tenacious resistance by Red army units cut off in the first German drive across the Soviet frontiers.

Bialystok is a Polish town north of Brest-Litovsk and only a few miles within Soviet Poland, the stretch of buffer territory taken by Russia in the 1939 Nazi-Soviet deal for the partitioning of Poland. From earlier German accounts, it would have seemed that these pockets of resistance had been quickly cleaned up.

The German report on completion of mopping up around Minsk apparently refers to territory west of Minsk and leaves the position of the city on the ninth day of the invasion but up to now, the 20th day of the campaign, it has not been claimed by the German high command. Neither have Russian communiques conceded its loss, although the front is now well to the east.

ROOSEVELT ASKS $1,698,000,000 FOR SHIPPING

Money Will Provide for Construction of 566 Merchant Ships and for Purchase and Repair of Existing Ships

INCREASE FACILITIES

Washington, July 11—(AP)—The $1,698,000,000 requested today by President Roosevelt for the Maritime Commission provides for the construction of 566 merchant ships at an estimated cost of $1,246,650,000, and $350,000,000 for the requisition, purchase and repair of existing ships.

The remaining $50,000,000 will be used to provide additional shipbuilding facilities.

Details of the additional construction program were announced by the commission, which said it already had developed plans to the point where actual construction of facilities to build the ships can begin early next month.

Complete Ships by End of 1943

All the ships in the new program the commission said, are scheduled to be completed and in service by the end of 1943. Their combined deadweight tonnage will be 5,500,000.

The commission already has under way a 705-ship program calling for the expenditure of $1,750,000,000. The existing program is divided into long-range, emergency national defence and aid-to-Britain divisions.

Ninety-five ships in the long-range program already have been delivered and deliveries on emergency ships are scheduled to begin late this year.

The new program, combined with construction already contracted for by the commission, plus private construction and vessels contracted for by Britain directly with United States shipbuilders, contemplates the delivery into service of nearly 14,000,000 deadweight tons of merchant ships by the end of 1943.

65 German Planes Downed in Combat Over a Wide Front

NAZI CLAIMS RIDICULED

Moscow, July 12 (AP)—The Red Army reported today that Soviet bombers and infantry had smashed German attempts to cross rivers along which Russian troops were massed and waiting for a major assault.

"No substantial changes occurred in the position of troops at the front," the high commands' communique said.

Pravda, Communist party organ, reported meanwhile that the old Polish city of Pinsk, far behind the German lines, still is in Soviet hands. Russians holding the city were said to be raiding the German rear.

Russians were reported holding the eastern banks of the Dvina, Dnieper and Dniester Rivers.

The Red Army dispatches told of beating off German attempts to cross two rivers, but did not give their names.

Pontoon Bridges Destroyed

One dispatch said the Germans set up nine pontoon bridges on "X" River, three of which were destroyed by bombers while troops and ten heavy tanks were on them.

"However, using the remaining bridges, one tank battalion and up to two infantry battalions and an artillery unit with 22 anti-tank guns forced their way to our bank," the dispatch said.

"After that our artillery and aviation destroyed all pontoon bridges on which tanks, artillery and a considerable number of infantry were annihilated.

"Cut off from the bank, the German troops were caught in a pincers by Soviet troops and annihilated. Up to 30 tank crews surrendered, and 429 German men and officers were taken.

Held up for Two Days

Another crossing attempt was thwarted at "B" River, a dispatch said. It declared that the Germans were held for two days by artillery and machine guns but that finally one German motorized infantry battalion crossed on a pontoon bridge.

"Daring Commander Povetkin charged the enemy and his Red Army men followed suit," the dispatch said. "At this moment a Soviet bomber destroyed the pontoon bridge by a direct hit. The enemy battalion was annihilated."

D.N.B. News Agency Says Drive on Stalin Line in Northern Section Has Commenced

FRESH TROOPS USED

Berlin, July 12 (AP). — D.N.B., German news agency, reported today that German shock troops have been storming fortifications of the Stalin Line in the northern section of the Russian front since early this morning.

This news agency bulletin was distributed almost immediately after Hitler's headquarters had issued a communique which reported, for the fifth consecutive day, merely: "Operations of (German) allied troops on the eastern front proceed according to plan."

The area of the Stalin Line reported under storm was not precisely fixed, but the agency described it as "the wet zone of the Stalin Line", (meaning, presumably, that which is based on the River Dnieper).

German infantry began the preliminaries of the attack Friday, D.N.B. said, and fresh shock troops were rushed up in the early hours of today.

One of the reasons why the Germans were viewing the military situation on the eastern front as especially favorable to them was a claim that 1,000,000 Russians reported killed, wounded or captured were for the most part Soviet Elite troops.

Optimism over the military situation, however, was counter-balanced by reports that the Russians were defending their positions fanatically. Most reports from the front spoke of dogged determination of the Russians not to give in.

Dienst Aus Deutschland, Nazi commentary, asserted the German army could not be expected to treat as soldiers those Russians who have taken up arms as a "people's defence" in response to a recent radio appeal by Joseph Stalin.

"German soldiers only fight soldiers. . . . It is to be expected then that civilians in a people's defence can be treated only as snipers," Dienst said.

The German press welcomed reports that Spanish volunteer troops were on their way to the battle line and that the first unit of Croat fliers had left the newly-created puppet kingdom for the east.

AXIS AIR RAIDERS PAY EARLY VISIT TO SUEZ REGION

Six Persons Killed, 14 Injured, Some Material Damage Done by Bombs

ALERTS SOUNDED

Cairo, July 12 (AP).—The Egyptian government announced that Axis air raiders caused some damage in an air raid early today on the Suez Canal region in which six persons were killed and fourteen injured.

The government's announcement said:

"There was an air raid on the Suez Canal area in the early hours of this morning. A number of bombs were dropped, killing six persons, injuring fourteen and causing some material damage. Alerts were sounded in parts of the delta."

After 3 Weeks Russian Army Still Holds Front

New York, July 12 (AP).—Winding up three weeks of war in the east the Red army still held its front today as the Nazi military juggernaut found itself up against the first land foe in almost two years that was not defeated or on the verge of collapse in 21 days of invasion.

France was the only other invaded country actually in the fight after three weeks of German attack, and for her the end was in sight. Guns still were banging after 21 days in Poland, Norway and Greece but the operations were only a mop-up.

In contrast, the Red army has given ground but held its line. It was shoved out of most of the newly-Sovietized buffer territory of Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia, Eastern Poland and Bessarabia, but has stalled the Nazi push at least temporarily inside the border of old Russia.

International at a Glance

BERLIN — German news agency says German shock troops have been storming a northern sector of the Stalin Line since early this morning; high command non-committal for fifth day.

LONDON — R.A.F. flies through thunderstorm to attack Wilhelmshaven naval base by night; channel "alive with fighters" today as R.A.F. renews attack on occupied France.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER KILLED BY LIGHTNING REPAIRING ROOF

Winnipeg, July 12 (CP)—Mrs. Emil Schultz, 41, and her 13-year-old daughter, Magdaline, were killed by lightning at Faulkner, Man., while making repairs to the roof of their home.

Only Small Proportion Of German Pilots Able To Bail Out After Fights

London, July 12—(CP)—Britain sent some of her heaviest bombers back over the Channel today after a night assault in a thunderstorm on the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven, and the day raiders were reported authoritatively to have pounded railway and canal communications in the St. Omer area.

Five German fighters were destroyed and two British fighters are missing, it was reported, in this assault just behind the invasion coast in the northeast corner of France close to the Belgian frontier.

Observers on the southeast coast said mid-day skies were alive with fighters protecting very large bombers. A communique said not a plane was lost in the night sweep along the German coast.

It announced also that a German minesweeper was set afire by a direct hit from a Hudson bomber yesterday afternoon off the coast of France.

German Raids on Small Scale

German raids overnight were reported by the Ministries of Air and Home Security to have been on a "fairly small scale".

Bombs dropped on the northeast Scottish coast caused some damage and a small number of casualties, including a few deaths.

The British raid brought R.A.F. attacks on Germany and Nazi-occupied territory above the 150-mark since Germany began its war against Russia three weeks ago.

An authoritative statement reviewing the steadily increasing weight of the R.A.F.'s blows said the devastating effect of cannon fire of British fighter planes is taking a constantly heavier toll of German pilots.

Heavy Loss in Nazi Pilots

"Only a small proportion of German pilots bail out safely", the statement said. "Although most of the daily fighter combats are occurring over German-occupied territory, the Nazis are losing much more heavily in pilots than we did during the battle of Britain".

The statement quoted reports of R.A.F. pilots describing repeated instances in which German fighters were literally blown to bits by cannon fire and declared that in June the weight of British bombs dropped on Germany actually exceeded the tonnage dropped on Britain in April, which was claimed by the Germans as a record month. The statement promised that the July weight will be heavier still.

TRAINEES TO BE SENT TO ATLANTIC, PACIFIC COMMAND

Young Single Men Retained in Reserve Army to Take Up Defence Duties

DUTY FOR DURATION

Ottawa, July 12 (CP) — Young single men retained in the reserve army after four months' compulsory military training—4,697 of them finish their course next week—will be posted to defence duties in Atlantic and Pacific command unless they satisfy National War Services Boards they should be granted postponement of such service.

Defence Minister Ralston announced last night that as a general rule Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., will be the dividing point for the postings. Men trained in centres east of there will go to the Atlantic Coast, and west of there to the Pacific.

This week officials here said young men assigned to defence duties as members of the reserve army probably would be held in service for the duration of the war.

New Call For July 31st

In another statement issued last night the Minister said that 1,300 of the 4,000 men called up for four months' training in the next camp period beginning July 31 will be men who were 21 at July 31, 1940, and who received training under the now-abandoned 30-day training program.

These men will be required to undergo three months of additional training and then, like four-month trainees, will be kept in the army for service "in Canada or its territorial waters."

The formal order under which men will be retained in the army after compulsory training already has been passed.

Last April, in announcing graduates of the training plan would be kept in service, Col. Ralston said these men would relieve units which might be transferred from duties they have held for many months, such as coastal defence, to operational theatres overseas.

SAYS CANADIAN WHEAT LOADED FOR JAPAN

Vancouver, July 12 (CP)— John A. Barket, manager of B. W. Greer and Sons, Ltd., agents here for the Japanese N.Y.K. steamship line, said yesterday that about 10,500 or more tons of Canadian wheat was being loaded on permit here aboard Japanese freighters to fill orders in Japanese-occupied North China.

FRESH BORDER FIGHTING BREAKS OUT WITH ECUADOR

Peruvian Troops Ordered to Repulse With Arms "Any New Aggression"

CANNOT MEDIATE

Lima, Peru, July 12.—(AP)—The Peruvian Foreign Office declared today that fresh Ecuadorean attacks had been experienced at several places along their eastern frontier and that since it would be "useless" to protest an order has been issued to Peruvian troops to repulse with arms "any new aggression".

The communique declared the government's belief that "neither the government north people of Ecuador are prepared to discuss peacefully the conflict".

The communique was issued a few hours after the Argentine Foreign Ministry announced that Peru had accepted in principle, with same reservations, a proposal by the United States, Argentina and Brazil to mediate the dispute which flared up again last week with exchange of shots across another disputed frontier near the coast.

Dispatches from Quito, Ecuador, at the same time said Peru was concentrating armed forces at Latina, Mount Maza and other border points, and that Peruvian aircraft were active in the frontier zones.

The latest fighting evidently was a continuation of clashes begun July 5 when patrols tangled at the border Equador blamed Peru for the outbreak and sporadic fighting continued for three days.

Cod Emblem May Go to Defence

Boston, July 12 (AP)—The sacred cod of Massachusetts may go to market Monday. Lee Witney, State Director of the Aluminum Drive, suggested to the House of Representatives that the cod which hangs in their chamber be donated to national defence. Witney said the emblem of Massachusetts was made of aluminum or of aluminum sections. Legislators will hear the request Monday.

IN SAME HOTEL

Camden, N.J., July 12 (AP) — Two Connecticut State Troopers who hunted three days for a man and woman named in fugitive warrants finally sent an S.O.S. to Camden police. Local detectives found the couple in the same hotel where the Troopers were staying.

61 ARRESTED IN POLICE RAID AT HAMILTON

ALL BAILED OUT

Hamilton, July 12 (CP).—Provincial police, under the command of Inspector E. D. L. Hammond of Toronto, last night raided a large house just east of the city limits on the Niagara highway and arrested 61 persons found on the premises and confiscated hundreds of dollars worth of gaming equipment.

It was exactly 12:45 o'clock Saturday morning when twelve policemen armed with axes, crow bars and sledge hammers battered in the two doors at the rear entrance to the establishment. The police, the inspector said, had been brought from all parts of the province to take part in the raid.

Inside the police found practically a full house with card games and dice games evident. Large green baize tables took up the centre of the large room on the main floor, which was furnished with special lighting equipment over the dice tables. A small room in one corner was set up as a bar.

None Escape Net.

Efforts were made by some of the customers to escape but the police were successful in apprehending all sixty-one present.

It was not until seven o'clock in the morning that the police had cleaned up and packed away the gaming devices and taken stock of the whole place. During the six hours in which they worked telephones kept ringing asking if so-and-so was there. The calls were taken by special men who questioned the callers. As daylight neared the calls became more frequent as men were late to return to their homes.

Those arrested were taken in relays to the Central Police Station, where they were booked and then released on bail. It kept the Central and East End patrol wagons busy for an hour transporting the arrested men.

This is the first large raid carried out by provincial police since they raided the Combine Club, outside Toronto, about a year ago.

Vichy Delegation In British Lines To Discuss Terms

Discussions to Be of a Military and Not of Political Significance

DENTZ ACTS FOR VICHY

London, July 12—(CP)—An authoritative source said today that hostilities ceased in Syria last midnight and that a Vichy delegation crossed the British lines this morning under a flag of truce to begin armistice discussions.

This source said the Vichy delegation was told to meet an Allied delegation at a designated spot and that presumably the meeting occurred according to schedule.

It was said that nothing could be stated now about the terms, but that the discussions were of military and not of political significance.

The negotiations for a truce went forward yesterday, it was said after communications had been re-established through the United States consulate in Beirut, Lebanon.

This was after the Petain Government in Vichy had rejected Allied terms for an armistice, but had in effect tossed the problem back into the lap of the Vichy High Commissioner in Syria, Gen. Henri Dentz, by giving him permission to act at his discretion.

Conflict Appears Ended

Arrangements then were made for a cease-fire order, and the two delegations met on the Beirut-Haifa road.

The British and Free French forces crossed the Syrian and Lebanon frontiers on Sunday morning, June 8, from Palestine and Transjordan. A few days later Indian motorized columns advanced from the east, from Iraq.

The British and Free French commanders prefaced their action by declaring they were acting to forestall use of the French-mandated territories as a military base for Nazi and Fascist air forces and troops.

Refusal to Settle Honeymoon Quarrel Followed by Tragedy

McKeesport, Pa., July 12 (AP).—A jobless steel worker killed his 23-year-old bride of two months and himself today when she refused to settle a honeymoon quarrel with a kiss. Policeman John Brennan said Albert Black, 25, felled his wife Betty with several revolver shots, then, as officers attempted to subdue him with tear gas, ended his life with the last bullet in the gun.

Lightning Hits Same Man's Houses

Sterling, Colo., July 12 (AP). — Lightning may not have struck twice in the same place, but the effect on Mayor A. H. Tetsell was just the same. While quenching a lightning-set blaze in his home, he learned another bolt had fired a second house owned by him.

ASKS WITHDRAWAL BRITISH TROOPS FROM ICELAND

U.S. Senator Urges Step to Prevent Possible Nazi Attack Placing U. S. Marines Under Fire

QUESTION DISCUSSED

Washington, July 12 (AP).—Immediate withdrawal of British troops from Iceland, to forestall a possible Nazi attack which would place United States marines and sailors there under fire, was urged today by Senator Homer Bone (Dem.-Wash.), a member of the Naval Affairs Committee.

Describing the joint occupation of Iceland by British and American forces as "fraught with danger", Bone asserted that if United States troops were to take over, British troops ought to leave at once.

"As long as the British are there the Germans have the right under rules of warfare to attack Iceland," he told reporters. "If they did, our troops either would have to fight back or become innocent bystanders who might be shot down.

"If we are to be presented with the issue of an attack on those troops, it ought not to be a confused issue such as would be raised by joint occupation with the British."

Views similar to those expressed by Bone were reported to have been aired in a closed session of the Naval Affairs Committee yesterday when—reliable sources said—Navy Secretary Knox and Admiral Harold Stark denied published reports that the navy had engaged in combat with German naval units or that it was being used to escort British merchantmen in the Atlantic.

One administration supporter was reported to have told Knox that he believed the British forces should be asked to withdraw and the Secretary of the Navy was said to have agreed to communicate this viewpoint to President Roosevelt.

Senator Claude Pepper (Dem.-Florida), who is not a member of the naval committee, said it was his understanding that British authorities planned to take their troops out as soon as American forces of sufficient strength to defend the island were landed.

This was the general congressional interpretation of President Roosevelt's message outlining the invitation of the Icelandic government to the United States to take over defences there, but several Senators cited a recent speech of Prime Minister Churchill in parliamnt as indicating that some British units might remain.

Hamilton Dentist Drowns Near Lindsay

Lindsay, Ont., July 12 (CP) —Dr. John Murray Roland, 36, Hamilton dentist, drowned last night near Rosedale at the junction of Balsam and Cameron Lake. Searchers are still dragging for the body this morning.

Provincial Constable William McBrien of Lindsay, said Roland, fishing with his wife in a small boat, drowned when the boat capsized. Mrs. Roland, he said, reached shore in an exhausted condition.

Rosedale is 20 miles north of Lindsay but, police said, the drowning occurred at a point between Rosedale and Long Point on Balsame Lake.

Recent Experiences 'in Destruction Of Nazi U-Boats' Encourage Britain

London, July 12 (CP)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, today announced that Britain had had "particularly successful" operations against German submarines in the past few weeks.

Speaking at a south end meeting Mr. Alexander said the naval staff had been encouraged "by recent experiences . . . in the destruction of U-boats."

"I am not going to help the enemy by saying where or when we have sunk them, or how many we have sunk," he said, "but I will tell you that during the past few weeks we have had a particularly successful time."

Many of Famous Old Institutions Of Livery Companies Damaged

History of the City of London is closely interwoven with the growth of its livery companies. This article, the last of a series of five, describes bomb damage to many of these famous old institutions.

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 12 (CP)—Homes of many of the City of London's livery companies are in ruins today in sections devastated by German bombings. These great trade corporations that sprang out of the mediaeval guilds have suffered heavily in numerous air attacks.

Stationers Hall, home of the company of stationers and newspaper makers, has been severely damaged. Dating back to 1670 it stands in a quiet courtyard off Ludgate Hill. An incendiary bomb hit the lobby of the court room. The lobby and part of the hall were damaged, as was the fine ceiling with its representation of St. John the Evangelist. The banqueting hall was wrecked.

Girdlers Hall, a fine specimen of Jacobean architecture, built in 1681, was practically wiped out. It recalls that girdles once were an important article of male clothing. At the Coronation ceremony the King is invested with a girdle. Treasures of the company included an Indian carpet made at Lahore, presented in 1634, by Robert Bell, a member of the East India Company.

Saddlers Hall in Cheapside, said to have originated from a gift of 10 marks by William De Lincoln in 1393, was another bomb victim. The 10 marks was to be forfeited to the poor if the hall was not built in three years. (The poor didn't get it, incidentally). The original hall was destroyed in the great fire of London.

Haberdashers Hall also wrecked by fire bombs. Valuable pictures and plate had previously been removed to safety. Date of the company's origin is unknown but its first charter was granted in 1448. The first hall was destroyed in the great fire and rebuilt from Wren's designs in 1864.

Other halls damaged or demolished include Coopers Hall, which stood on a site possessed by the Guild four centuries, the Fishmongers Hall, whose site dates back to 1434, the hall of the Society of Apothecaries, damaged in four different raids, and Salters and Mercers Halls.

Incendiaries also caused the destruction of Trinity House, home of the Trinity Brethren, who for 400 years have been responsible for the safety of all shipping in United Kingdom waters. The Brethren keep Britain's coasts marked with buoys, bells and lighthouses. They were granted a Royal Charter by Henry VIII.

824 VEHICLES FERRIED IN DAY

A total of 824 vehicles having been ferried across the Bay of Quinte by the Glenora Ferry last Sunday is believed to have been a record for any one day since the ferry went into operation in the spring.

The large attendance at the Sandbanks when thousands of people visited the popular waterfront resort is said by officials at the ferry to be responsible for the heavy traffic during the day.

PRODUCERS PETITION FOR WESTERN WHEAT

The Northumberland Cheese Producers' Association at a special meeting endorsed a resolution petitioning the Federal Government to once again bring western wheat to Ontario farmers in an effort to relieve the pasture shortage.

Members of the association felt it was not in the general interests to feed winter crops at this time of the year. The petition followed reports of a substantial reduction in the manufacture of cheese in the district due to the consistent drought. Copies will be sent to the Departments of Agriculture in Ottawa and Toronto.

NEW YORK STATE ANGLER IS CHAMP

William Dayton, Floral Park, N. Y., is the uncrowned fishing champion of the district. The American angler bagged himself seventy pounds of fighting "musky" during the past two days, with the "daddy" of the hauls tipping the scales at 38 pounds.

On Tuesday, Mr. Dayton with a friend, Walter Brown of Long Island, hooked a thirty-two pound beauty and on Thursday he bagged the bigger one with the same pike minnow only a few yards from where he caught the first one. Both fish were caught a short distance below Cole's Point on the Trent River. Mr. Dayton is visiting this part of Canada for the first time.

POLICE ARE SEEKING WHEREABOUTS OF YOUTH

Provincial Police are seeking the possible whereabouts of 15-year-old William Jackson, who until a week ago today, was employed by Mr. W. Reid, at the Sunnybrook Farm, three miles east of Belleville.

On Friday Provincial Constable S. R. Patterson and Game Warden McCabe learned that young Jackson had obtained a row boat from the Weymark tourist camp nearby last Sunday and had failed to return. The officers scoured Big Bay, Muscote Bay and east of Point Anne along the shores of the Bay of Quinte, but could find no signs of either the lad or the boat.

PART OF MONEY STOLEN, RECOVERED

Robbers broke and entered the Montrose Dairy offices on Pinnacle St., during last night and stole about eight dollars in loose change. Entrance was gained through a skylight on the roof. Once inside of the building the thief removed the putty from an office glassed window, but the glass could not be removed. Later the door window was broken and the money was stolen from office furniture. Only the loose change was taken, however.

Today Detective Fred Isard recovered two dollars of the eight dollars from a 16-year-old lad, who was a former employee at the Dairy. The lad, who resides on College St. and outside the city limits, will be summonsed into Juvenile Court next week to face charges of breaking and entering, police later revealed.

THIRTY ACCEPTED BY THE R.C.A.F.

A decided impetus in recruiting for the Royal Canadian Air Force was noted at the City Hall today where a mobile recruiting unit under Flying Officer Richardson interviewed a large number of applicants for the various phases of the service.

Up to noon today forty-five young men of the district had applied for enlistment with thirty being accepted. A medical officer accompanies the unit and recruits are given their medical examination on the spot.

While a large number of the recruits came from the city, those enlisting were a fair representation of the district. A complete list of the recruits will be published in Monday's edition.

TWO MOTOR CARS REPORTED STOLEN

Belleville police were asked to keep a sharp look-out for two motor cars that were reported stolen in other centres on Friday. In Oshawa ah American tourist reported the theft of a 1936 model Ford sedan bearing Ohio State licence plate number I-M-366.

Down in Kingston a 1936 Dodge sedan bearing Ontario licence plates number 36-N-80 was stolen.

FOUR BICYCLES HELD BY POLICE

Chief Kidd announced today that city police were holding four bicycles which had been recovered by the department when found abandoned in Belleville recently. The "bikes" had apparently been stolen by joyriders and abandoned where they were found by police. The bikes are awaiting identification at the police station.

William Carman, 380 Bleecker Ave., reported the loss of his bicycle to the police last night. The bike had been parked at the south end of Front St. while the owner was attending a movie.

YELLOW BANTAM CORN FROM DISTRICT DISPLAYED ON MART

The first picking of sweet corn was in evidence in Belleville today, when Mrs. Percy Demille of Chatterton, displayed several ears of well developed Yellow Bantam corn in the office of The Ontario Intelligencer. Although the season for the green corn is considerably earlier than usual this year, the specimens displayed by Mrs. Demille were of a fine variety. "We picked twenty-five dozen ears today and had no difficulty in selling them", revealed Mrs. Demille as she added that green corn is about three weeks in advance of the conventional season this year, due to warm Spring weather. Friday's rain was a great help to the corn crop of the next few weeks, Mrs. Demille added.

OPPORTUNITY TO TRAIN AS RADIO MECHANICS

An opportunity to train as radio mechanics is extended to young men between the ages of 18 and 30 who are British subjects and who have completed at least two years' successful secondary school education in mathematics and science. Applicants desirous of enrolling for the course must be prepared to enlist with the R.C.A.F. at the completion of their twenty-four weeks' course.

Applicants are given a thorough medical examination by officers of the R.C.A.F. and those accepted will have their transportation costs to the training centre paid and will be given subsistence allowance during the period of training.

This is a vital phase of war work and the need is urgent and those enrolling in the course will receive training which will be of inestimable value to them after the war. Application forms may be obtained from principals of secondary schools, superintendents of office of the Employment Service of Canada or from the offices of the Dominion-Provincial War Emergency Training Program, East Block Parliament Buildings, Toronto, and should be returned to the latter office.

DOUBLE ORDINANCE TRAINING CENTRE

Ottawa, July 12 (CP)—The Defence Department announced today the Ordinance Training Centre at Barriefield, Ont., will be doubled shortly. A new Ordnance Training Centre also is being established at the mechanization depot in London, Ont., and qualified civilians are being used as instructors.

'Million Dollar' Rain Visits Quinte District

It was a proverbial "million dollar" rain, according to residents of the Bay of Quinte district, who were delighted with the almost steady downpour which began early Friday morning and continued practically unrelenting until late in the afternoon with intermittent showers occurring until near midnight. According to officials at the Belleville Purification Plant approximately 1.38 inches of rain fell during the day.

Although farmers state that the rain arrived too late to help potato crops, it will be beneficial to second-crop clover, while it is felt that it also might benefit spring grain crops, which are not too far advanced. There is also a much better outlook for a fair tomato crop since the rain and market gardeners are hopeful of a better quality produce for their customers.

Pastures throughout the district which have become dried up will take on a new life, but dairymen are doubtful if milk production can be brought back to the level of earlier in the season.

Gardens and flowers in the city, which have been badly affected by the heat, will also take a new lease on life, and residents will gain at least a short respite from manipulation of the garden hose.

'Glorious Twelfth' Celebrated By Thousands

Familiar Strains Heard —Numbers Reduced Somewhat by Number of Orangemen in War Services

(By The Canadian Press)

Arrayed in their colorful orange and blue uniforms, thousands of Canada's Orangemen marched today to the familiar strains of bands piping "Cock o' the North" and other tunes associated with the "Glorious Twelfth".

Numbers participating in the 251st anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne were reduced somewhat by the number of Orangemen in the dominion's armed services who were unable to take part in the celebration. The "walk" at Saint John, N.B., was cancelled this year because of the war but some lodges carried out individual programs.

10,000 Walk In Toronto.

The largest and longest walk was staged at Toronto where an estimated 10,000 paraded over a six-mile route from Queen's Park to the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds. About 90 lodges from Toronto and suburban areas were represented.

At Seaforth, in Western Ontario, hundreds of Orangemen from Huron, Oxford, Waterloo and Perth County Lodges paraded, while at Sarnia, more than 1,500 Orangemen from 23 London and districts lodges celebrated.

Hamilton Orangemen staged two celebrations. They marched through the city to the railway station where they entrained for nearby Dunnville and another "walk" there.

300 Lodges At Smith's Falls.

Smith's Falls was the venue for thousands of Orangemen from Eastern Ontario. More than 300 lodges were represented, including Loyal Orange Lodge No. 1 from Brockville, Ont., said to be the oldest Orange Lodge in North America.

Winnipeg Orangemen paraded through the city's main thoroughfare to the railway station where they boarded trains for Winnipeg Beach, 50 miles north of Manitoba's capital. A second Winnipeg parade concluded the day's outing.

Orangemen in Saskatchewan observed the anniversary at a Moose Jaw celebration while Albertans flocked to a sports day program at Edmonton.

A monster parade with floats and five bands moved over a four-mile route to Hastings Park in Vancouver where a sports program was held.

Victoria, July 12 (CP)—"We're not going to pull Germany's chestnuts out of the fire," Ichiro Kawasaki, recently appointed Japanese consul at Vancouver, said yesterday during an interview on the Far Eastern situation.

"We are not committed too deeply to the Axis and are not vassals of Germany," he added.

Mr. Kawasaki, who spent four years in the Japanese embassy in London, declared the Germans were difficult people to get along with but the British were compromising. He hoped for a renewal of trade relations between Great Britain, Canada and Japan.

"We have much in common with the British people," he continued. "Like them we are a seafaring nation and depend on world trade. We are not like the Germans. They are ruthless and uncouth."

Care, Courtesy Urged on Drivers For Safety

Toronto, July 12.—More than 35 different state license plates from the United States have been observed recently in Toronto by members of the staff, R. B. Morley, general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associatons, reported today in emphasizing the need or a little more care and courtesy on our streets and highways. It was also noted that there were license plates from every other province in Canada, except Prince Edward Island, as well as from Hawaii and Mexico.

There are over one million licensed drivers in the province of Ontario, Mr. Morley said, and it may be taken for granted that the majority of them will be out on the highways every week-end for the rest of the summer. Traffic will be heavy and accidents frequent, he predicted. Last year's statistics accounted for seven deaths and 138 injured every week-end during the summer months on Ontario highways.

"It's what you do that causes accidents—not what you should have done," Mr. Morley warned. "If we are to avoid a repetition of this needless waste of life we will have to do more than believe in safety—we will have to practice safety and make extra allowance for the added hazards of the summer season."

The members voted a donation of $3.00 for school fair, the same as the previous year. Mrs. Ross Bush was called on for a few remarks. Her discourse was along Institute work. In her address, she said she thought there should be Institute men as well as women as they had many of their men interested.

She closed her talk by referring to the Institute as the largest institution that stood for what it was based on, that is, Home and Country. A debate between Stirling and Bay of Quinte was now conducted. Resolved that experienced education was more profitable than college education was the topic, affirmative side being taken by Stirling Branch represented by Mrs. Gordineer and Mrs. P. Bronson and the negative side by Bay of Quinte with Mrs. John Reid and Miss Helen Ketcheson debating. Each side brought out many good points. Acting as judges were Mrs. Leury, Stirling, Mrs. C. Holmes, Bay of Quinte, with Miss Verna Wilson. When the points were considered, it was found that Bay of Quinte had won by one point.

Miss McDonald, teacher of music for neighboring schools favoured with a couple of solos, "God Bless America", and "Somewhere a Voice is Calling", which were much enjoyed. At this time Mrs. Joe Megginson, convener, took charge, and all joined in singing, "There'll Always be an England". Little Miss Barbara Carr gave a recitation entitled, "Angela's Missionary Box." A solo was much enjoyed, "I passed by your window" by Mrs. Waldron. Another reading by Barbara Carr entitled "Mrs. Malone and the Census", brought hearty applause.

Mrs. Wilson again assumed her duties. Mrs. C. Ketcheson moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Wilson for opening her home for this meeting and to the Stirling Branch for helping to make this meeting a success, also to Mrs. Bush, District President of Prince Edward County for coming in this busy time. She referred to the way the members responded to this meeting which was closed with the National Anthem. Mrs. Bruce Hogle came in with her apron of many pockets. Each pocket being picked for 5c which amounted to $1.75. Mrs. Wilson with her waiters served a very dainty lunch. All enjoyed a social half hour together.

AIR KILLED HER

London (CP)—A stoppage of the heart, brought about by air entering a vein during an operation, was the cause of the death of Mrs. Edna Mills. Such cases are rare, said Dr. Alfred Piney, pathologist.

RATIONED BEAUTY

London (CP)—Advertisers are making rationing work for them in their sales appeals. Makers of a well-known brand of soap, recommending their product, ask women this question: "Must you look only half as beautiful now you are short of cosmetics?"

MAN RATIONING

Douglas (CP)—The Isle of Man quickly followed England in adopting clothes rationing and until coupons were available shopkeepers were warned not to sell rationed goods to avoid hoarding.

WHERE THE UNITED STATES STANDS

For long time the Axis Powers have known where the sympathy of the United States lies. This was manifested from the start by the outspoken utterances and the noble appeals which Mr. Roosevelt made in September 1939 in the endeavor to dissuade Hitler, who would not be dissuaded, from war on which he had set his mind. It has been manifest particularly this year with the bold action of the American people through their representatives in the lease-lend measure. Boldly has Mr. Roosevelt spoken in these days as in the incident of the sinking of a vessel, American passengers which were held awhile by the Nazis with a number of American ambulance drivers being released only on Friday of this week. At that time it was clear that the crew of the German submarine which torpedoed the ship were not to escape responsibility in that in the nature of events, not one of the passengers of the vessel was lost, all being picked up, some of them after days drifting on the ocean in peril of death from drowning. Again, he has spoken in the measure extending surveillance of the ocean and reporting of submarines of the enemy of the democracies at war. It was shown in the co-operation in hemisphere defence and now it is boldly revealed in the occupation of Iceland in a form of collaboration with the British garrison. Again in Washington it is said that the dividing line between hemispheres does not exist at all when the question of defence and security is uppermost.

In countless ways the United States has told the Axis Powers to their faces they are outlaws and aggressors, and that the United States is the friend of the democracies.

Nor is Hitler acting in a way to indicate that he does not realize what American help will mean for Britain and the other opponents of himself and of Mussolini, the lackey aggressor. He demonstrates very clearly that he knows. His rightabout face against Russia is proof enough.

RAIN

Often rain may seem to be very inconsiderate as it falls at times when it incommodes people, but by all the people in a dry season rain is recognized as a blessing. It is nature's way of replenishing the earth with food and cleansing the atmosphere. Sometimes rain is too plentiful, again it is too scanty. The latter condition is that which has been latterly making the people anxious because they know the blessings that rain does bring and the seriousness of drought.

Friday's rain, even if it fell vehemently during the noon hour when many people have to be on the streets, was welcomed. One could try to make one's way along the streets and smile if one was drenched.

The downfall in the first hour was almost phenomenal. Though the fall lightened afterwards, fortunately rain continued to descend for some hours, leaving an ideal atmosphere for the earth which has been parched and almost powdered by the drought and for the growing crops.

THE BUSY ROBIN

One of the most indefatigible creatures during the dry spell has been the robin which has to have worms for its food and the food of its young. The robin has needed no training to realize that the watering of lawns is something which brings it food. One has scarcely started to sprinkle the grass when a goodnatured companion arrives on the scene, the robin, who immediately proceeds to get the worms which are tempted to the surface by the lure of moisture.

Christian Science Monitor refers to the robin, the rain, and the worm and the sprinkler in an editorial "When It Rains." "The robin knows that being an early bird is not everything. Being the bird on hand is also worth two in the bush to him. He knows better even than to wait for rain. Put out your lawn sprinkler when you want to see a robin. He will parade around the perimeter of moisture with what appears to be aesthetic pleasure. But he keeps one eye for business and the other for the same thing."

BY Geo. H. [illegible]

Despite the fact that tourists are flocking here from south of the border in ever increasing numbers, the Fifth Column laddies are still trying to get in their insidious propaganda in an effort to prevent Americans from visiting Canada. Some of the stories they are circulating are so ridiculous that they are actually funny. The Simcoe Reformer sizes the situation up in a timely editorial which follows:—

IT has been said Ottawa is considering a scheme for rationing gasoline in Canada. An unexpected repercussion of this statement is the effect it may have on the American who wishes to come to Canada this year for his holiday. It is stated that thousands of inquiries are already being received asking if the proposed rationing will apply to American tourists, and, if so, to what extent gasoline will be rationed.

THE exchange situation between Canada and the United States has become acute. For this reason the American tourist trade, always important to our economy, has now become tremendously important. The season for this trade is now upon us; the sooner, therefore, the Government of Ottawa announces its intention the better. We have no doubt but that the Fifth Column is already using this possibility for all it is worth.

THE Windsor Star recently ran a column entitled "Saboteurs Lie About Dominion" in which it refers to a conversation published in an American weekly. The conversation is given as follows:

"Gimme ten gallons of gas. We're on our way to Canada," says the American tourist happily.

"Do you know that you will have to pay nine dollars for ten gallons up there?" replies the filling station operator.

"Wha-a-t?"

"Yes, it's 90 cents a gallon."

"How do you know?"

"A man was here the other day. He told me he had to pay $4.50 for five gallons, just enough to get back across the border."

THE man who told the gas-pumper that lie was one of a small army of Nazi and Red Fifth Columnists who went from station to station all over the Northern States, spreading the most fantastic yarns to scare Americans out of visiting Canada last season. Thousands believed even the craziest tales.

GAS is a little higher in Canada, per gallon. But the Fifth Column boys don't mention that Canada sells motorists the "Imperial gallon," which contains five American quarts instead of four. In other words, he gets 25 per cent more for his money than at home. The Imperial gallon applies to oil, gasoline and liquor. On Imperial quart of whisky holds 25 per cent more than the American full quart.

"I suppose you know that Canadians take your American money away and give you a receipt payable after the war," is another startling lie. Canadians not only take nothing away from the American visitor but they give him a bonus on every American dollar he spends. As change for a ten dollar bill he gets not ten but eleven Canadian dollars in return. Thus when he buys an Imperial gallon of gas he receives a 35 per cent bonus. But the propagandists don't burden the tourist with these pleasant details.

THESE lies are typical of those that are being told. Another is: "If you have a good car they take it right away from you up in Canada." One version of this lie is that soldiers seize it at the frontier, dumping men, women and children to get back the best way they can. Another version is that soldiers guard gas pumps in Canada and the tourist who has run out of gas is informed that gas cannot be served to foreigners at any price.

THE truth, of course, is that gas is just as available as ever throughout Canada, and Canadians are just as anxious as ever to serve and please visitors, because the country needs tourist money to pay for American war supplies.

TOURISTS are being told that dogs are taken from them at the border, whereas they are merely asked to take the dog out of the country when they return.

IT all serves to remind us that we are at war—and at war with a ruthless enemy to whom lies are useful weapons. Perhaps we can do a little to counter these attacks.

Coming Week A Crucial One In Russ War

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 12 (AP)—A London report that a mighty new German offensive is under way in Russia, aimed at destruction of the Red Army, collides with word from both Berlin and Moscow that there has been a lull of sorts on the long front.

Whether the London assertion was based on information or belief was not clear. It is obvious even to non-military minds, however, that the real battle in Russia is at hand; that only skirmishing has yet occurred, even though on a heroic scale.

Just why the London spokesman saw fit to speak in gloomy terms of possible crushing disasters for the Russians is conjectural. Presumably he was thinking of home-front reaction to Moscow reports that the Nazi onslaughts have been brought to a stand.

The London report also may reflect disappointment in high British Army circles over the indicated Russian strategy in the struggle. Both in London and in this country there has been a gloomy wagging of professional military heads over the Russian failure to fall back quickly and deeply before the Nazi thrusts.

Adage Makes Sense

To the strictly military mind, the old adage that he who fights and runs away will live to fight another day makes a lot of sense. Soldier folk don't put it just that way, but it is what they mean.

They argue that territorial gains or losses in war are often of small consequence as compared to keeping armies intact. That is all the more true in huge Russia, as any student or casual reader of Napoleon's ill-fated 1812 campaign there can see for himself.

There seems little doubt that British military men applaud Stalin's "scorched earth" policy—his instructions to his people to lay waste all behind them and all back. At the same time there is strong evidence of British fears that the Russians, having escaped complete disaster in meeting the first Nazi attack, will now fall into strategic error as did Poland, to her utter undoing.

The Poles deployed their army to safeguard all Polish frontiers, and paid dearly for it. Their forces were cut to pieces and destroyed in detail. The fear among London military men, shared in this country, is that the Russians will try to hold too much ground and perhaps meet the same fate.

Despite German claims of 1,000,000 Red soldiers killed, wounded or captured and Red tanks and planes destroyed by the thousand, the plain evidence is that the Russians made good their escape from wide reaches of buffer regions to the Stalin Line in surprisingly good order. The Red Army is still a fully functioning army by every indication. And the very width of the front along which the enemy is striking at critical points from the Arctic to the Black Sea means wide dispersion of the attackers as well as the defenders.

It is the Nazi technique to seek overwhelmnig superiority in this or that sector for a knockout break-through. Moscow's report of a day and night without important front-line actions anywhere must mean that German concentrations are being made for new mass attacks, probably in the centre, aimed at Moscow and Kiev.

Hitler's fondness for week-end forays, again demonstrated in the attack on Russia, has been notable. It makes this week-end, the fourth of the conflict, the possible crucial period of the Nazi-Soviet war, and justifies London foreboding.

Axis Communiques

Rome, July 12 (AP)—The Italian high command reported today a big air fight over the British Island of Malta in which it claimed four British planes were shot down attempting to ward off an Italian raid yesterday on the Micabba Airport.

Other British planes were destroyed on the ground, the high command claimed.

(A British communique said three Italian fighters were destroyed and nine others seriously damaged without loss to the R.A.F.)

Berlin, July 12 (AP)—The German high command claimed today that a British submarine was sunk by German air attack yesterday and a 2,000-ton freighter was destroyed in British coastal waters. (The claims lack British confirmation.)

Roosevelt Praises Russian Heroism, Wishes People Success

Moscow, July 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt, in a message to Michael Kalinin, President of the Supreme Soviet, said that the American people "are observing with sympathy and admiration the valent struggle which the Russian people are waging at the present time in self-defence."

Answering a Fourth of July message from Russia, the President said the Russians were combating heroically a ruthless invader and sent his regards for the welfare and success of the Russian people.

The present population of the world is about two billion souls.

Experts of the Carnegie Institution estimate that about thirty billion persons have lived on the earth since the beginning of recorded history some 6,000 years ago.

There are about 350,000 residents of Canada who were born in the United States, and about 400,000 residents of the United States who were born in Canada.

All the nine provinces of the Dominion of Canada except Quebec have unicameral or one-chamber legislatures or parliaments, while all the 48 states of the United States except Nebraska have bicameral or two-chamber legislatures.

THE LAST WORD

He would have had it this way: Praise be still!
Your tears, if real, only a very few,
Flowers for the lonely living and the ill.
A brave farewell from those he loved and knew.

There had been days when praise had cheered him on,
And times he had been gladdened by our flowers;
But now the time for fulsomeness has gone.
Silence is better for the last few hours.

Say but the prayer: where all is understood
And peace is promised and eternal rest,
That God, as we, shall find his labors good.
Then speak no more — for that would please him best.

Individual Soldier's Value Surprise of Tank Warfare's Swift, Spectacular Assault

Science and Mechanics Have Not Made Soldier a Robot — Resource and Initiative Have New Importance

Cavalry Charge Replaced by Embodiment of Mars

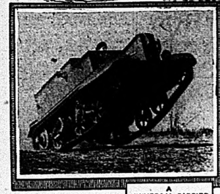
CRUISER TANKS IN ACTION



A UNIVERSAL CARRIER GOES THROUGH ITS PACES

The following is the first in a series of articles dealing with Canada's new Armoured formations. The writer, Kim Beattie, is well known to Canadian readers. Specializing in Canadian military history and allied subjects since the last war, his work has appeared in such publications as Liberty and MacLean's magazines, as well as in book form. Mr. Beattie has recently been appointed Features Editor of the Army Press Liaison office at Ottawa.

By KIM BEATTIE

OTTAWA: — To the Canadian student of military history and professional soldier, none of the tactical features of the present fast-moving war on land, which so startled the world, was a surprise. He was not astonished when the wholesale substitution of machines for men in to-day's armies resulted in the offensive becoming too powerful for the defence. All military minds agreed at the finish of the last war that it was certain to come about in the natural course of the tank's development as a weapon. Canadian soldiers foresaw it in the tank's dubious introduction to the battlefield on September 15, 1916. They then watched their predictions being confirmed in the massed tank attacks of Cambrai and Amiens.

Nor was there any surprise to the imaginative strategist in the speed and sweep of to-day's offensives through lavish use of armoured fighting vehicles and motorized infantry. The revolution to armour-plate, wheels and gasoline made it inevitable. Every feature of the German's blitzkrieg tactics of 1939 and 1940, except the "fifth column", and including attack by tanks and motorized infantry under low-flying airplanes, was practiced in the British Army as early as 1926 and 1927.

New Importance

What does astonish is that the transformation of armies from foot-soldiers to wheeled troops, and the dominant position of massive engines of war as the major offensive weapon, has tremendously increased both the value and the importance of each individual soldier. Mechanical talent and technical training are not wasted, independent minds and natural abilities of leadership have scope, even in the ranks of to-day's Canadian Army.

For years it was predicted that the coming of mechanized-war would see the world's armies so completely given over to scientific attributes that machines, chemicals, radio beams, delicate instruments and precision weapons, would turn the soldier into a mere automation. He would only be a robot for the scientist.

Instead, the opposite had happened. It is true that mechanization has forced the modern army to man itself with skilled mechanics, technicians and specialists. But the individual courage, resource and initiative of the ordinary soldier of to-day's armies have a far greater value and a more direct result on the outcome of an operation than in any previous military age. In the swift, far-ranging assaults of mechanized-war, which sees small fighting units operating far from the base of control and decision, the quality of leadership in the junior officers and non-commissioned officers is a first guarantee of success.

The New Efficiency

Lightning execution of orders and an immediate grasp of the meaning and intention of an order during the course of an action was always the mark of the good soldier. But to-day it can win or lose major battles. Intelligence and a quick mind, rather than parade-square precision, is the hall-mark of the efficient modern warrior.

It was those identical native characteristics which gave the Canadian soldier of the last war his historic offensive ability and which, in turn, gave the Canadian Corps its formidable shock-troop reputation in the offensive battles of 1918. Because it was a Canadian habit to think independently, they thought for themselves in the confusion and tumult of action. It was their nature to improvise and invent, so they surmounted surprise obstacles by developing unorthodox tactics as custom-shackled troops could never have done. The Canadian subaltern and N.C.O. were seldom at a loss for some resort which would turn a failing attack into a success even when cut-off from the usual source of inspiration and orders.

Ideal Shock-Troops

That is why the Canadians will make the ideal shock-troopers of to-day's swift-moving warfare. Armoured fighting vehicles, such as tanks, armoured cars, and universal infantry carriers, have moved all armies into the open. They have forced the dug-in opponents of the last war into campaigns of wide frontage, great depth, range and fast movement. In such warfare the Canadians will be at home as no barrack-bound old-style army could be.

As Col. the Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, puts it: "Initiative and resource were the Canadian soldier's most valuable assets in the last war. In to-day's warfare, these characteristics are indispensable."

Native Adaptability

In addition, the very fact that to-day's armies are so highly mechanized likewise means that Canadians are peculiarly fitted for the new warfare. As Lt.-Col. A. G. L. McNaughton, the Canadian Commander, said in 1939: "We are starting on the most wonderful base imaginable ... with nearly all our men partly trained to take their places in this kind of war. Right in their everyday existence they are using and applying the means of winning a modern war, much more than any other country involved."

The Commander of our overseas forces was referring to the mechanical adapatibility of Canadians. He meant that more Canadians can drive cars, can cope with running repairs, to both tractors and motor-cars, and are handier with mechanical gadgets and devices, than the people of any European nation.

Irresistable Power

Perhaps most surprising of all in the development of military tactics and weapons in the Canadian Army, even to the foresighted strategist, was that not even the dehorsing of the cavalry has taken the glamour and colour from military life. There are only nine horses left in the Canadian Army. We will never again thrill to the stirring picture of squadrons at the charge, with the sabres flashing and the drum of gallant feet beating a thundering tatoo.

It has been replaced by something far more spectacular — an impression of irresistable power. The tank is the tangible embodiment of military might in itself. The imperturbability of its ponderous progress through the tumult of battle, with death spitting from its massive bulk, is Mars incarnate.

Spectacular Battles

We have been repeatedly told that the spectacular attributes of war would not be found in the modern battle-scene. But there is nothing prosaic about the lurching monsters of a heavy tank brigade smashing down everything before them with an impervious and unstayable ferocity. The manifestation of potential destruction of the new Canadian armoured regiments, crashing to the assault, holds a terrible fascination.

The 1st Canadian Armoured Division and the 1st Tank Brigade will join the great tank concentration of "Slosher" Martel's Royal Armoured Corps to meet the massed German panzers in the final battles of decision. They will be actually titanic struggles between armour-plated juggernauts, and the colossal shocks and tumult of their melee will defy description.

Giving Convulsion Treatment to Mental Patients Without Causing Convulsions

The use of insulin and metrazol injections to cause convulsions in patients with mental disturbances, has brought brilliant results. It has meant that many patients were able to return to their homes and to work weeks and even months sooner than with the regular treatment of the mental hospital.

It is true that some accidents have occurred such as broken bones during the convulsions but it is agreed that this method of treatment is a great advance over the previous methods.

That it may be possible to use smaller amounts of these drugs enough to help the patient without throwing him into convulsions may soon be known following the report of a case by Dr. G. C. Young in the British Lancet.

A young woman was admitted to the mental hospital, in a very confused mental state, destructive, restless, with hallucinations that she was hearing voices and other sounds and seeing visions that did not exist in reality. She was so restless that strong doses of quieting drugs were given which had to be continued even after she was put to bed. There was no sign of improvement after five weeks.

After three treatments with metrazol given in doses not quite large enough to cause convulsions, mental improvement began. Treatment was stopped three weeks after it was started and three weeks later the patient was normal and had full knowledge of herself and surroundings. Her condition has remained normal; no sign of any of her mental symptoms has reappeared.

How can one know whether this patient would not have recovered with the usual hospital treatment, as so many patients do?

During the early days of treatment by metrazol, the symptoms—restlessness and hallucinations—returned between the injections with metrazol but at the end of the full three weeks treatment the symptoms did not return and have not returned since.

It will be interesting to physicians, to patients and the families of patients to follow a number of cases treated by this smaller dose injection of metrazol. If successful, it will mean that the patients and the families will readily undergo this method rather than remain months or even years in hospital or undergo the total convulsion treatment.

CANADIAN INDUSTRY AN EMPIRE BULWARK

Never in the history of human conflict has industrial capacity, skill and production efficiency counted for so much as it does in the present national emergency.

Fortunate indeed are we, therefore, that Canada's comparatively young but virile industrial set-up had been developed to its present high efficiency, otherwise we could not have made the contribution expected of us and so vital to the success of our cause. Management and men of industry, quick to respond to the call of Empire, mobilized its forces with remarkable adaptability, swinging rapidly into production of much needed mechanized units, munitions and equipment of all kinds.

Rounding out our national activities in a more balanced economy, Canadian industry has in addition to serving well the home market, developed a substantial and profitable export business. The industrial areas, too, provide ready and profitable markets for our own agricultural products. But great as may be its peace-time contribution to the weal of Canada, Canadian industry rises to new attainments in the contribution being made in producing the requirements of mechanized warfare.

Massey-Harris is proud of the part it has been permitted to play in the development of Canada so far and in the defence of its dearly treasured traditions and of democracy in general.

THATCHER—ARNOTT

A pretty wedding took place at two-thirty yesterday afternoon at Christ Church when Dorothy Marie, daughter of Mr. R. E. Arnott and the late Mrs. Arnott, became the bride of W. R. Thatcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Thatcher of Windsor. Rev. G. G. Wright officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was played by Mr. George Maybee.

Asks Canadians To Use Less Pork Products for 3 Months

The local Women's Canadian Club has received a copy of a letter from the director of the Marketing Service asking Canadians to use less pork products during the next three months. The letter follows:

"The Secretary,
"The Association of Canadian Clubs,
"172 Wellington St.,
"Ottawa.

"Dear Madam,—

"The Marketing Service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, in conjunction with the Bacon Board, is asking Canadians to use less pork products during the next three months. This appeal is made in order that the amount of pork products the British Ministry wants from Canada, will be supplied.

It is expected that by Fall the marketing of hogs in Canada will be large enough in volume to supply Great Britain's requirements, and also leave sufficient pork for home consumption.

"Your co-operation in advising the members of your organization, through provincial and local officers of the present situation, will be greatly appreciated. We feel confident that the women of Canada will give their wholehearted support to this appeal, and will use other meats and meat substitutes for some of the pork products which they would ordinarily be using, in order to meet the emergency.

"Yours very truly.
"(Signed) A. M. SHAW,

Fashion Flashes

You can be certain that buying a black satin frock for late summer will prove a good autumn investment. A new model, done in gleaming inky satin, has a pointed peplum apron in front, tightly pleated. Molded bodice and deep pointed neckline.

You'll be seeing some amazingly handled fur fashions come winter. Something new is an evening wrap of natural lynx, the back a full cape with sleeves that in front merge into a boxy coat silhouette.

Looking ahead is what we seem to be doing just now, we see much interest in the fitted reefer of velvet for street and general wear. Black, deep green, dark brown and and blue are some of the colors liked.

It seems difficult to have a really efficient wardrobe without benefit of a three-piece suit. A new model consists of a casual, boxy topcoat done in plaid in two shades of beige and a tailored suite done in the two beige shades in a tiny check.

Designers work hard to bring novelty and prettiness into the lingerie field. A new nightgown and matching coat are of diamond checked pink, blue and white double chiffon. The gown has cut-outs at the pink checks. The robe has a large appliqued bowknot design done in a smaller checked design.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 13

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds much encouragement for those seeking preferment, promotion, esteem or other tokens of appreciation from superiors, those in authority or employers. It should be a time for pushing for such advancement, although it would be well to have plans plausibly developed and propositions well organized. There should be no confusion, sarcasm, or bitterness in such gestures for advancement, especially in those proposals of a public nature or concerning community activity.

Those whose birthday it is may hope for the substantial support of those in prestige and high station, with chances of promotion, honors and preferment. But such advancement should be backed up by merit, sound premises and community welfare rather than purely personal gratification or self-interest. Be wise with speech.

A child born on this day should have much ability and ambition and should secure the favoritism of those in high places. However, it may have a sharp and caustic or offensive mode of expression, written and oral.

For Monday, July 14

Monday's astrological forecast is for much activity in highly constructive and practical lines, with surprising and original lines of bringing achievements before the public. Such solid but unique work should have far-reaching and enduring returns despite several subtle and treacherous assaults or deceptions. It would be advisable to use extra precaution with contracts, letters and communications.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unusual activity in practical and constructive lines in which the public interest may be at stake. This enterprise may rate solid and enduring stability in game and fortune, in spite of intrigue, subtlety and treachery. They should be alert to tricks and duplicity in all sort of writings, documents and correspondence.

A child born on this day should have much energy, practical ability, sound though original ideas, probably of worth to the public security. It will succeed although subjected to peculiar or subtle attacks and betrayals.

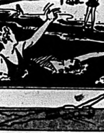
Modern "Bathing Beauty" Good Swimmer, Too



Teach Yourself Popular Strokes

Having the smartest bathing suit on the beach won't do a thing for your popularity if you're a "fraidy cat" about swimming.

The way to have fun is to be able to swim so well you don't have to hang back, fearful you'll get "over your head." Learn—a movement at a time—popular strokes such as the back crawl.

As you float on your back, just practise kicking your legs alternately up and down from the hips, no farther than 12 to 15 inches below the surface. Relax ankles and knees and emphasize the upward part of the kick.

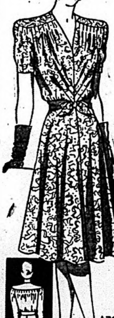
Now for the arm strokes. The motion is the same for both arms, but the trick is that while one reaches and pulls through the water the other recovers above water.

Start with arm at hip, lift it above water and carry it, relaxed, back to a diagonal reach above shoulder. Now pull straight back through water to thigh.

Other swimming strokes you can learn in the same step-by-step way. Our 32-page booklet has diagrams and directions for the crawl, back stroke, back crawl, side stroke, breast stroke, trudgen and trudgen crawl. Shows how to dive, float, tread water—do racing starts and turns. Gives safety tips.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO BE A GOOD SWIMMER to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Slim Dress Has Extended Yoke



By ANNE ADAMS

Not just a "good little dress," but something extra-special is Pattern 4799. For every knowing detail of this Anne Adams frock slims, softens, enhances. There's a newsy look to the extended shoulder yoking that's surrunded by darts to hold the marvelous bodice softness in place, aided by gathers above the waist and a group of V-darts at the centre-front seam. The neckline is cool, simple and cut low in the new fashion. Have your sleeves short, long or make them in the three-quarter style that gives such concealing, graceful flattery to your arms. A belt of ribbon or with just a front inset and tie of self-fabric adds gay color to this frock!

Pattern 4799 is available in misses' and women's sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 1-4 yards 39-inch fabric and 1-4 yard contrast.

Send twenty cents (20c in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

GRUMBLING NEVER MAKES PLEASANT MANNERS

Have you set yourself up in the grumbling business? Is grumbling a chronic disease with you? It's a great human temptation, this finding fault with people and things and circumstances.

This habit of grumbling makes it easy to let the poison collect inside of us and come out in our words and deeds. Then, whether we realize it or not, or whether we admit it or not, we don't enjoy ourselves. Certainly, our friends don't find us pleasant people to know, and our family doesn't find us agreeable to live with.

How about standing off and looking at yourself, to determine honestly how much grumbling you do in a day or in a week? How much does your grumbling accomplish? Does it plus or minus that charm of personality you are trying to achieve? Does it win friends for you? As you pursue your business of grumbling, watch the facial expression of your listener.

Grumbling and fault-finding never make for pleasant manners. If you find yourself beginning to grumble or to find fault, give yourself a dose of self-control. Even if it hurts you, think of something pleasant to say, something that builds up rather than tears down.

Here's a tonic that will, if you give it a chance, cure your grumbling:

"Nothing is easier than fault-finding. No self-denial, no brains, no character are required to set up in the grumbling business."

COURTESY TIP

If you are walking with a friend and you meet someone who stops to speak to your friend, walk slowly on while they hold their conversation. Don't hang back awkwardly, as if you were waiting for an introduction. If the third person is invited to join you and your friend, or if there is any other reason for an introduction, they can overtake you and the introduction can be made. But in the meantime you won't have given the impression that you expected the introduction.

AT THE BELLE

"The Great American Broadcast"

Against a background of tuneful melodies, "The Great American Broadcast" unfolds the gay, fascinating story of the courageous, talented people who first filled the air waves with song and laughter.

From the same studio which produced "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Tin Pin Alley" and others, the film "The Great American Broadcast, starring Alice Faye, John Payne, Jack Oakie and Cesar Romero, opens today at the Belle Theatre.

Mindful of the fact that it is more difficult to reproduce the recent past on the screen to the satisfaction of all potential moviegoers, one year of research was spent before a single line of script was written. People familiar with the styles, customs and trends of 1919 and the years immediately following, will find "The Great American Broadcast," historically accurate, but in a most gay, entertaining way.

Those were the days of the crystal set so every available crystal set west of the Rockies was purchased, and in addition, others were built to supplement these.

Celluloid collars, and high, wide and hard straw hats were other items necessary for the accurate reconstruction of the recent past. The collars were supplied by a midwestern dealer who thought he had been stuck with an over-supply—and stuck he was until 20th Century-Fox bought his entire stock at a fancy price. On the matter of the straw hats, the studio was more fortunate. Several years ago the purchasing department picked up 200 of these snappy head pieces at a bargain price, and now they are not only used in the 20th Century-Fox films, but also rented to other studios often enough to have covered the original investment five-fold.

The songs sung by Alice Faye in "The Great American Broadcast" were written by those master tunesmiths, Mack Gordon and Harry Warren. For "The Great American Broadcast" they prepared "Long Ago Last Night," "Run Little Raindrop, Run," "I've Got a Bone to Pick With You," "The Great American Broadcast," "Where You Are" and "It's All In a Lifetime."

The same program includes the Belle News of the Day, a coloured fun cartoon and "The Battle of the Atlantic."

Mental Specialists Are Very Patient with Mental Cases

An outstanding authority on mental disease, in charge of a large mental hospital, was unusually quiet spoken, with a calmness of mind that often surprised me. After an attack by one patient and a near-attack by another, from the latter of which he escaped by inches only with his life, he went about his daily tasks in the hospital without any outward appearance of any inward disturbance.

"These attacks upon me serve to show that these patients have some deep rooted conviction that they are being persecuted and that I am, in some way, connected with this persecution. After the patient gets built up physically I will have one or more talks with him and try to find out not only why he attacked me but why he has the feeling that he is being persecuted. He has a "grievance" just as a normal individual has a grievance, but the normal individual has, or should have, some reason for it. The abnormal individual may or may not have a reason for his grievance but he thinks he has and if no foundation for it exists, help him to see that it lacks any foundation. The fact that he has tried to 'get' me and that I have showed no desire for revenge, treating him as I do all the other patients yet not showing any hurry to even talk to him, gives me my opportunity a little later to talk to him. I will be more likely to get at the cause of his persecution or grievance. Had I punished him in an way for his behavior. there would be no chance of my approaching him with any success. Having paid no attention to his attack, I believe I made an opening that would otherwise have been closed to me."

It was one week after the attack that he had a short chat with the patient, a week later another. It was nearly a month before he got the patient's full confidence so that finally he believed that the physician was trying to help, not harm, him. Then he told his story with full details and the physician was able to show him that he was not being persecuted; that his own unsocial behavior was entirely to blame for his family asking that he be placed in an institution until he became "himself" again. His recovery thereafter was rapid.

It was the patience of this physician, as it is with practically all mental specialists, that enables them to obtain "cures" when the family has given up all hope.

Medicine in the News

By MORRIS FISHBEIN, M.D.

Circulars sent by Dr. Frances I. Seymour of New York to 30,000 American physicians brought responses indicating that at least 9,489 women have been able to have babies by the technic or artificial insemination. In about two-thirds of these cases the material was taken from the husband; in 3,649 instances the material was supplied by a donor. In these cases there were 2,107 boys and 1,542 girls.

In 97 per cent of instances when artificial insemination was employed living normal babies resulted. In 1,257 cases the method was tried more than once, with a successful result. Sometimes the method had to be tried repeatedly before success occurred. The 4,049 physicians who reported indicated that the technic had to be tried from one to seventy-two times in order to secure success in different cases. The majority of cases required only one or two attempts.

Newest addition to high nutritional foods is egg-yolk powder. Studies recently made in the Welfare Hospital in New York City showed that it is possible, by extra feeding with this substance, to produce gains in weight from five to sixteen pounds among invalids who require extra nutrition. Authorities report that egg-yolk powder is an economical agent for increasing the nutrition of the body and is a rich food source of Vitamins A and D and water-soluble fraction of Vitamin B.

New-born babies sometimes appear in the world exceedingly blue because they are partially asphyxiated. They are known as "blue babies." Investigators in the University of Michigan report that the trouble in most instances is due to compression of the head interfering with the tissue responsible for breathing. Prevention of these injuries is best accomplished by careful attention to the process of childbirth.

The famous British surgeon G. Grey Turner has just reported a case of a man whom he first saw in April, 1917, in a base hospital in France. The man was an English officer who had been struck on the front of the left side of the chest by a bullet from a machine gun at an estimated range of 500 yards. It was impossible to remove the bullet from the heart, where it had lodged.

At that time an attempt was made to remove the bullet from the heart, even though the heart was exposed and it was possible for the surgeons to observe it directly. X-ray studies made in 1937 and again in 1940 indicate that the bullet is still in the heart and the patient is still living. He now says, however, he is a little tired, "Result of the present war, not the last one."

In many instances modern surgery has made it possible to operate directly on the heart, but the surgeon must weigh carefully the chance of survival with the foreign body still in place as compared with the chance of survival after the operation.

Advice to the Lovelorn

To Stay Young Don't Be 'Catty'; Malice Adds Lines to Face

Not only women but men are advised to keep at bay the advancing years. We say "men" with advisement, for the stronger sex has as much done in barber shops as women in beauty parlors. What with face cream, hot towels, massage, and perhaps a little side talk against giving way to violent emotions, both sexes seek beauty as ardently as Ponce de Leon.

A recent writer on the subject, with some such book title as how to be fifty and look twenty-five passes up cream and hot towels, but neglects to say, "Don't be catty." This latest age appeaser says you mustn't give away your number of birthdays by fiddling with your hands. If you're a lady don't fumble with the beads on your neck; if you're a gentleman, don't fuss with your necktie.

Perhaps there's some deep, dark Freudian secret back of all this still-hands policy. But remembering the ways of children, adolescents and debs, it seems to me that their hands are ever on the wing. Children are everlastingly fingering their pinafores. And that finger-in-the-mouth gesture is the badge of infantile embarrassment.

The "glad girl" claps her hands when she says things are simply divine. She runs with outstretched hands to greet the boy friend, if she's pretty sure she won't scare him away with her artless enthusiasm. She fiddles with her hair, and we're thankful when she doesn't comb it.

After this homily on hands, the next best thing to keep one in the colt class is never to remember anything that happened a few years back.

If cold cream, skin-tightening lotions, lipstick, and rouge to match the sparkle in your eye are going to be discarded — and what a hideous mistake on the part of women it would be to abandon these genuine age-appeasers — the anti-cosmetic school has never a word to say on the subject of not being catty.

Why the common house-cat, many of which are without malice, grudge or rancor, should have to stand for human spitefulness has always been a mystery to me. Nevertheless, when you say of a woman that she's a cat, you're never at a loss to get her true number. And the house cat, innocent of his legal rights, has never been known to sue.

While human cats are chiefly feminine, they have not a complete monopoly of this quality of youth-destroying spitefulness. In a lesser degree we have mischief-making Toms as well as Tabbies. Irrespective of sex, all pay the penalty of becoming older and uglier than people who have a greater share of human benevolence.

Glance in the mirror after you have done something full of malice and see the quick change in your face. The trouble with this test is that probably you won't have a mirror close at hand, but the telltale lines will be there just the same.

DELIGHT DIXON

Here's something you can do about the weather—and keep cool when the sun is hottest

Beating THE HEAT!

Talcum powder possesses cooling properties that are kind to hot feet. Use it after a foot bath, as at left, or a cologne rub. . . . Toilet water poured over cubes of ice, then patted around the face-framing hairline, as shown next, is a favorite cooling-off measure. . . . Liquid sachet is a new and delightful item and ranks high as an all-time fragrance, but only a drop or two should be used, as above. . . . Spray cologne around your head, as at right, and chest and let this aura of a beautiful fragrance surround you. . . . Who said "There's nothing we can do about the weather?"

LET'S talk about the weather today. Not about the heat or the humidity, but about measures for overcoming their sweltering effects on our appearance. And, while applying cooling-off measures, let's promise ourselves not to mention the stifling heat for the remainder of the summer. Is it a bargain? I hope so, for talking about the weather keeps it forever on our minds, and the easiest way to forget it is not to think about it or have it called to our attention.

To be sure, dashing about in the heat, or carrying on our everyday work, is likely to leave its mark on our good looks, but common-sense measures for combatting these effects will let us emerge as fresh as a primrose and as cool as a cucumber.

I've grouped together the aids which I believe best suited for the job of keeping cool. Among the old favorites are two brand-new items you will love. One, a solid cologne, comes in stick form similar to men's shaving sticks. The other, liquid sachet, is a heavy cream-liquid, delicately-tinted pink, and as fragrant as can be. This fragrance, which is carried through all of the items used today, has a stimulating, fresh quality which makes it especially fine for the purpose it has been chosen.

All of these cooling-off measures may be used as one complete treatment, or you may use one or more measures to fill your immediate need. Because our feet are our first line of defense, let's consider the soothing, cooling properties of cologne and talcum. If there isn't time for a foot bath, or if it isn't convenient, simply remove shoes and stockings and dash cologne over your feet. Then when the liquid has dried, sprinkle the fragrant talcum between the toes and over the soles of your feet. Both the cologne and the talc have cooling properties, so be liberal with their application after each bath, before going to bed, and as often as your feet demand cooling off during the day.

Patting ice cold toilet water over the temples, chest and arms is a cooling-off measure favored by many. Another version of this favorite and familiar trick, is to pour one tablespoonful or more of the fragrant liquid over cubes of ice. This dilutes the cologne, cools it in a jiffy, and makes it go farther. A pad of cotton moistened with the icy liquid patted over the temples, forehead, chest, arms, wrists and fingers cools and perks one up at once. Use a shallow dish for cooling the cologne and try placing your fingers in the liquid and dashing it up over your wrists. The ice-like liquid on the pulse actually cools the blood as it goes through the body, and helps keep one cool for a long time after the cold ablution.

Liquid sachet takes a new place with other better known forms of fragrance and aids to loveliness. This is a new item and destined to become a favorite. It's a practical way to perfume the body and the fragrance remains on the skin indefinitely. Touch a drop or two of this liquid sachet to your skin, rub it in just a little and although the application disappears at once, the fragrance lingers. Use this form of scent after the bath, before going to bed, or whenever you want a perfume pick-up.

Don't overlook the important role fragrances play in making one feel cool, and forget the soaring temperature. Of course, it is psychological, but it serves its purpose and creates the one result we are all after in hot weather, namely that of making us feel and look cool and tranquil.

Solid cologne is the second of the newest items destined to take a front place in toiletries. The large stick—it's one-inch and one-quarter in diameter and over three inches long—comes in a good-looking glass container with a metal cap to prevent evaporation. This is the easiest form of all fragrances to carry when traveling, and one of the pleasantest to use any time. Besides its fresh, stimulating perfume, it has a cooling effect on the skin. After the bath, before dressing, before going to bed and any time of the day, rub the stick of solid cologne over your skin. It will be as cooling as ice and will leave the skin fresh and fragrant. Unless you use solid cologne with a very heavy hand, you won't find the slightest trace of anything but fragrance on the skin.

Solid cologne will also serve for grooming nape-of-neck hairs. Use the fragrant stick for making short, wispy, unruly hairs fall into place. Use it for keeping hairs over your temples and forehead in place, too, and enjoy this feeling of cool fragrance around your face. The solid cologne and liquid sachet combine to make a perfect mid-summer duet of all-day fragrance.

Toilet water or cologne sprayed over the hair anytime during the day or before going to bed is another psychological cooling-off method. Brush your hair well and secure it in place for the day, or confine it within the mesh of a net for night, and use a mist-like spray of scent. Surround yourself with an aura of fragrance and don't think or talk about the weather.

Bathing for daintiness is essential. Keep your skin fresh by frequent bathing. Try taking either cool showers, as many as you wish during the day, or, if you go to business, take a lukewarm tub bath, scrub your body with a lathered brush, and use fragrance in the morning and the first thing when reaching home. In addition to frequent bathing, use fragrances often. Allow ample time for performing every task so you won't have to rush and get over-heated.

Think about being cool and you will be cool and, what is even more important, you'll honestly look cool and tranquil and you'll possess that priceless air of good grooming which is daintiness.

Solid cologne is one of the loveliest of all new forms of scent. Use it on your body, or for grooming nape-of-neck hairs, as below.

PROBLEMS

FOR about eight years I have had deep and shallow scars, which won't fade, on my legs. Will you please recommend something that will get rid of these scars? P. K.

You weren't very specific about the scars, so I won't be able to offer much help at this time. I doubt whether they could be easily removed. However, I believe the preparation originally made for concealing birthmarks and surface scars would serve to hide these leg blemishes. If you wish to write me again, telling me more details about the color of the scars and what caused them, I'm sure I will be able to offer more constructive help. Be sure to enclose a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I have been told that trimming the lashes would make them grow longer. Is this true and, if so, how much and how often should they be trimmed? GLORIA.

It is not true that trimming the lashes encourages their growth. The fact is, the lashes are constantly falling out and being replaced by new hairs. Very light finger-tip massage with vaseline or a special lubricant over the base of the lashes will encourage the growth of the new hairs so they will be longer and more abundant.

Do you approve of shaving the legs? If you do not believe this a safe method, please let me know what you consider the most satisfactory method for removing hairs from the legs. PEGGY.

I think that "in a pinch" there is no harm in using a razor for the removal of leg hairs. But there are so many new depilatories available, I'm sure you would find one of these a more satisfactory method for the regular removal of hairs. These aids leave the skin sleek and well-groomed. If you wish to try a depilatory, ask your beautician or druggist to recommend a good brand, or, if you wish, write me again, enclosing a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How can I remove calloused skin from the sides of my heels and just under my big toe? I'm sure these were caused by wearing shoes that did not fit properly. ANITA.

Use pumice stone for erasing the hard skin. Also, after using the pumice, bathe the feet in warm water for 10 or 15 minutes, rub off as much of the hard skin as possible with a Turkish towel, then massage cocoa butter over the affected regions. Repeat this treatment every day and within two weeks your feet will be as soft and smooth as ever.

I would like some help on my hair. It is so thin that I can't do a thing with it. Please let me know of something that will make my hair grow thicker. I have another problem. My thighs are about right, but I would like to know how to develop my legs from my knees to my ankles. My ankles look very bony. "A TRUE READER."

Whether thin hair is caused by dry or oily scalp, incorrect care or any other scalp disorder, it is generally advisable to look to the scalp for the basis of the trouble. Massage your scalp and brush your hair every day, then use a good corrective aid, following the directions accompanying the package of preparation. If you wish to write me again, I'll be happy to send along names of preparations which have proved beneficial. At the same time I will forward you my leaflets of suggestions for improving leg contours.

DELIGHT DIXON Says

TAN naturally, if you like, or keep your fair skin and simulate a tanned complexion. If you want to tan, use an emulsified suntan lotion, which is an emollient preparation, and which quickly dries on the surface of the skin and protects it against burning. For keeping fair skin fair, use an anti-sunburn foundation that contains a sun-filtering agent which protects the skin against tanning while giving it a dressed-up look.

The packages of new beauty aids strike a note of gay abandon with their theme in blue and pink pastels—lovely elms swaying in the breeze with dryads releasing earth-bound skylarks from their cages. The exquisite fragrance lends its note of carefree happiness to seven excellent aids to loveliness. This series includes both bath and face powder, perfume, bath bubbles, bath soap, face soap and toilet water.

Cooling baths are a "dime a dozen" and will do much to bolster up your ego these hot days. Pour about one-half of a cup of salt in the bathtub, then just cover the bottom of the tub with water, either cool or lukewarm. Sit in the briny solution and dash some of it up over your body. Remain in the water for ten minutes, then pat yourself dry.

Fragrant talc, a brand-new member of a famous old toiletries' family, comes in a dainty, easy-to-handle oval box with shaker top. Talc is a year-round favorite but a summertime must. Use it liberally.

Graciousness is a necessity to charm, and charm is the something that sets one girl apart from the others. Cultivate a pleasant voice, remember all the little courtesies, use make-up wisely, improve your carriage and hold your head high. Follow these tips and you will be well on your way to feminine perfection.

No girl can burn the candle at both ends and look as fresh as the proverbial daisy, too. Get sufficient sleep to keep your eyes bright and your expression young and gay, and relax for a minute or two whenever things get too hectic and your nerves get all "tied in a knot" as the saying goes. A little rest goes a long way toward refreshing one during these hot days.

Dimaggio Runs Hitting Streak To Half-Century Mark as Yanks Increase Lead Over Cleveland

Three Singles and Homer Contribution of DiMaggio to 12-2 Win by Yankees Over Browns

DODGERS WIN

By BILL BONI
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The time has come, it now would seem, to speak of just one thing—DiMaggio, and how his hits Yanks victories do bring.

On May 15 DiMaggio began his batting streak. The Yanks were then in low estate. To friends they wouldn't speak. Our Joseph, too, was in the dumps. He couldn't hit at all. He couldn't even, some folks said, have hit a garden wall.

But since that time through 50 games our Joe has not missed once.

But, to get down to serious business, the Yanks and DiMaggio really hit a peak in St. Louis yesterday, where the league leaders knocked off the Browns, 6-2. DiMaggio, in running his string to the half-century mark, did it with a vengeance—three singles and his 20th homer—and promptly took command of the individual lead in runs scored, runs batted in, hits and homers.

The Yankees, aided by Cleveland Indians' idleness, boosted their first-place margin to four games and, what's more, tied the Indians' 1941 league record of 11 straight victories.

Grove Beaten By Newsom.

At Detroit Boston Red Sox sent Lefty Grove out after the 300th victory of his memorable career. But Grove had the bad fortune to tie into Bobo Newsom on one of his better afternoons and, with each man turning in a six-hit performance, Grove and the Red Sox came out on the short end of a 2-0 count.

Another and younger southpaw, Edgar Smith, had better luck for Chicago White Sox against the last-place Washington Senators. Smith's six-hitter gave the Sox a 3-1 decision as Billy Knickerbocker's home run with a man on base furnished the stocky left-hander all the working margin he needed.

Dodgers Down Reds.

Like the Yankees, the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League relied chiefly on batting punch. With every man connecting safely at least once and pitcher Curt Davis bagging a homer and single, the Brooklyns walloped the champion Cincinnati Reds, 12-2, for the second straight day.

Boston Braves struck a neat balance between pitching and hitting to square their series with the Chicago Cubs through a 7-2 triumph.

In the American League the Indians and Philadelphia Athletics had an open date, as did the Cardinals and New York Giants and Pittsburg Pirates and Phillies in the National.

Louis Polishes Off Opponent With One Punch

Minneapolis, July 12 (AP). — Training for the event with 18 holes of golf a few hours earlier, champion Joe Louis added variety to his knockout career last night by polishing off Jimmy Robinson with one punch in an exhibition scrap.

All the action observed by the Quatennial Summer Carnival crowd of 8,500 was provided by Robinson. Two loud rights smacked against the champion's jaw just before the finish. The crowd cheered. Louis backed away, flicking his left to Robinson's face.

The Philadelphia youth charged in confidently. Timing himself accurately, Louis glided just as Robinson lunged toward him. Delivered almost effortlessly, the snap blow caught Robinson in the solar plexus.

The champion was in a surly mood when he arrived from Chicago after filing an answer to his wife's divorce action. Promoter Tommy O'Loughlin said the bout netted Louis about $6,000.

JIMMY TARRIES BRIEF .Y IN SAND TRAP

Jimmy Demeret, Noroton, Conn., dallied only briefly in this sand trap on the No. 8 hole at Denver's Cherry Hill course. He blasted out and completed the round in a three-under-par 68 at the Professional Golfers' association tourney. The 68 gave him a two-day qualifying score of 140.

FELLOW DAVIS CUPPERS VIE FOR TENNIS TITLE

Ross Wilson and Phil Pearson Meet in Semi-Finals of Men's Singles

SPLENDID MATCHES

Toronto, July 12 (CP)—The finals of the Ontario tennis championships will be played here this afternoon.

In the match which promises to be the highlight of the day, the Ontario men's champion for 1940, Ross Wilson of Toronto takes on a fellow-Davis cupper Phil Pearan of Montreal in the men's singles final. Wilson won his semi-final match yesterday by blasting young Bob Watt of Montreal right off the court with convincing 6-2, 6-2 victories. Pearson didn't even have to play his match, for his opponent Bobby Murray of Montreal had to default because of a cold in his back.

Mrs. F. Fisher of Toronto, No. 1 seeded woman player in the tournament plays Mrs. D. Mundell of Ottawa in the ladies' singles final which will be played at the same time as the men's final. Mrs. Fisher has managed to go through the tournament without the loss of a single set. Yesterday she defeated Winnie McConnell of Ottawa, 6-4, 6-4. Mrs. Mundell met inspired opposition in her match with the "giant-killer" of the tournament, Patty Rappell of Toronto. Patty, up until yesterday, had disposed of two of the seeded women players. However she met her match in the experienced Mrs. Mundell, losing in straight sets 7-5, 6-4.

The men's doubles final finds Pearson and Bill Pedlar of Toronto opposing Eddie Condon of Ottawa and Morris Margesson of Toronto. The Pearson-Pedlar combination, Canadian doubles team in the Davis Cup, had several close shaves in their semi-final match with the champions of the Ottawa district, Eddie Murphy and A. McKnight of Ottawa, before beating them. Condon and Margesson were to meet last year's champions, Wilson and Murray in the other semi-final, but Murray's back ailment forced a default.

Denver, July 12 (AP)—Golf championships are such an old story to Gene Sarazen that he might be excused for losing the competitive urge, but no youngster could be more eager to spill Byron Nelson's charge toward another Professional Golf Association crown at Cherry Hills' birdie strewn battlefield.

The 36-hole scrap between the pink-cheeked Nelson and the sharp-tongued, knicker-clad little squire who first won this title 19 years ago, when Nelson was 10 years old, is the big news of today's semi-finals.

In the other match the tournament "freshman," 26-year-old Lloyd Mangrum of Monterey Park, Calif., challenged the drive of Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N.J., who is built like a football tackle, toward tomorrow's championship struggle.

It was subpar golf or you're out in yesterday's quarter finals and at that two of the losers gave par a fruitless pasting.

Six Strokes Under Par

Defending champion Nelson, from Toledo, Ohio, travelled the 36 holes in six strokes under standard 71 for a drama-laden 2-up victory over Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., the little fellow who has won more money than any other pro this year. Nelson said, "I wanted to win but I never was more sorry about winning a match than about this one."

Sarazen broke par by four shots in a 7-and-6 triumph over the only other ex-champion in the quarter-finals—quiet Denny Shute of Chicago, who won two straight in 1936-37.

Mangrum, a lean-featured, good-looking Californian playing in his first P.G.A. tournament, dealt out a 6-and-4 spanking to Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., tournament medalist. Mangrum, who said he was putting "marvelously" matched Nelson's six-under-par shooting.

Ghezzi, a P.G.A. tourney competitor since 1932, played his best golf—two under par—in four matches to crush Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, N.Y., 8 and 7.

London (CP)—British women are teaching German airmen prisoners the art of rug-making and the captives in one district have completed a thrift rug pegged out of strips of old stockings. British soldiers, wounded Frenchmen and Poles also are being taught.

NET STARS IN NEW TYPE OF SER VICE

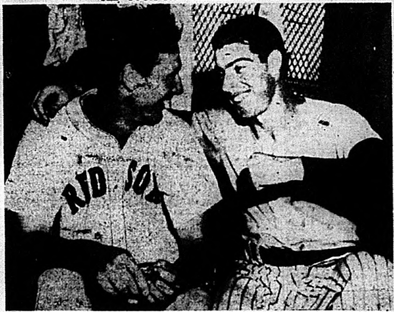
TED TOOK THE HONORS FRO M JOE



Lanky Ted Williams, LEFT, of the Boston Red Six, took the honors away from Joe DiMaggio, RIGHT, of the Yanks when he blasted a ninth inning homer to win the all-star game in Detroit, July 8, against the National league all stars, but they both were happy players when they reached the dressing room. DiMaggio scored ahead of Williams on the wallop and the American leaguers won, 7-5.

New York, July 12—(AP)—Short shorts: when Pete Reiser, the Dodger star, joined the Club two years ago, he brought along a glove marked down from 89 cents . . .So far the Louis-Conn fight pictures have grossed around $200,000 . . Hal Chase, the old first-basing star, has been seriously ill for eight months in a hospital in California . . . .Jimmy McLarnin the Vancouver slugger is keeping his waistline trim by working out with Bob Pastor on the coast. . .Asked to pick an all-star team for a Detroit paper, Diz Dean unhesitatingly named himself one of the pitchers . . . JOE DIMAGGIO HAS NEW GOAL

Wants to Exceed Minor Record of 61 Straight Games for Hitting Safely

St. Louis, July 12 (AP) — Joe DiMaggio, after hitting safely in 50 consecutive games has a new goal.

He wants to exceed his minor league record of 61 straight games, established when he was with the San Francisco Pacific Coast League Baseball Club in 1933.

And the New York Yankees centre fielder believes he can do it.

"It's up to the pitchers to stop me now. The way I feel now I don't believe I'll be my own undoing. The pressure's completely off now. I go to bat just as relaxed as if there never had been any streak."

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

The only game postponed owing to rain in the 30-game schedule of the City Softball League was the final contest of the schedule last night, which is a remarkably good record for any league to enjoy. On June 30th the SACO-Reliance game was postponed as the league co-operated with the Kinsmen Soap Box Derby date. Right now the Esquire kids are one full game out in front of the Reliance for third place, Point Anne having cinched the second slot earlier in the week. Both the Juniors and the Reliance have postponed games versus SACO and no doubt President Clem Bowler will order these games played and in the event Reliance should win and the Esquire lose, it would create a tie for third place. However, if the Juniors played SACO first and won, it would not be necessary to play the SACO-Reliance game and the City League play-offs could commence next week with Reliance meeting Corbys and the Juniors playing the Canada Cement in the semi-finals.

Softball fans of a decade ago or more welcomed the news that the Sunday Morning Class girls' softball team from Toronto would appear in a charity game here on Civic Holiday. Two of the outstanding players with Frank Doughty's S.M.C. are Kay and Marie Genereaux, formerly of Point Anne and who commenced their softball career in the Belleville Ladies' Softball League of a decade ago or more. Manager Doughty promised President Ted Schwab of the local gals loop, he would bring his full team to Belleville at no expense to the local association, providing all proceeds go to the Red Cross British War Victims' Fund. Naturally the local heads were glad to get such an outstanding sports attraction for the next holiday date. Fans will have the opportunity of seeing the best collection of girls' softball talent in the country and in order to assure good competition throughout, the teams will change batteries, the Belleville pitchers and catchers playing for the S.M.C. and vice versa.

Do you remember when Jess Willard made his last stand 18 years ago tonight at Jersey City. The former heavyweight champion was knocked out by Louis Firpo in eight rounds. More than 80,000 persons saw the fight.

Lost in a fog, three umpires were delayed in reaching Boston, June 28, until after the start of the game between the Braves and Dodgers. The umpires—Al Barlick, Babe Pinelli and Lee Ballanfant—made the trip from New York by boat, which was delayed in a fog while passing through the Cape Cod Canal. The game started with Fred Fitzsimmons, Brooklyn pitcher, and Johnny Cooney, Boston outfielder, pressed into service as arbiters, but the regular umpires arrived in time to take charge at the start of the second inning.

'Tis rumoured that the honourable William Cook, of junior hockey notoriety, has taken over the angling championship of Peach Point, besting Pete Belnap's existing record. Seems William treated himself to a new plug and on the first cast a four pound four ounce black bass struck and now Mr. Cook is resting on his angling honors and says, "better that one, youse guys".

A resident of Chicago, who took in the ninth annual major league all-star game in Detroit, is reported to have made the following comment on the game: "I've seen a lot of ball games in recent years, but this was the first time I ever saw Stanley Hack come up with Billy Herman on base." That's right. The batting order of the Cubs for some seasons past had Hack leading off and Herman hitting behind him. Another new record was set when Joe DiMaggio doubled and Dominic hit the single on which Joe scored. It was the first time in the family history that little Dominic had chased his big brother home.

Notes from Dan Parker's Broadway Bugle in the New York Mirror: "The Giants were competing against themselves when they rented the Polo Grounds for the Louis-Conn fight the night they were playing in Pittsburgh. Half of Pittsburgh was in New York attending the fight. The National League will probably adopt a rule preventing club owners from renting their parks for fights on nights when games are being played anywhere around the circuit. . . . Joe DiMaggio and Lefty Gomez have leased penthouses about a half-dozen blocks apart on West End avenue. . . In all ball parks but the Polo Grounds, Ebbets Field, Yankee Stadium, Braves Field and Shibe Park, Philadelphia, the batteries for all major league games are posted on the scoreboards. When are the tardy ones going to join the procession of progress?"

Joe DiMaggio hit safely for his 50th consecutive major league ball game yesterday and the Yankees tacked up their eleventh straight victory and are now enjoying a four game lead in the junior circuit as leaders. Actually DiMaggio collected four hits in five tries, yesterday, one being a round-tripper, which makes up for Thursday's fluke hit for his 49th consecutive game to hit safely. His homer was his 20th of the year and puts Joe leading the American League in that department. Looks like a one-man show in the junior circuit. Brooklyn beat the Reds to move 3½ games ahead of the Cardinals in the National League and today the baseball fans of greater New York are looking for another "nickel world series".

SPORT SPICE — Arky Vaughan, who hit two home runs for the National League in the 1941 all-star game at Detroit, is sitting on the bench for the Pirates. . . . Rookie Alf Anderson is playing shortstop instead of Vaughan. . . . All local softball games were postponed owing to wet grounds last evening, but will be played early next week, respective league heads announced today. . . . Looks like two senior interprovincial football squads for Toronto next fall, Balmy Beach joining Argonauts. . . . Family troubles must have geared Joe Louis back into fighting mood, he K.O'd Jimmy Robinson with a single punch in the first round. . . . Maybe he was just getting into shape for his next bout with his wife. . . . The next big event at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club will be their annual mixed doubles. . . . There's only 164 more days until old Santa comes down the chimney.

AT THE McCARTHY

"A Yank at Oxford"

Replete with action, laughs and fine characterizations, "A Yank at Oxford" which opens next at the McCarthy Theatre, offers Robert Taylor in his scrappiest, happiest hit and more than repays Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the time and effort spent in producing in England pictures equal in calibre to any made in Hollywood.

In fact, the authenticity of the background and atmosphere of the picture proves that only in a British setting could it have been so successfully evolved.

In presenting Taylor in the title role as the cocky all-star athlete who comes to Oxford to "teach the natives" and himself learns plenty in return, "A Yank at Oxford" affords the star his greatest opportunity to demonstrate his athletic ability, his flair for comedy and his ability to handle genuinely dramatic scenes.

Lionel Barrymore, as Taylor's father and Maureen O'Sullivan as the English undergraduate whom the hero meets at Oxford, lends their accustomed polished performances, while in the British players who also have leading roles audiences may note at least two potential stellar "finds" of tomorrow. Vivien Leigh as the "other girl," reveals a flashing, yet subtle personality which may well set a new style in "vamp-comediennes." Griffith Jones, as the Britisher whose enmity for Taylor motivates much of the plot, looms as a most personable leading man discovery, stalwart in appearance and sensitive in his performance.

Edmund Gwenn, as the Oxford Dean and particularly C V. France as the tutor and Edward Rigby as Taylor's "scout" among the featured players, add immeasurably to the thoroughly genuine "feel" of the picture throughout.

Director Jack Conway has established a tempo which never flags and which keeps an audience sitting forward on its seats. His handling of the athletic events, particularly of the climatic Oxford-Cambridge boat race, yields the utmost in thrilling action and his comedy situations rival those of his earlier hit, "Libeled Lady."

"Phantom of Chinatown"

Keye Luke, new Chinese Hollywood star, in a thrilling detective mystery drama "The Phantom of Chinatown," will be presented at the McCarthy in addition to number one feature "A Yank at Oxford" plus latest world-wide Fox News events. The glassbake piece which will be given will be the custard cup and coupon for the large oval baker.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Give Us Wings"

Revealing for the first time on the screen the thrills and dangers of the most hazardous phase of civilian aviation aerial crop-dusting, Universal's "Give Us Wings" will open at the Capitol Theatre Sunday midnight.

A dramatic story, interspersed with spectacular action scenes and comedy moments, the film reportedly provides the popular Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys with one of their best vehicles to date.

Billy Halop, Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, Bernard Punsly and Bobby Jordan comprise the Dead End group featured in the production. Wallace Ford, Victor Jory, Anne Gwynne and Shemp Howard are seen in other top roles.

"Jennie"

Smiling, dimpled dynamite — that's "Jennie," the pretty young wife who fights in a woman's way to hold the man she loves in the film of that name. Lovely Virginia Gilmore, one of the "finds" of the year, portrays the wife who tames a family tyrant and brings joy and adventure into eight empty lives in the second feature and promises fine dramatic entertainment.

Others featured with Virginia Gilmore in the cast of "Jennie" include William Henry, George Montgomery, Ludwig Stossel and Dorris Bowdon. Sol M. Wurtzel was executive producer. David Burton directed.

Czechs Held Under Rigid Press Rules

Nazis Control Every Phase of Newspaper Activity; Free Thought and Expression Stifled

By HAROLD FAIR

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, July 12 (CP) — "The Czech press only exists in exile; that which is published in the Protectorate is the German press translated into bad Czech."

The quotation, from the Czech foreign office book "Two Years of German oppression in Czechoslovakia" recorded grim triumph for the Nazis in their effort to stifle free thought and expression in the martyred country.

Because of this iron-heel control —effected by arrests and imprisonment of reporters and publishers responsible for undesirable articles —the greater part of the newspapers and reviews have ceased to appear, while those remaining "lead a miserable existence."

The Germans intensify their control by inviting certain reporters to see von Gregory, Nazi Press control chief "and woe to those who dare to refuse." These visitors receive oral guidance on how to discuss various subjects attack Britain or what to say about President Benes.

Surveillance remains unceasing. The book said "at least half" the journalists have undergone house examinations, arrest or imprisonment by the Gestapo.

Under Nazi Censor

Press control began the day the Germans entered Prague in March 1939 and seized the Czech press bureau and radio. They followed this move with establishment of the press control service under von Gregory, former press attache at the German legation.

Until the war broke out and a military censorship was added, the press control worked in three stages First a Czech censor in every editorial staff has to delete any material disagreeable to the invaders to keep the papers "loyal." Deviation from instructions means imprisonment or the concentration camp.

From there the material goes to "a centre of press service" which made possible a double-check. The book said Czechs also worked here but as persecution increased one after the othes went to prison and was replaced by censors personally-chosen by the Germans. "In order to increase their zeal" these men were given a German companion-censor.

Even Bad Spelling

Von Gregory himself presides over the third stage. His office decides what must not appear and what the papers should publish. It offers "orthodox" copy to papers who must print it without modification "even including grammatical and selling mistakes."

Articles attacking the Allies, their people and statesmen "in the most outrageous and coarse manner" are handed the papers for compulsory publication. Von Gregory's office dictates the spacing and type in which they must be set. Hitler speeches, of course, rate big type and front-page play.

Censorship suppresses all political articles failing to reject democratic principles. It bans economic articles which do not carry a sentence referring to advantages enjoyed by the Czechs under their "protectors."

NEWARK BEARS DEFEAT BISONS

Fred Collins Hits Home Run With Bases Loaded in First Frame

((By The Associated Press)

The Newark Bears, International League counterparts of the mighty New York Yankees, also resemble the parent club in that every man in the lineup is capable of breaking up a ball game with a home run wallop.

This fact was brought home forcefully last night to Pitcher Earl Cook and some 8,000 fans who attended Buffalo's Offerman Stadium to see the Bears and the second place Bisons play the third game of their four-game series.

Cook found himself in a hole in the first inning when Frank Kelleher, Newark outfielder and leading home run slugger of the league, came to bat with two men on and two out. Buffalo strategy called for Cook to walk Kelleher to get at Fred Collins, first baseman who is batting about .222. But Collins smashed out a home run to win the game then and there for the Bears. The blow was all that Russ Christopher, Bruin hurler, needed although his mates picked up two more runs in the ninth for a 6-0 victory.

In the only other games played, Rochester Red Wings and Syracuse Chiefs divided a doubleheader, the Wings winning the nightcap, 10-4, after Ken Burkhart had shut them out, 3-0, in the twilight contest.

IN MEMORIAM

KECK—In loving memory of Ida Manella Keck, who passed away July 13, 1935, in her 16th. year.

Gone, dear Ida, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.

A happy home we once enjoyed—
How sweet the memory still;
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

Farm Labor Shortage Reported in West

Winnipeg, July 12 (CP)—A shortage of farm labor throughout the Prairie Provinces was reported to The Canadian Press today in interviews with employment Bureau superintendents.

They expressed the belief that the shortage was due to farm hands going to cities in search of industrial jobs.

H. R. Richardson, superintendent of the Winnipeg Employment Service Bureau, said that he believed the farm labor shortage in Manitoba was due to reluctance of laborers here to take farm jobs because they hope to secure factory employment.

"As the harvest season approaches and men are able to get farm jobs paying day wages the apparent shortage of farm labor will probably disappear," he said.

W. E. McCutcheon, superintendent of the Employment Service of Canada Bureau at Lethbridge, said "farmers are experiencing much difficulty in securing workers now and indications are that the situation will be aggravated before crops are cut."

He described the labor shortage as the worst since the "boom years" in the late 1920's when farmers paid harvesters up to $8.00 a day.

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

Natalie was wide awake some hours later when she heard Brooks come in, but she lay very still and made no sign. She heard him moving about very quietly, as though not to awaken her; and then he was still. She hid her face in her pillow and wept as though her heart would break. Just this once, she told herself as she wept, she would be a cry-baby and lower her defenses, because tomorrow they would have to be erect and in shining order again.

Meanwhile, in the cottage Donald and June occupied, Donald sat alone, a white, startled look on his face, as the time marched by. He had come back to the cottage after walking for an hour or more on the beach after Natalie's scathing denunciation. When at last he heard footsteps on the veranda, and the door opened to admit June, he stayed where he was; just sitting, watching her, waiting for her to speak.

June was startled for a moment. Then she tilted her pretty chin at a slightly defiant angle and said, very distinctly, "I'm sorry, but I'm afraid I'm a little— tight. I hope you don't mind."

She was so very dignified, so solemn about it, that the dearness of her tugged at his heart and there was a flicker of amused tenderness in his eyes as she moved very carefully to a chair and sat down rather violently.

"Head going around?" he asked politely.

"Of course not. It's the room. I wish you'd make it stop," said June a trifle crossly.

"Sure I will—you darned infant. If you wanted to go stepping, why didn't you tell me so I could go along?" he demanded.

June's head went up and she stared at him, the mists clearing a little from her brain. Then she said coldly, "I didn't think you'd be interested."

"And Brooks Marchbanks was, eh?" suggested Donald mildly.

"He suggested it," said June stiffly. "And it was a very good idea. He and I—well, he and I are going to be married as soon as you and Natalie get divorces."

"Oh, you are, eh?" Donald flushed, straightening, no longer amused. "Why, I'll break his neck—making a pass at my wife, and on our honeymoon, too!"

"That's very funny —only I don't seem to be amused. I think I'd better go to bed—" She stood up suddently—too suddenly, for her knees buckled and she would have fallen flat if Donald hadn't moved swiftly and caught her. She clung to him dazed, trembling, and Donald said, "Poor baby!" and lifted her in his arms.

He carried her into the bedroom and undressed her not too clumsily. When he had tucked her between the covers, he went out into the tiny bathroom, mixed a white powder in a glass of water, stirred it, and brought it back to her.

"Drink it, like Papa's little lamb," he ordered her firmly. It's to keep away the collie-wobbles when you wake up."

Obediently, his arm supporting her head, she drank the pungent-smelling liquid. Then suddenly she turned her head until her face was hidden against his breast and she burst into tears.

"Oh darling, I'm so ashamed!" she sobbed.

"I should think you would be ashamed!" Donald said, his arms tightening about her. "You must have a snootful—at least two cocktails, I bet!"

She clung to him, and Donald soothed her as though she were a child. But even after she had fallen asleep he stayed there, holding her close in his arms, his cheek against her hair.

Brooks was awakened by the heartening smell of coffee and of crisping bacon. He sat up, wincing a little. There had been a few cocktails the night before; June had been shaken by them; but to Brooks they had been little more than a stimulant that left him this morning with a slight headache.

Natalie spoke from the doorway of the kitchenette. Her voice was cool, noncommittal, as she said, "Breakfast in ten minutes. Don't bother to dress. Just your robe—"

Breakfast was delicious, as always. But neither Natalie nor Brooks seemed to have appetite for more than coffee. When they had finished their pretense of a meal, Natalie stood up and said quietly, "If you have time, Brooks, there are a few things I'd like to discuss."

"Of course," said Brooks, lighting a cigaret and following her into the living room. "You want to discuss the divorce. Naturally, I'm at your service."

"Do you want a divorce, Brooks?"

Brooks turned away with an impatient shrug. "It's not what I want, Natalie. It's what you want."

"Then it's not a divorce," said Natalie quietly. "I don't want a divorce, now or ever. What I want is my husband."

Brooks was silent for a moment, staring out of the window, his back turned to her. And then, as though quite sure he hadn't heard her correctly, he turned sharply around and looked down at her. She sat in a cushioned chair, her sun-browned knees crossed, a cigaret between her slim fingers. She met his eyes straightly, unafraid.

"I don't think I quite get you," he said then, his voice a little thick.

"I don't think you quite — want me," said Natalie in a voice that matched his. "Do you, Brooks?"

He stood quite still, his hands jammed in his pockets, as though he couldn't quite trust them free, lest they reach for her and pull her into his arms.

"You see, Brooks, I had a long talk last night with Terry McKay," said Natalie. "She's quite a person, that Terry. She hits hard, but she hits straight. She pointed out to me that you and I are being a couple of fools— sitting on our dignity, pretending to be modern and sophisticated — when being in love is the most gloriously old-fashioned yet completely modern thing in the world. Terry said that if I was in love with you, I should let you know about it — not just go around being all prideful and dignified about it. So—I'm telling you, Brooks, that I love you very much."

"Oh — good Lord!" Brooks said under his breath, his voice shaken, as one who has come face to face with a miracle.

"You see, Brooks," Natalie said after a moment, steadying her voice with a genuine effort, "if you don't love me—"

"If I hadn't loved you, I wouldn't have married you," announced Brooks, and his tone dared her to doubt that.

She looked up at him straightly, and something that grew and grew in her eyes until it seemed to flood her whole being with magic and loveliness, filled the room like golden sunlight after a rain.

"You — love me?" she whispered at last.

Brooks was puzzled, a little angry.

"Well, certainly I love you. Surely you must have known that from the beginning — else why would I have asked you to marry me?" he answered sharply.

A wave of color dyed her face and she said under her breath, "Well, that's just it — you didn't ask me to marry you. I asked you to marry me! And I was afraid you didn't believe in love. You were so sort of stiff and stand-offish—"

"And," stated Brooks grimly, "you've been believing all along that I married you just because you happen to have money. That's the chief reason I've been what you call stiff and stand-offish. It was the only way I could keep from sweeping you up in my arms and making an utter fool of myself."

"Oh, Brooks," said Natalie shakily, her voice little more than a whisper, as she put her hand toward him in a pleading gesture. "Oh, Brooks — my dear—my dear! We've been such complete idiots. I've adored you from the very first moment I saw you, and I've died a thousand deaths because I thought you didn't love me!"

He was on his knees before her, cradling her in his arms, her cheek against his, her arms close about him. And when his eager mouth found hers, it was faintly salt with the taste of her tears.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop leened back in his private chair and started to reach for a cigar, and ma said, You can reach to the end of Doomsday, Willyum, it wont do you any good, because I've hidden your humidore.

Is this a practical joke for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, Not at all, it's merely a pratical gesture. The wind has been blowing that loose shutter again until my entire nerviss sistem is at 6's and sevens, so if you're ever going to fix it this is the golden moment, and I knew if you ever sat yourself down to a cigar it would be the beginning of the end. You'll find all the tools you need on the shelf by the cellar steps and then when the job is done you can enjoy your cigar with a clear conscience and nothing on your mind, she said.

How do I ever know I'll ever get my cigar? pop said. From all I hear, if you once let a dictater take a liberty away from you on some pretext or other, you can kiss it good bye for ever. Where the dooce is my paper? I left it right here by my paper? I left it right here by my chair? he said, and ma said, I've hidden that too, so now you see you haven't a single procrastinating reason not to fix that shutter immeditly.

You win, it's a womens world, pop said.

And he went down for the tools and after a while ma said, What's keeping him all this time? Those cellar steps are awfully steep and slippery. O deer I hope he remembered to turn the light on. Benny, go right down and see if everything is all right? she said.

Wich I did, coming back and saying, It's okay, ma, he's down in the kitchin smoking his pipe and reading an old magazine and he hasn't even opened the cellar door yet.

The result being ma got so mad she ran down and got the oil can and oiled the hinges on the shutter herself, so it still swings but not out loud.

31 Members of Company Offer to Serve in Canada's Active Army

St. Mary's, Ont., July 12 (CP)—Thirty-one members of the St. Mary's "D" Company of the Perth Regiment (Motors) Reserve Force Thursday volunteered to serve in the Canadian Active Army. The figure represents about 95 per cent of the number of troops who were on parade for the first time since attending the Thames Valley Camp.

Lieutenant T. S. Shennan said that three men were under age and could not immediately consent without written authorization from their parents or guardians, and the fourth man, making the total of 35 on parade, had a good domestic reason.

Light Receipts Advance Prices

Toronto, July 12.—Owing to unusually light receipts butter and egg prices registered increases of ½ cent in trading on Toronto open produce market yesterday.

Though the butter market held firm, trading was light and rather spotty, due not only to the lightness of fresh receipts, but also to the fact that buyers have assumed a cautious attitude, and are not at all anxious to pay the advanced price of 35 cents a pound for first grade. Receipts have been so light all week that there has been almost no pressure to sell.

With prices at present 6 cents a dozen higher than at this time a year ago and showing promise of advancing even further, all grades but B and C were increased ½ to 1 cent on the egg market. The market was a little quieter and light receipts were cleared well. Active trading has prevailed all week and prices have advanced 5 1-2 cents a dozen.

The poultry market has been slow this week. Receipts of chicken have been heavy and birds weighing 2 1-2 to 3 3-4 pounds have greatly exceeded the local demand, and, though there is no outside demand for these weights, heavy receipts of broilers and fowl are finding a ready market at outside points.

KING BACK IN OTTAWA

Ottawa, July 12 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King returned to Ottawa today after a three weeks' trip through Western Canada and told reporters he had "always had it in my mind" to go to England "at the appropriate time."

"That time will be determined in the light of what is best for Canada's war effort," he said.

The Prime Minister, as he left his private car here, said he believed the trip to the west had been helpful in stimulating recruiting.

Grade 'A' Eggs Up Three Cents Dozen on Mart

Grade "A" Large eggs advanced another three cents on the local produce market this morning with vendors asking 33c per dozen with mediums going for one cent less, or at 32c. The offering of fowl was the largest that has been seen on the market for some time with prices remaining at approximately the same figure, or at 25c, with large six-pound birds going at from $1.35 to $1.40. Broilers ranged from 65c per pair up to $1.25 and $1.30. Butter held firm with the majority of vendors asking straight 35c per pound, although a few held out for 75c for two pounds.

Red raspberries held at previous quotations of 25c per box with the blue variety going at the same price. Increased offerings of huckleberries sold at 25c per quart, while gooseberries were 10c, red currants, two boxes for 25c, and white currants 10c. Missouri black currants were 20c per box with other varieties 25c. Sweet cherries sold at $1.10 per six-quart basket or at 20c per berry box, while Montmorency Reds were $1. per basket, and 20c per berry box. Strawberries were offered at 20c per box.

New potatoes declined to 50c per peck in the majority of cases, although several vendors held out for 60c. One vendor offered tomatoes at 25c per pound. Cucumbers ranged from 5c to 15c each with cauliflower ranging from 10c to 25c. Cabbages ranged as high as two for 25c for large heads. Asparagus was three bunches for 25c and string beans, two boxes for 25c. Early vegetables such as radishes, onions, beets, etc., sold at the usual 5c per bunch.

Fish were a scarce commodity, with whitefish selling at 20c per pound and lake trout at 25c and 30c per pound, the latter rate for pieces.

Young porkers, of which several lots were offered, ranged from $5 up to $6 and $7, according to age and quality.

THE WAR TODAY

By DON GILBERT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Of all the comment on the Russo-German war, the most pessimistic has come from Washington. There is a strong disposition in the United States capital to feel that the strategy of the Red Army in defending the Soviet frontiers is wrong; that territory should be yielded in the interests of keeping the Russian army intact to fight a long war from the fastnesses of the Russian sub-continent.

Beyond this military opinion, however, is a deep-seated anxiety on the part of responsible quarters not to inflate volatile American public opinion unduly. It is conceded that in the spring Washington misjudged the Balkan situation seriously, and the sudden collapse of Yugoslav resistance was followed by a severe slump in morale among the American public.

Take Setbacks Gloomily

This was accentuated by subsequent British defeats in Greece and Crete. Unlike the adversity-hardened British public, Americans took these setbacks gloomily and began predicting the entire Mediterranean would be lost. Now, with the public mind generally jubilant, Washington is anxious to ward off undue despondency in the case of a serious German break-through the Soviet lines.

There is probably a good deal to be said for the Washington theory about the importance of keeping the Red Army intact, but the contention that the best way to do it is by a general retreat is open to question. The fast striking German motorized troops have a way of playing havoc with the orderliness of a retreat once it is set in motion, and the problem of moving back the huge masses of the Red Army over poor transport facilities would be tremendous.

20 Years in Building

And then the Red Army for 20 years has been building and improving its elaborate system of fortifications. It would be a negation of all Russian military planning to render these fortifications useless now by fighting only rearguard actions. Moreover, the effectiveness of the Soviet defences seems to have been established on the record of the three weeks of fighting.

Light is thrown on the general defensive scheme of the Soviet general staff by the Moscow announcement that the front has been divided into three zones, roughly before Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev— the three large cities of Western Russia which are the prime objectives of the invaders. Presumably the ground over which these cities can be approached will be yielded only at the cost of the heaviest fighting.

Stalin has entrusted defence of the road to Moscow to Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, hitherto War commissar. The Linii.grad zones goes to Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, long Stalin's chief military adviser, while Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, will be defended by Marshal Semeon Budenny, one of the most successful generals serving the Bolshevists in the Civil War two decades ago.

These are names to contend with in the Soviet hierarchy, and their assignment to the front means direction of the Russian campaign will be in strong hands with political interference at a minimum.

DOGS? NOPE, THEY'RE LIONS

These two fuzzy little fellows look like dogs, but in their native Tibet they rate the more fearsome title of Lhassa lions, and are registered as sacred. They were given to John Creighton, U.S. naval attache at Peiging, China, by a Tibetan official and are shown as they arrived in San Francisco with Mrs. Creighton.

RUSSIAN BOOKS BACK ADVANCES BY SMALL UNIT

Soviet Army Instructors Stress the "Break Through" in Offensive as Well as Defensive Action

This is the last of a Canadian Press series on Soviet army strategy and tactics by a Canadian who commanded the Mackenzie-Papineau battalion of Canadian volunteers in the Spanish Republican army.
Written for The Canadian Press
By E. CECIL-SMITH

Offensive action to a Russian soldier does not mean the advance of a large number of columns simultaneously by parallel highways, much less the orderly progress of whole units in line across field and mountain.

In training Spanish units, the Red Army instructors stressed the need for daring individual advances by large or small units. Fortunately the Spaniard has a tradition of guerilla wars and easily understood what was needed. A unit must be capable of maintaining itself alone or a week or more at a time if necessary.

Russian medieval and modern history is full of examples where entire armies had operated in the rear of the enemy, sometimes for months on end, with only the sketchiest contact, if any, with their rear. The war with Poland in 1920 and the various wars against the White Guard armies during their civil wars against the White their civil wars give recent examples.

Thus in offensive action, as in defensive, Russian tactics foresee the break-through. The question is where to attempt such a manoeuvre and how to widen the gap as quickly as possible to a hole sufficient for a large army to pass by.

One such scheme proposed by Russian military writers is known as the "concentric circles" break-through. In Spain we more than once practised this tactic and once carried it out successfully to a depth of 25 miles and a width of about the same.

Where Line Weakest

First it is necessary to decide the spot where the original break must be made. A line is always weakest where two major units meet.

For instance at the juncture of two army corps the units alongside each other may never have been together before, and may never be together again. There may even be a certain restrained hostility between the two commands as a result of jealousy, personal dislike or any other reason. Or the contact may be weak simply from carelessness.

Such a point must be sought for by various means, which might include fighting reconnaisance. When such a point is picked, the troops are massed for the attack and concentrated in their assembly and starting points on schedule.

As a feint the advance may be staged along a two or three army corps front, but at the key point it will be pushed mercilessly. The long line of advance, however, acts as a holding action against the moving of too many resources to the threatened point.

The troops to be used in the concentric circle attack are massed in depth. That is to say, one force will be at brigade reserve depth on the left of the point to be broken, another to the right, two others at divisional depth, others again at corps depth and so forth.

Of these six units mentioned the first to move when the initial hole is made will likely be those at corps reserve. These will approach the breach from left and right almost simultaneously. Once they are through the gap they wing out again to the side from which they have come, going through to a depth about equal to that from which they came. They will be followed shortly by the two forces located left and right at divisional reserve strength. These two also separate once they get through and sweep back to the opposing divisional headquarters. Then the same manoeuvre is followed by the troops massed around the brigade assembly point.

Thus the paths of the six units mentioned, if traced on a map, will form two groups of concentric circles, those starting far behind the gap, going far in behind the enemy's front, and those starting only at brigade reserve strength only going in as far as the same position behind the enemy line.

Since the point of break-through was probably at the corps juncture, units each side of the gap will tend to swing their retiring wings back to protect their own army corps.

But as they swing back they allow the forces through who will roll them up like a hall rug. For almost simultaneously attacks headed by heavy tanks and including both mechanized and motorized infantry will descend on the headquarters area of brigades, division and army corps on both sides of the gap.

Adapted to Defence

With luck two or three of these command posts would be captured and the remainder would have to move rapidly aside, as the attacks would actually be delivered against them in reverse. Thus a gap would open large enough for a considerable body of motor-mechanized troops to seep through, almost unnoticed. Even if the enemy, in a day or so, managed to close the gap with the aid of large army reserves, the break-through would have been accomplished.

The Russians said that the tactic was particularly adapted to the defence of their own country, for the great spaces would prevent any attacking enemy from building up any continuous line of combat for any length of time.

As they believe that offence is the best form of defence, the Russians are much more likely to plan a monster counter-offensive than to meekly wait for Hitler's attack to develop.

Red Army officers more than once spoke to me about the probability of war with Hitler Germany, an event which they looked forward to with absolute fatalism, not that they particularly desired it, but that they could hardly see how it could be avoided for long.

In such discussions they always pointed out that they believed Hitler's rear to be much more vulnerable than their own. This incidentally was the cause of the development of the tactic of dropping attacking troops by parachute. Everywhere else in Europe they felt there would be masses of people looking for them to come and destroy Fascism, whereas in the Soviet Union only small insignificant numbers looked forward to a Hitler invasion.

ELASTIC DEFENCE FAVORED TACTICS OF RUSS LEADERS

Better Than Heroic Stands to Win Medals in Opinion of Russian Officers, Canadian Observer Writes

This is one of a Canadian Press series on Soviet army strategy and tactics by a Canadian who commanded the Mackenzie-Papineau battalion of Canadian volunteers in the Spanish Republican army.
Written for The Canadian Press
BY E. CECIL-SMITH

Russian defensive tactics, as shown by the proposals made to the Spanish Republican army by Soviet instructors, are based on the belief that there is no such thing as a literally impregnable line, provided the enemy has sufficient power and determination.

A fixed immobile defence has no dynamics and plays into the hands of the enemy by reducing the capacity of the defenders to manoeuvre. The task of defence is to prepare the ground for counter-attack, and this can best be done by envisaging a battle of manoeuvre from the very outset.

Rather than stage a series of heroic stands where units perish to the last man, one of their tactics is the so-called "elastic defence", a modification of the defensive offence. The stationary defence may win medals, but it does not always win the battle. On the other hand, the Russian advisers would say, you may well weaken your whole line by pouring your supports into the weak position.

Since you are bound to give up some of your positions if the enemy shows sufficient determination, then why not decide in advance which these shall be, instead of waiting for the adversary to make your mind up for you, the Russians ask.

It is today an axiom of war that a defensive position should be organized in depth. The Russians say that the individual unit should not try to take in too much depth, but it is better advised to maintain a force of from a quarter to a third of its effectives as mobile reserves.

Unit Defence

This should apply even to the company, though the elastic defensive is difficult for the company, which really can only utilize its reserve for an immediate counter-attack if a vital part of its line is threatened, or to destroy small units of the enemy who have infilrated through its forward defence area.

But from the battalion up, every unit is capable of organizing a real elastic defence position. Of course no unit may permit a force too large for it to handle by itself to break through its position without the knowledge and consent of the superior command.

When taking up its position in the first place, the battalion commander, likewise the brigade and division commanders, must decide which portion of his front line he is willing to sacrifice to a determined enemy, Russian officers told me. He must also develop a good sense of timing to gauge whether the enemy push is on the increase or decrease, and as to the probable number of fresh troops he may have at his disposal to throw into any hole which he may find.

Let us suppose it is the case of a battalion with four light machine gun companies, A, B, C, and D, as well as heavy machine gun and mortar support. Suppose A and B companies to be holding the forward positions with C in support; D acting as the mobile reserve. In the two forward companies Platoons 1 and 3 of Company A and Platoons 4 and 6 of Company B are in advance of Platoons 2 and 5 in support positions ready for quick movement.

If the commander has decided that any break-through must be at position held by Platoon 4, he will have all the possible movements of the various units already planned. At the appropriate time No. 4 Platoon will move toward the position held by No. 3. The enemy feelers will note the reduced fire coming from this gap.

As they advance into the gap prepared for them they will probably signal their success to their battalion headquarters and perhaps the reserve company will be sent in. No. 5 Platoon, meanwhile, from its support position to the rear of where No. 4 had been, will engage the enemy, who can thus think he has driven back the enemy a hundred yards or more. As the pressure increases this platoon will fall back behind No. 6 and the passage will seem to be clear.

Trap For Enemy

Thus under the Russian plan a force of from a company to nearly a battalion can be lured into a very good trap in which the reserve companies of two battalions as well as the fire of several support companies, and such inconveniences as prepared wire entanglements, tank traps, anti-tank weapons and so forth can be brought to bear upon them in a position where they will have no support on their own flanks.

At the same time the advanced companies will use all their own mobility to close the gap which so easily opened a short while before. If this is reproduced a number of times all along the front two things will happen. First many enemy units will be reduced in strength and thus their push slowed down. Secondly the enemy commanders will tend to be more cautious, thus giving time for complete withdrawal of the line if necessary, or for the rushing of further troops into any gap which might prove really dangerous to the defence.

Of course the Russian "elastic defence" does not mean that no positions are to be held to the last man. Some key positions must never be surrendered as the whole defensive line may hinge on them.

If this is done on a large scale, instead of a large number of small traps, one great elastic bulge might be opened up to engulf an entire division or army corps.

In fact, in theoretical discussion of the tactic I was told by Russian officers that even if a whole enemy mobile column were to break through the front in this manner, it would not necessarily be anything to really worry about, provided the competent authorities had made the necessary plans in advance to deal with them.

This will explain why Soviet defence does not depend on some inflexible line of fortifications to keep out an advancing army. True there will be a number of relatively impregnable defended areas, but war is considered primarily a thing of manoeuvre in the minds of Russian officers.

Incidentally, the man in the front line is not so much worried about bombardment from the air, nor even about artillery fire, provided that his own side is giving as good as it gets. Even enemy tanks in your rear can be stomached. But things which really gives an infantry unit the jitters is to wake up one morning and find enemy infantry and machine guns in positions behind them.

Therefore the tactic of elastic defence depends for its success on troops who understand it and have been well trained in advance to deal with such units which infiltrate the forward lines.

65 GERMAN

By HENRY CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

In one of the shortest Moscow communiques of the war, the Soviet Information - Bureau dealt almost entirely with activities of the Red air fleet, which it credited with dealing new crushing blows against Nazi tank and motorized forces overnight and a second successive raid on the Rumanian oil centre of Ploesti.

The communique said 65 German planes were downed in air combats yesterday and 19 Russian aircraft were lost.

An earlier communique, which reported Germany's eastward drives stalled through two successive days, said Russian planes destroyed 179 German aircraft Monday and Tuesday and carried the fight west Friday by bombing the Ploesti oil centre in Rumania and attacking German airdromes. Russians ridiculed German claims that 6,000 Red air force planes had been destroyed.

The Red army was rushing up masses of men and guns during its first breathing spell since the June 22 invasion and hastily strengthening fortifications, anticipating that the Nazis were drawing up for a new and fiercer onslaught after their two-day pause.

Reds Move Up Reinforcements.

(Reuters News Agency reported last night from Ankara the 8,000,000 newly-mobilized Soviet troops were moving to the front to meet the shock of the next Nazi blows.

(Both Berlin and Moscow have estimated their foe's losses in killed, wounded and captured as 1,000,000 or more men, although these figures have been regarded as high.)

The Russians, who have said the Nazi invasion gave the Germans the advantage of surprise, declared the Red army stood ready for the next onset, and the vice foreign commissar, S. A. Losovsky, asserted last night "the real war is only beginning".

He ridiculed as a myth the German high command's statement that more than 300,000 Russians had been captured in the Bialystok-Minsk area.

(Informants in London said that although the Germans have thrust 300 to 375 miles into Soviet territory they have yet to test the main defences of the Stalin Line. It has been described as a tricky depth defence guarding Leningrad along the east shore of Lake Peipus and south past Pskow, guarding Moscow in a line from Vitebsk south along the Dnieper River, and guarding the heart of the Ukraine from Zhitomir to the Bessarabian border and south along the Dniester river.

Threat To Leningrad.

(These informants said the greatest threat to that line seemed to be toward Leningrad where the first fortifications may have been reached in the push northeast past Ostrov.

(In the central sector, where Defence Commissar Marshal Timoshenko has taken personal command, the Nazis apparently were being held up along the Berezina and Prut rivers, 40 to 60 miles short of the Dnieper in most places.

(In the Ukraine the battle in the Novograd Volynski sector apparently is 50 miles short of Zhitomir in the real defence line.)

The Soviet Information Bureau said it had "reliable information that large troop movements are proceeding on the Bulgarian-Turkish frontier and predicted that the Germans "are preparing to capture the Bosporus Strait."

VICHY DELEGATION

Cairo, July 12 (AP)—Allied forces have been under orders to cease firing in Syria since last midnight after the Vichy commander in chief Gen. Henri Dentz, agreed to negotiate "on our terms," British General Headquarters announced today.

Beirut, Lebanon, July 12 (AP)—Gen. Henri Dentz, the Vichy commander in chief in Syria, has entered into direct negotiations with the Allies looking toward an armistice after the refusal of the Petain government to accept Allied terms, it was announced officially today.

Vichy Delegation Leaves Beirut

Vichy delegation left Beirut this morning to meet Allied authorities and negotiate conditions of a settlement.

(London sources said fighting had cease fire at that time, after Gen. headquarters of the British Middle East command said the British and Free French forces were ordered to cease fire at that time, after eGen. Dentz agreed to negotiate on Allied terms).

Gen. Dentz acted as soon as he received word from Vichy that the 11-point armistice terms had been turned down by the Petain government. In declaring the terms unacceptable, Vichy left Gen. Dentz free to negotiate on armistice if he thought it essential from the military standpoint.

When the Vichy delegation left for the Allied headquarters, the war had swept to within five miles of Beirut. Communications with France had grown increasingly difficult because the main radio station, in a Beirut suburb, was in a no-man's-land and had been silent for several days.

Lines of wounded were being brought into the city, many being taken to their own homes to be treated.

According to Mr. Di Genova the tree will grow almost to the size of an apple tree and will bear fruit in proportionate quantity. Contrary to the manner of growth convential with fruits of the northern hemisphere, the stem of the fig is underneath and, unlike the apple, the fruit does not hang but remains in an upright position until over-ripe, according to Mr. Di Genova.

Hyde's Plumbing Shop Equipped For All Needs

Charles Hyde

Comfort, utility and smartness, are to the modern housewife and to every prospective homeowner, the prime requisites of every well - appointed home. And nothing will enhance the combined smartness and convenience of a home to better advantage than the installation of inexpensive, yet convenient and beautiful "Standard" Sanitary bathroom equipment or up-to-the-minute kitchen plumbing fixtures. Cheerful surroundings together with efficient equipment in the kitchen, are musts in every home.

When considering the installation of a new bathroom in your home or when remodeling your present bath, it pays to have an efficient plumbing contractor figure on the job. Hyde's Plumbing Shop at 292 Front St., is equipped to give the efficient service demanded in this most particular phase of home construction.

Charles L. Hyde, proprietor of Hyde's Plumbing Shop, is well known in Belleville and the surrounding district, his business as plumbing and heating contractor dating back for 27 years. Active in the business world, Mr. Hyde has also served his city in the municipal field, being a member of the council for a period of six years, a member of the school board for ten years. A native of Hastings County, he is a graduate of the Ontario Business College and attributes his success in the business world to the training he received at O. B. C.

The trend in modern bathroom fixtures is definitely turning toward the built-in tubs with the modernistic neon-angle bath gaining in popularity in the better-appointed homes, according to Mr. Hyde, while the quiet and efficient flushing action of the new one-piece closets is fast gaining in favor.

In addition to a complete line of "Standard" Sanitary plumbing fixtures, Hyde's Plumbing Shop also features Beatty "Direct Drive" pressure water systems for farm use. The convenience of water on tap in rural homes and the saving in labour which the safety Beatty pumps mean to farmers, is well known to users of this equipment.

For an up-to-date plumbing job, whether the project be urban or rural, Hyde's Plumbing Shop is equipped to give complete satisfaction.

Chart Shows Best Time to Pick Apples

The stage of maturity at harvesting largely influences the ultimate keeping quality of McIntosh and Fameuse apples, particularly at low temperatures. In order to assist growers in picking these varieties at the most advantageous stage for good keeping, a colour chart has been prepared by the Horticultural Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. The chart consists of two green-coloured discs, numbered 1 and 2. They show two stages of maturity and are perforated in the centre against which the green part of the apple may be placed.

If the green of the apple corresponds with, or is greener than, the green of stage No. 1 of the chart, the apple is too immature for good keeping and until it begins to approach the colour of No. 2 disc. As all fruit on a tree will not reach this stage at the same time, a date should be chosen at which the bulk of the apples is approximately the colour marked on stage 2. Fully coloured apples have been found to keep satisfactorily. Picked at the stage indicated by colour 1, the apple is too immature for the proper development of that high quality characteristic of the McIntosh and the Fameuse, and definite information is available to show that apples gathered at stage 1 shrink much more rapidly than the more mature specimens indicated by colour 2.

Another cause of loss in stored apples is from what may be termed core flush or internal browning starting around the core. Some of this trobule is due to the stage of maturity. Immature fruit will inevitably develop more internal browning than properly matured fruit at low temperatures. Colour No. 2 is approximately the correct stage of picking to eliminate that part of the trouble which is due to immaturity. A copy of the chart may be obtained by writing to the Publicity and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

City Trends In Retail Trades

According to returns secured from a sample number of retail firms consisting of 5,356 independent stores located in the 15 largest cities of Canada and giving representation to 22 different kinds of retail trade, the business transacted by these firms aggregated $650,149,400 in 1940, a gain of 13 per cent over the $574,624,100 reported in 1939.

The marked increase in retail trade in Halifax stands out prominently, 1940 sales for 150 independent stores in that city averaging 34 per cent higher than the amount reported for these stores in 1939. All trades in Halifax reported increases over 1939 and most of these gains exceeded by a wide margin the average increase for the respective trades as a whole as reflected in the combined results for the 15 cities. Jewellery store sales in Halifax were up 71 per cent and men's and boys' clothing store sales were up 63 per cent, the marked increase for the latter category representing to a considerable degree the purchase of clothing by officers and men of the armed forces.

Demand for Fresh Frozen Foods Is Increasing

An ever increasing demand for fresh frozen foods is making Frozen Food Lockers increasingly popular with thrifty housewives because they make possible tastier, more healthful food, in greater variety and at lower costs.

Through the use of Frozen Food Lockers, fresh fruit, vegetables and meat may be enjoyed throughout the entire year instead of only or a brief season.

During some seasons of the year nature provides fruits, vegetables, meats and other food in overabundance, while in other seasons these are scanty or even non-existant. To equalize this supply of fresh foods housewives have tried to preserve the surplus from flush times to the season of dearth by canning, pickling, preserving, smoking, drying or other methods, at considerable expense, with much labor and with not entirely satisfactory results in preserving taste and food values.

The Frozen Food Locker method of keeping food has opened a whole new world of better living. Through its use fresh fruits, vegetables and meats are actually fresh throughout the year. The natural flavour, appearance and food values are more satisfactorily maintained and the food will, when properly selected and prepared, be just as good when it comes out of the locker as when it was put in.

Through the use of the Frozen Food Locker system the individual family is, in effect provided with a modern cold storage plant all its own where an entire season's supply of fresh fruits, vegetables, fish meats, etc., can be stored at proper temperature and under sanitary conditions, at a pronounced saving.

This new service is now available at the plant of Spencer Frigid Lockers, 1 Market Lane, Belleville. The public is cordially invited to call and inspect the plant where courteous employees will give a thorough explanation of the system and refrigeration methods used.

It's a big season for the black hat. Very smart is a hat with open crown of black velvet and heart-shaped off-face brim in black lace, edged with velvet.

RUSSIA TERMS PACT 'FRATERNITY OF ARMS'

Powerful Coalition Will Bring Hitler To His Knees

Foreign Comissar Says Britain With U. S. Support Forms Union of Freedom-Loving Peoples

QUIET AT FRONT

Moscow, July 14—(AP)—Virtually no change has taken place at the front in the last several hours, the Soviet information bureau said today, though fighting which flared anew with the start of the fourth week of the war was inferentially admitted to have resulted in some successes for the Nazis who in at least one place had crossed the Dnieper River.

No heavy fighting took place along the front last night, this morning's communique said, but Soviet aviation struck at Iasi in Bessarabia, the Rumanian oil fields at Ploesti and the Rumanian city of Roman, and throughout yesterday at German air fields and armored columns.

Ninety-four German and 12 Soviet planes were declared destroyed.

While acclaiming a new "fraternity of arms" with Britain, the Soviet Sunday reported that the ominous lull which had settled down over the battlefield for two days had been shattered by tremendous new Nazi assaults along the roads reaching toward Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev.

Check Nazi Drive

Soviet troops met the attacks head-on, the Russians said, and stubbornly held on to ground, in some cases checking and even driving back the Nazis.

Russia's formal mutual assistance pact with Britain, signed in the Soviet capital Saturday, provided for joint action in the war against Germany and pledged the Soviet and Britain "neither to negotiate nor conclude an armistice or treaty of peace except by mutual agreement."

S. A. Lozovsky, Vice Foreign Commissar, termed the pact a "fraternity of arms" which would bring Hitlerism to its knees, and said:

" A participant in this powerful coalition, Great Britain, has on its side the world's greatest industrial country, the United States. Thus, a really mighty coalition of freedom-loving peoples is allied against Germany and her vassals."

Lozovsky said the agreement did not affect Russia's neutrality pact with Japan.

London Press Enthusiastic

(The London press hailed the pact with enthusiasm. Informed Britons pointed out that the precise diplomatic language of the agreement made it a "joint declaration of policy" and the parties to it "co-belligerents"—still a shade short of formal allies.)

SYRIAN PACT SIGNED

New York, July 14 (AP) —Vichy initialling of the Syrian armistice was changed this morning to full signature when Gen. Henri Dentz, Vichy Syrian commander, and Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson, chief of the Allied forces, sealed the Pact of Acre, the British Broadcasting Corporation said in a report heard here by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 14 (CP)—The weather has been fair and warm over the greater part of Ontario but light scattered showers have occurred in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, while in Alberta it has been fair and moderately warm.

Berlin Claims Huge Successes Near Kiev And in North Near Leningrad, Narva in Estonia Besieged

KIEV BOMBED

Berlin, July 14 (AP)—A heavy air attack on Kiev, capital of the Russian Ukraine, was reported today by D.N.B., German news agency, as the advance of German, Hungarian and Rumanian forces allegedly menaced that key city on the southern flank of the eastern front.

Kiev under air harassment and threat of direct ground attack, Leningrad squeezed from two sides in the north and German tanks jabbing toward Moscow in the centre—such were the broad outlines of the war against Russia presented by Nazi sources.

A rain of bombs fell destructively on warehouses and hangars in Kiev, D.N.B. said.

Hitler's headquarters claimed that "break-through operations" against the Stalin line continued on schedule and that Finnish forces had opened a two-point attack on Leningrads' northern flank, but otherwise gave no details of the battle on the vast line from the Baltic to Black Sea.

"Finnish armed forces under the supreme command of Field Marshal Mannerheim started an attack on both sides of Lake Ladoga," said the communique.

Say Two Russian Boats Sunk

Two Russian patrol boats were claimed by the high command to have been sunk by German destroyers.

(The communique did not say where the patrol boats were sunk, but the likeliest spot would be the Gulf of Finland, Baltic Sea approach to Leningrad.

(The frontal drive on Leningrad, with the latest official location of German forces given as east of Lake Peipus, had approached to within 150 miles of the city, according to the Germans, while according to Finnish dispatches, one arm of the northern offensive was at Narva, Estonia, 80 miles from Leningrad.)

Call Agreement Suicide Pact

German spokesmen commenting today on the Anglo-Russian joint action declared it was the pact of two parties bent on suicide.

The commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland boasted that the "death knell of Bolshevism already has sounded."

Press and radio informed the public that "there is no salvation for the Soviet armies......The decision in the east already has been attained."

The Nazi propaganda and News Agency D.N.B. claimed "the breaking of the Stalin Line in several places is a decision of importance far beyond the success of the day. This break-through at all decisive points has decided the course of the campaign against Bolshevism in the interests of Europe."

These unofficial claims were foreshadowed to some extend by Sunday's High Command communique which claims the Stalin Line was broken "at all decisive points," that German troops are at "The gates of Kiev," and that Vitebsky, between Minsk and Smolenski on the Moscow road has been occupied.

"Scorched Earth" Policy Carried Out Wherever Soviet Forces Withdraw

London, July 14 (CP)—"Soviet War News," a publication of the Russian Embassy here, said today Stalin's "scorched earth" policy is being carried out wherever Soviet forces withdraw, with nothing left behind to aid the Germans.

In one village such grain as could be carried away by railroad was removed from a granary, and the rest was burned, the publication said. It added the milkmaids drove cows over fields o' wheat and rye, and women with scythes cut down sheaves, while tractors and horse-drawn rollers destroyed the standing crops.

Pigs which could not be moved farther east have been slaughtered, farm buildings and equipment demolished and wells filled in before the village and farm folk quit their land to fight on as guerillas from the woods, the publication said.

One detachment of such irregulars was reported to have surrounded a farm taken over by the Germans, set the building afire and killed or captured the Nazis as they tried to escape.

MUCH-HAMMERED WESTERN REICH AGAIN ATTACKED

Hundreds of British Bombers Roar Across Channel to Follow up Overnight RAF Raids

STORAGE TANKS HIT

London, July 14—(CP) — The Royal Air Force scored bomb hits on two 6,000-ton enemy ships and shot down seven German fighters in two morning raids on the Nazi-held ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre, France, today, an authoritative announcement said.

The big bombers were escorted by fighting planes as they swept across the channel for the attacks on France after night raids which extended from the coast to industrial northwestern Germany.

6,000-ton Ship Set Fire

The R.A.F. lost two bombers and four fighters in the engagement at Cherbourg. One of the 6,000-ton ships was set on fire and bombs also hit a railroad station south of the docks, as well as locomotive sheds and a factory.

The other 6,000-ton ship was hit at Le Havre and afterwards was seen to be half submerged, the announcement said.

Later in the morning another formation of Blenheim bombers attacked the railroad yards at Hazebrouck.

In the night assaults, hundreds of bombs rained on the much-hammered western Reich as well as docks at Amsterdam in The Netherlands and Ostend, Belgium.

Principal targets in Germany were the shipbuilding centre of Bremen, also attacked Saturday night, and Vegesack. Night sweeps also were made over Northern France where enemy airdromes were bomber and machine-gunned. At Amsterdam Nazi oil storage tanks were smashed and large fires started.

From all night operations one plane was lost.

Nazi daylight raiders also struck at England today. Three soldiers were reported wounded when a German plane machine-gunned a train in southern England early this morning.

Two Raiders Destroyed

German planes were reported over western England during daylight this morning after light units had attacked scattered points in Britain during the night.

As the R.A.F. maintained the tempo of its non-stop offensive, light units of the Nazi air force last night attacked scattered points in England. Two of the raiders were destroyed.

Raiders bombed a train in the Midlands, another in East Anglia, and various places along the coast, but damage was comparatively light and casualties few.

German long-range guns on the French coast went into action shortly after dawn yesterday — apparently firing at a convoy in Dover Strait.

Building New Defences

During the day, the haze which had blanketed the Channel for weeks lifted and disclosed that the Nazis have been busy building new defence works in the Boulogne-Calais area.

At several points newly-dug trenches could be seen stretching up over the coastal hills and disappearing as though they extended some distance inland. South of Boulogne, where the hills run down to Le Touquet Beach, the Germans appeared to have erected a maze of barbed wire and sandbag implacements.

Troop-Carrying Ship And Two Others Sunk In Mediterranean Sea By British Sub Flotilla

London, July 14 (CP)—The Admiralty announced tonight the sinking of at least three Italian vessels, including one carrying troops and supplies, in the Mediterranean.

All were credited to submarines of Britain's Mediterranean fleet.

Another vessel which had been damaged by a torpedo, was sent to the bottom while on her way to Italy for repairs, the Admiralty said.

It reported also the sinking of a 5,500-ton supply ship, heavily laden, which was in a convoy escorted by an armed merchant cruiser and a destroyer; a large sailing vessel loaded with troops and military stores in the Aagean Sea, and the probably sinking of two other vessels in a Libyan port.

"Another submarine, finding no enemy shipping on the high seas attacked by gunfire the enemy anchorage of Ras Tayones, near Bengasi," the communique related.

"In this attack a supply ship of about 1,500 tons and an armed trawler were certainly damaged and probably sunk."

Field Marshal Predicts Early Finish of War

Cromer, England, July 14 (CP) —Field Marshal Lord Inronside predicted today "the war will finish a good deal more quickly than many of us imagine."

Addressing a War Weapons Week audience, the former Chief of the Imperial General Staff said: "Thank God America is behind us. After Dunkirk I sent a call to America for equipment and I immediately received 900,000 Springfield rifles and over 160,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

"That was what defended England at that moment."

MOVE TO ADJUST LINE

London, July 14 (CP)—Authoratative sources said today they regarded the nazi drive toward Leningrad as the "most dangerous" of the nenewed German attacks against Soviet Russia.

These sources said that although German claims of great gains are regarded here as "extravagant" there apparently has been "a certain amount of progress" by the Nazi armies.

They described the Red army withdrawal on the southern front as a move "to adjust the line" rather than a forced retreat.

SPLENDID ADDRESSES

Wallbridge, tiny Sidney hamlet famous throughout central Ontario for its women's activity in Institute and Red Cross work, became famous to many Saturday as men, women and children gathered to the number of more than two thousand for the celebration of the 12th. Never before has the village harboured so many visitors, nor traffic been so snarled or enjoyed a more completely successful celebration. From an early morning hour the ladies of the Wallbridge branch of the Ontario Women's Institute were on hand preparing to meet the great influx of visitors expected. Provision had to be made to feed the crowd which required thousands of sandwiches and hundreds of cakes and pies.

Traffic had to be planned and parking lots improvised temporary enclosures arranged and loudspeakers erected. These matters along with many other details of minor importance were carefully arranged and directed by the committee in charge of arrangement.

Gather at Noon

Toward noon visiting brethren began to appear gaily attired in the traditional colors of the day. Fresh gray and white mounts imported for the use of the riding Marshals of the parade pranced and sidestepped as loudspeakers gave forth stirring military music and the crowd joined in the singing of such favorites as "There'll Always be an England."

399 Killed In Air Raids During June

London, July 14.—(CP)—The Ministry of Home Security announced today that only 399 persons were killed in air raids on Britain in June, the lowest of any months since July, 1940.

Seven men are missing and believed killed, the Ministry added, and 461 persons injured in raids are detained in hospitals. The July 1940, totals were 258 killed and 321 hospital cases. Britain's heaviest home front casualties of the war were in September, 1940, when 6,954 were killed and 10,615 treated in hospitals.

Among the 399 known deaths in June were 175 men, 160 women and 64 children.

The June total brought raid casualties for the past 13 months in which official figures are available to 94,986, including 41,488 killed and 53,498 given hospital treatment.

In this connection it was recalled that only recently Britain announced her total military casualties had passed the 100,000 mark.

YOUNG HUNGARIAN DIES OF BULLET WOUND IN NECK

Police Arrest Brother of Young Woman, With Whom Bela Gaza Fodor Was Acquainted

STATEMENT GIVEN

Joliette, Que July 14 (CP)—Bela Gaza Fodor, 17-year-old Hungarian, died in hospital early today from a bullet wound through the back, suffered in a shooting affray Sunday at St. Theodore De Chertsey, near here.

Provincial Police reported they had taken to Montreal for questioning a 23-year-old brother of a young woman with whom Fodor had been acquainted.

Police said that Fodor had been paying court to the detained man's sister. They added that Fodor, armed with three revolvers, went to the girl's home Saturday and told her sister and another woman to stop their alleged interference between the couple.

After Fodor left the girls father heard of his visit and telephoned Provincial Police headquarters in Montreal. Two detectives were sent to St. Theodore De Chertsey, a Laurentian Mountain village.

After an investigation, the detectives returned to Montreal. A short time later they received a telephone call from the young woman's father saying that his 23-year-old son had shot Fodor during an argument in front of the family's summer cottage.

Detective Henri Pinard quoted the young man being held as saying that he returned home to find Fodor and his father in heated argument. Believing his father in danger, the youth was quoted as saying, he fired his rifle at Fodor.

Must Organize Civilian Defence Says G. D. Conant

"In view o fthe war situation civilian defence increases in importance and becomes more necessary every day," declared Attorney General G. D. Conant, who is also chairman of the Ontario Civilian Defence Committee, in a press interview today.

"The fact that they are organizing civilian defence on a large scale in the United States makes it more apparent that no time should be lost and no effort should be spared along these lines in Ontario.

"Civilian Defence organizations must be brought to the highest possible state of effectiveness without delay. Their activities and the training of their personnel must be intensified to the utmost and without delay," warned Attorney General Conant.

"At present there are 52 municipalities in vulnerable areas where the Civilian Defence (A.R.P.) Committees have been organized, but we know of 19 municipalities in vulnerable areas where Civilian Defence Committeees have not been organized," concluded Attorney General Conant, as he added a note of warning that it is essential the work of the Civilian Defence be brought into the realm of effectiveness without delay.

99 Vessels of Free French Merchant Navy Plying Dangerous Ocean Lanes

London, July 14 (CP)—A fleet of 99 vessels is plying the dangerous ocean lanes of the world flying the colors of the Free French merchant navy, an important complement to the hard-hit merchant fleet of Great Britain.

Admiral Emile Museller, commander of the Free French naval forces, who made this disclosure, did not reveal the total tonnage of the vessels but it is known to be at least 500,000. At least 60 of the merchantmen have a tonnage greater than 1,500.

The fleet numbers some famous liner, including the Ile De France, Pasteur and President Doumer, and auxiliary cruisers which have been used as troop transports. Some of them carried Canadian troops to Britain.

In spite of losses sustained, 35 of the vessels are manned entirely by Frenchmen, 43 by British crews, one by Poles, five by mixed crews. Fifteen others are being put into commission.

Continue Process On Growing Scale Until Nazis Beaten

Courage of Londoners Impresses Itself Upon Every Country And Wins Friends in U. S. Workers Told By Prime Minister

THANKS UNITED STATES

London, July 14 (CP)—Britain, unshaken by ten months of German air blows, has begun hitting back with fearful might and still is only at the beginning of her growing air power, Prime Minister Churchill told the thunderously cheering civil defence workers today.

The Prime Minister delivered virtually the same fighting message twice—first to 6,000 veteran of the Defence of London in a great review in Hyde Park and later at a luncheon of the capital's organized civil defenders.

"It is time the Germans should be made to suffer in their own homeland and cities something of the torments they have twice in our lifetime let loose upon their neighbors and upon the world," the Prime Minister exclaimed.

Intensify Attack

"We have now intensified for the past month a systematic, scientific and methodical bombing on a large scale of German cities and industries and other military objectives.

"We believe it to be in our power to keep this process going on a steadily rising tide month after month, year after year, until the Nazi regime is either extripated by us, or, better still, torn to pieces by the German people themselves.

"We shall continue a remorseless discharge of high explosive upon Germany."

He declared there can be "no truce or parley with Hitler or the grisley gang who did Hitler's worst" and forecast that Italy, too, would get her share of the R.A.F.'s attention.

"As the nights grow longer," the Prime Minister said, "that unhappy province of Germany which used to be called Italy will have its fair share."

But he stressed London's need for unrelaxed vigilance against new terror from the skies and warned the workers to prepare "for renewal of your exertions."

"We shall not turn from our purpose however sombre the road, however grievous the cost, because we know that out of this time of trial and tribulation will be born a new freedom and glory for all mankind."

"You do your worst and we will do our best," Mr. Churchill addressed a remark to Hitler. "Perhaps it may be our turn soon. Perhaps it may be our turn now."

Suffered Anxiety

The Prime Minister disclosed that when the Nazi air might first fell in force on London he suffered anxiety for its effect or morale, health and necessary services but, he said, London responded with grit which has been the rock that has made Britain "unconquerable."

He forecast vehement German retaliation, but now, he said, London is ready and "London can take it."

"Our methods of dealing with German raiders have greatly improved," he said. "They no longer relish their trips to our shores.

"It is not true to say they did not come this last moon because they were all engaged in Russia . I do not know why they did not

Unhappy Province Of Germany Which Used to be Called Italy Will Have Its Fair Share of Bombing Warns Churchill

NO TRUCE OR PARLEY

London, July 14 (CP)—In a broadcast speech to a Civil Defence luncheon audience today, Prime Minister Churchill said the "courage, unconquerable grit and stamina of Londoners showed itself from the outset" last September when the Germans "poured the whole fury of the Hun upon London."

"Without that all would have failed," the Prime Minister said, "but on that rock we have been unconquerable."

He said he had asked the Ministers of Health and Home Security to "make every preparation for the Autumn and Winter as though we should have to come through the same ordeal as last year, only rather worse."

"The stamina and vigor of London was followed magnificently by the inhabitants of our smaller cities when they received the full violence of the enemy assault."

Second Speech of Day

It was Mr. Churchill's second speech of the day. About two hours earlier he stood on a platform in Hyde Park and reviewed 6,000 Civil Defence Workers who represented nearly 250,000 organized defenders of the Empire's capital.

After warning that the coming Autumn and Winter might be "rather worse," the Prime Minister said "many new arrangements are being tried. London will be ready. London can take it."

The Prime Minister said "we will have no truce or parley with Hitler or the grizzly gang who did Hitler's wicked worst."

He declared Britain must be prepared for "vigorous counter-attacks by the enemy," whose bombing forces in the west he said are "quite capable of making big attacks."

Mr. Churchill said that "as the nights grow longer that unhappy province of Germany which used to be called Italy will have its fair share of bombing.

He said he believed it is in Britain's power to keep bombing Germany "on a steadily rising tide, month after month and year after year."

Port of Kobe Closed by Japs

Shanghai, July 14 (AP)—The Japanese port of Kobe has been closed to foreigners for a 10-day period starting tomorrow, it was reported here today amid an apparently Japanese-sponsored propaganda campaign to create the impression that a Japanese attack against Russian Siberia is imminent.

Most foreign military quarters were inclined to a belief that the Japanese were indulging in a war of nerves so far as Russia is concerned.

Rumors of isolated clashes already along the Manchoukuo frontier with Siberia have begun to circulate, but they remain unconfirmed and are generally discounted here.

Although the rumors have dicounted in foreign military quarters here, the observers were not so positive as they were last week that Japan intended to start no war with Russia.

If European Russia collapses under German blows, they said, Japan might risk tackling the powerful Red army in Siberia, estimated here at 39 divisions.

CHINESE CHOP-STICKS PRESENTED TO MAYOR

Mayor Glen E. Thompson was today the recipient of a gift of a pair of handsome valuable Chinese chop-sticks. The sticks, made of pure ivory, were presented through William Wong, of the local Chinese association, to His Worship in commemoration of the Rice Bowl, a function which climaxed China Week throughout Ontario and the Dominion. The gift came from Chinese Consul Jialin Jowe, who addressed the Belleville Rotary Club a week ago, and officiated at the raising of China's national flag atop the City Hall last Monday.

The Mayor was delighted with the gift and commented that until he has become proficient in their use, his activities with them will be of a strictly private nature.

ROBBERS RANSACK YACHT CLUB PREMISES

Robbers entered the Belleville Yacht Club premises over the week-end and after ransacking the premises left by a water route, stealing a boat that was moored in the harbor nearby. Entrance was gained by breaking a window in the basement door. Once inside the premises the robbers stole cigarettes and chocolate bars valued at $6.50, Mr. J. Cook, the janitor of the clubhouse informed City Police after discovering the break-in early yesterday morning. The cash box in the electric music box was also rifled and the entire contents removed.

Upon leaving the clubhouse by the rear, the robbers stole a boat that was moored in the harbor and proceeded up the Moira River where the boat was later found abandoned on the west shore of the river near the C.P.R. bridge. Police are investigating the break-in.

Officials of the Belleville branch of the Chinese Federation in Canada expressed their warm appreciation Saturday night for the generous response by the city and district to their tag day appeal for funds. The amount realized was $292.67.

The tag day on Saturday brought to a close the China Week observances in Canada. All last week the Chinese national flag flew from the City Hall flag-staff.

William Wong, representing the local Chinese organization, was loud in his praise of the work done by interested people in the city. "We are gratefully indebted to Mr. and Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. Neate of the I.O.D.E., the Misses Betty Redfern and Beryl Daniels, Adjutant Smith of the Salvation Army, and the many girls and young ladies who assisted us so much in the tag day campaign. Also to the general public which, by their generous contributions will enable us to send this substantial amount to our war-stricken compatriots in China. From the bottom of our hearts we thank you."

In the tag day campaign the Misses Virginia Amey and Peggy Dwyer led the taggers with collections well over thirty dollars. Miss Minnie Leavitt, who only sold tags for two hours, realized a sum over twelve dollars.

PASSENGER SUSTAINS FACE LACERATIONS

Striking a cement culvert as it failed to negotiate Avis' curve west of Deseronto on Highway No. 2 late Saturday afternoon, an automobile driven by Isaac Brant, Deseronto, turned over into the ditch and became a complete wreck. The only passenger in the car to sustain severe injuries was Samuel Paracle, Tyendinaga Township, who was removed to the Belleville General Hospital suffering from head and face lacerations and concussion. The driver and three women passengers were only shaken up. Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch investigated and today revealed the vehicle was almost wrecked beyond repair.

Fifty-two recruits out of seventy-one applicants for enlistment were accepted by Flying Officers J. B Richardson and S. Sparling officers in charge of the Royal Canadian Air Force Mobile Recruiting Unit, during its stay in the city, on Friday and Saturday.

The successful applicants were given medical examination on the spot and will report immediately for duty to the R.C.A.F. Distribution of the recruits is as follows—pilots and observers, 5; Wireless air gunners, 6; general duties, 15; cooks, 2, training as aero-engine mechanics, 3; stationary engineers, 2; armorers, 2; clerks, 3; foremen, 2; equipment assistants, 7; air frame mechanics, 1; carpenters, 1; motor mechanics, 1; radio technicians, 1 and welders, 1.

The mobile unit, according to Flying Officer Richardson, will make monthly visits to the city to give future potential recruits opportunity for enlistment. Fifty thousand additional personnel are needed immediately in the Air Force, he said.

Bibles Presented To RCAF Station At Special Service

Etched against the blue cathedral of the sky, the brilliant July sunshine flashing in golden radiance from their wings, training planes roared a thunderous crescendo accompaniment to an impressive drum-head service held on the parade square of the Trenton Station of the Royal Canadian Air Force on Sunday morning. The service was conducted by Flight-Lieutenant, the Rev. W. J. Province, assisted by Flight-Lieutenant the Rev. A. R. Ferguson. Both "padres" are chaplains on the strength of the station personnel.

Featuring the service was the presentation of fifty Gideon Bibles by Flight-Lieutenant Province, on behalf of the Gideon Bible Society to the station personnel. The gift was accepted by Officer Commanding Captain T. A. Lawrence on behalf of himself, his officers and other ranks of the station. In a brief address the commanding officer expressed the whole-hearted appreciation of himself and the station for the substantial gift and assured the donors of the value placed upon them by those who will use them.

Band Leads Parade

Shortly after eleven o'clock, to the martial rhythms of the R.C.A.F. Band under Corporal Hancock, hundreds of trim airmen marched to their appointed places on the parade square. Here, before the admiring gaze of a large crowd of civilian attendants at the service, they were formed up in a square before the flag-draped traditional drums, which acted as a pulpit for the officiating chaplains.

Prior to the service, the white-surpliced choir of Christ Church, Belleville, prominent in which was a large number of boy singers, slowly paraded to rows of special seats placed directly to the rear of the drums. Overhead and behind them colors of the Royal Canadian Air Force whipped in the morning breeze from the halyards on the flag-staff. The choir was under the direction of George Maybee, organist and choir - director of Christ Church.

Their melodious voices at times dimmed by the thunderous cacophony of thundering plane engines, the choir led the assembled gathering and airmen in several hymns among which were "Holy, Holy, Holy" and "O God Our Help in Ages Past." The choir also sang Psalm 46 and other selections unaccompanied. For general hymns accompaniment was provided by the station band drawn up near the flag-staff.

Tribute Paid to Society

In a brief address, Flight-Lieut. Ferguson paid eulogistic tribute to the Gideon Bible Society in the splendid work in distributing the word of God to "countless millions." "There is a picture of contrast between the activities of man in making the word of God known to the world," he said. "This society has distributed countless millions of blessings year after year in turning out copies of the Book. No one can realize the tremendous amount of time and energy expended in bringing the Word of God by word and the printed word to the eyes and ears of millions."

"To what purpose is the act of man in making the Word of God available to their fellow men? It is in keeping with what Christ said, 'Let not your heart be troubled . . . For I am with ye always.' That promise is of all sufficient comfort and courage to us in these days. It fills our hearts. His blessing today is that we are led into His Holy Spirit and His Truth."

At the conclusion of the service, the parade "marched past" the saluting base beneath the flag-staff. Here Group Lawrence took the salute of the marching airmen. Later they were dismissed on the parade square.

During the service, the commanding officer voiced a welcome to the civilian visitors and extended invitations to future drum-head services. He also expressed his appreciation and that of his staff to Mr. Wright of Christ Church, Mr. Maybee and the Christ Church choir.

Cheesemakers Honor Popular Cheese Grader And His Bride With Presentation of Tea Service

Fifty-three members and officials of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association, and other guests, forgot cheese and farm problems temporarily last Friday night, to pay tribute to Mr. and Mrs. James L. Irwin, bride and and groom of a few days. Mr. Irwin is well known throughtout the Canadian cheese manufacturing and dairy industry of Eastern Canada as chief cheese grader for this district. Mrs. Irwin is the former Miss Denise Gillain, of Montreal, who was a teacher in the Drummond School of the eastern metropolis.

The cheese makers, their wives, and guests took the bride and groom completely by surprise at their well-appointed cottage on the Bay of Quinte two miles east of the city. During the course of the affair, the Association members, through Mr. Sam Anderson, presented Mr. and Mrs. Irwin with a handsome silver tea-service. Mrs. John Wilkinson read the accompanying congratulatory address.

While the genial cheese grader was temporarily at a loss for words following the presentation, Mrs. Irwin stepped into the breach, and in a briefly eloquent address conveyed the warm appreciation of herself and her husband for the beautiful gift.

Cheese makers and representatives of the dairy industry from all parts of the eastern district were present at the function which was featured by social amenities, games and later refreshments served and provided by the guests.

Two Large Lunge Caught at Tweed

Tweed —(Special)— Stoco Lake is continuing to uphold its reputation as one of the finest fishing grounds in this section of the province. On Thursday night while fishing along the east shore of the lake Michael Staab of Akron, Ohio, hooked and landed a 30-pound muskie. With steel rod and 15-pound test line he battled the huge fellow for half an hour before landing it. He was using a jitterbug artificial bait.

On Friday night Ross Fetterley, 982 Yonge St., Toronto, a guide at Breen's Fishing Resort, hooked a 28-pounder in almost the same spot and after a struggle lasting an hour landed the finny beauty into the boat. He was using similar bait and an 18-pound test line. His fish measured 46 inches in length, while that caught by Mr. Staab measured 48 inches.

Mr. Staab, who is camping in one of Mr. Maynes' cottages at Kanata Beach, is on his first trip to this part of Canada and is greatly enthused with the fishing in Stoco Lake. He will not hesitate to notify his friends of the excellence of the fishing.

Mr. Fetterley presented his fish to Tweed Council which will have it mounted and placed in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

LEVANT STATES TURNED INTO DEFENCE BULWARK

Britain in 'Vastly-Strengthened Position in Middle East Following Armistice

CAN ASSIST TURKS

London, July 14 —(CP)— Britain saw herself in a vastly-strengthened position in the Middle East today following the signing of an armistice with Gen. Henri Dentz, Vichy High Commissioner in Syria and Lebanon.

But the undisclosed terms of the armistice, signed Saturday night at Acre, Palestine, British sources said they expected to gain a bulwark for protection of the Suez Canal and perhaps greater co-operation from the wavering Turks.

Now in occupation of territory adjacent to Turkey, Britain is in position to send military aid in the event her non-belligerent ally becomes involved in war.

Some of the Imperial and Free French troops engaged for the past five weeks in the Syrian conflict, it was pointed out, will be released for duty elsewhere, and the island of Cyprus, in an exposed position after the fall of Crete, may be bolstered by aviation bases on the mainland.

Increased Activity Forecast

Increased Free French activity against other Vichy-held colonies was forecast in some quarters.

(In Vichy, it was declared Dentz had only tentatively initiated the Acre armistice and that his powers extended only to military matters—not political affairs. These sources claimed British occupation might resemble the situation in the Nazi-occupied area of France—with Britain taking over military authority but leaving civil administration in French hands.

(London has indicated political authority will be vested in Free French officials for the time being.

The armistice, announced in Cairo, was described by Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson, the British commander, as a "painful but necessary ceremony," in which there was no acrimony.

FARMERS REPLANT MANY CORNFIELDS

Hope Crops Will Replace or Supplement a Below-the-Average Hay Harvest.

Forced by a possible shortage of feed for their stock this coming winter, a great many farmers throughout the surrounding district are taking full advantage of last Friday's rainfall and are proceeding to re-plant cornfields, that had failed to grow owing to the dry weather, which had held this area in its grip. Seed merchants in the city did a land office business on Friday and Saturday as farmers sought to procure corn to re-plant their fields. So great was the demand for corn, that many merchants were sold out of seed by Friday evening and by Saturday noon it was almost impossible to purchase any kind of field corn.

Farmers hold no hopes, that corn planted since the rain will reach maturity and it is being sown with the object of supplementing a below-the-average hay crop. Movement of Hungarian grass and millet seed has also been brisk it is reported by merchants, although the demand to date has not exceeded the normal year by any great margin. It has been too dry for farmers to risk sowing such fodder crops, but a greater demand is expected during the present week

The cutting of fall wheat and rye is practically completed in the Quinte district but no reports of threshing having been done have been received. In many cases early oats are ready for the binder with a considerably less than normal crop expected. In order to supplement an expected short grain crop, more than the average amount of buckwheat is expected to be sown, and while it is getting late in the season for this crop, farmers are hoping it will mature quickly enough to escape early frosts.

HOT WEATHER NEWS

A cute hot weather item was recorded by the photographer at the home of Jack Priestly, New York city, recently, when he came upon this group of American-born quintuplets. They are the puppies of "Trim," blue ribbon winning wire-haired terrier owned by Mr. Priestley. At the TOP we see pups enjoying a feed in the company of Marie Pamagres, 21 months old, and their mother. In CENTRE, as the little group settles down for the afternoon. Marie considerately places her parasol over the pups. BELOW, the whole group have fallen under the spell of Morpheus and the warm sun.

THREATENED BY JAPAN IF RUSSIA FALTERS

Clement Attlee States Position Of Government

Neath, Wales, July 14 (CP)—Clement Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, told an audience yesterday that it is probable Hitler "hopes to be able to launch from Moscow a great peace offensive."

"I dare say," he added, "he will find some pacifists to respond. There are still a certain number of amiable, gullible, woolly-minded people . .. . who still go about bleating about peace by negotiation:

"He may catch a few war-weary people here and there and a few peace-at-any-price people who put their private fortunes above the public weal.

"I can assure you he will deceive no one in the government . . . we will not make peace with the Nazi gang. It would be a betrayal of everything for which this country stands."

Picton and District

Shoe merchants in town tell us that members of the R.A.F. when returning home to England, purchased silk stockings, shoes to take as gifts to relatives there. The boys say that in England silk stockings can hardly be bought, and cheap ladies' shoes now cost at least eight dollars per pair there, and can be bought for two dollars here.

Mr. and Mrs. "Ted" Van Dewater of Belleville, visited Picton friends on Tuesday.

Two heavy showers Thursday night, and steady heavy rain for three hours on Friday morning was greatly appreciated in Picton, where there have been only a few light showers since spring.

If your neighbor is kind enough to give you some Russel Lupin seed, about this time of year, don't forget the technique of planting it. Because the shell of the seed is so hard it needs to be slashed with a sharp knife at one end. Sometimes soaking the seed for two or three hours in water before planting is enough. The beds where the seed is sown need to be kept very moist. The little new plants will then be ready to be planted in their permanent place in the fall. Slashing each seed was the secret of Russel's success with these lovely flowers.

VIOLENT DEATHS TAKE TOLL OF 10

Five Die in Traffic Accidents in Ontario and Three Are Drowned

(By the Canadian Press)

Ten violent deaths were reported in Ontario during the week-end. Five persons died as a result of traffic accidents, three were drowned, one man was electrocuted and a boy suffered fatal injuries when crushed between the top of an elevator and the platform.

Eva McMurray, 8, Toronto, was killed Sunday when the automobile driven by her father turned over several times and landed in a ditch near Owen Sound. The other traffic fatalities were at Toronto and Stratford.

Mrs. Annie Wood, 80, Toronto, was struck by a car at Toronto, and Allan Jones, 6, also of Toronto, died in hospital three hours after he ran into the path of an automobile on a Toronto street. Both accidents occurred Saturday.

Robert Graham, 27, of Kincardine, was killed on the highway near Stratford Saturday when the automobile in which he was riding turned over several times and caught fire. William Hadfield, Stratford, died near that city Saturday when a car in which he was riding turned over in a ditch.

Dr. John Murray Rolland of Hamilton, drowned at the junction of the Balsam and Cameron Lakes, 20 miles north of Lindsay, Saturday night.

Drowns in Public Pool

Jack Hopkinson, Toronto, drowned while swimming in a public pool at Guelph on Sunday. It was believed he suffered a weak spell while in the water and disappeared before aid could reach him. The body of Harold Redding, Columbus, O., was recovered from the French River, about 12 miles south of Noelville, near Sudbury, on Saturday.

Mr. Redding was drowned Friday while fishing with two companions. The propeller of their outboard motor caught in a rock, overturning the boat. Redding's companions reach shore safely.

At Copper Cliff, 17 year old Gregory Mulvihill, died Saturday from injuries suffered when he was crushed between the top of an elevator and a platform at the International Nickel Company plant.

Nick Kuzyk, Ukrainian member of a millwright crew, was electrocuted Saturday while working at McKinnon Industries at St. Catharines. Police believe Kuzyk came into contact with a high voltage wire.

Lighthouse Lake In Herschel Twp. Scene of Drowning

Bancroft, July 14 (Special)—Handicapped by heavy clothing, George Hector Scott, 40, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Scott, Herschel Township, was drowned in Lighthouse Lake, 18 miles north of this village early Sunday morning after the birch canoe in which he and a brother, Guy Scott, were riding, capsized a considerable distance from shore.

Guy Scott struggled the long distance to shore and walked two miles to get help. County Constable G. P. Wells and Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson raced to the scene and ordered dragging operations. The body was recovered a few hours later in twenty feet of water. No inquest will be held. The body was released for burial after the coroner's examination. Scott leaves besides his parents a wife and ten children the oldest of which is 16.

According to Guy Scott, the frail birch bark canoe capsized without warning, throwing both men into the water. He managed to clutch the side of the craft, but his brother, hampered by a heavy raincoat, sweater and laced rubber boots was unable to swim. Hector Scott managed to divest himself of the coat and sweater but removal of the heavy boots was impossible and he sank from sight.

Guy struggled through the choppy waves to the distant shore and after a gruelling walk through the undergrowth for a distance of two miles, managed to notify the authorities and get assistance.

Virginia Gilmore, one of the more promising of the rising young stars of Hollywood, has created a delightful characterization in "Jennie" now at the Capitol Theatre. Jennie is one girl you won't forget.

Three Men Detained

Constables Arnott and Wright apprehended a trio of local young men on Campbell Street late Saturday night after residents had complained the men were causing a general disturbance. The three men were detained at the police station for several hours, before being released with instructions from Sergeant Arthur Booth to report to Chief Kidd this evening. Earlier Saturday night Fred Mansfield, 47 Cannifton Road, complained to police this same trio had attacked him and one of the men struck Mansfield in the face, knocking out one tooth.

Charges Pending

Jack Chamberlain, College Street reported an alleged hit-and-run incident to police early Saturday evening. Mr. Chamberlain told Traffic Officer Doug Ellis, that a motor car had sideswiped his automobile on Station Street, later the driver of the vehicle to strike Mr. Chamberlain's car, got out and walked away. Constable Ellis ordered the abandoned car impounded and police court charges are pending.

VICHY CHANGES SYSTEM OF GOV'T

Has Two Parliamentary Chambers but With Self-Perpetuating Leadership

Vichy, July 14 (AP)—The Vichy government constitutional committee was reported Saturday to have adopted a preliminary structure by which France would be governed by two parliamentary chambers as in the past but with self-perpetuating leadership.

A majority of the constitutional group agreed that selection of the new "chief of state" should be made from a list of three names to be presented by the retiring chief of state. The choice then would be made by the two chambers from these three.

The present tendency of the committee was to institute one chamber as a legislative body by reduced suffrage while the other would be a council of empire in which France's colonial possessions would have proportionate representation.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN PACT

When this war started no one could have foretold that Britain and France would be in enemy camps with actual fighting having taken place between the former allies. Another impossibility seemed to be, at that time because of the Russo-German treaty of non-aggression, that Britain and Russia would be fighting as partners against the Nazis. However, today both are actualities. The agreement, signed last Saturday between Britain and Russia calling for joint action against a common enemy, was to be expected after Hitler's attack on the Soviet nation.

Both parties pledge themselves to continue the war until victory is assured and that neither country will negotiate a separate peace without the consent of the other. The British will keep their promise as they have all that they make and the thought of self-preservation should keep the Russians to theirs.

If the Russians were to go back on their word and open peace negotiations probably we would have the same situation arise as that which took place in France, when she was defeated last year. Hitler could impose terms to suit himself and would exact a heavy penalty. We do not think the Russians will give in so easily for the leaders realize that their country must continue the fight or die. For that reason we believe that the Russians will keep the faith with Britain.

BRITAIN'S POSITION IN NEAR EAST STRENGTHENED

The armistice in Syria which ended the fighting between Vichy French and allied forces of Free French and British Imperial troops last week was a welcome piece of news to British peoples everywhere and, we suspect, the French, both in Syria and France as well. The French put up a gallant defence even if it was at Berlin's orders and many of the troops realized this according to dispatches. However, like good soldiers, they obeyed the orders of their commanders for it is hard to revolt unless the proper leadership is forthcoming.

The British position is greatly strengthened by the course of events in the Middle East. She now has only one front which is on the western frontier of Egypt and which will receive the proper attention in due course. The fall of Syria also will strengthen her position with the Turks and elsewhere throughout the east. The security of the Syrian base is of incalculable value to Britain and we can count on the government to organize the territory to the fullest extent.

GERMANY FEELS R.A.F. BLOWS

The Royal Air Force has for more than three weeks been carrying loads of explosive which have disconcerted people in Germany as to what may come. Reports say that many in the Reich are now entertaining fears that the German air force may lose out. Britain is devoting her air strength to wrecking the sources of Nazi strength and avenues of possible attempt at invasion of Britain. So the toll exacted by the R.A.F. is reckoned by destroyed docks, railway communications, submarine bases and munition plants in many parts of Germany.

Signs are not lacking that the military efforts of Germany are suffering as a result of this steady pounding day and night. There are reports of likely evacuations from munition factory cities of Germany. Exodus from some parts of West Germany into Norway was reported some weeks ago.

The Hun is facing the inevitable. He picked a fight because he was strong, having armed himself while the rest of the world was trusting. British spirit held off the enemy until the swing is now to British air predominance. The worst for the Hun is just beginning. The Nazis will find their morale suffering as the attacks are maintained.

A BALLADE OF ULTIMATE ASTONISHMENTS

("Hitler is to receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at Leipzig University."—News Item.)

Hast thou ever seen a cod that went its way
And walked the solid earth, or even ran?
Or cow that dived into the ocean's spray
And proved itself a pure amphibian?
Or pig with wings that joined the swallow's clan?
Do not, I beg you, grin without due cause;
Such portents yet may fit Creation's plan,
For Adolf is a Doctor now of Laws!

May figs from thistles issue? Yes, they may,
And finest bread be baked from basest bran;
I also think that hens might somehow lay,
The omelet ready cooked without a pan;
And if such feats should swim within our span,
Small need to gape aghast, with fallen jaws;
For, lo! far wilder marvels lead the van—
Rat Adolf is a Doctor now of Laws!

Well may a startled Europe watch and pray!
Think what this gesture signifies—That Man,
Born, it would seem, to perjure and betray,
Red ruin's agent and fell artisan,
Is here appointed priest and sacristan.
Keeper of text and temple, creed and clause!
Announce it from Beersheba unto Dan
That Adolf is a Doctor now of Laws!

ENVOY

Prince, though you never winced since life began,
I think this fact should fairly give you pause.
Can such things be? By gosh, indeed they can,
For Adolf is a Doctor now of Laws!

LONELY ANZACS, HOW ABOUT IT, GALS?

Fifty young, eager, potential heroes of the air-lanes stepped from a train the other day. They were clad in the dark blue uniform of the New Zealand Air Force. From "down under" they came, clear eyed, anxious and "rarin' to go." Fresh from the plains of New Zealand from the sister Dominion's schools, farms and factories they came to train for the biggest adventure in their lives.

Today they are stationed at the Mountain View Bombing and Gunnery School ready to delve deep into the intricate training systems they must go through before they ride high in the skies of adventure and glory.

But they are in a strange land. They have no immediate friends here. They are strangers, in a sense. Canada knows and welcomes the young heroes of New Zealand but there are many lonely "off hours" and "off days" in which they have nothing to do and no place to go, except the many places that are pitfalls and temptations.

Here are many homes in Belleville which would welcome with open arms, these youthful New Zealanders. Officials at the air station are anxious to secure the names of any families who would care to entertain one or more of the young Anzacs of an evening. A touch of Canadian home-life, cheerful surroundings, a ride in the country or similar things would bring untold joy to the lonely chaps.

Anyone desirous of entertaining these youngsters are invited to send their names to George H. Carver, care of this newspaper, and they will be forwarded immediately to the proper authorities.

BONDS FOR DEFENCE

Ten years from now — if I am here—
I'll bring these out and say:
"I bought them in a troubled year
Against an evil day.

"There was a time the air was tense
With doubt and bitter dread;
And so in liberty's defence
These bonds of faith were spread.

"Though now you cannot know how near Unto our shores they came,
There was a time we lived in fear
Of tyranny and shame.

"There was a day we dreaded all,
So strong the force of hate,
That freedom's starry flag might fall
Since we had armed too late.

"But now the tyrant threats no more,
And freedom's walls have stood;
Our flag still flies from shore to shore,
And all its bonds are good."

To Govern is to Foresee

New York, July 14—"To govern is to foresee."

Because he foresees, the President has sent the Navy to Iceland with the full consent of the Icelandic Government.

The oceanic position of the United States constitutes our best defense, allows us to depend on sea and air power and has historically protected our domestic freedom by sparing us militarism.

But the oceans protect us only if we observe the rule of oceanic defense, which is to protect the ocean itself at its entrance. Inlanders, who think in terms of land, want us to protect ourselves in our harbors and on our beaches. An oceanic power that ever lets the enemy get to the harbors and beaches has lost its foresight.

Iceland is exactly as important to us as the Philippines and Hawaii, and for the same reason.

The outposts in the Atlantic do not need to be in our hands or under our protection, but they do need to be in the hands of friendly nations able to defend them, and with no aggressive intenions toward the United States.

Those outposts are Iceland, Dakar, the Cape Verdes, the Azores, and, aboxe all, the British Isles themselves.

Follow Traditional Policy

No amount of arguing for and against war will change the defense position of America.

What Franklin Roosevelt is doing, any American President with intimate knowledge of naval defense would do, and Secretary Knox is only following the traditional policy of the American Navy.

The growth and development of air power but makes the tradition more compelling. Naval bases are now air bases as well. No nations with avowed intentions to overturn the power situation of the world by force must be in a position to threaten us more effectively than we can threaten them.

Were the Nazis in Iceland or on the British Isles or in the Azores, this country would have lost what it has maintained for over 100 years—its ocean position.

Any Government that would permit that to happen would deserve impeachment.

This Government will not allow it and deserves confidence and applause.

Should Grant Request

"To govern is to foresee."

The War Department's request that Congress empower the Preslice of selectees and employ them where necessary, should be granted.

We live in a world in which aggressors have abandoned international law, disregard all treaties, and strike how and when it pleases them, counting complete dent to prolong the period of serv- secrecy and total surprise as the first essentials of success in total war.

Any nation that abandons its own capacity for surprise moves, gives away its security.

If the President had had to debate the Iceland matter publicly, and for weeks, before the move, he could not have made it.

"To govern is to foresee."

The time to move is when the enemy is weak.

One must establish one's positions when the enemy cannot challenge the move.

Hitler is weak now. He cannot resist our forces anywhere in the Atlantic—neither in Ireland nor off Africa. He cannot today invade Spain or Portugal or Britain. We must so act that he will be very jittery about trying to do either tomorrow.

Two Major Defeats

Hitler has suffered two major defeats—the first in the war.

Politically, by the mistake of Hess; the belief that he could get a Western truce in exchange for the Eastern campaign — that he could buy off the West by an attack on the Soviet Union.

Neither Britain nor the United States fell into such a booby trap. The victory was for Western morale.

Militarily, by the underestimation of Russian resistance—a victory for Eastern morale.

And a third defeat is in the making: the growing resistance in the occupied countries. There is heavy sabotage in Holland, Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia. The morale of the Hungarian and Rumanian troops in Russia is miserable. The call for volunteer legions against Russia from Spain and France is a dud.

Is Holland or Norway a communistic state? Nonsense. But they don't think the Nazis are their protectors.

On the horizon loom the prows of American ships.

The air offense is taken by Britain.

And the resistance of the occupied countries grows under the intrepid example of Britain and magic name of America, that to all Europe spells freedom and power.

The last defeat of Hitler will be the triumph of European morale.

Hold Oceans for Safety

"To govern is to foresee."

To foresee requires faith, vision, caution when caution is wisdom, and audacity when opportunity invites it.

Give our Government what it asks for that it may act with foresight.

Never fight on a beach, Americans, if the wide blue sea is there.

Be grateful for oceans. Share them with all, if all are willing to share. But if there's any doubt about them, hold them yourselves, until things are settled the way you want them to be.

LITTLE RUSSIA

In the days before the 1917 revolution European Russia consisted of three grand divisions — Great Russia, Little Russia and White Russia.

The emperor styled himself the "Tsar of All the Russias."

Three racial groups corresponding to these geographical divisions have been distinguishable among the Russians for more than a thousand years.

Great Russia consisted of the central and northeastern provinces and was the largest of the three grand divisions.

The language of its inhabitants, particularly the Moscow dialect, became the literary and official language of the empire.

Little Russia, second of the three Russias in area and population, was the name given to the southern provinces inhabited by the Ukrainians and the Cossacks.

White Russia was a comparatively small group of western provinces bordering on Poland and the Baltic states.

The White Russians intermingled considerably with the Great and Little Russians, but they were influenced culturally most by the Poles and the Lithuanians.

Until the 1917 revolution the some 2,000,000 Cossacks, though of Russian peasant blood, lived in separate communities with special privileges and duties. They became a sort of military caste and provided the best soldiers in the imperial armies.

The Little Russians or Ukrainians for centuries dreamed of becoming a free state and in 1917 they proclaimed their independence, but later were compelled to become a constituent part of the Soviet Union under the name Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic.

It is estimated that the Ukrainians number about 36,000,000, some 28,000,000 of whom lived in the Ukraine proper and the others in the Balkan states and Poland before the outbreak of the present war.

These Little Russians differed in racial stock, language, customs and culture from the Great Russians and they have always resented domination from Moscow.

Their country has been referred to as the Granary, Garden and Bread Basket of Europe because of its vast vegetable, mineral and industrial resources.

The Ukraine in recent years has been producing more than half of the Soviet Union's coal, two-thirds of its machinery, two-thirds of its sugar, half of its salt, three-fifths of its pig iron, half of its steel and a substantial part of its fruit, vegetable, cotton and grain.

Slang of the U. S. Army

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

The soldier pictures that Hollywood is said to be rushing to market are full of a lingo that will puzzle movie fans. This new slang is called "Armored English" by American newspapers too enlightened to understand it. Soldiers, or young soldiers anyhow, talk the jargon and make it sound picturesque and expressive. Our own young soldiers, and especially our young air force, wag a tongue that is still their own. Men who flew in the last war hardly recognize it, just as veterans who served in other branches of the services make little out of much of the slang current in uniformed circles in this war.

A jeep, it appears, is a command car, but a jumping jeep is an autogyro with a jump take-off. A peep, which obviously is the son of a jeep, is a bantam car and can be twin to a sidecar. Only a heavy tank can be a hell buggy or iron horse, while a light or small tank is a doodlebug, just as little French motor cars in the last war were the mothers of all road lice. A tub is a scout car and a popsickle is a motorcycle.

In the new army in the United States today the member of an armored unit has to be a gasoline cowboy, and the one in the air branch a sky winder. A machine gun is the scatter gun, and the 37-mm. gun the little poison. But calling an infantryman a gravel agitator will not seem to the old P.B.I. to be any improvement on calling him a foot-slogger. The dit da artist suggests the radio operator, if you have heard him sending or receiving, and seeking a homing device seems fancy for getting a pass or putting in for furlough.

No beam was flown in the last war, but flying the iron beam in this one means piloting an aircraft along a railway route, and is as apt as talking about flying the wet beam when referring to following a river's course.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Using Artificial Breathing For Air Raid, Drowning, Smoke, Electrocution Victims

For years the "regular" method of restoring the apparently drowned, and victim of smoke, gas and electrocution, has been the Schafer method of artificial respiratinon. To these must now be added the victims of air raids; "the blast of air created by high explosive shells on bursting may knock people breathless without actual wounding". Waves of intense smoke from burning buildings, escaping gas from broken pipes and short circuiting of electric cables may produce casualties which call for artificial respiration.

Despite the fact that I have described the Schafer method several times, there must be some who do not know about it and how, in such a simple manner, they may save the life of one recovered from the water, a burning building a closed garage with a running motor engine, or one who has touched a live wire.

Place the patient face downwards on the ground, then, without stopping to remove clothing, commence artificial respiration, as every instant of delay is serious.

Put your self astride or one one side of the patient's body in a kneeling position, facing his head. Placing your hands flat in the small of the back with the thumbs nearly touching and the fingers spread out on each side of the body over the lowest ribs, lean forward and steadily allow the weight of your body to fall over upon them and so produce a firm downward pressure which must not be violent.

By this means air or water is driven out of the patient's lungs. Immediately after pressing downwards swing backward, rapidly, removing the pressure but without lifting your hands from patient's back. Repeat this forward and backward movement (pressure and relaxation of pressure) every five seconds. Count two on pressure downward and count three when pressure is removed. This is twelve times a minute for the pressure and release or removal of pressure. Keep this movement up until natural breathing or respiration is restored.

When these movements have to be kept up for a long time, it is recommended that the operator kneel at the side of the patient instead of astride, owing to the strain on the ligaments of the widely separated thighs in the astride position.

Expect Formal Signing of Syrian Armistice Today

By EDWARD KENNEDY

Associated Press Staff Writer

Acre, Palestine, July 14 (AP) — Delegates representing Britain, the Free French movement and Vichy met here again today to discuss the new Allied order in Syria and Lebanon and the armistice, initialled Saturday night ending 34 days of warfare, was expected to be formally sealed.

Representing the Free French in the negotiations which coincided with Bastille Day was Gen. Georges Catroux, De Gaullist leader in the Middle East who is under Vichy's death sentence in Absentia. With him were two aides.

Representing Vichy were Gen. Andre De Verdillac, with military, naval and air force aides and Jean Conti, political delegate representing Gen. Henri Dentz in the latter's capacity of High Commissioner for Syria and Lebanon.

The British delegation, headed by Gen. Sir Maitland Wilson, included representatives of the navy and the Royal Air Force.

(Vichy reports said final armistice terms would be signed by High Commissioner Dentz and Gen. Wilson as a "military document without reference to political issues."

(The Vichy information office asserted the Petain government had been able to "transform an insolent political ultimatum to which it was unable to subscribe without dishonor into an honorable military convention."

(It was asserted that while refusing to accept all the Allied conditions for peace, the Vichy government nevertheless was instructing Gen. Dentz regarding matters on which he was to negotiate.)

Motorless Plane Industry Takes On New Life

Elmira, N.Y., July 14.—(AP)—An assertion by the head of the army air forces that the United States must build "hundreds and possibly thousands" of large gliders brought predictions today of a great spurt in the motorless plane industry.

Major Gen. Henry H. Arnold told the closing banquet of the 12th annual National Soaring contest last night that with the continued help of sailplane enthusiasts "we shall have a glider force, we hope, second to none, ready for service, whenever and wherever it may be needed".

"We know we must have gliders", he said, "perhaps hundreds and possibly thousands of them, capable of carrying at least fifteen men each together with full equipment including rifles, machine guns and even light cannon".

"Our decision of months ago," he added, "to study the use of gliders in warfare, was horribly justified when German troops swarmed down in gliders onto Crete and captured it after bloody fighting".

Ten Nazi Planes Brought Down in Daylight Sweeps

London, July 14 —(CP)— The Royal Air Force reported hits on two 6,000-ton ships in daylight sweeps over Nazi-occupied France today and hits on three other ships later in an aerial search for German shipping in the North Sea.

Seven German fighter planes were reported shot down in the morning raids which centred on Cherbourg and Le Havre. An eighth was destroyed near the Frisian Islands off the Netherlands coast and a bomber was shot down off the coast of Wales. A 10th plane—a bomber—was brought down by anti-aircraft guns on the east of Scotland.

The Air Ministry said the three ships hit in the North Sea were of 6,000, 3,000 and 1,500 tons.

People of United States Choose Course 'Freely', Ready to Face 'Any Consequences' Says Bullitt

William C. Bullitt, former United States Ambassador to France, said in address here today that the people of the United States have chosen their course "freely" in the war and are "ready to face any consequences."

"We are resolved," Mr. Bullitt said, "to follow our course no matter what may befall because we know that for the first time in human history the means to control the earth can be concentrated in the hands of one man."

Mr. Bullitt spoke after receiving an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Montreal. The address in French was broadcast over the facilities of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the British Broadcasting Corporation and was broadcast to France and French overseas possessions from Boston. A translation was broadcast over the United States networks.

Regarding United States actions, Mr. Bullitt said:

"You have seen enormous deliveries of arms, munitions, planes merchant ships, and warships to our friends who are holding the front lines against the common enemy; and recently, you have seen our marines sent to Iceland in the zone of the so-called Nazi blockade, and you know that orders have been given to our fleet and to our air force to keep clear the waters of the North Atlantic from our coasts to Iceland. You have witnessed the approval which our democratic country has given to these facts of President Roosevelt.

Flag Has Never Known Defeat

"If Hitler wishes to call these acts or the acts which will follow 'war' let him call them 'war'. The flag of our country has never known defeat and we are certain that it will never be lowered before the Nazis."

The address, delivered on France's "Bastile Day" carried a special message for the French people.

"If you today know how to listen," Mr. Bullitt said in addressing the French people, "you know that the Nazis will not win this war. This war will be won by all the civilized nations of the earth. In the end the Swastika will not fly over Paris. Your flag will fly oven Berlin. You will win this war.

"I know that today, the 14th of July, 90 per cent of the French are praying God for the victory of the British Empire and the liberation of France."

After asserting that the peoples of the earth would either be conquered by the Nazis or live in peace made by Britain and the United States, Mr. Bullitt said:

"Why do I not include the Soviet Union, which for the moment is fighting Germany instead of aiding Germany as she has aided Germany since the beginning of the war? Because there is no essential difference between the Nazi and Bolshevik regimes. Each is a godless tyranny, the sworn enemy of all the free peoples of the earth....

Resemble Each Other

"Since both have used the same foul means of cruelty, lies and tyranny, the Nazi and Bolshevik regimes now resemble each other like twins—out of hell.

"At the moment they are fighting each other. Stalin did not refuse to continue his aid to Hitler, but Hitler, knowing that Stalin is as dishonorable as he himself, knowing that he could have no more confidence in the promises of Stalin than Stalin could have in his promises, wanted to be the sole bandit chief of the state of Europe and destroy Stalin just as Al Capone tried to destroy all the rival gangsters of Chicago.

"We ought to rejoice that Satan and Lucifer are fighting each other. But we ought not to be so blindly sentimental as to believe that Satan will ever help to establish a peace of Christian freedom."....

Many criticisms of France have been heard during the past 12 months, Mr. Bullitt said. "France has been described as a sinner obliged to expiate her sins. Today, the 14th of July, I wish to say to you that those are lies.

Pushed Ideal Too Far

"Certainly France pushed too far the ideal of live and let live—the virtue of tolerance which becomes a vice, when it is extended to criminals. Certainly journalists and society leaders who were paid by the Nazis were not imprisoned. Certainly the Communists were free to do their wrecking in liberty. But patriotism, love of family, and the land remained as deeply anchored as ever in the French soul'.

Mr. Bullitt said that he knew that "the defeat of France did not come from any lack of heroism in the French soldiers. They did not refuse to obey, to fight, to die. They fought with as much courage as their fathers—the victors of the Marine and of Verdun. But they had almost no modern material with which to fight".

The successive governments of France were no more far-sighted than the successive governments of the United States and Great Britain.

And the French High Command did not foresee the changed conditions of warfare, and underestimated tragically the importance of tanks and planes.

"It is indeed difficult to grasp this truth when French ministers are talking with approval of "collaboration" between captive France and victorious Germany. When the Holy women who came to carry out their mission of charity were seized and raped by the Iroquois, no one was so indecent to talk about collaboration between them and their ravishers. But this is the insult that certain ministers are inflicting on the captive people of France".

Message of Encouragement Given French People By Churchill

London, July 14 (CP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the Free French forces of General Charles De Gaulle in a Bastille Day message today that "the spirit of the French people will rise again . . . purified and rejuvenated."

"Hard, stern years lie before us," Mr. Churchill wrote to the general, whose men are fighting on as Allies of Britain by land, sea and air, "but the end is certain, and the end will make amends for all."

The Prime Minister said "many catastrophies have filled these two terrible years" since he stood in Paris July 14, 1939, and watched with emotion "a splendid parade of the French army and empire," a Bastille Day demonstration in which British planes and troops were represented.

"Many states have been trampled down and cast into Nazi bondage," he said. "Millions of Frenchmen have found themselves for the time being in positions of insuperable difficulty. Some have broken under the strain and have let themselves slide into the bottomless pit of despair."

Syria Liberated

But, he said, "the soul of France can never die."

"It is a good augury," Mr. Churchill went on, "that this 14th. of July should witness the liberation of Syria from the control of Wiesbaden (a reference to the German city which is the seat of the French-German armistice commission) and cleanse it from the intrigues and infiltrations of the Huns."

Signifying the military comradeship of Free France and Britain, Vice-Admiral Emile Muselier placed wreaths on the Cenotaph in Whitehall and at the Foch memorial in Grosvenor Gardens.

On the eve of France's traditional holiday of independence, both Gen. De Gaulle and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden sent messages yesterday to "France," an independent newspaper published here.

"The 14th. of July symbolizes the ideas of liberty and those freedoms for which we are fighting," Mr. Eden's statement said.

"An anniversary will soon come when the uniforms of the German army and the Gestapo will have disappeared from French sail . . ."

Gen. De Gaulle declared his followers "represent not only an ideal but also a force which counts in the world."

CENTRE, VICTORIA AND REDNERSVILLE W.M.S.

Centre, Victoria and Rednersville W.M.S. was held on Wednesday afternoon July 2nd. at the home of Mrs. Winston Pulver with nine members and four visitors in attendance, the President, Mrs. Roy Giles in charge. The program opened with the singing of the National Anthem and repeating the Lord's prayer in unison.

The Treasurer reported having sent $79.09 in to the Branch. A letter from Mrs. A. H. Foster was read voicing the appreciation of the county auxiliaries for the kindly hospitality shown at the rally at Centre Church on June 5th. Mrs. F. Townsend leader Group 3 took charge. Hymn 12 was sung and Mrs. Don Spencer read the Scripture lesson and led in prayer. Interesting temperance papers were given by Mrs. E. Sencer and Mrs. F. Townsend.

The Missionary Study taken by M. Pulver was on the life of Dr. and Mrs. Horace Wrinch pioneer missionaries to northern Br. Columbia. This study was especially interesting because of the fact that Dr. Wrinch was supported by the young people's societies of the Belleville-Picton district and some of the older W.M.S. members remember their visits to near by churches. Hymn 511 "Lord of the Lands" was sung followed by prayer by Mrs. Townsend.

Two members paid dues. The offering for the day was $2.85 and was taken by little Master Gordon Cowkell. Flower collection 17c.

Mrs. Winston Pulver served candy and lemonade and was extended a vote of thanks. The August meeting is to be held at Mrs. Cyrus Giles.

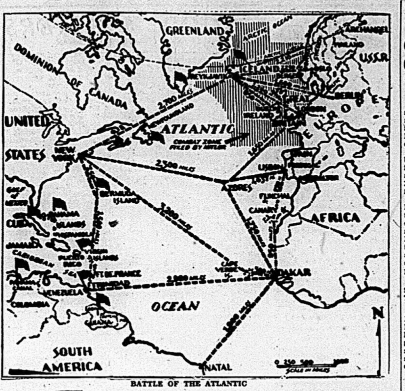
To the soldiers the Marshal said, "after a month of bitter but unequal combat we have been forced to lay down our arms."



BATTLE OF THE ATLANTIC

With American occupation of Iceland, control of the North Atlantic is in the hands of Great Britain and her friend in war— the United States. The flags show other strategic points where the United States has set up bases. If the British should take Dakar this would place the South Atlantic also under the powers of the democracies, leaving only the Azores as a spot to be taken to acquire complete control of the Atlantic area.

66 Women in District Apply for Work in New Munitions Plant

Approximately fifty girls and women from Belleville and district and sixteen from Trenton made application at employment offices in both places for positions as munition workers in the new munition plant at Pickering, it was revealed this morning by officials of the local employment service. This number of girls and women was interviewed last Thursday when a representative of Canadian Industries Limited, under whose supervision the plant will be operated, was in Belleville. Out of the fifty girls interviewed only five were found unsuited for the work.

School teachers were quite prominent among the girls seeking positions but as temporary workers are not desired, such applicants were not encouraged, it being thought that sufficient permanent workers could be obtained by a thorough canvass of the province. Lack of accommodation at Pickering will prevent many applicants from this district going to work until September when it is expected residential quarters in connection with the munition plant will be completed. However, girls who can arrange accommodation in Whitby or Oshawa and commute back and forth to work at Pickering will be taken on immediately, it was stated.

BITTEN BY DOG

Toronto, July 14 (CP)—Bitten by a dog infected with rabies last week, two boys at suburban Long Branch who have been receiving injection of anti-rabies serum have been declared out of danger by Dr. H. G. Skinner. At least six other cases of children being bitten by dogs in the last few days have been reported to Police Chief Robert W. Smyth and the dogs have been placed under observation.

Two R.C.A.F. Fliers Killed In Spectacular Crash Near City

Two unidentified Royal Canadian Air Force flyers were instantly killed shortly after two o'clock today when the training plane, believed to have been a Fairey-Battle, in which they were flying crashed, exploded and partially burned on the farm of William Grundy, one mile north of the city on North Park Street. Grundy who was cultivating in the field in which the crash occurred was seriously injured by flying plane wreckage and rushed to Belleville General Hospital.

The plane was completely wrecked, and up to three o'clock today salvage crews from the Trenton base had not recovered the bodies of the two flyers from the charred wreckage. According to eyewitnesses of the accident the plane was flying at a very low altitude when it suddenly nose-dived to the ground.

John Boyle, Belleville, stated that he saw the plane a few minutes before the crash flying at a low height. "I saw it suddenly point its nose toward the ground then it disappeared over a knoll. A second later I heard a tremendous crash. The plane's engines were roaring when it went into the dive."

The machine struck the ground about 150 yards west of North Park Street on the Grundy farm, crashing in a garden patch a few yards west of the farm buildings. As it raced toward the ground a part of the plane sheered off the top part of the Grundy henhouse. Parts of the plane were distributed over a wide radius of the scene of the crash. The bodies of the flyers were buried in the debris of the almost unrecognizable machine.

Crowds of people gathered at the scene of the tragedy and airmen and Constables Wm. Beatty and Eugene Gillis of the R.C.M.P. cleared the curious from the wreckage of the plane. Air Force ambulance and wrecking crews raced to the scene of the crash, but up to press time had not removed the wreckage.

Identity of the two dead airmen had not been established up to a late hour this afternoon.

Ontario Revenues Maintaining Budget Forecasts for Year

Toronto, July 14 (CP) — Ontario government revenues for the first three months of the fiscal year, April 1 to June 30, are maintaining budgetary forecasts, it is learned at Queen's Park. Despite war conditions the year is expected to continue on this normal trend resulting in the forecast surplus of $9,743,063 for next March 31.

Three major sourcse of revenue —corporation, liquor and gasoline taxes, continue in the normal trend but income taxation is down, owing to the increased federal rates, resulting in greater reductions in the amounts paid to the province. This reduction reaches nearly $1,000,000, but treasury officials believe the year wil lend with the province netting $5,000,000, the estimated amount from this source.

Ottawa Citizen Says National Referendum On Conscription In The Offing

Ottawa July 14 (CP)—The Ottawa Citizen in a front page story by its parliamentary correspondent said today, "a national referendum on the question of compulsory selective service in the war loomed up today as a distinct possibility before many months have passed."

"Nothing has been decided and so nothing is official but the idea is very definitely entertained in quarters where it would be decided," the paper said.

"That it may be developed officially is readily possible. The argument is that a referendum of all the qualified electors could reflect the popular view on a question inherently controversial but without the possibility of a general election on political lines."

Summer Quiet of Hyde Park Shattered by Tremendous Cheers for Prime Minister

By HAROLD FAIR

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 14—(CP Cable)—London's Civil Defence workers, who have waged a 10-months fight against bombs and fire, shattered the summer quiet of Hyde Park today with tremendous cheers when Prime Minister Churchill, at a full dress review, promised the Royal Air Force bombing of Germany was "only a beginning."

Men and women in the multicolored uniforms and tin hats of several score services massed 6,000 strong in the natural, tree-encircled amphitheatre facing the serpentine. Every service was represented in the review, from firemen in rubberized trousers and heavy boots to white-hatted chefs from communal feeding centres.

Mr. Churchill, with a service respirator slung across his shoulder, was accompanied by Mrs. Churchill and Herbert Morrison, Minister of Home Security. He inspected a guard of honor of smart looking home guards and then stood on the bottom step of the reviewing stand doffing his hat to the civilian heroes and heroines of the battle of bombs as they marched by.

Police on grey horses led the march past, followed by firemen, firewomen, air raid precautions wardens, rescue squads, ambulance drivers, nurses, street fire parties, the Red Cross, the women's voluntary services, the Young Men's Christian Association, the road repair and public utility services. Hundreds of strange looking vehicles used by the various services also were in the procession.

The A.R.P. men and women brought prolonged cheers from thousands of spectators crowding the bomb-cratered park, but these were drowned out when a small detachment of khaki-clad girls from the American Ambulance Corps of Great Britain marched by.

Canadian High Commissioner Vincent Massey was among the prominent guests who sat on the reviewing stand.

Germans Refute Charge Attributed To Moscow Source

Berlin, July 14— (AP)—A charge attributed to Moscow that the Germans are about to use gas brought a retort today from Dieust Aus Deutschland, Nazi commentary with official connections.

"Repeatedly it has been stressed by the German military leadership it will use no poison gas as long as its enemies refrain from using it", it said. "That statement goes for this campaign".

(Foreign Vice-Commissar S. A. Lozovsky asserted in Moscow Friday that "cases where the Germans at certain points used poisonous substances" had been reported and that Russian had "not yet replied with the same weapons but we warned as long as June 28 in an official communique that the Germans were preparing something like this".)

Confessed Bandit Subdued by Use Of Tear Gas

Windsor, Ont., July 14—(CP) — Tear gas was used today to subdue a 20-year-old confessed bandit into submission at the Essex County jail after he had refused to come out of a cell to be strapped for an attempted jail break.

The prisoner was Roy E. Cunningham, 20, Toronto, who on Saturday in County Court pleaded guilty to armed robbery of Arners' meat store at Harrow, and was remanded one week for sentence.

With him in the attempted jail break was Harold Demude, 21, Windsor, who also pleaded guilty to the same charge. Demude, it was learned, submitted to his whipping an was already locked in another cell when Cunningham was ferreted out of his cell by tear gas.

Cunningham was whipped after he fled his gas-filled cell. Both he and his companion were then placed in solitary confinement.

Sheriff A. A. Marentette of Essex County said that the two prisoners would remain in solitary at the discretion of Governor John Warden, D.S.O. It was explained that this likely would depend on the behaviour of the two.

No details of the attempted break could be learned, other than that there had been an attempted by two "extremely troublesome prisoners".

Officials said the reason for the use of the tear gas was because Cunningham threatened to wreck two or three wooden benches on whoever came in after him.

The two prisoners are believed by police to be the brains of a gang of as many as six bandits who have terrorized Western Ontario recently with a series of armed robberies.

Reports from slo said the Governors had been arrested earlier.

Obituary

LELAND CLARE SHAW

To many friends and acquaintances in this city and in the Foxboro district the death of Leland Clare Shaw, which occurred in Whitby this Monday morning, July 14th., will bring sincere feelings of regret. He was ill about ten days at the Ontario Hospital in that town, where he was engaged as an interne.

He was educated in the public schools and at the Belleville High School and he was popular with his associates and well regarded by his elders. He was a good student and on leaving the high school he entered Queen's University, Kingston, where he graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Upon completing his course in Arts he enrolled at Queen's University as a student in medicine and had he lived he would have graduated with the class of 1942. In religion he was associated with Holloway Street United Church. To Mr. and Mrs. Shaw and the members of their family the deep sympathy of many friends will be extended in their bereavement.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his parents: two brothers, Mr. J. Ralph Shaw and Mr. William A. Shaw, both of this city.

CARMEL W.M.S.

The July meeting of Carmel W.M.S. was held by the river in a grove on Mr. Milton Rossi's farm, with the Mission Band assisting with the program. A large number of members and friends were there to enjoy the cool breezes from the river as the program was being carried on. The president opened the meeting singing "God Save the King" after which she led in prayer and the Lords' Prayer was repeated in unison. Mrs. Simmons read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. John Homans and Mrs. George Morman leaders of the Mission Band had charge of the program. A very enjoyable lunch was served.

QUINTE INSTITUTE

The Quinte Institute held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, July 8th, at Mrs. H. Walkom's home on the Front Road, with an attendance of about 25, including several visitors from the Salvation Army. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. N. Brown, by singing the Ode followed by community singing of patriotic songs and "God Save the King." Mrs. E. Kent led in prayer for peace, which was followed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Brown spoke of the jam-making and many offered to fill the cans provided.

Mrs. A. Greatrix, Convenor for Education then took charge of the meeting. A solo, "The Rosary" by Mrs. F. Parrott was much enjoyed by all. A paper on "Recreation" prepared by Mrs. J. Garbutt was read by Mrs. A. Mitchell. Mrs. Greatrix introduced Adjutant and Mrs. Smith and several other visitors of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Smith read a letter from Mrs. Gen. Carpenter from the Salvation Army headquarters in England thanking all for the numerous donations sent to them. Adjutant Smith gave a very appropriate address on war conditions, closing with the thought "God loves a righteous people and will come to help them." Each of the visitors also spoke briefly. Mrs. Geddes moved a vote of thanks to Adjutant and Mrs. Smith for their remarks and all showed their appreciation by a hearty clap of the hands.

A quiz contest led by Mrs. Greatrix was both entertaining and instructive. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Green sang a lovely duet "My Savior Can Solve Every Problem." The roll call, "Name your first school," was very interesting and brought back many recollections of early days.

Mrs. N. Brown in closing the meeting spoke of how thankful all should be for freedom of speech. Adjutant Smith led in prayer and grace was then sung after which Mrs. Walkom and her conveners served a delicious lunch of sandwiches, cake and lemonade. All felt that the meeting had been very educational and a pleasant and profitable afternoon had been enjoyed by all. Collection $2.40.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

EXPERT GIVES HINTS FOR "IDEAL" GUEST

1. Answer your hostess' invitation at once. Don't leave her in doubt as to whether or not you can come. She may wish to invite another guest.

2. Arrive when you are expected to arrive. Your hostess must make her plans too.

3. Be as well-groomed as you possibly can be when you arrive. The first impression is important. When you (or a maid) open your traveling-bags, be proud of the condition of your clothes and traveling accessories. Your clothes should be freshly-laundered or dry-cleaned—they may need pressing, but that's all they should need.

4. Bring sufficient clothes. Try not to bring too many. And try especially hard to bring the right kind of clothes. Bring the necessary clothes accessories too — don't forget, for example, the belts for your various dresses. Bring your own toilet articles.

5. Bring all necessary equipment for any sport in which you plan to take part. The borrowing guest is a pest.

6. Be on time for meals and for engagements with your hostess or with other guests.

7. Be amiable. Be eagerly ready to fall in with your hostess' ideas, even if you don't particularly enjoy some of the plans she has made. If your hostess asks you what you'd like to do, help her out by making some suggestions. If she offers a choice.

8. Be responsive. The success of a visit depends as much on the guest as on the hostess. It's the guest's responsibility to do his or her best to be entertaining, to make things easy for the hostess, to be pleasant to other guests.

9. Be alert to find out the customary routine of the family, their convenience about serving breakfast, the hours for meals, the usual hour for going to bed. Don't hesitate to suggest when you wish to go to bed; your hostess will probably expect you to do this, especially on the evening of your arrival.

10. Don't expect to be entertained every minute of your visit. Naturally your hostess will want some time to herself and for her duties. The thoughtful guest "disappears", to rest, to write letters, to read.

11. Don't have food notions.

12. Be neat and tidy. Keep your bedroom in order. Keep your bathroom or your part of the family bathroom in perfect order. Don't leave your lingerie thrown around your room. Don't throw the towels in a heap on the bathroom floor.

13. Respect your hostess' property. Don't use the family car without permission; and even with permission, don't use it thoughtlessly or carelessly. Don't be careless with your burning cigarettes, and don't place a damp glass on the furniture. Don't wipe cleansing cream on the towels.

Don't monopolize the telephone, either with outgoing or incoming calls. If you make a long-distance call, offer to pay the hostess — indeed, insist on paying these charges.

14. Be well-groomed, immaculate. No matter how simply dressed, be well and appropriately dressed. Don't loll around in negligees or pajamas or slacks when you should be wearing a dress.

15. Leave when you are supposed to leave. Even if your hostess urges you to extend your visit, it may be her politeness rather than her real wish or convenience.

16. Take all your belongings with you when you leave. It's a bore and a chore to a hostess to have to send to careless guests the belongings they have left behind.

17. Write an appreciative and sprightly bread-and-butter letter to your hostess, and write it promptly.

COURTESY TIP

Going on your vacation? You may be going to new places; you will certainly be meeting new people. Don't pretend to be something you aren't and don't pretend to know things you don't know. Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Young Husband Resents Bride's Charm

Should a pretty and charming young wife be as nice as she possibly can be to her husband's men friends? Or is it dangerous? Is there a problem here? And if so, what's the answer.

Margo, a worried girl, married within the year, has written to ask me for guidance in this very matter. When I have explained her case to you, you will see that the question has several sides.

If there is one piece of advice that is traditionally hammered into the heads of all girls about to marry, it is this:.

"Brides, be sure that you make it easy and pleasant for your husband to bring home unexpected guests for dinner. Expensive? Inconvenient? Inconsiderate? Troublesome? Impossible? Nonsense.

"On the contrary, assure him that with fifteen minutes warning and your well-stocked shelf of canned extras, he can always invite guests with the certainty that they'll have a good dinner. And that you, fresh, cool, smiling, untroubled, can be depended on both for the dinner and a welcome."

Well, Margo listened to this advice, remembered it and when the time came, put it into practice. Harry brought his friends home, proud of course, of what he had to show them. Margo produced the dinners. Besides, she tried to be the perfect hostess. The boys from the office liked the steaks she broiled. Also they liked Margo young, smiling, sparkling, curly-haired siren that she is.

Margo, I am sure, would have been attractive to young men if she had done nothing. But when, in addition, she put on pretty clothes and tried to be just as charming to the boys as she could, which was what all the aunts and friends and etiquette-books and Bride Advice had told her to do—trouble followed.

Margo, of course, couldn't help being irresistible. Some of her husband's friends, it seemed, couldn't help telling her so. Harry was jealous, caused scenes, made his friends angry and his wife miserable. Their married happiness, which at first seemed perfect, is tipping and rocking like a frail boat on a tempestuous sea.

"What next," Margo asks. Must she smile at no one but her husband, when it is so easy for her to smile? Must they have no men guests because the hostess is too pretty? When she loves her Harry with all her heart and does all that she can to make him happy, should she be blamed, innocent creature that she is, when another man applauds her husband's choice of a wife?

What a girl like Margo must do is hold fast to the central fact of her love for her husband and his for her. This love must be preserved at almost any cost. Suppose Harry is unreasonable? Men often are. There is no use in debating the matter with him.

Diplomacy is the only course. The next time that this young wife knows that several men are coming to dinner, she ought to telephone for Sue and Bess or some other good looking girls to come in likewise. This will make her own beauty and charm less of a responsibility. It will preserve Harry's peace of mind and it will safeguard this endangered marriage.

If a dinner for several people is too much of a strain on the household budget, why not have a buffet supper, which is just as jolly and less expensive?

All treasure has to be preserved at the cost of labor and pain. Love is the greatest treasure. Should we grudge any effort that may be necessary to save it from collapse? This is my urgent warning to the lovely Margos of this world.

Preacher's Wife Talks Of Children

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

"My dear Dr. Myers:

"It is a year since my husband and I had the good fortune to hear you and greet you at the County Institute.

"We have two boys. They are now 4 years and 1 month, and 18 months, less a week. I read your articles with great interest, as does my husband. I read to the older boy for months before he could talk. He was so plain talking, and he just loves to be read to. The baby, who is beginning to talk, must have absorbed a lot, for he dearly loves books and for three months he has been going to the bookcase and looking at books. He crawls up on the chair and looks at pictures. He gets very excited when he sees an object he recognizes. He seems to understand so much for his age.

"The day before the older one was 4, I was desperate to keep him busy. So I taught him to wash dishes. He loves it, and feels he is doing a lot to help. I keep a paper on the wall, and draw an auto every time he does the dishes. He has often dusted and used the mop. Three weeks ago he started kindergarten and I have been thrilled at the songs, rhymes and activities he tells us about. I have worked hard with them but not in vain, I trust. They have tempers and fine strong minds of their own to be guided.

Needed Help

"For two months I have had a high school girl come in to help with supper, and do the dishes at night. She straightens up the kitchen so nicely. It has been a wonderful help. It was a case of getting help or going to a doctor. Your advice on having help at any cost was sound. For several weeks the girl came at 4 and left at 7. Then I was feeling so much better that I had her come after supper, which is really better for her. She needed the food I gave her during those weeks, gained and liked it. I also gained and Daddy profited greatly as his work needs him after supper as much as during the day. He is a minister. I put baby in bed as near 6 as possible, and read to the other boy as much as I can between 6 and 6:30 when he is settled for the night. Then I come down to a straightened up kitchen and find my favorite book. The girl is a jewel and needs us as much as we need her.

"Thank you so much for your splendid articles. There is usually one tacked up above my sink and almost daily my husband and I discuss them."

I am happy to learn that this mother guides her little children so well and resolved to spend some money on help rather than on doctor bills. I wish more mothers would imitate her.

It seems to me a minister's wife with little children has an unusually hard task, since the parishioners normally make so many demands upon her time and energy. Yet it has been my privilege not only to hear from many of these wives but to visit the families of many who have demonstrated unusual poise and parenthood. They are a strong influence for good family life in their communities.

Medicine in the News

By MORRIS FISHBEIN, M.D.

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

A strange complication of war injuries recently discovered in Great Britain is failure of the kidneys to function after crushing of the limbs by falling debris. At the British Postgraduate Medical School four cases of crushing injury of the limbs were reported in which fatality resulted in each instance because of failure of the kidneys. Even though the crushed limb was immediately amputated, the kidney began to fail in its functions, becoming acutely inflamed and after a period beginning to pass bloody fluid. Presumably the damage to the tissues of the legs releases substances—possibly fat in the blood vessels—which interfere with the function of the kidney.

From Belgium, late in May, came reports of serious food shortage, particularly of protein. It is reported also that the amount of food rationed to the people is in quantities lower than the official figures, especially as far as potatoes and dried beans and peas are concerned. Cases of "deficiency edema" or swelling of the tissues such as appeared in starved Germans after the last World War, are already being reported in Belgian medical literature.

One of the greatest advances of modern medicine is the discovery of a product called heparin, which prevents clotting of the blood. From Sweden Dr. Clarence Crafoord and Erik Jorpes write that they have tested this substance in 325 cases after operations and failed to find a single instance in which postoperative clotting of blood or portions of clots traveling in the blood vessels occurred, where as such complications did occur in nine per cent of 1,111 similar cases in which heparin was not given.

All of the patients concerned were over 35 years of age. The operations included work on the stomach and intestines, the gall-bladder, the urinary passage as well as operations for rupture and varicose veins. Evidence became available that following operative procedures there is an increasing tendency of the blood to form clots.

Rocky Mountain spotted fever continues to spread and is no longer limited to that area but now covers the entire United States. The dog tick has been incriminated for most of the cases in the East. The most prominent symptoms are violent headaches, chills, fever and the eruption. Fortunately the United States Public Health Service now has a serum used in prevention and treatment. Important for persons traveling in country areas is the information that ticks may be a hazard. They should be removed from the body at the earliest possible moment.

JUDGING by the lunar transits most powerful on this day the emphasis may be placed on personal matters, domestic, artistic, social and affectional. In the latter particularly there may be much activity and excitement, with indications of courtship, marriage or other romantic attachments. The finances are also under promise of increase and expansion, with friendly interest assisting toward this end. There may be trivial delays or anxieties, but above all there should be success and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is should be on the eve of a year of steady success and happiness, with all things under expansive and gratifying rule. Finances may be enhanced, promotion and security stabilized, but the main adventure should be in the domain of the romantic, social, domestic, artistic and other forms of private joys and gratifications. Engagements, and marriage, are all fostered by the predominant planetary vibration. It is a time to seek these.

A child born on this day should have many artistic and cultural as well as social talents and graces. It should have an exceptionally happy and successful career, with much prestige and popularity.

Sawed-off Ball Bat Only Clue To the Slaying

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 14 (AP)—A sawed-off baseball bat provided a slim clue yesterday to the rape-slaying of Margaret A. Stapleton, 43-year-old woman censor from England and victim of Bermuda's first mystery murder.

Authorities, aided by two United States Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, said last night after examining the bat and questioning a number of suspects that they were no nearer a solution than when the woman's nearly naked body was found last Sunday night.

Miss Stapleton was slain while bicycling to the railway station in the moonlight to board a train, Dr. O. A. Arton said she had been raped and beaten to death.

Here is the way Bermuda authorities reconstructed events preceding and following the crime:

Miss Stapleton, daughter of an English clergyman, was the guest last Sunday night of Col. and Mrs. H. W. Mann in Prospect, where a British barracks is situated.

Not Escorted to Station

She left the Mann residence to catch the 9:18 train for Hamilton.

On other visits to the Manns she had been escorted to the station but this time she said she preferred to bicycle the short distance to the station.

An hour later Col. Mann telephoned her residence to see if she had arrived and learned, that she had not. He waited a while, thinking that she had elected to cycle into Hamilton.

Col. Mann became alarmed after making a second call and he started a search between his home and the station. As the 10:36 train arrived he enlisted the aid of the crew.

On the lonely by-path near the station they found two large pools of blood and followed a trail of blood 25 yards farther. There Conductor Alfred Bates found the body lying face up, with the temple crushed by a terrific blow and the left leg twisted under the right.

Hitler's Drive Toward Moscow Off Schedule

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 14.—(AP)—Hitler's gas-engine drive to cut in half Napoleon's 1812 horse-drawn attack on Moscow obviously has not been hitting on all sylinders up to date.

Half of his reputed forty-day time schedule for reaching the Russian capital—a march that took Napoleon ninety-odd days—has gone by. His fire-breathing tanks, ditch-leaping speed troop chariots, shrieking dive-bombers and terrioristic war technique have not yet brought him half way to his goal.

Napoleon found getting to Moscow relatively easy. It was getting away again that wrecked his army. The Nazi "Little Corporal" of 1941 must sometimes think of that o' nights at his field headquarters, presumably still somewhere in Central-Eastern Poland.

The thirteen weeks it took Napoleon to arrive at Moscow proved to be his undoing. Like Hitler he set out in June. A Russian winter, and an exceptionally bad one at that, caught him in a carefully set Russian trap.

Impossible distances separated his ragged and hungry veterans from supply bases to the westward. Around them lay a snow-mantled "scorched earth" Russia filled with phantom-like guerillas harrying their falnks and outposts night and day. Most of those French troops, as good fighting men as the world produces, died of hunger, cold or Russian attacks before they could back-track to their bloody crossings of the Berezina River, 300 miles from Moscow, at which Hitler's legions are now pounding.

Rely on Speedy Conquest

Authoritative tales are beginning to reach this side of the Atlantic from Nazi-conquered France and the Low Countries, even from Norway and Denmark, indicating the utter reliance the Nazi high command placed on its motorized fighting equipment to conquer quickly both the Balkans and Russia. This writer has talked with an eye-witness of the sudden disappearance of thousands of tanks and motor vehicles from German-occupied French cities.

They had been an awe-inspiring symbol of Nazi conquest in French eyes ever since the surrender by the "men of Vichy". Every open market square, public park, vacant lot, golf links or tennis court in this particular French port city was filled with such equipment. Tanks, trucks, staff cars, motorized guns, big and little, and all sorts and types of gas-engined war equipment stood endlessly hub to hub in these Nazi military parking lots.

Early in April they began to disappear. Travellers within the occupied regions of Southern France who came to town reported passing endless columns puffing and clunking along the roads, trekking northward, not southward toward the Spanish border. There was much speculation as to whether an attempted invasion of England was about to be launched.

Moving in February

Events proved it was not; but that Hitler had decided on wars in the East instead. To get eastward from that part of France his forces had to go north first.

Observers in France could make little of it all then. It is now clear, however, that even as early as February or March when he was predicting a spring sea-air victory over Britain, Hitler actually had thumbed his armies eastward for the Balkan war and his attack on Russia. He raked Nazi armies of occupation elsewhere to provide material for that, just as events have proved he ordered withdrawal of substantial portions of the air force from the attack on Britain.

The Nazi armies battling the Russians have been told that the fate of Hitler's Germany is in their hands. There can be no question about that. And if they cannot soon break the 2,000-mile virtual deadlock with the Red Army conclusively, far more conclusively than Napoleon did a century or more ago, another Western "Little Corporal" may see his vaulting dreams of world empire shattered amid the swamps and streams and rolling plains of Western Russia

BRITISH-RUSSIAN PACT IS PRAISED

Papers Predict Poland Will be Joined to Pact in Next Few Days

London, July 14 (CP)—London morning papers applauded the British-Russian pact with headlines and editorials today.

The Daily Herald (Labor) proclaimed: "Russia becomes our ally."

The Herald's diplomatic correspondent said the agreement was an alliance "in the strict sense of the term" and derided "some official pedant who produced the astonishing dictum that we and the Russians are not allies but 'co-belligerents.'"

Editorially, the Herald said the agreement would be "greeted with deep and general satisfaction in both countries and, indeed, by all the world other than the supporters and dupes of Hitler."

The Daily Mail, (Conservative) in a page one article by its diplomatic correspondent, Wilson Broadbent, predicted Poland would be joined to the pact in the next few days.

Editorially, the Mail said the agreement was the "logical outcome" of Prime Minister Churchill's announced policy, which should be "welcomed as both realistic and resourceful."

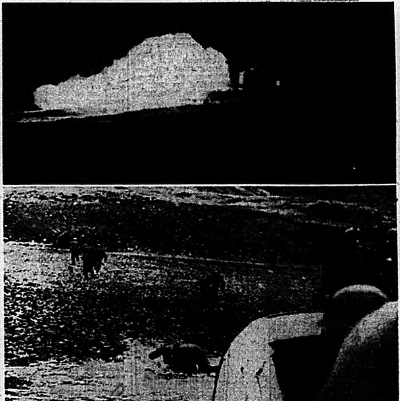
NOW BRITISH PRACTICE "INVASION" TACTICS



Of more than passing interest is the fact that the British, as shown here, are putting the accent on "invasion" tactics in manoeuvres. All-Time Record for Hitting Run to 53 Consecutive Games By Bat-Wielding Joe Dimag

Yankees Down White Sox Twice to Go Five Games Up in American Loop

CARDS GAIN GROUND

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

For the benefit of those who think baseball's second name is DiMaggio—and vice versa—this is as good a time as any to point out that pitchers really still are of some use in the game.

Of course, none of 'em look any good when jolting Joe is waving his war club at them these days. The big guy connected safely twice yesterday, as the sizzling Yankees swept a twin bill against Chicago, to run his all-time record for hitting to 53 consecutive games.

But; despite the fact that Joe's carefree attitude has dragged the elbowing fraternity into low repute, the boys who deal 'em off the arm in the majors generally showed up the slugging specialists on Sunday's full schedule.

In the 15 games on the big league card, three tossers served shutouts four more gave up only one run. Ten of the twirling jobs were six-hitters or less, with southpaw Ken Heintzelman of the Pirates and old Rufus the Red Ruffing, the Yankee key man who turned in his seventh straight win, pace-making the parade.

Yanks Five Games Up

After the firing ended, there were the Yanks riding a 14-game winning streak and five full games in front of the American League pack, while the Dodgers' National League lead was narrowed to 2 1-2 games over St. Louis Cardinals, largely because Claude Passeau, who served up that home run to Ted Williams in the All-Star game, didn't have any more of the same on hand.

Claude, who labors for Chicago Cubs, threw a neat six-hitter at the Brooklyns in the opener of a twin bill, and, with the backing of a 16-hit attack on the part of his mates, it was no trick to take a 10-3 victory. In the afterpiece, Leo Durocher asked young Newt Kimball how he'd like to start his first game of the year, and Newt thought so well of the idea he set back the Cubs with a six-hitter for a 3-1 victory.

Cards Pick up Full Game

This split enabled the Cards to pick up a full game by the simple means of flailing the Phillies twice. Lon Warneke's eight-hitter produced a 7-2 win in the opener, while Bill Crouch came up with a sparkling four-inning relief job to save an 8-5 decision in the second act.

It's a toss-up between Ruffing and Heintzelman for the best pitching performance of the day. Rufus the Red went to work in the nightcap for the Yanks, had a no-hitter going into the eighth inning and wound up with a 1-0 three-hit win in 11 innings for his 10th victory of the year. In the opener Spud Chandler gave his jinx and the Sox a kicking around. He pitched five-hit ball to win his first victory of the campaign, 8-1.

Hurler Tosses Two-Hitter

Heintzelman pitched two-hit ball, allowed only one Giant to get as far as second and tossed the Pirates to a 4-0 picnic in the first game for his third straight triumph. This boosted the Bucs' winning streak to seven straight, but it ended right there as Bill Terry's Terriers came back to take the nightcap 8-2 behind Hall Schumacher's five-hit hurling.

Missing was Ted Williams from the Boston Red Sox lineup. He hurt his ankle Saturday and with the fireman's bat out, the Red Sox run-making machinery had monkey wrenches in it and they lost two to Cleveland 2-1 in 11 innings and 9-6 in nine.

As usual oposing batsmen couldn't solve Elmer Riddle from Cincinnati and unbeaten Elmer posted his 10th straight win by blanking Boston Braves with five hits for a 4-0 Red victory. Manny Salvo and Tom Earley combined on a nine-hitter to beat Paul Derringer 6-5 in the second game.

Knott of A's Wins

Even old Jack Knott of the Athletics was in the parade. Turning in his fourth win in his last five starts, he downed Detroit Tigers 5-4 with five hits, despite two homers by Pinky Higgins.

Washington walloped St. Louis 7-3 and 6-5 as a quartet of Nat pitchers allowed only 13 hits through the 18 innings.

In Saturday's games Cincinnati finally defeated Brooklyn 3-2 on six-hit pitching by Bucky Walters after the Dodgers had walloped the Reds by lopsided scores in the first two games of their series. The Giants, with rookie Carpenter going almost all the way, downed the Cardinals 6-4 while Pittsburgh jumped on the Phillies for a 6-1 victory. The Cubs were rained out at Boston.

In the American League New York defeated St. Louis Browns 7-5 and Boston Red Sox scored a high-hitting twin victory over Detroit, 7-5 and 10-2. The Senators defeated Chicago 5-3 and Connie Mack's Athletics downed Cleveland 42.

TENNIS

Toronto, July 14. (CP)—Ross Wilson took the best that Montreal's best netmen could toss his way for a whole week but when the Ontario Tennis Championships concluded the hard-stroking Toronto Star was still the kingpin among the province's singles players.

Wilson turned back Phil Pearson —one of three Montreal players to reach the semi-finals —in four games in the finals Saturday to complete a successful defence of his title. The scores were 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2, Wilson's placing overcoming Pearson's strong net game.

Mrs. Frank Fisher gave Toronto the other singles' title when she beat Mrs. Donold Mundell, Ottawa, in straight sets. The finalists were seeded No. 1 and 2, and Mrs, Fisher, with the higher ranking, emerged the winner 6-4, 6-4.

Wilson lost his chance to cop honors in the doubles when his Davis Cup teamate, Bobby Murray of Montreal, developed a sore back late in the week. The honors in this event went to Bill Pedlar of Toronto and Pearson, who represented Canada in the 1939 Davis Cup competitions, Eddie Condon and Morris Margesson of Ottawa, went down before the champions in the finals 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Mrs. Fisher teamed up with Miss Jean Burritt to take the women's doubles championship from Mrs. G. Lewis and Miss Winnifred L. McConnell, Ottawa, 6-3, 6-3 6-1 while Pedlar picked off another title when he paired with Miss Evelyn Effnert of Toronto to win the mixed doubles from A. McKnight and Mrs. G. Lewis of Ottawa. The scores were 6-3, 3-6, 6-0.

LOSE VOTE

Hornsey, Eng. (CP)—Twenty-one and twenty-two-year-olds are without a vote these days although their parents struggled to win it at 21. The reason: no electoral register has been published since Oct. 15, 1939.

HEAVY-HITTING HULL B AND B TEAM NOW FIRST

Score Three Victories During the Past Week, One Over Ottawa

KINGSTON LOSES

By The Canadian Press

The heavy-hitting Hull B and B team is in first place in the interprovincial baseball league, 1 1-2 games ahead of Ottawa Royal Canadiens.

Three victories during the past week, one of them over Ottawa, enabled B and B to break a first-place deadlock with Royal Canadiens and advance into undisputed League leadership.

On Wednesday B and B, with the Veteran Dominic (Lefty) Ba Baro pitching steady ball, defeated Ottawa 6-1. B and B collected only nine hits and Andy Broder but the young Royal Canadians hurler was erratic and issued six free passes.

Saturday B and B journeyed to Kingston and outslugged ponies for their second victory of the week, 7-5, and Sunday they handed Smith's Falls Railroaders their second loss in two days when they blanked them 6-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Wally Driscoll.

Kingston journeyed to Hull Sunday and defeated Hull Volants 3-0 with a three-run uprising in the last inning of the seven-inning game.

Arnold Jarrell, 18-year-old Kingston pitcher allowed Volants only one hit. Romeo Giroux spoiled his bid for a no-hitter when he singled in the last inning.

Besides their 6-0 loss to Hull B and B Smith's Falls dropped a Saturday game to Hull Volants, 7-3.

A crowd of 2,000 largest to attend a ball game at Smith's Falls in several years, watched Railroaders lose to Volants.

Royal Canadians visited Buckingham Sunday and rapped out 16 hits from two Buckingham hurlers for a 6-0 victory. Wib Corcoran shut out Buckingham with a six-hit performance.

As a result of the week's play, B and B are in first place, Ottawa in second and Kingston in third, trailed by Volants, Smith's Falls and Buckingham in that order.

MONTREAL TEAM IN THIRD PLACE OF INT. LEAGUE

Win Twin Bill From Rochester Red Wings to Move Up Notch

LEAFS BEATEN TWICE

(By the Associated Press)

On the theory that old Dodgers never die but merely fade away, the Montreal Royals still can be considered as a threat for the International League pennant.

The Royals, Brooklyn's No. 1 farm club, have several fading ex-Dodgers who still are able to help a class "AA" team a lot if they can show just a little of their old-time form.

For the past several weeks, Chet Kehn, Ed Head and Wes Flowers have been carrying the burden of the Montreal pitching. And in spite of that difficulty, the Royals are only 7 1-2 games behind the league-leading Newark Bears.

Head and Flowers divided the mound duties yesterday and got some excellent support as the Royals whipped the Rochester Red Wings, 6-3 and 2-1, to climb past the losers into third place.

The double victory didn't put Montreal any nearer the top, for Newark and Buffalo also won doubleheaders. The league leaders called on their home run power to down Baltimore Orioles, 6-2 and 3-2, and Buffalo's Bisons took a pair of one-run decisions from the last-place Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-5 and 3-2. The other twin bill saw Syracuse down Jersey City, 3-2 and then take a 14-2 beating.

Homers Help Bears

Homers by Frank Kelleher and Ken Sears boosted the Bears along to their opening victory, Kelleher clouted his 26 of the season with one aboard. Then as George Washburn and Elmer Burkart hooked up in a mound duel, Tommie Holmes tied the score with a four-bagger in the fifth inning and Fred Collins won it with another in the seventh.

A pinch homer by Ollie Carnegie, the old iron worker, produced three Buffalo runs in the first game as the Bisons scored four in the seventh to tie the count. Dutch Meyer, playing his last game for Buffalo, knocked in the winning run in the eighth to give Freddie Hutchinson his 17th win of the season. Jim Trexler turned in a four-hit mound job in the afterpiece.

Meyer Recalled by Tigers

Meyer, key man of the Bison infield, was recalled yesterday by the Detroit Tigers, who sent down the veteran Eric McNair to take his place.

Nate Andrews' steady pitching gave Syracuse its first triumph over Jersey City in ten starts but there was nothing steady about the Chefs' flinging in the nightcap. After three regular moundsmen had been battered down, the outfielder, Bill Nagel, who has been filling in at third base, took the final turn.

On Saturday Montreal defeated Baltimore 3-1 on five-hit flinging by Kehn. Toronto split a pair with Jersey City, losing the first 3-2 and taking the second 4-3. Newark defeated Buffalo 4-1 although outhit 9-6, and Rochester nosed out Syracuse 7-6 in a 10-inning thriller.

VICTOR GHEZZI WINS PGA CROWN ON 38TH HOLE

Defeats Defending Champion, Byron Nelson, After Coming From Behind

AN EPIC CONTEST

By LOUDON KELLY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Denver, July 14—(CP)—It was only a 30-inch putt and it wobbled into the cup like any duffer's effort but to 6 foot 3-inch Vic Ghezzi it was worth $500. and his first Professional Golfers' Association title.

The handsome Deal, N.J., veteran won the championship and the $1,100 top prize after nine years' trying in a 38-hole epic with defending champion Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, against the mountain backdrop at Cherry Hills yesterday.

And the missed shot that cost the Texas-bred Nelson the last chance a his second straight crown and the difference between first money and the $600 he won was a putt of the same 2 1-2 foot length.

Picture the scene on the second extra hole of the up-and-down struggle, with a tense gallery massed around the green by the lake in the hot late afternoon sun:

Both players, worn from physical and nervous strain, failed to reach the carpet of the 400-yard hole with their seconds.

First Ghezzi chipped on, then Nelson—both expertly close.

Unable to determine which was the farther from the cup, they flipped a coin and Nelson won. He putted first and went by at the right. Then Ghezzi, with $500 and the long-sought title riding on his grass-stained blade, went in by the right side.

Ghezzi never before had won a championship of this importance. He showed the fighting heart of a true champion in coming from behind. Nelson was three up at the 27-hole station and it looked as though nothing would stop him.

It was Byron's third blood-tingling championship scrap in three years in this greatest of match play fixtures for the professionals. He was beaten by Henry Picard in 37 holes two years ago and beat Sam Snead, the Canadian open champion, in 36 last year.

At Cherry Hills Ghezzi equalled par for the 38 holes.

Nelson was one over par.

Ghezzi, who never before had cleared the third round of the P.G.A., said 'I feel like a kid on Christmas morning."

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

DID YOU KNOW—Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants and Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, of the Yankees share the distinction of having pitched in the most number of Major League All-Star games? . . Each have appeared in five contests. . . King Carl has failed to receive credit for either a win or a defeat in any of his appearances. . . Gomez has been credited with three wins and one loss. . . Gomez is the only pitcher in either league who has won more than one all-star game. . . He registered victories in 1933, '35 and '37 and lost in '38. . . Prior to Arky Vaughan hitting two home runs in Detroit the other day, only two other players had previously hit two round-trippers in any one contest. . . They were Lou Gehrig and Frankie Frish, but in these cases the circuit clouts came in different games. . . Vaughan is the only player to hit two four-masters in a single contest, however.

Do you remember when Walter Hagen won the Canadian open golf championship one up in a 36-hole playoff with Percy Allis of England ten years ago today at Toronto? The playoff was forced when the two golfers finished the regulation 72 holes in 282.

"Sure, we have guys who don't feel good," Manager Casey Stengel of the Braves replied last week, when asked about rumors of unhappiness on his club. "So does Brooklyn," added Stengel. "Do you suppose those two Dodgers who were fined for taking airplane lessons are happy about it? But we don't have any real trouble." In reply to a specific question about Outfielder Max West, Casey said: "If you were a player who thought you had a chance to be traded to a pennant winner and get that extra $5,000 from the Series, you'd feel a little badly, too, about being on a seventh-place club."

Publisher Sam Curry of the Tweed News, is about the happiest guy around the shores of Stoco Lake today. Over the week-end two fine muskinonge were taken from the waters adjacent to Mister Curry's printing office when Ross Fetterly, of Toronto, landed a 25 - pound 'lunge, while Mike Gadaby, who hails from the seat of the International "Soap Box Derbies" in Akron, Ohio, gaffed a 30-pound "muskie." Both were taken from Stoco Lake as well as several fine catches of pickerel and bass over the week-end. What made "Printer Sam" so happy about the whole thing was the fact that Mr. Fetterly made Sammie a present of the 25-pound "muskie," fins, scales and all. "That fellow is going to be mounted," promised Sam as he gazed with a minor degree of satisfaction of at least being the proud possessor of such a fine fish.

DiMaggio has hit safely in his last 53 consecutive games, a feat that should make Ty Cobb's ears burn with envy. . . . DiMaggio has only to hit safely in eight more contests to tie the minor league record of 61. . . . Seven errors cost the Kingston Ponies a 7 to 5 loss at the hands of the Hull nine in the Interprovincial League on Saturday. . . . Tommy Farr is coming to America soon and Montreal is after a proposed Farr-Red Burman go. . . . Give him plenty of line, bud.

NEW WAREHOUSE UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Construction of a new warehouse building at the Reliance Aircraft and Tool Company's plant on Water Street, together with alterations to their present factory at a cost of approximately $7,000, is underway. The warehouse is being constructed to make more room in the present factory, part of which has been in use as a storage room. Industrial expansion necessitating the installation of additional machinery in the present factory was responsible for the move, it was stated.

After 3 Weeks Russian Army Still Holds Front

New York, July 12 (AP).—Winding up three weeks of war in the east the Red army still held its front today as the Nazi military juggernaut found itself up against the first land foe in almost two years that was not defeated or on the verge of collapse in 21 days of invasion.

France was the only other invaded country actually in the fight after three weeks of German attack, and for her the end was in sight. Guns still were banging after 21 days in Poland, Norway and Greece but the operations were only a mop-up.

In contrast, the Red army has given ground but held its line. It was shoved out of most of the newly-Sovietized buffer territory of Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia, Eastern Poland and Bessarabia, but has stalled the Nazi push at least temporarily inside the border of old Russia.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Give Us Wings"

Presenting the famous Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys in a swiftly-paced comedy drama, Universal's "Give Us Wings" is the current attraction at the Capitol Theatre.

The new film relates the experience of a group of boys engaged in aerial crop-dusting considered the most perilous form of civilian aviation.

Dramatic events which follow the death of one of the lads, ordered by his unscrupulous employer to fly a condemned plane, are said to bring the story to a stirring climax.

Billy Halop is seen as the leader of the Dead End group which includes Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, Bernard Punsly and Bobby Jordan.

Wallace Ford, Victor Jory, Anne Gwynne and Shemp Howard have other important roles.

"Jennie"

If you've ever faced "in-laws" or ever expect to, you'll want to see the human, dramatic story which is depicted in "Jennie", 20th Century-Fox film now at the Capitol Theatre.

This story of a courageous young wife who tames a family tyrant, holds the man she loves and brings joy into eight empty lives, was originally written by Jane Eberle for "Story Magazine", meeting place for some of the world's greatest short story writers. And in bringing it to the screen, Executive Producer Sol M. Wurtzel employed the talents of a hand-picked cast to play the difficult character roles.

The title role is played by blonde Virginia Gilmore, Hollywood's exciting new dramatic discovery who, as a result of her splendid work, has been entrusted with the leading feminine role in "Western Union", one of the studio's most ambitious productions.

Others in the powerful cast include William Henry, George Montgomery, Ludwig Stossel distinguished European actor, Dorris Bowden who achieved fame as "Rosasharn" in "The Grapes of Wrath" Jean Valerie and Rita Quigley, who scored a sensational hit as the daughter in "Susan and God".

When "Jennie" marries she acquires a tyrannical father-in-law in the person of Ludwig Stossel, who attempts to dominate her as he does his family. But Jennie's different—and you'll cheer her on as she battles in a woman's way to hold her husband's love and teach unhappy people what fun living can be.

Previewers have hailed "Jennie" as stirring, different and exciting entertainment. The film was directed by David Burton. The screen play was prepared by Harold Buchman and Maurice Rapf.

The same program includes an interesting short subject, "Stranger Than Fiction".

AT THE BELLE

"The Great American Broadcast"

That Alice Faye is popular with fellow actors as well as the public was attested by the "Standing Room Only" sign that was placed on the door of Stage 15 of the 20th Century-Fox studio where Alice sang her numbers from "The Great American Broadcast," in which she co-stars with John Payne, Jack Oakie and Cesar Romero.

Each time the blonde songstress was scheduled to "give out" with a bit of melody, both the stars and the studio staff made a bee-line for Stage 15.

The words and lyrics of her numbers written by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren especially for "The Great American Broadcast," now at the Belle theatre, meet with the high Gordon and Warren standard. There was one element, however, which almost proved a stumbling block.

As the film tells the gay tuneful story of the courageous talented persons who first filled the air waves with song and laughter, time had to be considered. A good deal of the music naturally is of the 1919 vintage—B.S. (Before Swing), and Alice has a tendency to swing it out.

But she conquered this tendency and thereby kept her music chronologically straight. When the point was reached and swing was permissible, Alice was able to deliver her songs in the inimitable Faye fashion.

Considered one of the most effective "song pluggers" on the screen, Alice should make the Gordon and Warren tunes; "Long Ago Last Night," "I Take to You," "I've Got a Bone to Pick With You," "Run Little Raindrop, Run," "The Great American Broadcast," "Where You Are," and "It's All In A Lifetime," as popular as those she's sung in previous pictures.

The featured cast of "The Great American Broadcast" includes Mary Beth Hughes, The Wiere Brothers, The Nicholas Brothers and The Four Inkspots.

The same program includes the Belle News of the day, a colored cartoon, and "The Battle of the Atlantic."

AT THE McCARTHY

"A Yank at Oxford"

Robert Taylor, Vivien Leigh, Lionel Barrymore and Maureen O'Sullivan four of the best known screen favorites in the entire world, head the cast of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's great production "A Yank at Oxford" now showing at the McCarthy theatre.

A he-man, athletic characterization on the part of Taylor, rounded and convincing performances by Lionel Barrymore and Maureen O'Sullivan, and fine contributions by a group of outstanding British players, make the film memorable. Particularly to be noted are Vivien Leigh as the "other girl," Griffith Jones as Taylor's undergraduate enemy, Edmund Gwenn as the Oxford Dean, C. V. France as the tutor, and Edward Rigby as Taylor's "scout."

The consistently fast tempo of the film, its comedy which provokes gales of laughter, its thrilling athletic sequence, especially in the climactic Oxford - Cambridge boat race, are all attributable to the guiding hand of Director Jack Conway, who has established a high mark for which his American successors in England can shoot.

Phantom of Chinatown"

As an added feature attraction of merit, Keye Luke, formerly a featured player in the "Chan" detective mystery films, plays his first starring role in the first of a new detective series, which is entitled, "The Phantom of Chinatown." Latest Fox news events is also presented. The "Glasbake" piece this week is the custard cup and coupon for the large oval baker.

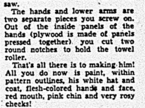
Jolly Chef Towel Holder You Make From Pattern



Easily Cut From Plywood

You've no servant problem with this chef! Delighted to be of service, he holds out a roller of towels, beams all over his face!

He's a handy size for your kitchen wall—12 by 12½ inches—and you can make him easily. First trace his pattern through carbon paper on to plywood ½ inch thick (birch is best for cutting). Then cut him out with a coping or jig saw.

The hands and lower arms are two separate pieces you screw on. Out of the inside panels of the hands (plywood is made of panels pressed together) you cut two round notches to hold the towel roller.

That's all there is to making him! All you do now is paint, within pattern outlines, his white hat and coat, flesh-colored hands and face, red mouth, pink chin and very rosy cheeks!

Use house paint—it blends nicely —adding a little yellow and red to white, for the flesh tint. Finish with varnish.

Fun to make, too, is a colorful Cat-and-Dog House-Number board! Our set of "Woodcraft Patterns" includes patterns and complete directions for cutting and painting Chef Towel Holder and Cat-and-Dog Number Board. Also has pattern and directions for Chef Paper-Napkin Holder. How to make the chef pieces from solid wood, also.

Send 15c in coins for your set of WOODCRAFT PATTERNS to The Ontario Intelligencer, Home Service, 166 Front Street. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and NAME of pattern set.

THEY ARE BOGGING DOWN NAZI ATTACK

Despite Nazi Germany's claims of tremendous successes against the forces of Soviet Russia, this Russian tank crew seems unimpressed by the weight of the Nazi war machine. These men and their comrades of the Soviet mechanized forces are responsible for the little progress being made by Germany in its latest invasion. Time and time again Nazi attacks and troop concentrations are being smashed by Russian tanks, according to news dispatches.

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN

Released by Central Press Association

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

"ONCE," SAID Betsy cheerfully as she served Tom with more hot coffee and pushed the toast-rack closer to his plate, "I read in a book about George Washington that he wrote in his diary, 'This night Mrs. Washington and I did something I dare say we have not done in 20 years—sat down to dinner alone.' I know exactly how he felt."

Tom grinned at her. "The honeymooners DO get in one's hair a bit, don't they?" he admitted companionably.

"And under foot no end," answered Betsy. "Would you think me a low, dirty so-and-so if I admitted that I wouldn't mind if tomorrow was the end of the month?"

"And they'd be going?" said Tom. "I don't like to upset you, my treasure—but had you stopped to realize that we'll no more than see the last of the present crop until another will loom up on the horizon?"

"It's pretty discouraging, in a way," Betsy admitted. "Do you suppose we'd be violating the will if we took a few days off in between visitations?"

"Something you'd like to do?" suggested Tom politely.

"Yes," said Betsy. "I'd like a chance to play around with you—just the two of us. We had fun before they came, didn't we?"

She caught her breath almost before the words were said. Her color deepened and her eyes would not quite meet his. Her hands shook a little as she moved the silver beside her plate, and then she looked up at him defiantly, tilting her chin at an angle that dared him to laugh at her. "Oh, I'm not making a pass at you," she assured him hastily. "I'm still in love with somebody else, and I still remember that I'm not your type. It's just that—well, you ARE fun, and we did have good times together. And—well, darn it, I like you!"

Tom bowed. There was a twinkle in his eye, but he was quite grave as he answered, "That's swell—because I like you, too. You're a swell little pal, and a week or two of being alone would give me a chance to really teach you to fish and to swim. We'll stave off the next invasion for a while."

"Thanks," said Betsy happily.

"For what?" asked Tom, puzzled.

"For understanding that I wasn't trying to get you to—to—get all sappy about me," answered Betsy frankly. "Last night when Terry McKay just about snapped your head of in the kitchen for asking about supper, and I barked at her, I was afraid you'd—well, go getting ideas or—something."

"Don't worry. I never get ideas—not that sort of ideas, anyway."

It was a curious thing that instead of looking pleased and relieved at such assurance, she looked a little dashed, as though she had hoped for an entirely different answer. But as he helped her clear the table and wash the dishes, she chattered determinedly about other things.

They had just finished when they heard the sound of a speedboat.

"Too early for the mail and supply boat," said Tom, frowning a little. "Now, what do you suppose has happened?"

"I wouldn't know, but we could go find out," suggested Betsy, leading the way down the path to the pier.

As the boat came in and tied up at the pier, a man jumped ashore and Tom said, in a tone of real pleasure, "Why, it's Hugh Powell! He must have some news about Blake."

Hugh greeted them warmly and said at once, "I knew you'd want to hear the news. We've got Blake—and with the goods on him. He'll be under lock and key for a good many years."

"Good work!" said Tom. "How did it hpapen?"

"Well, it started with your tip," returned Hugh. "Farnkly, we'd never have suspected him — or probably not for quite a while—if you hadn't admitted your suspicions of him. After that, we kept a sharp eye on him. Sure enough, he stuck his neck out—and we got him! He was loaded to the gills with oil and manganese leases scattered all over South and Central America. We knew no man with Blake's capital could handle all of that. And we moved in on him. He was all set to be dictator of the United States, 'come the revolution' he and his crowd are so fond of discussing and foretelling."

"The man must be crazy," exploded Tom.

"Sure. Most of his kind are. But crazy men can be pretty dangerous," admitted Hugh. "Of course, his plans couldn't have worked out successfully — but in squelching him and his crowd, a lot of regular guys might have been hurt. Well, he'll be the guest of the government for a good many years to come—so you can put you're mind at rest about his designs on Halcyon Island."

"When he didn't make any further effort to take over the island after the shipwreck business, I knew he was pretty slick and that you were going to have trouble getting him," said Tom. "It must have been a plenty tough job."

Hugh grinned. "Oh, well, my department thrives on tough jobs," he said cheerfully. "No, thanks, I can't stop. I've got a bunch of work waiting. I just wanted to be sure you were among the first to know of Blake's downfall."

"Sure you can't stay for lunch?" begged Betsy.

"Sorry," said Hugh, grinnnig down at her, "but I'm thinking seriously of throwing myself on your hospitality before too long—for the purpose of which Halcyon Island was intended. In other words, may I spend my honeymoon here?"

"If you don't, we'll sue you," Betsy promised him darkly. He laughed, shook hands, and a moment later his speedboat was bobbing away across the water.

"Was that the mail?" Mrs. Edmonds said gaily behind them.

"Oh, good morning," said Betsy. "No, that was Mr. Powell. He came to tell us that the men who threatened us—the shipwreck crowd, you know—have been arrested."

"Oh, that's a relief," said Mrs. Edmonds, and turned to her husband who was approaching. "Oh, Willie, they've arrested the spies who were trying to make use of the island. Isn't that wonderful?"

"No more than I expected," said the major, vigorously. "I knew Powell's department wouldn't fail. It seldom does."

"Do my eyes deceive me?" murmured Mrs. Edmonds. Her attention was caught by the sight of Brocks and Natalie approaching, hand in hand, looking into each other's eyes with the unmistakable light of love for all the world to see. "My dear, can this be true? They've been at daggers' points for days."

Betsy looked up at Tom, met his eyes, and murmured for his ears alone, "See what I mean?"

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smcking to himself in his private chair, saying, O deer, life is just one dissapointment after another.

That's the great philosophical discovery that comes with fresh surprise every time we make it, pop said, and ma said, Barclay Buxton and Valerie Vallence, the famous so-called ideal couple of the screen world. They're making a personal appearance at the Narcissis this week, and they had luntch on the Stitz roof today, and Maud Hews and I sat right at the next table. I could of reached out and touched Barclay Buxton with my hand, she said.

Why didn't you, is that the dissapointment? pop said, and ma said, Dont be silly, the dissapointment was in discovering as my own eye witness that they're just the opposite of being an ideal couple.

Why, what did he call her? pop said, and ma said, I didn't say he called her anything.

Well what did she call him? pop said, and ma said, It was quite obvious without any name calling. At least I mean it was obvious to me right at the next table, although everybody elts was probably taken in by the hippocritical way they were beeming into each others eyes, she said.

You mean he was cracking her in the shins under the table, pop said, and ma said, Certainly not, it wasn't even anything that suttle. All the time he was gazing at her reaching out and eating spring onions, while she wasn't even touching them. Now Willyum you know very well that one member of an ideal couple isn't going to eat spring onions unless the other one does, ma said.

And she started to do the bridge problem shaking her head and pop got in back of the sporting page shaking his.

Col. Wm. Donovan Addresses French On Bastille Day

New York July 14 (AP)—Col. William Donovan, newly-named Coordinator of Defence Information, told the people of France and her colonies in a Bastille day address today that "we are confident in the ultimate victory over that man who has devastated your land and who seeks to keep you in subjection."

Broadcasting in French, Col Donovan reminded the French people that "our coming in the war was a decisive factor in the Allied victory in 1918."

"We made a tragic mistake in withdrawing from the victory in 1919," he said. "We shall not make that mistake again. We see that the war was only interrupted. It has not ended."

Col. Donovan told the French people that they had been betrayed and defeated.

"Why and how, you know better than we," he added. "There is no shame in your physical defeat by a superior force. The only shame would be if there was a defeat of your soul."

Find French Sailing Vessel in Full Rig But Crew Missing

Lisbon, July 14—(AP) — The Portugese Lugger Islandia which had been chartered by the International Red Cross to carry gifts and mail for British prisoners of war from Lisbon to Genoa arrived from Genoa today with a mystery of the sea recalling the famous Marie Celeste story.

Captain Amadio Mathias said that while in the Mediterranean near the Gulf of Lyon the Islandia saw the French cutter Belle Isle with sails set yawing in a light wind. The Islandia hailed the cutter but got no relowered and the cutter boarded. sponse whereupon a boat was

There was no one on board and there were no signs of a fight having taken place.

(The Marie Celeste was a schoner found drifting in the the Eastern Atlantic on a warm sunshing day in 1872 wwtih sails set and everything on board intact. Captain and crew and the captain's wife had vanished though there were indications they had been on board perhaps only a few hours before the ship was sighted and boarded.

(What happened to them remains perhaps the prime nautical mystery of modern times and has been the subject of endless speculation in books and articles.)

American Hospital To Be Built in England

BY ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Somewhere in England, July 14. — (CP) —Giving medical aid to Britain, the American Red Cross and Harvard University are building a 126-bed hospital for communicable diseases among the troops and the hospital superintendent is a Canadian-born doctor, G. F. T. Houser.

Native of Humberstone, Ontario, near Port Colborne, Dr. Houser graduated from the University of Toronto Medical School in 1926 and then went to the United States. Some members of his family still live in Toronto and for the past ten years he spent his summer vacations at Port Elgin, Ontario.

Located on the top of a hill outside a town, the hospital is being built entirely of materials broght from the United States. Everything from safety pins to refrigerators used in the hospital crossed the Atlantic.

It is called the American Red Cross Harvard Field Hospital unit and is the first of its kind established by the Americans in this war. A group of American nurses have arrived in England to work here when the hospital starts operating in August.

POLICE COURT

Four motorists who failed to heed last week's warnings from Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., regarding the discontinuance of speeding over city streets, found it was rather costly to disregard this city bylaw. Today four motorists paid $5.00 and costs after being convicted of speeding on Cannifton Road over the weekend.

"If this fine isn't stiff enough to convince the driving public we intend to stamp out speeding on city streets, we'll double it the next time," warned Magistrate Butler as the above fines were paid today. The quartette apprehended speeding on Station St., over the weekend were Harold Collins, Garth Sharpe, Martin Fitzgibbon and Victor Clapp, while Norman Barriage, College Street, was fined $10.00 and costs after pleading guilty to driving a motor car without a driver's licence.

Asks Enlargement

Aubrey Reid asked for an enlargement until Friday when faced with a charge of drunk driving. Reid was granted his liberty on his own bail after he had assured the court he had resided some miles north of Belleville all of his life. On a similar charge Roy Sutherland claimed he was not intoxicated and his case was also laid over.

Held in Custody

P. K. Johnson, Picton, was remanded to the custody of the county jail charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, to wit the issuance of worthless cheques. The accused man was arrested late last week and is being held in custody pending reports from Kingston, where similar charges are pending, Detective Fred Isard stated today.

A juvenile case, held in camera, concluded this morning's proceedings, a 15-year-old boy was charged with breaking and entering the the Montrose Dairy office and committing the indictable offence of theft. The lad was given a suspended sentence and stern warning from His Worship.

JAPAN TIGHTENS CONTROL OF T & T. SERVICES

Tokyo, July 14 (AP)—Japan tightened control of her telephone and telegraph services today with orders that the languages used in messages abroad must be restricted by areas to Japasese, German, English, Chinese or Manchu and further limited within the empire.

The measure was explained editorially by the Japan Times and Advertiser, organ of the Foreign Office, as a precaution which must be taken "in this time of national tension everywhere."

"The experience of France and Norway is still vivid," it said. (This was a reference to nations which were undermined by fifth column activity prior to German invasions).

UNHAPPY

Only a Beginning

Mr. Churchill said "in a few weeks we have thrown on Germany about half the tonnage of bombs Germany has thrown on our cities during the whole course of the war but that is only a beginning and we hope that by next July our deliveries will be manifold.

"It is for that reason that I must ask you to be prepared for vehement counter-action by the enemy.

"I must admit that when the storm broke in September I was for several weeks anxious about what the result would be," the Prime Minister continued.

"We were then not prepared in the way we are now. And again I must admit that I feared great injury to our public utility services.

"I feared the ravages of fire. I feared dislocation of life and stoppage of work. I feared epidemics, serious diseases or even pesitlence among the crowds who took refuge in our by no means well-constructed or equipped shelters."

Mr. Churchill recalled the fierce attacks on Warsaw, Rotterdam and Belgrade and said "to Russia our hearts go out" in the present struggle. This passage drew prolonged applause.

Mr. Churchill addressed this remark to Hitler:

"You do your worst and we will do our best. Perhaps it may be our turn soon. Perhaps it may be our turn now."

"Ladies and gentlemen," Mr. Churchill said, "we live in a terrible epoch in the human story. But we believe there is broad and sure justice running through its theme."

Have Power to Keep Going

"It is time the Germans should be made to suffer in their own homeland and cities something of the torments they have twice in our lifetime let loose upon their neighbors and upon the world. We have now intensified for a month past the systematic, scientific and methodical bombing on a large scale of German cities, industries and other military objectives.

"We believe it to be in our power to keep this process going on a steadily-rising tide, month after month, year after year, until the Nazi regime is either extirpated by us or, better still, torn to pieces by the German people themselves.

"We shall continue the remorseless discharge of high explosives upon Germany."

"Our methods of dealing with German night raiders have greatly improved. They no longer relish their trips to our shores. It is not true to say they did not come this last moon because they were all engaged in Russia. I do not know why they did not come but it may be because they are saving up.

"But even if that be so the very fact that they have to save up should give us confidence by revealing the truth of our steady advance from an almost unarmed position at least of equality and soon of superiority to them in the air."

He warned civil defence workers to prepare "for a renewal of your exertions" and said "we shall not turn from our purpose, however sombre the road, however grievous the cost, because we know that out of this time of trial and tribulation will be borne freedom and glory for all mankind."

NAZI AMBASSADOR LEAVES

Ankara, July 14 (CP)—Nazi ambassador Count Friedrich Von Der Schulenberg and more than 200 German nationals crossed from Soviet Russia into Turkey yesterday. He had made a week's halt on the Russian side of the frontier pending arrangements for Russia's Berlin diplomatic staff to pass from Bulgaria into Turkey.

The German ambassador to Turkey, Franz Von Papen, chartered a plane to fly Schulenberg to Germany as soon as he arrives in Ankara. Vichy, French, Italian and Finnish diplomats were reported travelling with a party of 237 Nazis. Russians arriving in Turkey numbered 1,069.

come, but . . . it may be because they were saving up.

Moon Seen Have Superiority

"But even if it should be so, the very fact that they have to save up should give us confidence by revealing the truth of our steady advance from an almost unarmed position to a position at least of equality and soon of superiority to them in the air."

At the luncheon, Mr. Churchill deplored that "we live in a terrible epoch," but he told the men and women of the civil defence services "we believe there is broad and sure justice running through its theme."

Britain's air blows now are stronger than the Germans' and will remain so, he promised the outdoor throng, "until we have beaten down this horrible tyranny."

"The courage of Londoners under an unexampled strain," he declared, "not only enabled us to come through what many might have thought a deadly peril, but impressed itself upon every country and gained us scores of millions of friends in the United States."

"You have just come out of one long, hard battle and may at any moment enter upon another. For the moment there is a lull, but we must expect that before long the enemy will renew his attacks upon us.

Gives Crowd Laugh

"I do not hesitate to say that an enormous advance in the United States toward making their contribution to British resistance thoroughly effective has been largel influenced by the conduct of Londoners and of men and women in our provincial cities in standing up to the enemy's bombardment."

The crowd laughed when the Prime Minister said Hitler and "very large (air) forces close at hand and if he has not come to London recently it certainly is not because he likes us better."

He pledgen anew that "we shall prosecute to the end this righteous war for freedom and the future of mankind," and said:

"We shall not turn from our purpose, but we can only achieve that purpose if we have behind us a nation sound to the core and in every fibre."

POWERFUL

Pskov, at the southern tip of Lake Peipus, 150 miles southwest of Leningrad, is 30 miles north of Ostrov, where communiques last week placed the fighting. Vitebsk, 300 miles west of Moscow, is sixty miles closer to the capital than Lepel and Polotsk, where last week's battles raged. Novograd Volynski is the same western Ukraine front mentioned in Red Army reports for two weeks.

The Nazi push to the fortified Dnieper on the central front was acknowledged in the announcement that the Russians had recaptured Zhlobin, on the west bank of the river 35 miles southeast of Bobruisk and Rogachev, a few miles farther north and on the east bank of the river.

"In the northwestern direction," the Soviet communique said, "large enemy motorized and mechanized forces attempted to develop an offensive, but by staunch resistance of our troops the enemy was checked everywhere and at some places was thrown back suffering heavy losses.

"In the western direction, our troops recaptured the towns of Vhlobin and Rogachev. In other sectors in this direction violent fighting against large enemy infantry forces and tanks continued throughout the day (Sunday.)

Claim Heavy German Losses

"In the southwestern direction our troops continued operations against enemy motorized and mechanized units, resisting their advance eastward."

In a summary of the war as fighting went into its fourth week the Soviet information bureau said the efforts of the Nazi Air Force to beat the Red air fleet from the skies had failed, said the pick of Nazi divisions had been destroyed by the Red army, and placed German losses in killed, wounded and missing at "no less than 1,000,000 men."

Soviet losses of 225,000 men were acknowledged.

The information bureau said the Russian air force in three weeks destroyed more than 2,300 enemy planes with a loss of 1,900 Russian aircraft.

Destruction of more than 3,000 Nazi tanks was reported, against the loss of 2,200 Russian tanks.

Nazis Change Tactics

The Red Army communique indicated that the Germans had halted the heavy around-the-clock attacks which marked the first stages of the invasion. It appeared that the Germans were using their full force by day and mostly resting at night now that the period of the "white nights" are ending and nights of real darkness are setting in.

During the first offensive, when light never really left the sky, the Germans fought on a 24-hour schedule. This carried them through the western border provinces — the Baltic States and the Polish buffer zone.

In the new offensive which began Saturday, Pskov, Vitebsk and Novograd Volynski remained as the centres of the main operations —threats, respectively, to Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev.

The Germans were reported forced to adopt new tactics in deployment of armored columns. During the first offensive the Germans sent tanks dashing unprotected through the Russian lines, achieving tremendous speed but suffering heavy losses.

Now, says a Soviet press account, the Germans are sending batteries of anti-aircraft guns and squadrons of Messerschmitt fighter planes along with their tanks, sacrificing speed the better to combat Russian bombers.

The Russian air force still is harassing the tanks, it was said, and fighters engaged the Messerschmitts.

The Saturday accord for joint action by Britain and Russia was welcomed today by Russians who believed it to be the final link enclosing Germany within two fronts and assuring eventual Allied victory. The official press reported that crowds throughout the country cheered yesterday's radio announcement of the pact.

Melbourne, July 14 (CP)—Prime Minister R. G. Menzies said today Australia had been consulted beforehand on the Russia-British joint action agreement and that Australia was in accord with the step.

"As to what special action, if any, Australia can take about Russia, that is an entirely different question,' he said, "because our forces are fully occupied on their own fronts.

"In the last effort, the best assistance to be given by all parties is for Russia to conduct her campaign on the eastern front with vigor, for Britain to maintain aerial attacks against Germany in the west and for imperial troops to pursue our own campaign in the middle east. I should perhaps make it clear that this agreement with Russia in no sense affects our internal policy."

"PATRIOTISM"

Here and there various lodge bands of fife and drum gathered to tune up for the big parade. Every shade was embodied in the fantastic color scheme.

By twelve o'clock parking space was at a premium and the traffic directors including lodge officials and Provincial Police were kept busy keeping the road clear. The event, held to honour the Day of Victory for the Battle of the Boyne under King William the Third was characterized by ancient costumes and plumes as the army of occupation moved in. Gaily garbed Marshals with their brilliant tunics and high hats were picturesque in appearance as compared with the Canadian soldiers of 1941, who sauntered about the grounds. Another prominent modern touch was given the event when several large bombers from the Trenton Air Training School flew low over the crowd.

Nearly Seven Hundred at Dinner

The ladies of the Wallbridge Institutes gave a real display of efficiency as the large church shed was transformed into a modern cafeteria. Hundreds of people of all ages were served by the ladies with the last possible delay and the quality of the food was of the very highest calibre. Refreshment booths in various parts of the grounds were patronized continually throughout the day.

Music never ceased for a moment and the amplifying system installed for the occasion by Jack Ormiston of Stirling worked wonders both in the reproduction of recorded music and the voices of the speakers, which could be heard for nearly a mile. This enabled sports fans to watch, the ball games and listen to the speeches at the same time.

Colorful Parade

Then came the highlight of the day. "The Walk" an event never missed by any thorough-going Orangeman. The parade, marshalled by Dave Farrell, Belleville County Marshall for South Hastings, got underway directly after dinner and was more than a mile in length as it made its way past the waiting crowd twice through the town and then to the enclosure for review and dismissal. Ladies of the L. O. B. A. ,old veteran members of the L.O.L. and tiny children members of tomorrow's lodges all joined in the grand march. Drum and fife and the sounding of the ever popular bagpipes thrilled the waiting crowd who lined both sides of the line of march.

Lodges in Parade

The parade climaxed within the enclosure, where the lodges lined up before the speakers' stand for review of the spectators each vieing for leadership in honours for smartness of appearance and receiving an appreciative hand from the watchers.

Patriotism, Theme of Speeches

With Bro. Francis Johns County Master for South Hastings acting as chairman, a series of addresses by prominent citizens of the district and leading lodgemen remained entirely on a Patriotic theme. County Master Johns, a full blooded Indian from the Mohawk Lodge quickly adapted himself to the public address system and completed his duties as chairman with a thoroughness to be envied by the majority of public speakers. Among the prominent men of the order present were W. E. Tummon, Ex.-M.P., R. D. Arnott, M.P.P. South Hastings, Rev. F. Beazer, Rev. Leslie Harding, Rev. Porter Bennett of Nebraska and Mr. W. C. Mikel of Belleville, who also spoke briefly.

Rev. F. Beazer, Grand Chaplain of Ontario East

Urging his listeners to rally to the present call of the British Empire in the cause of liberty, truth and justice, Rev. Beazer stated that many Canadian young men had already given their lives in our defence along with those stout hearted citizens of the British Isles. We owe it to them to renew our obligations. The celebration of the victory of the Battle of the Boyne was made possible through the sacrifice of blood and tears. We today honour those, who made that sacrifice but now must be ready and willing to stand firm in the faith, which gave our fathers victory over oppression and slavery. Today there stands, that man Hitler who would crush all before him. He has done so until at the moment he is stopped by his former ally and friend Russia. Patriotism is more than a diplay it is downright loyal activity in which we should all have a willing part. We have been awakened by the sad experience of the smaller European nations. We know where we stand. So I appeal to young men to rally willingly round the red white and blue with renewed zeal and victory will be the reward.

Richard D. Arnott

"There is no doubt in my mind, what the outcome of the present war will be", declared Richard Arnott, "Britain with the aid of her loyal allies including the great United States with her all-out-aid plan will be victorious". But we must acquaint ourselves with the great debt we owe to those heroes of the Motherland in the front line of activity. This celebration today is made possible by their bravery honour and sacrifice. We also owe a great debt to U.S.A. for her loyal help, but there is great need for concentrated effort on the part of every loyal Canadian to accelerate the Empire effort. We need men, money, munitions and fighting moral. Those who can should be giving freely. Then also for the postwar days, we need leadership to avoid the calamity that followed the 1914-18 conflict. Here the L.O.L. can contribute much. It can strive for greater membership organize young people to take up future positions of leadership. We are a bit inclined to sit back and say it can't happen here. Let us look at all Europe and now Russia, they all said that, but it happened. Hitler and his destruction run wild and we must stop it over there.

So today the Great Loyal Orange Order can give most to the cause by encouraging enlistment and enrolling young people into organized fellowship, that they may be trained leaders of tomorrow".

W. E. Tummon stated "there was more than the British Empire at stake in this great conflict. All the young women present to become active in some of the auxiliary units such as Red Cross etc., etc. "Your duty lies in doing the things at hand. We must all have a share in this victory that must yet be earned through sacrifice," said the speaker.

W. E. Tummon

Mr. Arnott also appealed to the world and things Christian were at stake and today as we recall the heroism of our fathers we can do no better than stand firm in the faith, which their blood made safe. Two thousand years ago a lone man walked the road to Calvary bearing a wooden cross from which the radiant light of love has beamed for twenty centuries. Today there is another cross a crooked cross, the Swastika, a crooked cross with a negative meaning. One stands for love, brotherhood, equality and tolerance. This is the cross of Christ. The other, Hitler's cross stands for racial superiority, hate, destruction and murder. Which of these two are we to follow? It must be one or the other. The straight cross of the Christian upon which Christian Democracy has its foundation or the crooked cross of Hitler".

Greetings From U.S.A.

Rev. T. Porter Bennett of Omaha, Nebraska, a former citizen of Sidney Township also addressed the gathering briefly. Canada and the British Empire can't go down to defeat without a hundred and thirty million citizens of the United States of America going down with them. When Britain falls, one hundred and thirty million Americans must fall first. That's how much we'er in this thing", declared the visitor amid cheers from the crowd. Former Magistrate Mikel of Belleville, was final speaker of the day and in his remarks drew a geographical word picture of the situation if Russia should fall to Hitler. "It is only twenty-odd miles across the Bering Straits from Russian soil to America."

Sports Program

In the sports division of the afternoon's program three fine softball teams representing Rawdon, Sidney and Tyendinaga townships battled in a tournament that was exciting for a large number of fans. The first game was a real thriller with Rawdon township lads taking the decision by a score 7-10. In the final set-to the Northern lads had little trouble downing the Tyendinaga aggregation and run up a total of twenty-six runs to six.

Teams in the Tournament

Text of Churchill's Address to Workers

New York, July 14 (AP)— The text of Prime Minister Churchill's address as heard here by the National Broadcasting Company follows:

Mr. chairman, ladies and gentlemen: It seems to me odd that it should have taken the catastrophe of the great World War to bring me for the first time to this hall, and I am very glad indeed to find that by the time the call came, the hall had not already ceased to exist. You have taken in this building some of the blows and scars which have fallen upon London, but, like the rest of London, you carry on.

The impressive and inspiring spectacle we were witnessing in Hyde Park this morning displays the vigor and the efficiency of the civil defence forces of London. They have grown up under the stress of emergency. They have been shaped and tempered by the fire of the enemy, and this morning we saw them all in their many grades and classes—the rescue and first aid parties, the casualty service, the decontamination squads, the fire service, the report and control centre staffs, the highways and public utilities services, the messengers, the people. All these were seen in our lovely English summer morn, marching past, men, women, in all the pomp and panoply not of war, though it is war, but of civic duty. There they marched and as one saw them passing by, no one would but feel how great a people, how great a nation we have the honor to belong to.

How varied, complex, sensitive, sincere is the society we have evolved over centuries in this island, how capable it is of withstanding the most prodigious, the most unexpected and the most fractural strains.

Set Full Fury

The first thing we saw this morning were the representatives of nearly a quarter of a million organized staff, servants in the defence of London, who in one way or another stand at their posts and take an active part in the maintenance of the life of London and of Greater London under attack, which when it began and while it was at its pitch was unexampled in history. And what we saw today in Hyde Park was only symbolic of what can be produced, though on a smaller scale, throughout the length and breadth of this competent and embattled island.

In September last, ladies and gentlemen, having been defeated in his invasion by the Royal Air Force, Hitler declared his intention to raze the cities of Britain to the ground.

And in the early days of that month, he set the whole fury of the Huns upon London. None of us quite knew what would be the result of a concentrated and prolonged bombardment of this vast centre of population. Here in the Thames Valley, over eight million people had a very high level of modern civilization. They were dependent from day to day upon light, heat, power, water, sewage and communications of the most complicated character. The administration of London in all its branches was confronted with problems hitherto unknown in London.

Needn't Worry About Consequences

Public order, public health, the maintenance of all the essential services, the handling of the millions of people who go in and out of London every day, the shelter not indeed from the enemy's bombs, for that is beyond us, but from their blasts and spitfires, the shelter of millions of men and women, taking the dead and wounded from the shattered buildings, the care of the wounded, where hospitals are being ruthlessly bombed, the provisions for the homeless, sometimes amounting to many thousands in a single day, and accumulating to many more after three or four days of successive attack, the welfare and the education amid these scenes of our great numbers of children here, all these present a task which viewed in cold blood beforehand might well have seemed overwhelming.

Indeed, before the war, when imagination painted the pictures of what might happen in great air raids of our cities, plans were made to move the government, to move all the great controlling services which centre in London and disperse them about the countryside. And also it was considered a very great danger which had to be met that some wave of panic would send millions of people running out into the countryside over all the roads.

Well, ladies and gentlemen, when you are doing your duty and you are sure of that, you needn't worry too much about the dangers or the consequences.

Anxious About Results

We have not moved in this war, except by the promptings of duty and conscience and, thereore, we did not need to be deterred from our action by the picture which our imagination and which careful thought painted of what the consequences were, and in the long run, as so often happens in grave times, the evils were found not to be insurmountable or unmanageable, and so having to control the panic rush out of London. One of the principal difficulties of the municipal bodies represented here has been to deter an undue return of those who had already been evacuated in order to share the ups and downs, the dark and the bright fortunes of this mighty gathering.

I must say, however, I admit when the storm broke in September, I was for several weeks very anxious about what the results would be. We were then not prepared, as we are now. Our defences had not the advantages they have since the raids. I must admit I feared the ravages of fire; I feared the dislocation of life and the stoppage of work; I feared the epidemic of serious diseases or even pestilence among the crowds, who took refuge in our by no means completely constructed or well equipped shelters.

Describes Incident

I remember one winter evening driving to a railway station which still worked, on my way north to visit the troops, but it was cold and raining; darkness had almost fallen on the blacked-out streets. I saw long queues of people, among them hundreds of your girls in their silk stockings and high-heeled shoes, who had worked hard all day and were waiting for bus after bus which came by already overcrowded, never reaching their homes for the night, and when at that moment the doleful wall of sirens betokened the approach of the German bombers, I can tell you my heart bled for London and for Londoners.

This sort of thing went on for more than four months. I used to hold a meeting of my ministerial colleagues, all the ministers, every week in Downing Street, in order to check up and see how we stood. Sometimes the gas had failed over large areas, the only means of cooking for great numbers of people, sometimes the electricity— never breathing a complaint about their shelters or about conditions in them. The water was cut off, railways were cut or broken; large districts were destroyed by fire; 20,000 people were killed and many more thousands were wounded. But there was one thing about which there was never any doubt — the courage, the unfaltering, unconquerable grit and stamina of the Londoners showed itself from the very outset.

Without that, all would have failed. But upon that rock all stood unconquerable; all the public services were carried on and all the intricate arrangements, far-reaching details, involving the daily lives of so many millions were carried out, were improvised, elaborated and perfected, in the very teeth of the cruel and devastating storms.

Pays Highest Tribute

I am very glad to come here today to pay my tribute and to record in the name of His Majesty's Government our gratitude to all the civil authorities of London who first under Sir John Anderson and from the darkest moment under the courageous and resourceful leadership of Mr. Herbert Morrison, so long master of London county council, and now acting faithfully, skilfully and devotedly so that at least we made our way through the tempest and came for the time being, at any rate, into a calm spell.

During her long ordeal, ladies and gentlemen, London was upheld by the sympathy and the admiration of the other great cities of our island and let us not forget loyal Belfast in Northern Ireland. And when after the enemy, wearied of his attack on the capital, turned to other parts of the counrty, it is no extravagance of speech to say that many of us in our hearts felt anxiety lest the weight of attack concentrated upon these smaller organisms would prove more effective than when directed upon London.

Splendid Behaviour

However, the staunchness and vigor of London was shown by the splendid behavior of our ports and cities, when they in turn received the full violence of the enemy's assault. London is so vast and so strong, she is like a pre-historic monster into whose armored hide showers of arrows can be shot in vain. But a full measure of cruelty has been inflicted upon the great cities and seaports of the country, and I say here, when we are entitled to speak of London particularly, I say here that we honor them for their constancy in a comradeship of courage, of endurance and of triumph. Fellowship under this unprecedented novel pressure, hideous pressure, applied to modern communities, has united us all and it has proved to the world the quality of our island life.

Asks Question

I have no doubt whatever, as I said to the forces, the civil defence forces in Hyde Park this morning, that the behavior of the British people under this trial gains them progress in the minds and spirits and sympathy of the United States of America, which sweep into ignominy all the finest tricks of Goebbels' propaganda.

We have to ask ourselves this question, will the bombing attacks of last Autumn and Winter come back again? Mr. Chairman, we are proceeding on the assumption that they will.

Some months ago, I requested my right honorable friend, the Home Secretary and Ministry of Home Security, and his principal colleagues, the Minister of Health and others, to make every preparation for the Autumn and Winter war, and if we should have to go through the same ordeal as last year, only rather worse, I am assured that everything is being done in accordance with those directions. All arrangements for fire control and fire watching are being improved, perfected. Many new arrangements are being contrived after the results of the hard experience through which we have made. Our success is the result of making many mistakes and learning from experience.

London Can Take it

In the lull many new arrangements have been made, and if the lull is to end, if the storm is to renew itself, London will be ready, London will not wince, London can take it again. We seek from them no compassion, on the contrary, if tonight the people of London were asked to cast their votes as to whether convention should be entered into to stop the bombing of all cities, an overwhelming majority would cry, "No! We will mete out to the Germans the measure and more than the measure they have meted out to us." The people of London with one voice would say to Hitler: "You have committed every crime under the sun. Where you have been least resisted there you have been the most brutal. It was you who began the indescriminate bombing. We remember Warsaw in the very first few days of the war. We remember Rotterdam. We have been duly reminded of your habits by the hideous massacre on Belgrade. We know too well the bestial assaults you are making upon the Russian people to whom our hearts go out in their valient struggle. We will have no truce or parley with you or the grisly gang, who have worked your wicked will. You do your worst and we will do our best.

May Soon Be Our Time

Perhaps it may be our turn soon, perhaps it may be our turn now. Ladies and gentlemen, we live in a terrible epoch of the human story, but we believe there is a broad and sure justice running through its theme. It is time that the Germans should be made to suffer in their own homeland and cities something of the torments they have let loose upon their neighbors and upon the world. We have intensified for months past the systematic, scientific, methodical bombing on a large scale of the German cities, seaports, industries and other military objectives. We believe it to be in our power to keep this process going on a steadily rising tide, month after month, year after year, until the Nazi regime is either extirpated by us or, better still, torn to pieces by the German people themselves.

Increase Every Month

Every month as the great bombers are finished in our factories or sweep higher across the Atlantic Ocean, we shall continue the monstrous discharge of high explosive upon Germany. Every month will see the tonnage increased and the nights lengthened and the range of our people also grown to that unhappy, abject, subject province of Germany which used to be called Italy. They will have their fair share, too.

In the last few weeks alone, we have thrown upon Germany about half the tonnage of bombs thrown by the Germans upon our cities during the whole course of the war. But this is only the beginning. And we hope for this reason, ladies and gentlemen, Mr. chairman and Mr. minister, Mr. Home Secretary and other ministers concerned and other authorities concerned—it is for this reason that I must ask you to be prepared for severest counter-action by the enemy.

Methods Greaty Improved

Our methods of dealing with the German night raiders have greatly improved and are steadily improving. They no longer relish their trips to our shores. It is not true to say that they did not come this afternoon because they were all engaged in Russia. They have a bombing force in the west quite capable of making very heavy attacks. I do not know why they did not come, but, as I mentioned in Hyde Park, it is certainly not because they have begun to love us more. It may be because they are saving up, but even if that is so, the very fact that they have to save up should give us heart by revealing the truth of our steady advance from an almost unarmed condition to a position at least of equality and some of superiority to them in the air.

But all engaged in our civil defence forces, whether in London or throughout the country, must prepare themselves, ladies and gentlemen, for further hideous attacks. Your organizations, your vigilance, your devotion to duty, your zeal for the cause, must be raised to highest intensity. We do not expect to be hit without giving back, and we intend with every week that passes to hit harder. Prepare yourselves, my friends and comrades, in the Battle of London for the renewal of your exertions. We shall not turn from our purpose, however sombre the road, however grievous the cost. Because we know out of this time of trial and tribulation will be born a new freedom and glory for all of mankind.

OUSTED GERMAN CONSULS GENERAL MISS THEIR SHIP

Would Not Board Japanese Liner Without British Guarantee of Safe Conduct

SHIP CONTINUES TRIP

San Francisco, July 14 (AP) — A Japanese liner ploughed westward today without Fritz Wiedemann and Dr. Hans Borchers, expelled German consuls who missed the boat on purpose then spent 12 hours trying to catch it.

The two top-ranking Nazis refused to board the N.Y.K. liner Yawata Maru with their staffs and families yesterday, fearing that without a British guarantee of safe conduct across the Pacific they would be risking seizure at sea.

Two hours after the Yawata Maru sailed, word came from the British Embassy in Washington the Nazis would not be molested en route.

Wiedemann then tried to have the ship stopped. He radioed the captain asking that the Yawata turn about and come back for them at the German government's expense.

But the Japanese master replied he was sorry, in these words:

"Please express our greatest regrets we are unable to accept request to return."

Wiedemann, San Francisco consul-general who was once Hitler's commanding officer, then telephoned the Japanese embassy in Tokyo and the N.Y.K. line's main office there, and the Yawata was flashed to a halt some 90 miles at sea, awaiting developments.

Attempted to Hire Seaplane

Wiedemann then sought transportation to the Yawata. Without success he attempted to hire a seaplane or boat. He asked the Coast Guard for a cutter, and the United States navy for a destroyer. But he was told that neither branch could give him an answer until it was decided whether the Yawata would turn about.

Then, near midnight, the German embassy in Washington informed the consulate here that the Yawata Maru "is too far out and there is no possibility of her turning back."

Dr. Otto Denzer, ousted vice-consul here, said he could not book seats aboard a clipper plane for Tuesday, which would enable the Nazis to catch the Yawata at Honolulu, so the Germans decided to sail July 31 aboard the Japanese liner Tatuta Maru.

There was no word from the State Department, Dr. Denzer said concerning the Germans' delay in leaving the U.S. The deadline originally was last Thursday.

There remained a possibility the Nazis could fly east and join other German and Italian consular officials and agents leaving via the Atlantic on the liner West Point.

50 PER CENT REDUCTION IN USE OF GAS URGED

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

OCCUPATION OF SYRIA BOON TO BRITAIN

Sale is Restricted On All Week Days 7 P.M. to 7 A.M.

Order Issued by G. R. Cotrelle, Oil Controller Goes into Effect Soon

'GASLESS SUNDAYS'

Ottawa, July 15 (CP)—Non-essential use of gasoline and other petroleum products in Canada is to be reduced immediately by at least 50 per cent, voluntarily if the people will co-operate, otherwise by rationing, G. R. Cotrelle, oil controller, announced today.

Following are the steps being taken to attain this object:

1. Prohibition of sales, distribution and delivery of gasoline from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. week days, and from 7 p.m. Saturday to 7 a.m. Monday for week-ends.

2. An increase of one cent a gallon in the price of gasoline and other "white" products of petroleum, including kerosene and distillates used in tractors, effective tomorrow.

3. Prohibition of the use of credit cards, putting gasoline and oil sales on the cash and carry basis, and restricting sales to private consumers to retail stations only.

4: Initiation of a national campaign urging users to cut down drastically on pleasure use of motor cars, and explaining 17 ways by which motor fuel may be conserved by care in driving and handling cars.

Regulations governing hours of sale, use of credit cards and restricting consumer-purchasers to filling stations licensed for retail sales will become effective two days after the Controller's order has been published in the Canada Gazette. That may not be until the regular edition Saturday but Mr. Cottrelle said he was trying to get it published in a special edition.

Face to face with "a serious shortage of petroleum products," Mr. Cottrelle said his appeal was being made with confidence that the people would co-operate as a means of increasing aid to Britain and maintaining the efficiency of Canada's war effort.

"Should it be the case, which I do not believe, that every citizen will not join in reaching our objective, we have no alternative but to resort to the rationing card," the oil controller said.

In effect the people of Canada are asked to reduce the use of their private cars by half, and those who use gasoline and oil for other purposes than pleasure and convenience, to exert every effort to reduce consumption and eliminate waste.

Ask Tourists to Co-operate

The restricted sales hours and the one-cent-a-gallon increase will apply to motoring tourists in the Dominion the same as to Canadian residents but it was said here that tourists are not expected to cut their motoring by half inasmuch as they are in Canada solely for the purpose of getting from one point to another.

However, it is hoped tourists will observe the suggestions for eliminating waste usage while travelling and suffer a minimum of embarrassment through restricted hours of sale.

SGT. INSTRUCTOR KILLED IN CRASH

Aircraftman With Pilot Seriously Injured in Crash Near Winnipeg

Portage La Prairie, Man., July 15 (CP)—Sgt. Instructor Max Mills of St. Louis, Mo., was killed and LAC. James D'Ostroph was injured when the Royal Canadian Air Force plane they were flying on a routine training flight crashed near Oakville, 20 miles south-east of this town 50 miles west of Winnipeg.

Both men were attached to No. 14 elementary flying training school of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan here. D'Ostroph, whose home town in Ohio could not be learned immediately, was taken to hospital in Winnipeg. His injuries were believed to be slight.

Officers at the training school said it was not established which man was piloting the plane and that a court of inquiry will investigate.

Y., July 15—(AP)—Three members of the crew of a freight train of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad were killed early today when a locomotive boiler exploded, derailing 11 cars and ripping up both main tracks for considerable distance. German Treated With Indifference After Year of Occupation of France

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 15 —(CP)— A Free French spokesman, reviewing the situation in France after one year of German occupation, said the conquering Nazi who hoisted the swastika in Eiffel Tower, Paris last year is, in spirit, a "very different" person today.

"During these 12 months he has found a people who have been crushed but who are not beaten," the spokesman said. "He has found a country whose sons are prisoners and whose womenfolk will have none of him. He has not been welcomed as the glad messenger bringing tidings of a new order of United States of Europe—Hitler version.

"He has found instead, that he is a stranger in a foreign land. He has been treated with indifference and as an unwanted visitor who will soon be returning to his own country. He is ignored and never made to feel at home."

The plundering German this state of affairs was very distressing. He wanted to be envied and admired by the people of the country he occupied.

"This German weakness was soon realized by the French nation. . . . In one town where the best hotels are crowded with German soldiers and airmen, the people do not even stop to watch him as he marches daily through the main street, singing at the top of his voice to attract attention.

DOCKS AT BREMEN BLOWN INTO AIR BY RAF BOMBERS

In Hanover and Bremen Large Fires Started And Industrial Areas Severely Damaged

MANY TARGETS HIT

London, July 15 (CP)—The Air Ministry said today that thousands of incendiaries and many tons of high explosives bombs were loosed on objectives in the German cities of Bremen and Hanover during the night. The Royal Air Force also smashed at Rotterdam in the Nazi-occupied Netherlands, and other points in Germany.

In the two German cities large fires were started as the British bombers roared over their objectives. Docks at Bremen were blown into the air and bombs plummetted on industrial buildings at Hanover.

Many other targets were struck by super bombs in Northwest Germany. Five British planes were lost as the battering offensive against enemy territory grew in intensity.

(In Rome, the Italian High Command said the R.A.F. dropped bombs on Messina in Sicily during the night with damage to buildings and some casualties.)

BRITISH PLANES BOMB MESSINA

Rome Admits Bombing and Prepares Residents for Other Raids

Rome, July 15—(AP) — British planes bombed Messina, Sicily, last night, the Italian High Command reported today.

A Fascist source meanwhile said "The Italian people are ready for the eventual consequences" of air bombardments foreshadowed yesterday in a speech by Prime Minister Churchill in London.

"They understand that the war will be longer and harder," this source said in reply to what he termed Mr. Churchill's "low intimidations."

SOLDIER TIES NOTES TO BALLOONS

Fort Sheridan, Ill., July 15 (AP)—Some United States army soldiers firing machine guns at rubber balloons in anti-aircraft drill left something to be desired. The Post Newspaper says this was the reason: Lonely soldiers were attaching notes to the balloons asking "lovely ladies hereabouts" to write to them.

VITAL ORGANS REVERSED

Spokane, July 15 (AP)—His heart and abdominal viscera are on the right side and organs that should be on the right are on the left, but that won't prevent Charles B. Humphrey, Jr., 22, from having a naval aviation career. Lieut. M. M. Kales, Naval Reserve officer, said the former University of Idaho athlete who has joined the United States navy as an aviation cadet, appeared in perfect condition.

Russia Launches Major Offensive on Dnieper R., Drives Foe Back 19 Mi.

Moscow, July 15—(AP) — The Russian army was reported today to have launched a major offensive along the Dnieper River, crossing the river at several points north of Rogachev and pushing the Germans back 30 kilometers (about 19 miles.)

A dispatch from the front, timed 5 a.m. today (10 p.m. Monday, E. D. T.), published in Izvestia, the government newspaper, said the Russian drive westward was continuing.

It asserted that Rogachev, on the west bank of the Dnieper about 130 miles southeast of Minsk, was recaptured by the Red Army Sunday. This town has been the scene of bitter fighting, as the Germans drove across the river there in advance of their central columns aimed at Smolensk and Moscow.

No Change in Positions

The High Command's afternoon communique was silent on the Dnieper offensive but reported that fighting raged unabated throughout last night for the roads to Moscow and Leningrad. It indicated that there had been no change of the positions of the armies on the Ukrainian front.

The first Russian troops who crossed the river above Rogachev were reported to have destroyed German artillery batteries and concentrations of tanks and forced the German infantry to retreat.

During the night, the dispatch said, Germans shelled villages from which they had withdrawn. The Nazis also were said to have dispatched planes in an effort to check the offensive. Three planes were reported shot down by Russian anti-aircraft guns.

The front line was reported today to lie 30 kilometers (19 miles) west of Rogachev.

Red Air Fleet Active

Striking west through the darkness, the Red Air Fleet was said to have hammered German tank and motorized units behind the lines and one more raided the Rumanian oil centres at Ploesti.

For the second successive time the Moscow war bulletin mentioned no towns or sectors by name, thus leaving the actual front unidentified.

It reported: "During last night fierce fighting continued on the northwest and west directions. On the remaining directions and sectors of the front there was no major operation, and no particular changes in the position of troops on the front occurred."

Apparently referring to the southern front, the communique re-

RUSSIA

Berlin, July 15.—(AP)—German spokesmen claim a German tank corps menaced the city of Novogorod, 100 miles south of Leningrad, tonight.

Novogorod lies fifty miles from the main railroad running between Leningrad and Moscow.

DNB, the German News Agency, claimed the Red Army's attempts to maintain a defence front along the Dvina and Dnieper River regions east of the Stalin Line had been "frustrated" by German attacks.

The German High Command used a single sentence to describe events on the eastern front, saying "operations in the east are steadily progressing".

D.N.B., the German news and propaganda agency claimed, however, that the Red Army's attempt "to maintain a defence front" along the Dvina and Dnieper Rivers had been "frustrated."

(Moscow advices indicated the Russians had begun a counter-offensive in the Dnieper region.)

D.N.B. asserted the German push toward Leningrad was continuing 'despite efforts of the Russians to patch their front by rushing in hastily assembled units."

Commander Shot

The agency, citing alleged statements of Russian prisoners, said the commander of the Soviet army in the Baltic countries—Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia—and 10 officers of his staff had been shot. The reason, D.N.B. asserted, was believed to be the judgment of the Russian High Command that they had yielded positions in the Baltic region too early.

Meanwhile "pursuit operations after the breaking of the Stalin line continue swiftly," D.N.B. claimed. The agency also claimed Soviet tank-led counter-attacks in the Kiev area were repulsed yesterday.

D.N.B. asserted "strong Soviet tank units were completely wiped out as they tried to fill gaps in the bombarded fortifications of the Stalin Line".

On the Central Zone in the push toward Moscow, D.N.B. claimed a break-through at Opochka, mid-way between Polotsk and Pskov and near the Latvian frontier, but did not indicate the depth of the thrust.

Operations along the northern end of the Stalin Line, where Leningrad is the primary objective, were claimed to be going well.

Information concerning the campaign above the Arctic Circle, aimed at the Russian port of Murmansk, was limited to dispatches from Nazi soldier-reporters which told of obstacels overcome by a "swamp battalion".

Thirty-Three Persons Indicted

New York, July 15 (AP)—Thirty-three persons, rounded up in a Federal Bureau of Investigation spy hunt last month, were indicted by a Federal Grand Jury today and ordered to trial in September on charges of espionage.

Six xother persons similarly were indicted, but U. S. Attorney Harold Kennedy said they were at large in foreign countries, including Germany and Portugal.

The 33 were accused of conspiring to transmit information to a foreign government, and 31 of these were additionally accused in a second count of acting as agents for a foreign government without having registered with the State Department.

In intricate detail, the indictments, handed up to Federal Judge Robert A. Inch in a Brooklyn Federal Court, accused the defendants of having recruited agents, gathered data, received information, dispatched it, and paid agents for their assistance. Their activities were dated from 1936, the indictments set forth.

SENATORS WANT EXCHANGE RESTRICTIONS MODIFIED

Washington, July 15—(AP) — A group of senators from Canadian border states and Governor Sumner Sewell of Maine met today to discuss the possibility of seeking from Canada a relaxation of monetary exchange and travel restrictions imposed on Canadians as a wartime measure.

Those who attended the meeting agreed to send a committee to negotiate with the State Department and Canadian officials for modification of the regulations.

Device for Operating Car on Charcoal Gas Will Be Tested Soon

Quebec, July 15—(CP)—Co-incident with new Federal gasoline restrictions, a Quebec government official will drive to Ottawa this week in a motor car equipped with a device, which it is claimed, permits operation on charcoal.

The official is Louis Coderre, Deputy Trade Minister, who says he will attempt to "show the fuel and oil controllers that something can and should be done in this line". A one-and-a-half ton truck similarly powered also will make the trip.

The provincial department of Municipal Affairs, Trade and Commerce has backed research on the device, by which a gas obtained from a charcoal fire is used as a substitute for gasoline. It is said the mechanism has been experimented with in London and Australia.

Department officials say that the apparatus, which can be installed in an ordinary automobile, would cut the cost of operating a "small car" to three-quarters of a cent a mile.

Prof. Josaphat Alain of the Technical School at Three Rivers, Que., studied its operation in Europe and returned to do research work here. Date for the trip to Ottawa has not been set definitely.

London, July 15—(CP)—British, Australian and Free French troops today entered Beirut, capital of Lebanon, Reuters News Agency reported in a dispatch from Haifa.

BRITAIN, RUSSIA ARE NOW ALLIES SAYS CHURCHILL

Alliance Does Not Mean Britain Identifying Herself With Communist Creed

BENEFICIAL EFFECT

London, July 15 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill announced today in the House of Commons that the new Anglo-Russian agreement for joint war action against Germany is "an alliance" and that the Russian and British peoples now are Allies.

The Anglo-Russian alliance does not mean, Mr. Churchill declared, that Britain is identifying herself with "the Communist creed" or that she is "fighting the battle of Communists."

Semi-official circles previously had said the agreement, under which the two countries contracted to give each other assistance in the war against Germany and pledged they would not negotiate a separate peace except by mutual consent made the British and Russians "co-belligerents."

They saw a shade of difference between this and the term "Allies."

Situation Clarified

Clarifying the situation, an authoritative source said today:-

"Toward the end of last week it became possible to make a solemn agreement between the British and Russian people and of the great Dominions of the Crown for united action aaginst a common foe.

Mandatory Laws Respecting Use Of Gas Advocated

St. Thomas, Ont., July 15 —(CP)—Mandatory restrictions on the use of gasoline and oil in Canada by all drivers of pleasure cars and motor craft was advocated by Premier Hepburn today in commenting on the announced restrictions from Ottawa, which call for voluntary action on the part of motorists.

"I have no faith in a voluntary appeal to the public backed by an expensive advertising campaign," said the Premier.

In view of the expensive advertising campaign carried out to attract tourists and also the need of American dollars in Canada, Premier Hepburn said he felt some plan should be evolved whereby American motor tourists would not be restricted even if it meant additional sacrifice o nthe part of Canadians. Farmers engaged in war productions should not be restricted either in the operation of their motorized equipment.

CHILDREN PREVENT FIRE

Picton, Ont., July 15 (CP)—The seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Rosseau, Greenbay, prevented grass fire from burning their home yesterday. The parents were away at the time. The children carried water from a nearby well and beat the fire with wet sacks.

Young Wallace Rosseau said he saw a plane flying low overhead when suddenly a "ball of fire" dropped from the exhaust. It landed in dry grass and spread rapidly.

Hitler's Failure to Conquer Britain Gave Him 'A Colossal Reverse'

Quebec, July 15 —(CP)— In moments of doubt the people of the Empire should remember that Hitler, when he failed to conquer Britain last summer, received "the most colossal reverse of this war," Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner to Canada, said today.

Mr. MacDonald spoke to a joint meeting of the Men's and Women's Canadian Club of Quebec.

French Canadians, he said, felt a strong attachment to Britain, the guarantor of their liberty, but there was an additional thought which might touch them.

"Remember that you and we are also fighting for another fair land, the country that was the Motherland of your own ancestors," the High Commissioner said, speaking in French.

"Brave France has fallen for the time-being, wounded. But France is not dead. France is alive. And the hearts of the peasants in the French countryside and the citizens in the French towns beat true.

"We know they are listening eagerly to the British broadcasts. We know they are praying for a British victory. The reason why the Germans do not release the armies of French prisoners whom they hold captive is that they know that those soldiers would support the cry for liberty amongst their misled countrymen and that they would seek to fight shoulder to shoulder with their brothers and comrades of Free France."

Churchill States Victory Came at Opportune Time

British Forces Extricated From Great Danger Resulting From Loss of Crete

SEEK NO ADVANTAGE

London, July 15 —(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that the successful occupation of the Levant States by British and Free French troops "extricated our forces from the very great dangers by which they were encompassed in Crete."

"I hope it will soon be possible to give fuller accounts to the public than they yet have received of the Syrian fighting," he said.

The armistice, signed yesterday at Acre, Palestine, bringing to a close the fighting in the Levant States, was carried out in "a cordial spirit on both sides," Mr. Churchill said.

"That our relations with the Vichy government have not been impaired during these weeks of distressing fighting is a proof of the deep comprehension of the French people of the true issues at stake in the world," the Prime Minister said.

"We seek no British advantage in Syria. Our only object had been to beat the Germans and to help win the war. We rejoice that with the aid of forces of Gen. De Gaulle we have been able to bring to the people of Syria and Lebanon the restoration of their sovereign independence.

"If any one had predicted two months ago when Iraq was in revolt and when Syria and Iraq began to be overrun by German 'tourists' that we should by the middle of July have cleaned up the whole of the Levant and have re-established our authority there for the time being, such a prophet would have been considered most imprudent.

"The heavy but indecisive fighting at Salum (Egyptian border post) by our desert army and the stubborn defence for Crete in which grievous losses were inflicted on the enemy's airpower must be judged to have played their part in arriving at the general results."

Large Meteor Explodes High Over Colorado

Denver, July 15 (AP)—A meteor which exploded 10 miles high over extreme Northwestern Colorado two weeks ago rattled dishes 75 miles away and showered fragments up to the size of a baseball for several miles, reports Dr. H. H. Nininger, curator of meteors at the Colorado Natural History Museum. The body burst as it streaked toward earth probably at a speed of 20 miles a second, Dr. Nininger reported yesterday.

Members of ground crews in those battles, these men are now here to learn to be airmen.

Supply Question To Be Discussed Soon Churchill Promises

London, July 15 (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill announced today he will make "a full and comprehensive statement" in the House of Commons on the supply question shortly in order to "remove any mistaken impression which might be doing us harm in any part of the world."

The Prime Minister deprecated statements made during last week's parliamentary debate on supply, saying they had caused a feeling in Australia and the United States that there is mismanagement in British industry.

The remarks criticized by Mr. Churchill included one that the Ministry of Aircraft Production is "in chaos from top to bottom" and that one industry is working at only 75 per cent of capacity.

"These sensational statements do serious harm wherever they go," the Prime Minister said. "Moreover, they do not represent the immense and well represented efforts which are yielding remarkable results in almost every field of war production."

Kitchener, Ont., July 15 (CP)—A plane said to have been piloted by Edward W. Murphy of Dorchester, Mass., was landed safely in a wheat field six miles from here early today after the landing gear had been torn off by a wire fence.

Murphy, a leading aircraftman with the Royal Canadian Air Force, was piloting an Avro-Anson bomber and it was reported that motor trouble forced him to land. He was dazed but uninjured.

The plane si believed to have taken off from Burford about a half hour before the crash.

CHARGES PENDING OFFICER STATES

Making a lefthand turn in front of oncoming traffic, an automobile driven by Frank Whitton, Deseronto cattle drover, is alleged to have forced an east bound motor car, driven by Sylie Brant, Shannonville, into the ditch along Highway No. 2 about a mile west of Deseronto late Monday night.

The Brant-driven vehicle turned over twice into the ditch resulting in leg lacerations to William Sero, 23 of Deseronto, who was riding with Brant at the time. Sero was attended by Dr. H. A. Boyce, at Deseronto. Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch investigated and stated the Brant car was badly damaged as the result of the crash. Charges are pending against Whitton, the officer added.

MUSCOTE BAY YIELDS 25-LB. MASKINONGE

Muscote Bay, famed local "musky" fishing grounds, gave evidence yesterday of the presence of the big fighters when it yielded a twenty-five pound beauty to Ray Lockyer. Lockyer was fishing with Roy Anderson and had been in the vicinity but a short while when the lunge became curious. In a nearby boat were Steve Flintoff and Roy Killbank, who forgot all about fishing to become spectators of the brief but hard battle put up by the fish.

The catch is said to be one of the earliest musky hauls in years as the big fish disdain to take man-made lure until the season is well advanced into August.

The "lunge" was on exhibit today in the windows of Green's Butcher Shop on Front Street.

German, Italian Consular Officials Ready to Sail

New York, July 15 (AP)—The pride of the United States merchant marine leaves tonight on a maiden transatlantic voyage as strange as any in history. The great vessel will sail for Lisbon with nearly 500 passengers straight into war-dangerous waters.

Aboard will be German and Italian consular officials and other agents of Axis governments and their families who are quitting the United States by order of the State Department.

The ship is the 27,000-ton former liner America—largest merchant vessel ever built in the U. S. which has been converted into a navy transport and renamed the West Point.

Sailing time was scheduled for 4 p.m. E.D.T., but the mass departure of Axis nationals will be delayed pending the arrival of 16 German consular representatives flying here from San Francisco.

The latter group, including Dr. Hans. Borchers, consul general at New York, and Captain Fritz Widemann, who held the same post in San Francisco, planned originally to sail for Japan, but missed their boat while awaiting a British guarantee of safe conduct that came too late.

They chartered three transport planes and took off early today. With the usual flying time of 18½ hours, they should reach New York by 10.30 E.D.T. tonight.

Another eleventh hour development in the expulsion of this group which had been assured safe passage to Lisbon was the release last night of three Germans from Ellis Island.

The State Department turned loose Dr. Kurt Deith, former German ambassador to Austria; held on charges of violating immigration laws, and Dr. Manfred Zapp, and Guenther Tonn, Nazi newspapermen accused of neglecting to register as foreign agents, so that all three could sail on the West Point.

Rotarians Told Churchill Believes He Was Destined to Lead British

The comradeship and fellowship of the fighting services are tinged with a current of sadness, Flight-Lieut. the Rev. Gordon Hancock, Mountain View Air Station chaplain told the Belleville Rotary Club Monday.

"It is a sadness, that does not depreciate their fighting qualities, but brings out the fact that these men are going deeper into the war than scratching the surface. It is a sadness born of the seeming futility of expending all our energy and resources for destruction," he said.

"One pilot" he said, "stated that he was amazed at the spirit of hate that permeated the world. But we must ford the river of hate if we are to emerge high and dry on the distant shores of peace." The speaker quoted Professor MacIntosh of Queen's University who said: "We are not fighting for a better world, but to prevent a worse one."

The quality of Britain's leaders, Flight Lieut. Porter said, was heartening to all. Mr. Churchill would not have made a success as a peace-time prime minister, he is too much of the rugged adventurer. The quiet stodgy life of a peace time premier would not appeal to him.

"Winston Churchill," he said, "is operating under a sense of destiny. He feels that God has appointed a certain part for him to play and sometime he will fill that role. He was disappointed in the last war when he was not appointed Prime Minister, but when England was in her darkest hour she called upon the sturdy Churchill to lead her."

"We are living in an epoch of terrible suffering," he said, "and we need to have a rededication of ourselves in the task of fighting for democracy and peace. We need to not only whip the Germans, but to whip the indolence in ourselves. Through suffering, God will teach us valuable lessons."

He paid tribute to the heroic people of Britain and the unassuming characteristics of the men of the fighting services. "The now famous expressions, 'The Navy is Here' and 'The Navy's Out' carry a world of cheer and courage to Britishers all over the world."

He quoted the cases of two Canadian pilots, quiet lads who lived their lives in a simple way. They answered the call to duty and one now proudly wears the Distinguished Flying Cross for piloting a flaming bomber over Germany on his 38th raid, while another against orders, flew alone to Berlin and blew up a factory.

"These are fine instances of independent courage for which Canadians are justly famous" he said.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Howard Clarke while thanks of the club was voiced by Fred Deacon. President Bill Morrison was in the chair and congratulated the club on the success of its recent carnival.

Brantford, Ont., July 15 —(CP)—Mrs. Andrew T. Falconer, Brantford, has received word that her only son, Sapper Andrew Falconer, 32, Royal Engineers, is missing on active service. Sapper Falconer enlisted with the engineers at the beginning of last year and has been in Egypt for more than a year, taking part in the fighting in the Middle East.

Congressional Fight Foreseen Over Extending Army Service

Washington, July 15— (AP)—Administration critics acclaimed today a decision of congressional leaders to put aside a United States army request for authority to send selective service recruits outside the western hemisphere and forecast opposition to a proposal to keep the men in service more than one year.

Senators Burton Wheeler (Dem. Mont.) and Gerald Nye (Rep. N.D.) both claimed there was a 50-50 chance of defeating legislation to extend the service period of selectees and National Guardsmen beyond the twelve months prescribed by law.

The Senate Military Committee arranged to start hearings on the Bill tomorrow, a conclusion to press for its passage with full administration support apparently having been made by legislative leaders in a conference with President Roosevelt yesterday.

However, Majority Leader Alben Barkley of Kentucky and Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, majority whip, made it plan no effort would be undertaken at this time to enact legislation lifting the present ban against sending draftees outside the western hemisphere or American possessions.

Wheeler, foe of administration foreign policy, interpreted shelving of the request to remove the hemisphere limitation as evidence the President had "backed down" on it.

Claims Foreign Policy Made in London

Asserting that no military man "would have the termerity to say that there is a prospect that we will be invaded," Wheeler told reported.

"It is time to quit kidding ourselves that American foreign policy is being made in Washington. The fact is that Churchill, and his banker friends in London, are making it. They want us to send not only money and materials, but men to defend the British Empire."

Wheeler declared last night that William R Davis, an oil operator whom the Senator described as having interests in several States, had advised the administration that Goering and Mussolini had been willing to come to Washington after the Polish campaign and with President Roosevelt's collaboration, write a peace for Europe

If peace had been made then, Wheeler contended, France and Belgium might have continued as independent states "and millions of people in Europe might have been saved untold suffering."

Says Nazis Promote Peace Proposals

Mayor LaGuardia charged in New York last night that Germany was trying to promote peace proposals in the United States. The mayor, chief of the Federal Office of Civilian Defence, addressed 40-Latin-American educationists.

He said a representative of the Berlin government disclosed the proposals to representatives of an American peace movement "with instructions to try them out and prepare the foundation of their acceptance."

Organize National Salvage Campaign

The War Services' Committee of the Women's Canadian Club is organizing the National Salvage Campaign authorized by the government to take place in this city. Regular weekly collections will be made and citizens of Belleville will be notified shortly as to the exact days when their salvage will be called for. In the meantime anyone wishing to have an immediate collection made may do so by phoning 2287, 118, or 1311. All citizens are urged to co-operate in this campaign and those who can give special time for driving trucks, collecting, sorting and packing please communicate with Mrs. McColl at 118. Voluntary help is urgently needed.

The campaign serves a two-fold purpose 1. The rescuing of materials needed for war purposes which usually find their way to the dump heaps, 2. The raising of monies for war charities. The Women's Canadian Club War Service Committee purposes to donate the proceeds from the Belleville Campaign to the local Red Cross.

Increased Activity In Tobruk Sector

Cairo, July 15 (AP)—Increased activity in the Tobruk sector of the Libyan front in which the British forces have inflicted numerous casualties on Axis forces in recent heavy encounters was reported today by the British Middle East command.

The British garrison at Tobruk, besieged since the Axis forces drove the main British forces back to the Egyptian frontier, has been striking out with "offensive patrols," the communique said.

"In recent hand-to-hand encounters we captured prisoners and inflicted many casualties on the enemy, who were surprised in their positions," it continued.

"So successful was one of these raids that it was incorrectly described in an enemy communique as a 'serious attempt' to break out of Tobruk."

The communique also reported that in Syria "action is now in progress to give effect to the terms of the convention which was signed yesterday."

The Royal Air Force reported attacks by its planes on Jura, in western Libya, and the coastal towns of Bardia and Bengasi, eastern Libya. At Jaura airdrome buildings were hit and "enemy transport aircraft on the ground were damaged by machine-gun fire," the communique said.

Fires and explosions were started at Bardia and Bengasi.

SAYS U.S. ARMY UNITS SHOULD HAVE BEEN SENT TO ICELAND

Washington, July 15 (AP)—Gen. George Marshall, United States Chief of Staff, was disclosed today to have told Congress that specially trained army units, instead of marines, should have occupied Iceland but were prevented from doing so because of difficulties presented by the one-year draft service rule.

Gen. Marshall made this statement in testimony given before the Senate Military Committee July 9 in support of legislation which would permit the rentention in active service of conscripts and national guardsmen for longer than one year.

While attempting to pass another motor car proceeding in the same direction on Dundas St. last night, an automobile driven by an American tourist, Malcolm C. Maloney, of Milwaukee, Wis., sideswiped a motor car driven by Louis T. Gill, 268 George St.

Traffic Officer Doug Ellis investigated the collision and was told Mr. Gill was slowing down owing to congested traffic, when Mr. Maloney attempted to pass from the rear. The front fender of the American car and the rear fender of Mr. Gill's vehicle were damaged, but not seriously.

Oshawa police reported the theft of a blue colored 1930 Oldsmobile coach, taken in that city early today. The vehicle carried Ontario licence plates number 530-V-5 when stolen.

Owing to the continued warm weather only the odd transient registers at the police station nightly seeking shelter. Only one has been registered thus far this week.

Soviet Airmen Appeal for Merger Against Fascism

Moscow, July 15 (AP)—In an open letter to United States aviators, three Soviet airmen who four years ago flew across the North Pole from Moscow to California appealed today for a merger of "the interests of democratic countries of the whole world" into a common front against Fascism.

The three are Mikhail Gromov, Andrei Yumosev and Sergei Danilin, who made their 6,262-mile flight in 62 hours and 17 minutes, landing four years ago yesterday.

Their letter said that flight "provided fresh proof of the close proximity of our countries" and added: "Now we are close neighbors not only geographically but are also united by common hatred toward Fascism, which brings ruin to culture and civilization."

Soviet fliers, they said, are not only fighting in defence, "but also are fighting for liberation of the enslaved nations of Europe from Hitler's yoke."

"Hitler's attempts to sow mutual distrust, strife and enmity among democratic countries in order to attack them one at a time met the proper rebuff in America.

"We Soviet fliers are certain that in our struggle with Hitler your sympathies are on our side. At the same time we are certain that the attiude of such persons as Lindbergh—whose pro-Fascist position had been exposed by Soviet fliers as back as 1938—is despised by all honest American fliers who perfectly understand what this person is after."

Aeroplane Magazine Lists a Number Of 'Attractive' Targets

London, July 15 (CP)—The Aeroplane, authoritative British aviation magazine, lists a number of "attractive" targets in France worthy of attention by bombers of the Royal Air Force.

Listed as one of the most atmobile factory at Billiancourt, near Paris. The plant covers 55 acres of land in a wide bend of the River Seine, west of the city.

Renault's have been building tanks since 1916 and they are now forced to build them for the German army. They are also supplying other essential war materials.

The Hispano-Suiza plant is named as another good target for bombers, easily found and not buried in the heart of a residential area. Citroen presents more difficult targets. There are four separate factories in different Paris districts but the plant at the Quai Du Javel might be located without much trouble.

Revival of Interest In Cadet Training Appears Likely

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 15 (CP)—A revival of interest in Cadet Training Courses at schools across Canada is anticipated by National Defence Headquarters for the coming school term.

"All the signs indicate that youngsters in public and high schools in Canada want to learn all they can about army life," an official in the Defence Department's directorate of military training said.

A generalized syllabus pointing to increased emphasis on fieldcraft, woodcraft, map-reading, signalling and First Aid was prepared by the Defence Department for use of the three cadet instructor camps now under way in Canada. They are at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., Farnham, Que., and Sarcee Camp, near Calgary.

Thirty potential instructors chosen by District Cadet officers attend the four-week courses. The great majority of them, it was learned at the Defence Department, are public or High School teachers taking advantage of the summer vacation to attend.

SENATOR GLASS CALLS FOR REPEAL OF NEUTRALITY ACT

Would Reestablish Freedom of Seas and Show Hitler "We Are Not Afraid of Him" Says Senator

Washington, July 15 (AP)—Senator Carter Glass called today for immediate repeal of the United States Neutrality Act, to reestablish freedom of the seas for American shipping and show Hitler that "we are not afraid" of him.

The act bars American merchant ships from combat zones fixed by the President, and Glass, in his first interview since his recent election as President pro tempore of the Senate, said "we ought to wipe that thing off the Statute Books....

"It never should have been passed at all," the 83-year-old Virigina Democrat said. "It gave up the freedom of the seas, for which we had been fighting since the beginning of the nation.

"It was passed because a lot of people were afraid of Hitler. We should tell him now that we are not afraid."

Repeal of the Act would clear the way for ships under the American flag to carry goods into British ports. While he did not couple the two ideas directly Glass said the United States "should take any steps necessary to see that our war materials are delivered to Great Britain."

"I think we are in war already," he said. "We have done a lot of things that might give Germany an excuse for declaring war against us. I think we should continue our present course and should do everything possible to get the goods across. Then we can leave it to Germany as to whether or not there will be a declaration of war."

Glass, who has supported President Roosevelt's foreign policy vigorously, declared that "if the Germans make the challenge (of war) then we ought to meet it."

U. S. Tourists To Be Informed Of Regulations

Ottawa, July 15 (CP)—The Canadian Travel Bureau will make every effort to inform United States tourists of the new Canadian gasoline regulations and the reasons for them, D. Leo Dolan, Bureau Chief, said today.

The new regulations announced by Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle, affect tourists in the same manner as Canadians through closing of gasoline filling stations from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. and from 7 p.m. Saturdays to 7 a.m. Mondays and a one-cent-a-gallon price rise.

However, it was understood here, that the request for a voluntary reduction of 50 per cent in consumption is hardly seen as applying to tourists. The fact that tourists can stock up with extra gasoline during the service station selling hours should mean they will be able to travel just as many hours and miles as they ever did with a minimum of inconvenience.

"We will try to inform all the tourists and prospective tourists we can, that this was an essential step and part of the war effort," Mr. Dolan aid. "We will explain that these regulations are a result of the war situation and that they had to be imposed."

Mr. Dolan said the regulation might hamper night travel by tourists "but we can still get many tourists travelling by day."

The Canadian tourist picture, he added, was most promising to date and he had every hope that it would be maintained with understanding of the regulations by prospective holidayers from the United States.

In the Ottawa area the one-cent-a-gallon price rise will mean that standard grade gasoline sells for 31½ cents a gallon.

PLEDGES SUPPORT TO SOVIET

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, is shown delivering the speech at Leeds, Eng., recently in which he said that Great Britain will do its utmost to help the Russians in the fight against Hitler.

Text of Churchill's Address to Commons

London, July 15 (CP)—The text of Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons today follows:

The statement that our industry is working only to 75 per cent of some unspecified standard and that the Ministry of Aircraft Production is in chaos from top to bottom gives the impression in the United States, and particularly in Australia, that these are ill-managed and we are not doing our best.

These sensational statements do serious harm wherever they go. Moreover, they do not at all represent the immense and well represented efforts which are yielding remarkable results in almost every field of war production .

I must regret it was not possible for me, on account of many other things, to be present in the House during the whole of the production debate. It is obviously not possible for considered ministerial answers to be made to such charges on the spur of the moment. It is not like ordinary party peacetime debates.

I have given directions that allegations of any serious substance should be sent to the departments concerned in order that they may be examined. I propose shortly to have a debate on these matters in public session and will myself endeavor to make a full comprehensive statement on the whole question in so far as the public interest permits in public session. I hope by this means to remove any mistaken impression which might be doing up harm in any part of the world.

United Action

Towards the end of last week it became possible to make a solemn agreement between the British and Russian peoples and of the great dominions of the Crown for united action against the common foe. Both the British and Russian governments have undertaken to continue the war against Hitlerite Germany to the utmost of their strength, to help each other as much as possible in every way, and not to make peace separately.

The agreement, which has been signed and the text of which has been published, cannot fail to exercise a highly beneficial and potent influence on the future of the war. It is of course an alliance and the Russian people are now our allies. General Smuts has made a comment which, as it entirely represents the view of His Majesty's Government, I should like to repeat now.

"Let no one," said General Smuts, "say we are now in league with Communists and are fighting the battle of Communism. If this Hitler in his insane megalomania has driven Russia to fight him in self defence we bless her arms and wish her all success, without for a moment identifying ourselves with her Communistic creed. Hitler has made her his enemy and not us friendly to her creed."

Poles and Russians Negotiate

The Foreign Secretary in these busy days has also been instrumental in bringing out a very great measure of agreement between the Russian Soviet State and the Polish Government. These negotiations have not yet reached a conclusion but we are hopeful that, aided by the statesmanship of General Sikorski, another important step will soon be taken in the marshalling of all the peoples of the world against the criminals who have darkened its life and menaced its future.

The good news from Syria is that a military convention has been signed in cordial spirit on both sides, putting an end to the period of fratricidal strife between Frenchmen and Frenchmen and between Frenchmen and British, Australian and Indian soldiers, all of whom drew the sword of their own free will to defend the soil of France.

The fact our relations with the Vichy government have not been worsened during these weeks of distressing fighting is a proof of the deep comprehension of the French people of the true issues at stake in the world—a manifestation of the same spirit which leads them to wave encouragement to our bombing aircraft.

We seek no British advantage in Syria. Our only object has been to beat the Germans to help to win the war. We rejoice that with the aid of forces of Gen. De Gaulle, we have been able to bring to the people of Syria and the Lebanon the restoration of their sovereign independence. We have liberated the country from the thraldom exercised by the German Armistice Commission and from the dangerous intrigues and infiltration which were in progress.

Praises eGn. Wavell

The historic interests of France 1 nSyria and the primacy of those interests over the interests of other European nations is preserved without prejdice to the rights and sovereigntq of the Syrian races.

The conclusion of this brief Syrian campaign reflects credit upon all responsible—upon General Wavell who was able to spare the forces t oput down the revolt in Iraq and afterwards to act in Syria.

Actual conduct of the campaign was in the hands of General Wilson, who extricated or orces from the very great dangers which they were encompassed in Crete. I hope it will soon be possible to give fuller accounts to the public than they have yet reecvied of the Syrian fighting, marked as it was by so many picturesque incidents such as the arrival of the Life Guards, Royal Horse Guards and Essex Yeomanry in armored cars across many hundreds of miles o desert to surrond and capture the oasis of Palmyra.

Position in Egypt Improved

We are entitled to say that the situation in the Nile Valley has, for the time being a any rate, been considerably improved. If any one had predicted two months ago, when Iraq was in revolt and when Syria and Iraq began t obe overrun by German "tourists", that we should by the middle of July have cleaned up the whole of the levant and have re-established our authority there for the time being such a proiphet would have been considered most imprudent.

The heavy but indecisive fighting at Salum by our desert army and the stubborn deefnce for Crete in which grievous losses were inflicted on the enemy airpower must be judged to have played their part in arriving at the general results.

AIR FORCE STAFF CHIEF OF U.S.

Brig.-Gen. Carl Spaatz who was appointed chief of the air staff of the newly established United States headquarters of the army air forces. In this capacity he is directly under command of Maj.-Gen. Henry H. Arnold, who becomes chief of the air forces, henceforth an independent unit within the war department though accountable to General George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

$2,330,000 Raised In Hastings County For Victory Loan

The total amount raised in Hastings County in the recent Victory Loan Campaign, is $2,330,000, or 126.02 per cent of the allotted quota of $1,18,000 according to a communcation received yesterday by Judge Charles A. Cameron, General Committee Chairman for Hastings, from Loan Headquarters in Toronto. In other words, the county oversubscribed its quota by $475,000.

Commenting on the splendid response of the residents of the county to the Victory Loan, Judge Cameron voiced his whole-hearted appreciation of the efforts of all who assisted in the campaign and those who subscribed so generously to it.

"I have received from the Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance in the Dominion Government, a letter in which he asked me to convey to all his cordial appreciation".

In his letter to Judge Cameron, the Finance Minister stated that the loan had come to a successful and very satisfactory conclusion. "I now desire to express to you and your organization", the Minister wrote, "my grateful thanks for the useful services, which you have given in the interests of the Loan. The manner in which laymen all over Canada came forward and rendered a high degree of service in this enterprise, has been a source of Inspiration to all of us and I can only say that I am profoundly grateful".

A SPEECH OF CHEER

Once again Prime Minister Churchill has rung the bell in a fighting speech that brought great cheers from his audience of 6,000 veterans of the Defence of London in a review at Hyde Park on Monday. His speech will bring consolation to the people of Britain and to the enslaved countries of Europe now cursed with the domination of Nazi power.

"It is time the Germans should be made to suffer," he said. "In their own homeland and cities something of the torments they have twice, in our lifetime, let loose upon their neighbors and the world." He, also, went on to say that the real bombing of the Reich is just beginning.

This is the kind of message that millions have been waiting for. It indicates that Britain's air strength is attaining a power that permits of a full offensive against Germany and that there is to be some retaliation for the suffering visited on the British people. It is a long road that has no turning but it seems that we are approaching one soon and that the way will be brighter with the hope of victory.

ALTITUDES IN HASTINGS AND P. E. COUNTIES

One of the most interesting publications to reach our desk recently is Altitudes in Eastern Ontario edited by R. H. Montgomery of the Surveys and Engineering Branch of the Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa.

The publication contains the elevation in feet above mean sea level of typographical features in the eastern portion of the province. This takes in the area east of Georgian Bay and the Counties of Ontario and Simcoe and southward of the District of Sudbury and the main line of the C.P.R. from North Bay to Mattawa, and Ottawa River. The book contains one hundred and forty-seven pages of data of great interest to the engineer, and to the layman as well.

However, while our portion of the province may have plenty of hills, none of them are unusually high the greatest altitude is the Summit on Opeongo road in Renfrew County which towers 1,654 feet. The highest railway station is Wallace in Nipissing District on the C.N.R. As a contrast the lowest altitude, 73 feet, is the Ottawa River at the foot of Carillon Canal, on the Quebec-Ontario boundary.

Most of us are mainly interested in the altitudes of certain points in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. For instance in Belleville at the C.N.R. station the level is 287 feet while at the C.P.R. station it is 27 feet lower. Trenton is 257 at the C.N.R. station and 295 at the C.P.R. station which is quite a difference.

As we go farther north in the county the altitude gradually increases. At Corbyville it is 333 feet and at Foxboro 348. Tweed shows 479 while at Actinolite it is 549 though Moira Lake's level registers 508 feet.

The public's idea of altitude as a rule is not very accurate. We asked several to guess how much higher the Oak Hills are than Stirling and the closest answer was several hundred feet wrong. At Stirling the altitude is 406 feet while at Oak Lake it is 668 and the highest point of the Hills shows a level of 780 feet which makes it 374 feet higher than the village.

The high point on the Oak Hills compares with 640 feet at Queensboro and 789 at Eldorado. The air gets thinner at Millbridge 942, Bancroft 1,084 and about the highest point in the country is near Maynooth showing an altitude of 1,302 feet.

As we go over to Prince Edward county we do not find nearly the high points that we get in Hastings. For instance, at Picton the altitude is 313 feet, Consecon 253 and Glenora at the water level is 246 feet. The Lake on the Mountain is 419 feet which puts it just 173 feet higher than the Bay of Quinte although we fancied it was considerably higher the last time we walked up the hill from the fish hatchery.

Altitudes in Eastern Ontario is a publication that we should think would be of general interest to teachers for we believe that most people are interested in the altituds of various points familiar to the individual. The information in the book is alphabetically arranged for easy reference and certainly should prove most valuable to anyone seeking special knowledge along these lines.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

THE WORM TURNS

I can stand your calling me
As a last resort,
Like the battered ship you head
For the nearest port.

I can stand your taking me
Almost anyplace,
Just so long as I can gaze
Spellbound at your face.

I don't mind your flirting with
Every girl you see,
Love ois love and you are you
And I, alas! am me.

I can suffer with a smile—
I don't mind being "it";
But when you park and sit and smoke—
That does it, kid—I quit!

WHAT, NO BLUES!

WHATEVER people say about the Belleville General Hospital they cannot make the remark that it is not, at least, a "colorful" institution. Last month during one period people by the name of Pink, Brown, Green, White, Black and Gray, were numbered among the patients, not to mention another by the name of Purple.

NO TANKS!

MAYOR Thompson was presented yesterday with a pair of handsome ivory chopsticks, commemorating China Week held throughout the Dominion. A nifty present m'lad, but there is a rumor now prevalent to the effect that a Tank Week will be held shortly.

TIMELY

News Item: Government takes over the Ontario School for the Deaf for use as a Royal Canadian Air Force training school."

As one of the staff tritely remarked yesterday "Now we know what the meaning of an 'all-out' war is."

DENIAL

THEN there is the story of the inmate of an asylum who was trying to convince an attendant that he was Napoleon.

"But, who told you that you were Napoleon?" inquired the attendant.

"God did," replied the "nut."

"I did not," came a voice from the next bunk.

AN UNSIGHTLY SIGHT

A READER has brought to our attention the prevalence of unsightly weeds in many parts of the city. Weed-time right now is seed-time and the most dangerous time of the year. Many residents of the city cut weeds on their property as soon as they appear, and in this way not only remove ugly eyesores literally but also prevent the spread of growth to their own and neighboring properties. A little time spent in the garden, around property lines and other places where the weeds flourish would pay for itself a dozen-fold.

TAKE IT EASY

According to reports there is a lot of professional jealousy existing between British actors and Nazi bombs. When the first named fail to elicit applause, the latter usually bring down the house.

A GOOD GROUNDWORK?

Flight-Lieutenant the Rev. Gordon Porter, padre of the Mountain View Air station has a snappy answer for any of the boys who make humorous remarks about the pre-war training of padres in general.

"Before I enlisted," he tells any of the lads who wisecrack about training, "I was an undergraduate at Queens University. While there I was the padre for an insane asylum, and during my further studies in Edinburgh, I acted in a similar capacity in a prison."

That usually puts the quietus on the curious jokesmiths.

JUST WHEN

"There's an unexploded bomb buried here," said the A.R.P. chief as he posted a warden, "probably weighing a ton. Just keep an eye on things, and blow your whistle if anything happens."

"O.K.," replied the warden, "but do I blow it going up or coming down?"

KNOWING IMPORTANT PEOPLE

My grandpa knows the candy man,
And the grocer man as well;
And he says "Hello," when there we go,
"I hope you are feeling well.
And how are things with you today
We thought we'd better stop,
As we often do, to see if you
Could sell us a lollypop."

And the candy man says: "How do you do,
And can this really be
The grandson stout you boast about?"
Then he shakes hands with me.
And the grocer man he says: "My! My!
Is this your pride an' joy
Right now I'd swap my grocery shop
For a similar little boy."

My grandpa knows the drugstore man,
And he calls him Mister Jones;
And we sit up high when we go to buy
A couple of ice cream cones.
Then the drugstore man he shakes my hand
And he gives my head a pat;
And when I grow I hope I'll know
Such wonderful men as that.

Italian Colonists Are Told British Will Not Harm Them

If a press report be authentic, and it seems to be, Marshal Graziani, the commander of the Italian army in North Africa, told the Italian colonists to remain behind, and not to follow the Italian army in its retreat. "You remain behind," he told them, adding: "The British will arrive, but they are gentlemen and will treat you kindly. Don't be afraid, they will not hurt you. They will leave you to work in peace."

Marshal Graziani told the truth, but it would not have been the truth if he had called his master, Benito Mussolini, a gentleman, nor would it be true if any German called his master, Adolph Hitler, ne Shickelgruber, one. Hitler and Mussolini have both been bums in the past and they still possess the souls of bums. While we do not accept the old saying, "Once a bum, always a bum," it does derive some countenance from such men as the two dictators. Even Napoleon Bonaparte was not quite a gentleman, but, by comparision with Mussolini and Hitler, the man of sixty battles shines.

If there were no other reason for wishing to witness an English victory, it would be enough to remember that England is ruled by gentlemen, and that Germany and Italy are not being ruled by that type of man at present. It is understood that Mussolini can put on society manners, if necessary; but this Herr Hitler could not do to save his soul from the perdition which is his due, and which he will doubtless incur. One might call Hitler a brute, were it not that one does not wish to speak disrespectfully of animals of finer grain than he. Nobody has ever been able to discover in him a redeeming quality—not even a redeeming vice. The man is not human. Three-quarters of his success thus far, both at home and abroad, has come from sheer inability to believe that such a monster has been allowed to live in the world for 50 years and more. When we first heard of him, we felt like the yokel who looked at a giraffe for the first time, and, observing the long neck and peculiar legs, cried out: "There ain't no sich an animal." It was hard to believe that there could be running at large such an animal as Adolph Hitler, especially in a land of scholars like Germany.

We cannot prove it, of course, but we suspect, if the truth could be ascertained, that a majority of the German people would be glad to know that he were dead. Things are not always what they seem, and persons who have been in Germany of late do not hesitate to say that under their breath many Germans do a bit of mutternig; if they felt certain of kindly treatment they might, and we believe that unnumbered thousands of Germans would, welcome the entrance of a triumphant British army on the streets of Berlin. Nobody at heart loves a tyrant, and Hitler and Mussolini both are tyrants of a sort such as none of the ancients ever knew after they had arrived at the stage of civilization.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Britain's Women Are in This War

By JOHN FISHER

On April 19 all women in Britain, aged twenty, queued up at their local employment exchanges and registered for whatever jobs the Government, in the person of Ernest Bevin, Britain's Minister of Labour, wants them to do. Some of the girls will already have been working lathes and milling machines, or boring, rifling and honing gun barrels. It was some weeks ago that the stocking and lace girls of Nottingham and Leicester voluntarily left £6-a-week jobs to make shells for half the pay. But for many, the call-up will mean leaving home for the first time, perhaps to smooth pillows in a strange hospital or to make bullets in a munitions factory. At the same time, the A.T.S., whose khaki-clad women are doing such invaluable work for the Army, are also planning to expand from 40,000 to 60,000.

Now there is nothing new about English women and girls putting on uniforms or making armaments. In the spring of 1918, nearly three million women were at work in factories, a million of them making munitions. Others were working in khaki uniforms as W.A.A.C.'s (Women's Army Auxiliary Corps), or wore the white jackets of the land grils. What is new is the variety and the complexity of the war work that British women are doing today.

We used, in the last war, to see men about the factories ready to hoist and haul the heavy cases from place to place. Now the cases are lifted and moved by machines that are operated by women. They even have women crane drivers, who have to learn how to slip smartly down the rope from their driving cabin to the ground. Again, the "goods" needed by this war's mechanized army are more varied and more complicated than ever before. Specifications have been shaved to finer and more delicate measurements. Even the standard Bren gun needs 3,174 different operations for its essembly. The tanks are equipped with a woman-made radio. Much the same complexity applies to the jobs of the women in uniform. Recruits in the A.T.S. not only have to learn drill, anti-gas precautions, army ranks, first-aid and security precautions; they are assigned to special trades. The drivers have to know all about their cars. The girl clerks must grasp the army system of filing and duplication, indents and the pay system.

Other young women have been trained to work the kinetheodolite, by which they can plot and check artillery fire on photo strips. For this the girls need both logarithm and sliderule technique, as well as photographic training. And they have to be at least five feet two inches in height. Women officers specialize still more. Some take the regular army staff course at the Army School of Administration. Others specialize in welfare and learn how to keep their girls amused in the evenings. Even the girl cooks have a more complicated job than one might suppose. One feminine kitchen in the North of England feeds a camp of one thousand, and sends out food to searchlight groups for eighty miles around.

The same kind of specialization has taken place in the voluntary services. The Women's Voluntary Services (clad in green tweeds) has whole a[illegible] part-time members who give their services for nothing. They now run a transport section which moved one and a quarter million people (700,000 of them unaccompanied children) out of dangerous places into safety areas. Besides providing nursing auxiliaries and hostels for bombed families, they undertake the salvage of scrap metal, the welfare of refugees and industrial workers, the shipping and forwarding of goods sent from overseas, a shopping service for women working in factories during the day time, mending for soldiers, and the driving of flying food convoys into bombed towns. (By permission of Queen Elizabeth, the girl drivers of these convoys are called "Queen's Messengers.")

These responsible and onerous duties which women are undertaking, in order to free men for the fighting forces, are only an extension of the kind of work which women already carried out in peacetime. They were already specializing in a variety of technical jobs, such as property management, library work, film editing, medicine, and in other jobs as complicated as anything they are likely to meet in the Army, Navy or Air Force.

A well-known London club, the Alpha, consists entirely of women who either own or manage their businesses. The higher ranks of Government Service have long been open to women. On looking at the latest Civil Service list, I see that a woman is one of the staff of directors at the Treasury. Another is an examiner of acts in the House of Lords, and there are women holding government positions as inspectresses of safety devices in factories, welfare officers in the Ministry of Labour, or advisers on cooking and catering to the Ministry of Food. My daily paper recently told its readers of the opening of a free food advice centre, under the heading, "Miss Tells Mrs." The "Miss" was just one of the hundreds of women who earned domestic science diplomas before the war.

In the government-controlled National Physical Laboratory there are more than eighty women assistants in the physics, metrology, electrical, engineering and electro-dynamics departments.

These are just a few of the women who were already a success outside their homes before war came. But they serve to illustrate the kind of possibilities that are open to their sisters, those English girls who are leaving home this month to help fight, in the repair shops, aerodromes and at the factory bench, this highly specialized war.—Hamilton Spectaotr.

Steel Tracks Become "Sick"

Did you know that railroad tracks are subject to disease? And that there's a railroad car, loaded with gadgets, that creeps over the rails and neatly marks every diseased spot with a blob of white paint? Seems both these things are so; we found out by asking about some fancy white markings on the tracks visible from Canal Street.

The car, which looks like an ordinary electric railroad coach, is at work around Chicago today. It was brought in to detect rail disease, which the railroad men call "transverse fissures." These are tiny defects which develop after the steel leaves the mills. If not discovered, they spread and may result in accidents.

In practice the car, called the Sperry Detector, moves along at about nine miles an hour. Brushes mounted on the framework between its wheels press against the rails and by means of a low-voltage electric current, derived from two generators driven by gasoline engines, set up a magnetic field around each rail. When a flaw is found, things happen. A notation is made on a moving tape, a paint gun sprays the white blob and a repair crew that has been trailing in a section car comes up. Men jump out, and in what seems no time at all the old rail is out and a new one is spiked down.

The C.M. St. P. & P.R.R., which brought the Sperry car here this trip, believes it one of the greatest contributions to safety yet developed. It was invented by the late Elmer A. Sperry, who also thought up the gyro-compass and the high-intensity arc light. For the fans who like to watch men and machines at work, it is a new thrill, if you can catch up with it.

You'd Be Surprised!

CONSTANTINOPLE

Many people have the notion that about ten years ago the name of Constantinople was officially changed to Istanbul.

The fact is that the name of this ancient city on the Bosphorus has not been officially changed since it was captured by the Turks in 1453 and made the capital of the Ottoman Empire.

From that time until the present the official Turkish name of the city has been Istanbul.

But during all those nearly 500 years foreigners called the city Constantinople.

After the Great War of 1914-1918 the Turks got sick and tired of having Istanbul called Constantinople by foreigners and they began to insist on the official Turkish name.

The Turks first requested that all persons writing to residents of the city address the letters to Istanbul instead of Constaninople.

After this request had been generally ignored for several years the government of Turkey in 1930 issued a decree that all letters coming into the city not addressed to Istanbul be returned.

That meant that even foreign governments could not reach their diplomatic representatives in the city without using the official name Istanbul instead of the popular name Constantinople.

Individuals and firms outside Turkey could not correspond with anybody in the city without complying with the decree.

It was not long before the governments of the world, including the United States, accepted the situation and adopted Istanbul as the official and correct name of the Turkish metropolis.

Because it was more typically Turkish and more inaccessible to foreign invasion the Turkish republicans established the seat of their government in central Anatolia.

Here again there was difficulty over the official and the foreign name, for the Anatolian city that the Turks called Ankara was known to the world as Angora.

But again the Turks won their point by refusing to receive in Ankara any communications addressed to Angora, and today the names Constantinople and Angora have been relegated largely to the history books.

The form Angora, however, survives in the name of Angora goats, cats, rabbits and other long-haired animals native to the Ankara region.

Farmer, Injured When Plane Crashes, Reported Improved

The condition of William Grundy, farmer residing one mile north of the city on North Park Street, who was injured when a Fairey Battle training plane crashed within a few feet of where he was working on his farm Monday afternoon, was reported by hospital authorities today to be favorable. Grundy suffered severe cuts on a leg and arm when flying debris from the wrecked plane struck him.

The spectacular crash, which resulted in the death of Lac. B. E. Fellowes, Cradley Heath, Staffordshire, a member of the Royal Air Force in training at Collins Bay, near Kingston, occurred about 150 yards west of North Park Street, in a cultivated field of the Grundy farm.

The plane in its death-glide struck a corner of a henhouse, ripping off part of the roof. Grundy who was transferring his horse from a cultivator to a plow, about fifty feet from where the machine crashed was injured when the plane exploded, scattering debris over a wide area.

The body of the dead pilot was taken to Trenton Air Station and later removed to the Collins Bay base of the Royal Air Force.

Roosevelt Wants Year Around Daylight Saving

Washington, July 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today for legislation to provide Daylight Saving Time "upon such a regional or national basis, and for such part, or all, of the year, as he might deem necessary in the interest of our national defence."

The president made the recommendation in letters to Speaker Sam Rayburn and Vice-President Henry Wallace, supporting it with figures to show that the effects of year-around daylight saving would result in a probable annual reduction of 736,282,000 kilowatt-hours in the use of electricity in the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt also sent letters to eight southern governors telling of a need for daylight time and declaring the country "is faced with a serious power shortage that is impeding the national defence program."

The shortage is particularly acute, he said, in the southeastern part of the country.

The letters went to the governors of Alabama, Virginia, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Mississipi and Florida.

It is hoped, Roosevelt added, that "emergency transmission connections will shortly make it possible to deliver any excess power from one region to another."

He said it was imperative in the southeast that "action be taken to alleviate the present shortage at the earliest possible moment."

WESTERN DEALERS UNPERTURBED AT RESTRICTIONS

Inclined to Welcome Changes and Believe Trade Will Not be Affected

GAS TO GO UP

Winnipeg, July 15—(CP)—Motor League officials and gasoline service stations managers in the western provinces today were generally unperturbed at the prospect of gasoline retailing restrictions announced today at Ottawa.

Most garage owners were inclined to welcome the changes, stating that it will make little or no difference to their volume of trade, while the consensus of Motor League officials was that the tourist trade will not be noticeably affected.

In Winnipeg, where current prices of 33 1-2 cents a gallon for standard gasoline will go up to 34 1-2 cents tomorrow, garagemen accepted with enthusiasm the prospect of a holiday on Sunday—a working day for most of them.

George R. Matthews, Secretary of the Vancouver Retail Merchants Association, said that about 70 service stations now operating on a 24-hour basis would be affected. A city bylaw making all other service stations close at 8 p.m. went into effect in Vancouver yesterday.

Current gas prices in Vancouver are 28 cents a gallon for standard and 30 for the higher grade gasoline, including the present seven-cent tax.

In Edmonton, Charles Grant, counsel for the Alberta Motor Association, expressed approval of the new regulations if Canada's war effort is furthered by them but feared that there might be some inconvenience at the height of the tourist season.

The ban on Sunday gasoline sales will be the only vital change in the Alberta capital where service stations are operated from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. in the summer and from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the winter.

Selling of Beer at Picnics And Other Occasions Forbidden

In a provincial-wide warning, Gordon D. Conant, Provincial Attorney-General for Ontario, today stated it was definitely against the rules and regulations of the Liquor Control Act to dispose of beer in connection with picnics and similar occasions.

"My attention has been directed to the practice in some localities and with groups disposing of beer in connection with picnics and such occasions, where an attempt is usually made to excuse such actions on the grounds that the proceeds are used for patriotic or charitable purposes. There is absolutely no provision in the L.C.A. permitting such practices and persons apprehended doing so are liable to severe punishment when convicted in court," further warned Attorney-General Conant.

Memorandums instructing all Provincial Police officers in the Province have been instructed to rigidly enforce this law, which provides for substantial fines and jail sentences to guilty parties.

"The Liquor Control Act does not permit the possession or consumption of beer at picnics and similar occasions even though it may have been obtained legally. Beer may only be had and consumed in Ontario in the residence of the purchaser or an authority's premises such as hotels, clubs, etc.," concluded Attorney-General Conant.

OIL PRODUCERS OF TURNER VALLEY GIVEN INCREASE

Oil Controller Allows Them to Raise Price of Crude Oil 27 Cents a Barrel

TO HELP PRODUCTION

Ottawa, July 15,—(CP)— Oil producers of Turner Valley, Alberta, have been authorized to increase the price of crude oil to the refineries by 27 cents a barrel, G. R. Cottrelle, oil controller, announced here today.

This increase is being authorized as a means of encouraging greater production of crude oil and the announcement was made by Mr. Cottrelle in the course of his explanation of his appeal today for voluntary reduction in non-esential use of gasoline and other petroleum products.

The increase applies only to Turney Valley crude oil, the Controller said, and not to any other Canadian oil fields. Every effort short of public financing will be made to increase the production of crude oil in Canada, Mr. Cottrelle said.

"But if they want to take public money for drilling oil wells they had better get a new Controller," Mr. Cottrelle added. He expressed the belief that encouragement could be given the industry which would result in much greater production and he forecast that this year's Canadian production would be 900,000 barrels of crude oil greater than last year.

Gasoline and oil consumption in the western area had gone up 17 per cent this year over last year, and in all Canada the average increase was about 20 per cent, the Controller said.

The economic area for use of Alberta oil extends from the western fringe of Ontario to the eastern fringe of British Columbia," Mr. Cottrelle said.

Suspended Sentence Given Gunner Shelley For Dangerous Driving

Lindsay, Ont., July 15.—(CP)—Gunner Earl Shelley, 25th Field Battery, Niagara on the Lake, was given two years suspended sentence here today by Magistrate Baxter. Shelley was charged with dangerous driving following the death of Dean McGuiro, a passenger in a car driven by the accused, early Sunday morning The car crashed in to some boulders in a seven-foot ditch.

Shelley entered a plea of guilty, saying he had fallen asleep at the wheel.

Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson said accused had a good record in civilian life and in the army and recommended the suspended term.

Head Coach Zuppke Retains His Post

Chicago, July 15—(AP)—Robert C. Zuppke, head football coach at the University of Illinois, retained his post today and Athletic Director Wendell S. Wilson was removed by the University Board of Trustees Acting on recommendations of the Board of Athletic Control.

Wilson was given a leave of absense for one year, "subject to recall'.

Wilson said he was "surprised" at the filing yesterday of a suit by Harold (Red) Grange, most famous football star developed in Zuppke's 28-year tenure at the university asking $50,000 demages from the Athletic director for an allegedly "malicious, false, slanderous and defamatory statement".

Grange charged last week that Wilson had intended to become head coach himself in 1938 if Zuppke were let out, and that Wilson had offered him a job as assistant.

British Government Refuses Nazi Offer Of Prisoner Exchange

London, July 15 (CP)—The British Government has refused a German offer to exchange Sir Lancelot Oliphant, former British ambassador to Belgium, for a German whose identity was kept secret, it was reported today.

The Daily Mail said it was known definitely that the German was not Rudolf Hess, erstwhile No. 3 Nazi, because the offer for the exchange was made before Hess flew to Scotland and surrendered.

The former British ambassador was reported housed at a Berlin hotel.

The Daily Mail said "deep consideration was given the German offer but it finally was decided it was so important to keep the German under detention that Sir Lancelot would have to remain in their hands."

BIG AIR SCHEME TO ATTAIN PEAK IN THE AUTUMN

Training of Fighting Airmen Under British Commonwealth Air Training Plan Now Completed in 28 Weeks

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, July 15 (CP) — The growing thunder of airplane motors signals to Canada and the empire that a partnership in the training of skilled men to "blast Hitler" is fulfilling its highest hopes.

In Ottawa, where come the reports of progress from far-flung units of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan in Canada, there is the confident belief that peak training arrangements will be reached long before the scheduled time and that the growing multitude of trained air crews available for the Battle of Britain will be maintained.

Announcement of the air training plan, in which Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand are partners, was made in December, 1939, and since then thousands of young men from these units of the empire, from the United States, from colonies and from other lands have come to Canada to be enrolled in the armies of the clouds.

At nearly 100 training establishments, fighting airmen are being turned out in 28 weeks, although in more leisurely times before the fall of France it was considered that 50 weeks were necessary.

When the plan was organized, the hope was that peak production of trained pilots and other crew members would be attained by April, 1942. Ottawa officials now believe the peak of effectiveness will be reached in September this year and maintained thereafter. That means, it is said 2,500 air fighters a month.

The training plan brings to Canada partially-trained men from the partner dominions in the scheme and here they receive specialized instruction, while Canadian airmen are given training from the beginning to end of required courses.

From Across Border

Royal Canadian Air Force officials speak with appreciation of the volunteers who have come to Canada from the United States. Figures respecting the number given instrucion or graduating are not issued but young, Americans represent from seven to 10 per cent of those trained for air crews.

The empire training idea is that, with Canada as the main theatre of training, an inexhaustible supply of airmen will be provided for years if need be, to carry on the war against the dictators. While Canada represents the chief centre of activity, supplementary training is carried on in the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand.

The air training plan in Canada will have in all 83 training schools and necessary auxiliary establishments, such as recruiting centres, command headquarters and repair and equipment depots. Nearly 100 aerodromes and 1,860 buildings will be in use, with instructors, administrators and maintenance staffs numbering 40,000.

Original estimate of cost, made during the dominions' representatives conference in 1939, was $600,000,000, of which Canada's share was to be about $350,000,000. This estimate was later raised to nearly $1,000,000,000, with the Canadian portion about $600,000,000. Canada bore cost of construction while the United Kingdom provided most of the aircraft and training equipment.

Text of Convention Ending War in Syria

Vichy, July 15—(AP)—The text of the convention ending the war in Syria follows:

An accord bringing about the end of hostilities in Syria and Lebanon:

1. Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, G.B.E., K.C.B., D.S.O., commander-in-chief of the Allied forces in Palestine and Syria, acting in the name of the commander-in-chief of the Middle East for the first part;

And Gen. De Verdilhac, Legion of Honor, assistant to the commander-in-chief of the troops of the Levant, acting in the name of the French High Command for the second part, have reached an agreement bringing about the end of hostilities in Syria and Lebanon of which the hostilities stopped July 11, 1941, at 9.01 p.m. G.M.T.

2. The Allied forces will occupy the Syrian and Lebanon territories. The French forces will be concentrated in certain zones fixed by the committee composed of representatives of the two parties. This concentration should be achieved by Tuesday, July 15, 1941, at the noon hour at which the Allied forces will move toward the occupation of certain strategic points.

Must Disclose Mine Fields

Until their repatriation the French troops will remain with reduced officer personnel under the French Command which will see after their supply and with that purpose keep the existing quartermaster stocks. Special dispositions are foreseen for the Jebel ed Druz where for reasons of security French troops will stay in their garrisons until relieved by British troops.

3. In order to ensure the public security, the occupation of the principal Syrian and Lebanese localities will be carried out according to a program which will permit the immediate replacement of the French forces by the occupying forces.

3. Sea and land mine fields will be disclosed to the occupying authorities.

5. All the honors of war will be rendered the French forces. These will withdraw to the concentration zones which have been designated with all arms including cannons, machine guns, tanks, automatic rifles and all their ammunition. All necessary measures will be taken by the French command to avoid arms and munitions being left abandoned on the field of battle wherever they are. The French military authorities to give all necessary assistance towards retrieving arms which may be found in the hands of the population

Allowed to Keep Arms

6. In consideration of the honors of war accorded the French forces, officers and non-commissioned officers and French soldiers are authorized to keep their individual arms (rifles or carbines, revolvers, bayonets, swords or sabres.) Soldiers are to keep no munitions. In each unit for security reasons a reduced amount of munitions are to be left. The police will keep its arms and a reduced quantity of munitions. All other war material, including guns of the coastal batteries, anti-aircraft batteries as well as military vehicles are to be stocked under control of the British authorities. These will proceed with inspection of the material and will have the right to take over material which is necessary for them. The rest is to be destroyed by the French authorities under the control of the British authorities.

7. Prisoners of the Allied forces are to be immediately freed, including those who have been transferred to France. As far as the latter are concerned the British authorities reserve the right to hold in captivity an equal number of French officers as far as possible of the same grade until the prisoners transferred to France have been liberated.

French prisoners are to be liberated when all Syrian and Lebanon territory will have been occupied and the clauses of the present accord fully executed. They are to be given an opportunity to rejoin their units with a view toward their repatriation.

8. The alternative of joining the Allied cause or being repatriated is to be left to the free choice of each individual, civilian as well as military. Civilians who do not join the Allied cause may on their demand be permitted by the British authorities to remain in the Levant.

9. Administrative officials and officials of the technical services and officers of special services are to remain in office a necessary amount of time to assure continuity of the administration of the country until they are able to be replaced. They then are to be repatriated if they express the desire. They can be dismissed for a represensible attitude or insufficient service.

10. British authorities agree that the repatriation of French troops is to be carried out by French sea transports provided this repatriation concerns only persons who hoped for repatriation. British authorities have the right to control repatriation operations.

Rights Respected

11. Monetary possessions of repatriated French citizens are to be transferred according to methods to be established. Those concerned are to receive payment no less favorable than that applied to British subjects who recently left the Levant.

12. French institutions (hospitals, schools, religious missions, etc.) are assured that their rights will be respected.

13. Administrations of public services and public utilities, including railroads, municipal transportation, electric installations and water systems, will be kept in functioning condition with their personnel and turned over intact.

Turn Over Everything Intact

14.—All means of telephone, telegraph and radio telegraphic communications, including submarine cable, to be turned over intact to the occupying authorities. The use of telegraph connections with France is to be assured for the French command on the same conditions as for other users.

15. All port installations, naval establishments and all ships including British vessels in Syrian and Lebanese territorial waters are to be turned over intact to the occupying authorities.

16. All airplanes, all equipment and all aeronautic installations in Syrian and Lebanese territory to be turned over intact immediately after signature of the present convention.

The British are to be given an opportunity to utilize all airdromes and landing fields existing in Syria and Lebanon.

17. Stocks of fuel oil are to be delivered intact. Necessary quantities for military transportation are to be placed at the disposition of the French command.

18. Money and other means of payment in circulation or reserve in banking establishments and public funds are not to be destroy-

Must Turn Arms Over

19. British military authorities reserve the right to take in their service special troops of the Levant as fast as they are released by the French authorities. The arms of these troops must be turned over to the British authorities.

20. The British authorities are not to impose any sanctions against Syrian and Lebanese natives who took part in the recent hostilities either as soldiers or administrators.

21. The execution of the present accord is to be regulated and controlled by "a control commission" which will have headquarters at Beirut and which will be composed of five members. Three of these members, including the president, are to be designated by the British authorities, the other two by the French authorities.

This commission may name many sub-commissions and take advice from as many experts as necessary.

22. The present accord is done in two languages (French and English.) In case of disagreement the English text is to be followed.

Canada Starts Junior Air Force

By JAMES MONTAGNES
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

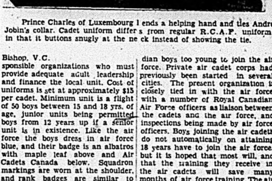
A junior air force to train teen-age boys in the preliminary training program of the Royal Canadian Air Force has been started under the auspices of the department of national defence at Ottawa. Known as the Air Cadet League of Canada, the teen-age organization follows closely the air force pattern of ranks, training and uniform, the boys appearing as junior replicas of their older brothers in the Royal Canadian Air Force. The new organization is similar in scope to the British Air Cadet Defence Corps which has a membership of 190,000. The Canadian Air Cadets expect to have 25,000 boys enrolled for the start of the new school year in September.

The Canadian boys between 12 and 18 years of age will have a training similar to elementary training given the air force. The basic training course covers two years, a total of approximately 216 hours. Subjects covered include aircraft recognition, maps and map reading, a study of airplane engines and airplane construction, drill, airplane armament, model building, theory of flight, signalling, first aid, knotting, mathematics, phyical training. Advanced training including aerial navigation, aerial photography, radio, and aircraft construction, is planned for cadets who have passed the elementary course.

On Voluntary Basis

The air cadets are on a voluntary basis, and parents must approve their boys joining. Each boy is given a medical examination and only those physically fit to stand the training program are accepted. The organization headquarters are at Ottawa, but local organizations will be in charge of the local school boards, service clubs or other responsible organizations who must provide adequate adult leadership and finance the local unit. Cost of uniforms is set at approximately $15 per cadet. Minimum unit is a flight of 50 boys between 15 and 18 yrs. of age, junior units being permitted boys from 12 years up if a senior unit is in existence. Like the air force the boys dress in air force blue, and their badge is an albatros with maple leaf above and Air Cadets Canada below. Squadron markings are worn at the shoulder, and rank badges are similar to those of the air force, with cadets being able to climb to non-commissioned officer ranks.

The Air Cadet League has come into existence as a result of some training asked by airminded Canadian boys too young to join the air force. Private air cadet corps had previously been started in several cities. The present organization is closely tied in with the air force with a number of Royal Canadian Air Force officers as liaison between the cadets and the air force, and inspections being made by air force officers. Boys joining the air cadets do not automatically on attaining 18 years have to join the air force, but it is hoped that most will, and that the training they receive in the air cadets will save many months of air force training. The air cadets meet after school hours once or twice weekly. In some schools the air cadets have been formed as part of the school cadet corps. Honorary president is Canada's First World War ace, Air Marshal Billy Bishop, V.C.



Prince Charles of Luxembourg lends a helping hand and ties Andre Jobin's collar. Cadet uniform differs from regular R.C.A.F. uniform in that it buttons snugly at the neck instead of showing the tie.

Medicine in the News

Early Rising After Appendectomy Made Possible by New Technic

Twenty years ago the man or woman who was operated on for appendicitis expected to remain in the hospital for at least two weeks; sometimes if there were complications, they remained in bed for three weeks. Gradually the duration of the stay in the hospital has been shortened so that the average at this time is probably ten days.

There are surgeons who now report that even ten days may be unnecessary and, in many instances, patients are being allowed to get up on the second or third day after the operation. Drs. D. J. Leithauser and Howard L. Bergo of Detroit report that almost four hundred operations have been performed for the removal of appendix in one Detroit hospital since January, 1938.

In thirteen of these the appendix had already ruptured before the operation and peritonitis had started. Such patients are not considered suitable cases for early rising after operation. In 370 cases remaining, the average stay in bed after the operation was one and one-half days and the average period of hospitalization after the operation was slightly over two days.

However, in some instances the patients had to go back to bed after they had gotten up. One of these was a fat woman who was able to get up the first day after the operation, but who had to return to bed on the third day because of a serious infection of the operative wound. In another case an abscess developed on the eighth day after the operation.

In this modern treatment of appendicitis the patients are given two ounces of water every two hours for the first twenty-four hours after the operation and as much morphine as is required to relieve pain. Then the diet is gradually increased. On the third or fourth day mineral oil is prescribed to aid the action of the bowel. After the operation the patient is turned frequently in bed, and is instructed to be active and to take deep breathing exercises at regular intervals.

On the first day after the operation the patient is assisted to sit on the edge of the bed and to breathe deeply and then to stand. Also, the patient is urged to cough. The purpose of this procedure is to clear the lungs of any mucus that may have accumulated. Then the patient is permitted to walk around the room and sit in a chair for a few moments, after which the patient returns to bed.

The patients leave the hospital within two or three days and are instructed to return to the office of the physician for the first dressing on the sixth day after the operation. When the patients go home, they are instructed to telephone if there are any complications.

This, of course, is a new point of view toward the operative procedure and indicates how far scientific medicine has advanced in the control of operative conditions. The newer type of anesthesia, the newer type of prevention of infection, the new technic of operating rapidly with adequate assistance, all tend to make early rising after surgical procedure much more safe than it used to be.

The surgeons report that the newer technic promotes healing by improved circulation in the area of the wound and lowers the amount of postoperative sickness and the number of complications. They believe also that this promotes the return of normal functions of the vital organs and aids elimination through the kidneys.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Shall It Be Marriage or College

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past year I've been devotedly in love with a young man who is a year older than I am. We planned to be married as soon as I graduated from high school, which was this past June.

Now this young man seems to have changed his mind, as I see him only every two or three weeks. However, he's just as devoted as ever, his excuse for not coming being that he has to work hard at the office and very often he's too tired.

He did want to take me to his home to visit his people, but he doesn't mention that any more. Mother wants me to go to college in the fall. So, in all this confusion, shall I go to college and give up all thoughts of the only boy I ever really loved?

Betty

Young people often become engaged without realizing how much it takes to finance even the simplest kind of a home. When they are confronted with the cold figures, they are obliged to let an engagement drift. If he says nothing more about the visit to his people, don't you think it would be better for you not to bring it up?

An opportunity to go to college would seem like a gift from heaven to a great many girls, and this is yours for the asking. Why not go and see what developments time may bring with regard to this young man?

Her Mother Wants Her to Marry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 21 years old and have been going with a girl of 20 for the last sixteen months. Her mother always nags her about getting married, but the girl doesn't want to and neither do I. Her mother thinks a girl should not go steady with a man for three years, and then perhaps not marry him. My girl is now asking me to marry her, so doesn't have to hear this constant nagging. We are both in love with each other.

I don't have much of a job at present — about all I make is my board and a little spending money. My girl had a job, but she was laid off. We thought we might marry secretly and take a chance.

We're both so unhappy at home that we just don't know what to do. Her mother says to stop seeing me if we don't marry soon. My folks are now fussing at me too.

Pete

It's a terrific mistake for a mother to nag her daughter into marriage. A girl of 20 has plenty of time in which to take this important step.

If these young folks have gone together for over a year and are devotedly in love, certainly this is proof positive that the affair stands for more than puppy love. I cannot advise them to marry secretly, but I do advise them to hold tight and not give each other up.

Had Misunderstanding with Young Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl 24 years old, single, not bad looking, like all kinds of sports, and like to take a walk with my dog before retiring at night. I don't have many friends, but did fall in love with a boy about three years ago. He worked in the same office, and I saw him every day. We had a misunderstanding over some small thing and I haven't seen him since as he left the firm.

Recently I sent him a card on his birthday, and also wrote him a letter, but have had no reply. I wish I could find out some way whether or not he cares for me. If I were sure that he did not, I would try harder to forget him and go out with other boys. How can I find out?

Also, what do you think of the boys who try to "pick up" girls on the street? For instance, when I'm downtown, boys have asked me if I wanted a ride home in their cars. I have never even considered accepting their invitations, but some of my friends say I'm foolish. What do you think?

Worried

It looks as if this young man were "mad" with you for keeps as he hasn't acknowledged either your card or your letter. Unless you happen to meet him somewhere, and the difficulties are ironed out, it would seem better to try to forget him.

Sometimes it may be safe for a girl to accept a ride in an automobile, but it's a deadly dangerous thing to do. Several of the most revolting murders of young women have happened from this very thing. Besides, whether anything happens or not, a girl cheapens herself by allowing herself to be picked up on the street whether a man has a car or not.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Married Man to Serve as Groom's Best Man

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it proper for the groom to have a married man as the best man and for the bride not to invite his wife to be matron of honor? This is an especially important question for me because several young unmarried men who are close friends of my fiance, any one of which he might have invited to be his best man, have been called into the service.

2. Is it necessary to have toasts at the reception or at a buffet luncheon after the ceremony?

3. When do the bride and groom have their photographs taken?

4. Is it correct for a bridesmaid to wear a picture hat at any time of year?

R. A.

It is not necessary for the bride to invite the best man's wife to be her matron of honor. It is the groom who chooses his best man, and the bride who chooses her attendants. The best man's wife should not expect to be invited to be an attendant, and usually doesn't expect this.

2. It is not necessary to have a toast at the reception or buffet luncheon following the ceremony. But usually some one, and customarily it is the best man, wishes to give the guests the opportunity of drinking the health of the newlyweds.

3. If the bride is planning to have her photograph taken alone or with her attendants, this is usually done at the bride's house before the ceremony. If the bride and groom are having their photographs taken together, this usually is done at the place where the reception is being given, after the ceremony and before the reception.

4. Yes, the bridesmaids may wear picture hats at a wedding at any time of year, so long as the material of the hats is appropriate to the season.

Wedding Party Too Large?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. For my wedding I am planning to have a maid of honor, six bridesmaids, and six ushers. Mother would like to have me also have a shepherdess, two flower girls, and a ring-bearer. Do you think this would be "old-fashioned", or that it would make too large a wedding party?

2. What colors would be appropriate for that time of the year?

M. S.

1. Shepherdesses and ring-bearers are on the old-fashioned side, and shepherdesses in a wedding party are definitely suggestive of a musical comedy chorus. Since you already have a fairly large number of bridesmaids, I would, if I were you, omit the ring-bearer and the shepherdess and concentrate on making the procession of bridesmaids as charmingly effective as possible.

You might, however, with good taste, have the two flower girls, to walk together before you and your father.

2. In a summer wedding in your lovely part of the country you could choose cool-looking pastel shades. I like best the plan of having all the bridesmaids dressed in the same color, with the maid of honor's dress of a harmonizing color. If you wish you may plan to have each pair of bridesmaids wear one shade that blends beautifully with the shade worn by the two following. All pastel shades are in high fashion this season. Organdy in pastel shades would be especially lovely for your summer wedding.

Exciting Card Game for Vacation Get-Togethers

Hilarity Reigns In "Michigan"

Pandemonium! That's the usual climax of this fast, exciting card game—"Michigan"!

Three to eight can play, using one deck plus an extra four—Ace of Hearts, King of Diamonds, Queen of Spades and Jack of Clubs.

These four cards are laid down face up and everyone lays four or more chips on any or all of them.

Dealer deals full deck, one card at a time, also a "dummy" hand not shown till play is over.

The object of the game is to get rid of all your cards and collect all chips. You may lead with the lowest card you hold in any suit and continue to play on it in sequence. When you can't continue the sequence, anyone who can plays next. When nobody can, last player leads his lowest card in a different suit.

If you can play a card matching any of the centre four you get the chips on it. If you're first to get rid of all your cards you get the remaining chips—and amid groans of chagrin and shouts of laughter the game ends!

Such amusing games make you a popular hostess all year. Our 32-page booklet describes 47 grand games and stunts for two, three, four or more. Includes card games, pencil-and-paper games, funny stunts, puzzlers and nonsense gags.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of GAMES AND STUNTS FOR TWO OR MORE to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Good Nature is a Beauty Aid

Jean Leslie's cheerful smile reflects her charm and good nature.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Good nature is the grand old beautifier. Mrs. Bad Weather, who always hopes for the worst and pulls down her lip corners, is likely to develop a face that will frighten little children. She is making for herself an ugly mask, has a mad on at everybody, is a lemon of the first water. Her efforts to improve her appearance are a total loss.

If one indulges in unpleasant facial expressions one might as well do away with the beauty budget. No cosmetic aids will help; they can't work against odds. In time the fibers of the face go saggy, deep lines dig in. They make a woman look crabby, when they are expression lines produced by bad temper and lack of the finer qualities of character.

Keep Happy Outlook

Many small muscles control the movements of the mouth. Pull down the lip ends and the muscles extending from the nose to the mouth, even those extending downward from the cheeks become inelastic and give the face a funeral look.

Tissues under the chin are affected, often form a wattle. Rejuvenation will come about through a kinder feeling toward one's fellow beings, by cultivating mental health, by attending to a few simple beauty rites.

A heavy cream should be used freely at least once a day to restore tone to the tiny fibers under the skin.

Unpleasant emotions — envy, jealousy, anger, general cussedness—impair good looks because they have a devastating effect upon the nutrition of the body. Beset with resentment it is impossible to chug up a normal appetite or to enjoy the good things of the table.

Sleep is not restful. One awakens depressed. Women who have temper tantrums pay a high price for their emotional indulgences. They make other people unhappy, fail to realize that that pastime is bound to make them unhappy too.

Fashion Flashes

CITED for popular acceptance is the general wear and sports coat of wool made with double-breasted front and buttoned belt in back. High, wide-pointed revers and self-stitching mark these coats.

ALL TOO SOON little daughter will be starting off to school. A pretty and practical frock for her is in pale sulphur yellow wool with appliqued flower clusters in dark green felt at the turn-down collar and between borders of red braid on the full skirt.

NICE FOR NOW and good for next season are those smart little daytime frocks in inky black silk jersey. A smart model has a plunging neckline closed with one large jeweled button, and a stitched unpressed pleated skirt.

NOW SHOWING are collections of autumn clothes. Gracious hats designed for the smart woman are important and appear in most showings. A typical model is a shallow-brimmed hat of black velvet, riding forward over the forehead, trimmed with curls of ostrich at back above a fall of black lacy veiling.

RATHER LATE in winning favor but likely to go over with a bang next year is the spanking white frock with huge vivid flower appliques, a nice change from prints. White pique on shirtwaist lines makes a handsome frock with a cluster of yellow and red tulips appliqued down one side of the skirt. Another cluster on the bodice.

Bette Davis and George Brent in "The Great Lie," featuring Mary Astor, next at the Belle Theatre. "The Great Lie" reveals the love story of a magnificent cheat, who boldly, daringly lives a magnificent lie.

Belleville Fair Board Revamps Set-Up of Policy

Progressive Action Keynote of Board of Directors—Outstanding Program is Laid Out

By A. L. BURKE
Secretary Belleville Agricultural Society

Despite the adverse criticism that has prevailed in the past and the unwarranted spirit of skepticism prevalent in certain quarters—the new management of Belleville Fair, under progressive leadership are laying the foundation for one of the most outstanding and successful exhibitions in the history of the Society.

"Ring out the old, ring in the new"—seems to be the thought uppermost in the minds of the Directors' Board, and the 1941 "change of policy" in connection with many departments of the Fair is a manifestation of the determination of the management, not only to make the Fair a credit to the Belleville district—but to win the confidence and good will of all citizens as well.

Belleville Fair, has for many years past, been held the latter part of August at a time when Toronto Exhibition was in full swing. This condition adversely affected the attendance at Belleville Fair and many first class exhibitors found it impossible to show here. The Fair will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 8th, 9th and 10th this year, immediately following Toronto Exhibition and this change will work for a greater exhibition in every phase of the Fair.

Conklin's Midway, the largest of its kind in Canada, with its multiplicity of rides and every form of entertainment, will be at the Fair, to captivate and delight the hearts of thousands of children that will be in attendance. A signed contract with Conklin's Midway was completed several months ago and notwithstanding any reports to the contrary, Conklin's Midway will be at the Fair in all its splendor.

The committee in charge of horse races are preparing a program that will bring to Belleville some of the fastest horses on Ontario tracks, and that will provide a thrilling exhibition of speed for the entertainment and enjoyment of all those who are lovers of this sport.

Free pass tickets to all school children of Public and Separate schools in the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox & Addington and Northumberland, including the cities, towns and villages, will be mailed to every school by the secretary, Arthur L. Burke, 219 Front St., Belleville, and complimentary tickets to all teachers in charge will accompany the school passes. The Directors Board of Belleville Fair invites the cooperation of parents, Boards of Education and all other authoritative bodies in making the three days of Belleville Fair, Sept. 8th, 9th and 10th, the most joyous event in the lives of the children. Plans are being completed for the care and supervision of the children while they are guests of the Fair.

Other items of interest in connection with the Fair will be brought to the attention of the public every week.

Nurse Believed To Have Taken Her Own Life

Vancouver, July 15.—(CP)— Assistant Comissioner John Shirras of the British Columbia police said here last night investigations are being made into the possibility that a woman who leaped to her death from the deck of the coastal steamship Princess Elaine last night might be Miss Nanvy Woloshyn, 26-year-old nurse from North Battleford, Sask.

The Canadian Pacific Steamship company's vessel circled about for forty minutes after three soldiers told Captain William Hughes they had seen a young woman jump into the waters as the boat was about midway between Vancouver and Nanaimo en route to the Vancouver Island City.

Crew members of the Princess Elaine searched the water from a lifeboat while searchlights were played over the spot from the passenger vessel but no trace of the woman was found.

L. H. Greaves reported Miss Woloshyn, who until recently had been employed as a nurse at the Provincial mental hospital at Essondale, B.C., had been staying with him and his wife for several days.

He said she left his home Sunday night to mail some letters and failed to return.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop is going to make a speech at the Business Mens Lig, and after supper ma said, Tell me about your speech, Willyum what's the title of it?

The Failure of Man pop said, and ma said, My goodness, it sounds serious.

It is serious by gollie, pop said. When you think that men have existed ever since the age of vapor and still haven't learned to control themselves, isn't that serious? he said, and ma said, Well yes it is, when you look at it from that prejudiced standpoint, but of course the men you're speaking of now aren't the same men that started out as far back as all that.

Naturally not for Peet sake, I admit man's span of life is pitifully short, but he learned to talk, didn't he, and he learned to print and read, didn't he? pop said. In other words he had sense enough to devise ways to accumulate and preserve knollege, so why cant he have sense enough to make use of that knollege? he said, and ma said, Is that what the speech is about?

Exactly, pop said. It's about man's failure to guide his actions by the light of his passed failures, he said, and ma said, O, that reminds me, Willyum Mr. Piper called up and said to tell you he's afraid they can't do anything about that summons you got for passing a red signal. My goodness Willyum it's hardly been a month since you were fined for driving through a red light, I mean how in the world could you ever do the same thing so soon again? she said.

I guess it's just another illustration of the Failure of Man, pop said, and I said, Jimminy, pop, are you going to use it in your speech?

I'll think it over, pop said.

Probably meaning no.

Nazis Paying Heavy Price In Material

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 15. —(AP)— What ever the truth of Berlin's undocumented claims of sweeping victories in Russia, there can be no doubt as to the heavy price the Nazis are paying, especially in war materials.

Of course, Russian statements that a million or more Germans have been killed, wounded or captured in the first three weeks of fighting are just as untrustworthy as almost identical Nazi claims. Both were issued by propagandists.

Normally the casualties of attacking forces are double or triple those of the defenders. The circumstances of the Nazi-Soviet conflict, including the undenied entrapment of Red armies in the Minsk-Bialystok sector, tended to reverse that rule. A prodigious Red retreat on a 2,000-mile front has cost more than 250,000 personnel losses, according to Moscow's admission. German casualties may in fact be far below that.

Using Reserve Stocks

Yet to press his campaign in Russia Hitler in sanctioning inroads into reserve stocks of oil and probably of food which could virtually immobilize his armies for months to come, even in the event of relatively quick and complete victory in the East. He can have small hope now of restocking from Russian sources in time to let his land legions loose against Britain this year. And next year Britain may be master of the air with American help.

If London, Moscow, or Washington knew just how far the German war reserves actually have been depleted at this stage, they could calculate with reasonable accuracy a day when Hitler might have to write his Russian adventure off as a disaster despite great military "victories". Unquestionably German armies slogging eastward into Russia are consuming their oil "fat", natural and synthetic, faster today than at any time during the war.

The vast distances they have already extended their front eastward ensures that. There can be no halt. Their oil-powered communication lines are being further extended every foot of the advance in Russia. And steady British bombing of German oil depots in France and the Low Countries and of natural and synthetic oil plants in Germany itself is an added drain.

Must Keep on Schedule

Persistent Russian air attacks on the vital Rumanian oil field centre, Ploesti, are admitted in German and Rumanian war bulletins. It is also clear that another prime objective of British air attacks in the west is rail and road transportation centres in Germany and occupied countries over which oil and gasoline stocks must move.

Somewhere in the German High Command accurate data on the cumulative effect of this drain on Nazi oil stocks and sources is carefully compiled. The result must provide Hitler with a time schedule for conquest of Russia. His armies must keep up with that schedule or bog down in the vast country indefinitely for lack of fuel.

That would spell ultimate defeat for him just as certainly as would utter repulse of his armies at the Stalin Line or elsewhere in Russia. It would turn his Russian "victories" into liabilities instead of assets if he failed to tap Russian oil sources, still far distant from his most advanced lines.

Oil attrition is the most powerful weapon the Anglo-Russian war associates can use against Hitler at this stage and they are making the most of their opportunity. If all the facts of Nazi oil reserves were known, they well might disclose Hitler's Germany teetering even now on the verge of final disaster.

Ten Airliners Sent to Africa From Miami, Fla.

Miami, Fla., July 15 (AP)—The Miami Herald says 10 airliners requisitioned from domestic lines have been flown from Miami to British Gambia in Africa.

They were routed by way of Natal, Brazil, the paper says, adding that 10 other planes are being serviced here while pilots await orders to deliver them to British authorities in Africa.

Transfer of the planes, the Herald continues, is being handled by recently formed Atlantic Airways, Ltd., which opened offices here several weeks ago at the Municipal Airport.

"Made under the Lend-Lease Act, the plane transfers resulted from an urgent British request for 50 transports to augment its depleted fleets of such air carriers, especially at Empire points in Australia, New Zealand and Egypt," the paper says.

"Assistant Secretary of Commerce Robert Hinckley announced recently in Washington that the President would requisition 24, possibly 30, more transports for delivery to Great Britain before Aug. 1."

The paper says the seats had been removed from the planes serviced here and benches installed to increase capacity. Some had new engines installed, and all were equipped with extra gasoline tanks and long-range navigation equipment.

Mr. Picobac makes a NEW DISCOVERY

Mr. Picobac was in the act of addressing the cue ball when a sudden thought brought him to a stand.

"Touch of lumbago?" inquired ex-Reeve Pugsley, who had undertaken to beat him at English billiards.

Mr. Picobac took his fresh-filled pipe from his mouth and regarded it with affection.

"I'm transfixed with a new conviction," said he. "I realize afresh . . . this Canadian Burley . . . this Picobac . . . it's good!"

"Just as good as ever it was," agreed Mr. Pugsley.

"It's better," exclaimed Mr. Picobac. "That's what I mean. The longer a man smokes Picobac the better he likes it. Because it keeps improving all the time. Improving in step with the improvement of Canadian Burley. Picobac is the pick of Canada's Burley crop and a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke. Remember that."

"Can I ever forget it?" laughed the ex-Reeve.

"It DOES Taste Good in a Pipe".

Chicago White Sox Prove Yanks Can Be Beaten As John Rigney Sets Them Down With 8 Hits

Joe DiMaggio Runs His Hitting Streak to 54 Consecutive Games

FELLER WINS 18TH

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

The New York Yankees still can be beaten.

This information probably will be received in disbelief by the rest of the American League, but it's a matter of record that Chicago White Sox accomplished the trick 7-1 yesterday and snapped the 14 game winning streak of the bombers.

John Rigney, although allowing eight hits, was always in control and even had Joe DiMaggio subdued but not stopped.

DiMaggio topped a pitch into a slow roller down the third base line and beat it out for a single on his third trip to the plate and stretched his hitting string to 54 consecutive games.

Cleveland Indians took advantage of their opportunity to shave the margin between first and second place to four games by bumping Boston Red Sox 4-1 behind the five-hit hurling of the incomparable Bob Feller. This was the fastballer's 18th triumph.

The veteran Tommy Bridges produced a five-hitter as Detroit Tigers came from behind to down Philadelphia Athletics 4-2. On the other hand a combination four-hit hurling job by Ken Chase and Vern Kennedy of Washington Senators wasn't good enough to beat St. Louis' Browns. The two Washington flingers walked nine men and the Browns won 6-4, helped by George McQuinn's home run—the only roundtripper of the day in either league.

Dodgers Increase Lead

Brooklyn Dodgers expanded their National League lead with a 1-0 victory over Chicago Cubs in the day's most stirring struggle. Kirby Higbe shut out the Bruins on two singles for his 13th triumph of the season, but until the ninth inning Vern Olsen was just as effective although allowing six hits in eight frames.

Then in the ninth Brooklyn loaded the bases with a single, a sacrifice, an error and a walk. Manager Leo Durocher put himself into the game as a pinchhitter for Higbe and laid down a perfect bunt to score the winning run.

Meanwhile the tail-end Phillies obliged by beating the St. Louis Cardinals 5-4 and dropping them to 3 1-2 games behind the Dodgers.

Cincinnati Reds skimmed past Boston Braves 7-4 with a three-run rally in the 13th inning.

New York Giants edged out Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 with three runs in the ninth.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Kirby Higbe and Leo Durocher, Dodgers — Former pitched two-hit ball and latter bunted safely with bases loaded in ninth to beat Cubs 1-0.

Joe Moore, Giants — Tripled with two on in ninth against Pirates.

Tom Bridges, Tigers — Held Athletics to five hits.

George McQuinn, Browns — Hit homer for one of four hits with which St. Louis beat Senators.

John Rigney, White Sox — Stopped Yankees' victory march by keeping eight hits scattered.

ESQUIRE KIDS FINISH THIRD IN SOFTBALL LOOP

Defeat Saco 4-0 With Vince Guay Providing the Needed Singles

IN THE PLAYOFFS

With Vince Guay pounding out three timely hits, one a home run, to drive in three runs, the Esquire Juniors concluded their part of the City Softball League schedule by beating SACO 4 to 0 last evening at Coleman Flats, the "kids" cinched third place and a play-off berth in the league.

Next to Guay, for the winners, came Mike Power, youthful Junior hurler, who scattered six hits gathered by Skipper Eddie Ethier's nine, in a splendid manner. In the ninth the SACOS put two on base with one out, when Power came into his own and struck out the last two batters to win. The kids played strong ball behind Power, completing two fast double plays to help in the victory. Power struck out eleven.

Mac Kerr, firing for the losers, only yielded up seven hits, but two walks and an error helped in his defeat. Whiting singled, Cook walked and Guay drove them in with a first inning double. Ethier walked and Mansfield doubled for the kids' third run while Guay hit a roundtripper in the ninth with none aboard, for the fourth and final junior tally. Peoples, with a brace of singles, paced the SACOS on the attack.

The line-ups: Esquire Jrs.—Whiting, 3b; Ethier, lf; Mansfield, 2b; Cook and Yarrow, rf; Guay, ss; Tomaso and Campbell, cf; Power, p; Peacock, 1b; and Bradden, c. SACO—Day, cf; Storey, 3b; Hunter, 1b; Peoples, ss; M. Thompson, 2b; Fraine, lf; Kerr, p; B. Thompson, rf, and Connor, c.

MONTAGUE—REMEMBER HIM? —SHOOTS PAR GOLF WITH BAT, SHOVEL

PARTNERSHIP BROKEN BY PRO. CONTRACT

Johnny McCready Signs Two-Year Contract to Play With Leafs

ALWAYS BUDDIES

Winnipeg, July 15.— (CP)— A pro contract has cracked what up to the present had withstood the test of years—the playing partnership of Johnny McCreedy and Dick Kowcinak.

The 23-year-old McCreedy revealed last night he is under contract to the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League thus serving notice of dissolution of a partnership with Kowcinak, which started during the shinny playing days of the principals and reached a climax, when they played together on major amateur championship clubs for four successive years.

Only last Spring the two schoolday buddies missed out on a fifth title when as members of Sydney Millionaires they went down before Regina in the Allan Cup finals.

McCreedy said he signed a two-year contract with the Leafs two weeks ago when he stopped off in Toronto en route hom from Nova Scotia. He is due to report October 1 at the N.H.L. Club's training camp. Both boys trained with the Leafs last fall.

McCreedy and Kowcinak first crashed the hockey headlines in 1937 when their club, Winnipeg Monarchs, won the Memorial Cup in the National Junior final against Copper Cliff.

Played With Trail

The next season, McCreedy, a slim youth standing five feet eight inches, and Kowcinak, his left wing mate, went to Trail, where as members of the Smoke Eaters they rolled to the Dominion Senior championship by defeating Cornwall Flyers.

The 1938-39 season saw the two Winnipeggers flashing rubber past European goalkeepers as Trail won the world's amateur crown in Switzerland with eight straight wins in addition to 45 triumphs in 47 European exhibition games.

Instead of returning to British Columbia they moved into Northern Ontario where as members of KirklandLake Blue Devils McCreedy and Kowcinak played a big part in taking the Allan Cup to that mining centre in 1940.

Again last season they took the spotlight in Nova Scotia as Key forwards with Sydney Millionaires who lost a six-game Allan Cup final to Freddie Metcalfe's young Regina Rangers last May 1.

HERMAN BESSE STOPS BISONS WITH FIVE HITS

Toronto, Despite Position in Loop, Has Several Ready for Big Time

BEARS STILL WIN

(By the Associated Press)

It takes the second division clubs rather than the leaders, to prove just how tough International League baseball can be.

From a look at the standings, it would appear that Toronto was trying to get along with a class "C" club in a double-A league, what with 66 defeats in 90 games so far. But in spite of their record, the Maple Leafs have some really good players, including a couple of candidates for big league jobs.

Toronto's pitching pride now is Herman Besse, who stopped the second-place Buffalo Bisons with five hits last night to earn a 10-3 victory. Since he first appeared in the lineup May 14, Besse hasn't been knocked off the hill in 13 starts. And his record of seven victories and six losses isn't entirely his fault, as seen in the five games in which he's allowed five hits or less.

Given Plenty of Support

Last night the Leafs gave Besse plenty of support, banging three Bison pitchers for 15 hits and won going away. They hammered Hal White for four runs in the fifth and buried Earl Cook under a six-run seventh inning. Eric Tipton led the assault with three hits.

Syracuse also got some top-flight pitching and downed Jersey City 6-2. Rochester, with Roy Bruner on the hill, trimmed Montreal 5-3 to move within a half game of the third-place Royals and in an afternoon game Al Gettel pitched Newark's league-leading Bears to a 2-1 decision over Baltimore Orioles.

Southpaw Sunkel gave the Jersey Giants only one hit, a single by Mickey Witek in the eighth, but gave up two runs in the first inning on three walks, an error and a long fly.

Gettel, who toils mostly in relief roles, tossed a five-hitter at Baltimore and drove in the winning run with a single in the fifth after George Scharein doubled. It was the Bears' fifth straight victory.

While Bruner pitched seven-hit ball for the Red Wings, it was principally the wildness of Montreal's Charlie Gassaway that gave Rochester the decision.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

Clifford O'Connor, former Saskatoon defenceman, arrived in Belleville the other day and commenced working here the next morning. O'Connor is a keen lad of 19-years-of-age, stands about five foot 11 inches and weighs about 170 pounds. Reminds us a lot of Barnes, the sensational defenceman from Alberta, who played one season for Peterboro several years ago. O'Connor did not comment upon his hockey ability, but on the contrary asked where he could try out with a baseball club. "You see I like to play baseball in the summer. I was with a brewery-sponsored club in the Saskatoon Senior City League before leaving for the east," explained O'Connor, who is making his first trip to Eastern Canada. With Gene LaBonne, former Cornwall Flyer forward and O'Connor in the local hockey camp, Secretary K. Snodden is hoping for assistance from other industrial firms to give Belleville a strong city team next winter. Incidentally we are sorry to report that Clare Williamson, defenceman with the Combines last winter, is in hospital with an infected set of tonsils.

As was announced at their annual meeting the Ontario Softball Association is setting aside a full week in which the clubs and associations affiliated with the provincial softball parent body are to raise funds for the purchase of sports equipment for military camps in Canada. The week of Aug. 4th to the 9th has been announced as "O.ASA. War Service Sports Week," during which time all softball leagues and clubs are being asked to contribute in some manner to this cause. Like other governing sporting organizations, the O.A.S.A. has already contributed much towards the provision of sports equipment to the three branches of the service, but this demand is increasing every day and must be in one manner or another. Had the local softball heads carried out their original plan of a War Service softball tournament on Dominion Day, Prexy Clem Bowler, Harry Rollins et all would not be confronted with the problem of having to co-operate with the O.A.S.A. next month. With the City League play-offs looming up for that week, the local softball moguls should have little difficulty in making a substantial contribution to this worthy fund.

Speaking of sports war services, every girl in the City Ladies' Softball League is out selling tickets for their Civic Holiday softball extravaganza when the famed Sunday Morning Class girls' team of Toronto appears in Belleville, with all proceeds to go to the Red Cross British Bomb Victims' Fund. To followers of girls' softball circles, the S.M.C. squad needs no introduction, as they are tops in their respective sports realm. Only two weeks ago Frank Doughy's girls journeyed all the way to Montreal for a week end war service girls' softball. The ducats are only a dime, the tenth part of a dollar.

Do you remember when Arthur Fagg, young Kent professional, scored 244 and 202 not out against Essex in a county championship match concluded three years ago today at Colchester, England, to set a world record in first-class cricket. It was the first time that double-centuries in consecutive innings had been recorded in the same match.

Blanking the SACO's 4-0 last night, Red Townsend's Esquire kids clinched third place in the City League final standing with six wins and six losses to play .500 ball for the season. Vince Guay's big bat and Mike Power's spot hurling proved too much for Eddie Ethier's Foster ward gang, who although they only won one game all season, showed plenty of good sportsmanship by playing out their schedule and providing some entertainment for the patrons, as well as recreation for themselves. There still remains one unplayed game, SACO versus Reliance, but as the result would have no bearing on the final standing it is doubtful if this game will be played. In the meantime President Clem Bowler is calling the clubs together to arrange for the City League playoffs, when Corbys meet Reliance as the Esquire kids clash with Point Anne in the semi-finals. Incidentally the Reliance management revealed today their club would not compete in the O.A.S.A. playdowns, but would throw their entire efforts into the winning of the City League trophy.

A lot of criticism is being heard from the baseball experts regarding the manner in which the respective clubs of the 1941 major league All-Star game were handled by Bill McKechnie and Del Baker. For instance the use of players like Mel Ott and Charlie Keller as pinch hitters, when they deserved a place in the regular line-ups, at least for some part of the contest seems to be the all-high in unappreciation. It is said several of the stars selected for the game reported in a cooling manner and pleaded various reasons why they should not play. These feeble excuses in no way helped the managerial aspect, although it must be said that those who actually got into the contest were playing for keeps. Perhaps another year it might be to the advantage of all to have the selected players report to their respective managers 24 hours before game time at which time signals and other discussions for the betterment of the contest could be thoroughly discussed to the mutual advantage of all. It would certainly help.

Bob Feller chalked up his 18th win of the season when the Indians downed the Red Sox 4-1; it was Feller's 100th win as a major league pitcher. Some major league hurlers would ask for a bonus if they won 18 games in any one season, while still others don't win 100 games in a lifetime of major league ball. Looks as though this Feller feller really has something on the ball.

John Rogney and the Chicago White Sox snapped the Yankees' winning streak at 14 when the Pale Hose beat the Yanks 7 to 1. Johnny Rigney nearly halted Joe DiMaggio's hitting streak in the bargain. DiMagg rolled a slow roller down the third base line yesterday and beat out the infield scratch hit to keep his consecutive record intact. Phil Marchildon, Ontario pitching product with the A's was beaten 4-2 by the Tigers when Tommy Bridges and Charlie Gehringer aided each other in a win, the veteran Gehringer getting one hit in two tries.

Sport Spice — Leo Durocher pinch-hitted his Dodgers to a ninth inning 1-0 win over the Cubs.... The lowly Phils beat the Cardinals and thus the Brooklyn's gained a full game over the Mound City club....See where Walt Gerow's Toburn Mine Beavers chalked up their fifth consecutive win in the Northern League to retain the league leadership...They are seeking another entry into the United States Amateur puck loop, as the league has an unbalanced set-up of seven clubs at present....All of the seats for the annual pro-amateur football game at Chicago have already been sold....This year the Chicago Bears meet the College All-Stars....Nice to have met you.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, July 16

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DAY OF great promise for attaining high objectives and reaching the goal of heart's desire is forecast from the ruling aspects of important planets. It is a time for seeking the assistance of those in power and authority despite the fact there may be some determined opposition of superiors or employers not favorable to ambitious propositions. However, elderly relatives may be of benefit, and the fortunes should increase and expand through application, sound principles and with an element of the unforeseen or surprising.

Those whose birthday it is should have a year of advancement, accomplishment and the attainment of many cherished hopes and wishes. This despite some opposition or lack of endorsement from superiors or employers. But elderly relatives and others in prestige and standing will be found ready to aid and abet meritorious and clever efforts or propositions. Be careful with papers and alert to petty losses. Important friendships or affiliations are encouraged.

A child born on this day should be unusually talented, have much stability and principle and should succeed brilliantly despite some opposition from high places.

The second will have a handicap of three points to the last three groups. These teams were drawn for by the Chairman of Games, Davie Davison and myself and all these games should be keen and well contested.

2nd Section—Black and A. Watkin vs Mitchell and Ford; Vanner and Rutherford vs Davison and Hales.

3rd Section—Backus and Springer vs Argue and Scotty Grant; Edwards and R. Grant vs Iley and Blackburn.

Be on hand at 7.30 o'clock sharp and remember this old game. Bowling is just what you make it. Don't take it too serious.

There will be a game of men's doubles on Wednesday evening at 6.45 sharp. The ladies are too busy this week. There are four teams going to Kingston tomorrow and some to Cobourg on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Black and Mr. and Mrs. Shaw have the deepest sympathy of the entire club in their sad bereavement.

Figure this one out please. On Wednesday last I was leading the first game for Harvey Stewart result, Harvey eight, Palliser, Campbellford, twenty. In the second game with Austin leading, Harvey twenty-two, Diamond, Campbellford, eight. This goes to show names on paper do not count.

We are glad to welcome to our Club, Percy Geen. Glad you came Percy, George Pauley was having it all his own way.

Norm Edwards. Boy there are a lot of these players needing glasses. Rod Mitchell. Your powers at observation are wonderful Norm. "Editor's note"—Having watched both you boys would suggest you drop in sometime and check one another up. "The old story of the shoemaker"!

East Hill Wins Playground Game

Two games of softball were played in the Belleville Playground League on Monday when the East Hill nine beat the West Hill boys 15 to 11 in a bantam series game, while in the juvenile game that followed the East and West Hill teams battled to a four-all draw.

In the tie game the match developed into a pitchers' battle between Ben Bunton, firing for the East Hill and A. Adams on the mound for the West Hill lads. Bunton scored for the Eastern lads on Allan Kelleher's hit in the initial frame, but the West Hill boys knotted the count in the third when Mills scored and then took the lead in the fourth when Rosatti scored. The East Hill made their big bid in the fifth when Cronin, Power and Hewson all crossed the plate to give the East squad three more runs, but a sixth inning rally of two runs, scored by Mills and D. Rosatti, knotted the final count.

The line-ups:

West Hill—Smith, c.; Reeves, s.s.; Day, 3b; Clarke, r.f.; York, c.f.; R. Rosatti, 1b; Adams, p.; D. Rosatti, 2b; and Mills, l.f.

East Hill—Cronin, c.; Bunton, p.; Kelleher, 1b; Wardaugh, 2b; Rollins, s.s.; Power, 3b; Wilson, l.f.; Hewson, c.f.; Moher, r.f. and Kellett.

Score by innings:		runs
West	0 0 1 1 0 2 0	4
East	1 0 0 0 3 0 0	4

East Boys Win

In the bantam series, with five players per club, the East Hill bantams downed the West Hill boys 15 to 11 in a heavy hitting contest. Hearst, Galbraith, Lockyer, B. Galbraith and Downs composed the East Hill team with Hearst pitching. Wright hurled for the West Hill, with Bush, Wannamaker, Raycroft and Rose composing the team.

Honeymoon Gold

CHAPTER FORTY- FOUR

A MIDDLE-AGED man, with the look of the sea in his ruddy face and his sharp blue eyes, was standing on the yacht to greet them, and Natalie said eagerly, "Captain, it's marvelous to see you again. You haven't met my husband, have you?"

"Mr. Marchbanks, it's a very great pleasure," said the Captain with the faintest possible Scotch burr in his voice. "You've won a very fine lady, sir. I don't need to wish you happiness—you've got all a man could want."

"You're quite right, Captain. I have. And thank you for saying so," said Brooks.

The Sea Sprite weighed anchor immediately and turned her pretty nose toward Havana, while the Halcyon Island colonists made themselves at home in the various cabins to which they had been assigned.

Betsy, in the cabin assigned to her and Tom, said lightly, "Owning a yacht must be fun."

"We could afford one just as easily as not," Tom reminded her.

"Could we really?" she stammered, startled.

"We could," he answered.

She flushed and ran her fingers through her hair with a little gesture that he had come to know as indicative of troubled thoughts. "I'm an idiot," she admitted frankly, "but I can't seem to get used to the thought of having money."

There was a knock at the door. "Hello, you two!" called Natalie. "The steward made a mistake. This is your cabin, Tom, right across here—through the bath. You won't mind sharing a bath, I'm sure. Shall I have the steward shift your luggage?"

Tom lifted the suitcase, hefted it gravely and said, "Thanks, no—I believe I'm equal to the task of shifting it. If you two gals will excuse me, I'll don a clean collar for lunch."

"Show-off!" laughed Natalie.

Tom went out and closed the door.

Betsy did not quite meet Natalie's eyes. Flushed and awkward, she said almost defiantly, "I suppose you think it's pretty funny—Tom and I demanding separate rooms."

"I knew you had separate rooms at the Hacienda, and of course I took it or granted you'd want the same here," answered Natalie carelessly. "And since there are scads of extra rooms, why shouldn't you be as comfortable here as you made us on the island?"

Betsy was grateful for her casual acceptance of the situation, and when Natalie took herself off, Betsy stood for a long moment looking out through the porthole at the shining blue-gilt of the ocean. It WAS pretty funny, a honeymoon couple demanding separate rooms. It was always a little shock to Betsy to realize that she and Tom, at least to the others, were a honeymooning couple. She had never quite accustomed herself to the thought that they were legally married. Perhaps if they hadn't spent the entire time since their marriage on the island with the honeymooning colony about them, it might have been easier to realize it. She almost never had occasion to remember her marriage to Tom; there was no occasion to say, as she would have done a dozen times a day if they had lived an ordinary life on the mainland, "I'm Mrs. Tom Forman, of such-and-such an address." But living on the island, as she had done since her marriage, saying merely, "I'm Betsy," she hadn't had much opportunity to get accustomed to her new name.

But now, she told herself, things were going to be different. And she found, to her own surprise, that she was a little excited at the thought.

"Mrs. Tom Forman!" she murmured it under her breath and nodded. She liked the sound of it. Then she laughed at herself and went swiftly about the business of unpacking and settling herself for the brief run to Havana.

Though it was a brief run, it was a gay one. Everybody was in a holiday mood. June and Donald, Brooks and Natalie, were especially radiant, so that Mrs. Edmonds looked at them now and then, almost a little wistful.

Arriving in Havana, Betsy saw once more the effect of a great deal of money. There were cars waiting to rush them to the best hotel, where a suite of rooms had been set aside for their use.

Natalie was in her element. She had spent several winters in Havana and knew her way around; knew all the places that were "to be seen, or else," as Natalie expressed it. There were shops where the women spent happy hours; tours of the provinces where the men were fascinated by Cuba's unexpected varied industries and agricultural achievements. And at night there were supper clubs and the small side-street bodegas that, to the tourists, were far more interesting than the bigger, more American versions of the same thing.

It was as they were leaving one of these sidestreet places very early one morning that they ran into another group of American visitors. There were apologies, laughter, the instant camaraderie between fellow countrymen meeting in a foreign place. And then one of the men said eagerly, "Why—it's Miss Carter, isn't it?"

Startled, Betsy looked up into the rather narrow, very good-looking face bent above her. The man laughed a little and said, "Only, of course, it isn't Miss Carter now, as it used to be in my office. I remember reading some very exciting things about you and your inheritance of a certain island. Since I remembered you very well as a former employe of mine, I was interested."

"Mr. Maynard!" stammered Betsy, and felt very awkward as she acknowledged the man's eager greeting. "Of course I remember—"

"Well, I should hope so," said Dirk Maynard promptly. "After all, its been only a couple of months or a little more since you were employed in my office. We missed you when you ran away from us."

Betsy's face was hot with color and she presented Tom and the two men shook hands. Dirk presented his wife, some of his companions; then there were wholesale introductions and Dirk's companions were obviously impressed to discover Natalie in the group.

"Well, well," said Dirk expansively when introductions had gone the rounds. "This calls for a celebration. Come along, everybody. They have a planter's punch here that's pretty special."

"We were just leaving," said Natalie politely.

"Oh, but you can't do that. Miss Carter—I mean Mrs. Forman, of course—and I are old friends, and we haven't seen each other in months," protested Dirk. "Surely you've time for one round of drinks and perhaps a dance."

Short of actual rudeness there was no way out of it, and Betsy found herself dancing with Dirk, who was terrifically interested in hearing about the island and the purpose for which it had been developed.

A little later Betsy signaled across his shoulder to Tom, and Tom, his eyes dancing a little, came out on the tiny dance floor and said pleasantly, "Mind if I cut in, old man? That happens to be a tune the little woman and I are rather sentimental about."

"Of course not. After all, love's young dream—" began Dirk, and relinquished her with a flattering show of reluctance.

Butter and Eggs At Higher Levels

Toronto — Top-grade eggs registered advances of 1-2 cent a dozen in both the country dealer and retail sections of trading on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Prices of No. 1 creamery solids increased 1-4 cent a pound, while retail butter prices were up 1-2 cents.

With the volume of fresh receipts greatly increased over the last few days, demand on the egg market proved good enough to hold and even strengthen previous day prices. Quotations extended to country dealers on grades A-large, A-medium and A pullets gained 1-2 cent a dozen, while grades B and C remained unchanged, with prices 26 and 20 cents respectively. Grade A-large advanced to 35 1-2 cents in selling prices to the retail trade and grade A-medium rested at 34 1-2 cents. Other prices held unchanged in this section of trading.

The butter market held steady to firm, with prices gaining 1-4 to 1-2 cent a pound as light offerings and good demand prevailed. No. 1 creamery butter solids advanced 1-4 cent, while prices on all grades registered, increases of 1-2 cent in wholesale to retail trading. The majority of sales of first grade were made at 35 cents, but near the close, when all offerings at the earlier price appeared to be cleaned up, the odd sale was made at 35 1-4 cents.

Price of Bran Reduced $3 Ton By Mill Industry

Ottawa, July 15 (CP)—In a further effort to ensure adequate supplies of milk and livestock products for the United Kingdom, two government agencies have arranged with the Canadian milling industry for a $3-a-ton reduction in the price of bran, shorts and middlings for a limited period.

Last Friday it was announced that effective today the export of wheat mill feeds would be prohibited except under special licence to protect supplies of livestock feed needed in the Dominion owing to loss of pasturage due to drought in Eastern Canada.

Yesterday the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and the Agricultural Supplies Board met with representatives of the milling industry and the price reduction, effective on both mixed and straight carlots, resulted.

"This attitude of the milling industry in attempting to meet the situation resulting from the drought in certain parts of the country obviates the necessity of any price-fixing order by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board," a Board statement said.

Prices Announced

In Winnipeg, milling officials said they anticipate that wholesale prices for millfeeds F.O.B. head of the lakes today will be $20.50 a ton for bran, $21.50 for shorts and $24.50 for middlings.

(They said millfeed buyers in Ontario pay about $4.50 a ton freight haulage while country point purchasers outside Manitoba and Saskatchewan pay $3.50 freight charges at present.

(Montreal, officials said wholesale price F.O.B. Montreal probably will be $25.25 a ton for bran, $26.35 for shorts and $29.25 for middlings.)

Under agreements with Britain, Canada is pledged to supply vast quantities of cheese, condensed milk and pork products to the United Kingdom. Drying out of pastures in Ontario and Quebec—chief producers of supplies for Britain—has made it necessary for farmers to supplement pasturage with millfeeds.

High price of wheat in the United States and heavy demand for millfeeds there recently resulted in a rapid rise of Canadian feed prices to about the export level, prices and trade board spokesmen said.

CONN TO MAKE PICTURE

Los Angeles, July 15 (AP)—Billy Conn, Pittsburgh heavyweight fighter recently knocked out by Champion Joe Louis, arrived Monday to make his debut in the movies. He was accompanied by his bride, the former Mary Louise Smith, who is to appear in a picture with him.

Airman Committed, Remanded for Trial On Serious Charge

Appearing before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in a special session of Police Court on a very serious charge, LAC. Wilfred R. Phillips, of the R.C.A.F., and formerly of Winnipeg, was today committed for trial at the next court of compotent jurisdiction when His Worship halted the Crown's testimony and indicated sufficient evidence had been adduced to establish a Prima Facie case. Phillips will be held in custody until October, when he will appear before a court of his peers on a very serious charge that implicates a 16-year-old girl from Pawtucket, R.I.

Phillips was arrested in a police line-up at the Trenton R.C.A.F. base on July 2nd last after a young girl had returned to a relative's home where she was visiting in the city and complained she had been assaulted while in the company of an airman. Constable Wm. Evans who gave testimony this morning, investigated at the time and today stated that the girl's clothes were torn when he saw them about 1.00 a.m. on the morning of July 2nd. Detective Fred Isard and a cousin of the girl in question also gave evidence today. His Worship concluded the hearing as the girl, who was allegedly assaulted, told of her relations with Phillips in a barn on the outskirts of the city on the night she alleges she was attacked.

Phillips was remanded to the custody of the county jail without the option of a fine.

June Production Exceeds Last Year By 100,000 Pounds

Adding to the general increase in production of cheese in Hastings County, June figures released today by H. L. Fair, agricultural representative, reveal that production last month exceeded that of June, 1940, by 100,000 pounds. The total production of the county up to the end of June is 400,000 higher than the corresponding period of a year ago.

Production for the month of June this year was 1,528,066 pounds as compared to 1,414,138 pounds of that month in 1940. Total production of the county to the end of June, 1941, is 2,730,047 pounds against 2,340,606 pounds to the end of June, 1940.

General production for the province of Ontario up to the end of June 1941, shows a decrease of 92,916 pounds over the corresponding period in 1940. In that period 35,013,026 pounds were manufactured as compared to 34,920,110 pounds made this year.

RUSSIA

ported that an infantry and two artillery regiments of Germans and Roumanians penetrated Soviet territory but were met in a fierce night assault by Soviet forces.

Artillery Fire Used

The Russians reported stopping the German-Rumanian advance with artillery fire and tanks, then charging their gun positions and turning their own artillery upon them.

"At dawn, results of the battle were ascertained," the war bulletin said. "The infantry and two artillery regiments were annihilated. . . . A line several kilometers long was strewn with bodies."

A concerted attack by warships, bombers and coastal artillery was declared in an earlier communique to have smashed a German convoy in the Baltic Sea, sinking two destroyers, 13 transport ships and a barge loaded with tanks.

The Russians reported 13 other transports and a third destroyer damaged and left in flames in the heavy blow last Saturday against German sea-borne material. In a separate operation, a Russian bomber was said to have destroyed a U-boat, also in the Baltic.

The Soviet Information Bureau referred to counter-attacks taking a terrific toll of Nazi striking forces but did not claim the new German onset repulsed.

Material Seized

"During July 14," the communique said, "fighting continued in the directions of the northwest, west and southwest. Our troops resisted the enemy's motorized and tank troops offensive and by counter-attacks repeatedly inflicted heavy losses upon him."

On the southwestern—Ukrainian—front the communique reported "a great enemy unit of about 3,000 men" defeated and said the Red Army seized great quantities of cannon, machine guns, vehicles and ammunition.

"In the west," the communique said, "our troops and aviation destroyed about 100 enemy tanks and a great number of automobiles."

There was no specific account of operations in the northeasterly German drive toward Leningrad or of fighting on the Karelian Isthmus north of the city.

Authoritative Russians said last night there was no truth to diplomatic rumors quoted from Ankara that the Soviet Government was preparing to quit Moscow for a provisional capital farther east. The rumors were said to be Axis-inspired.

These were the first parcels we have received from the Canadian Red Cross, and we all thought that they were excellent in every way.

I would be grateful if you would tell your committee and your many helpers how much we appreciate what you are doing for us, and also how much we enjoyed your parcels.

With renewed thanks,

Yours sincerely,

C. Nicholson.

Air mail letters from Germany are now a rarity in Canada, but the Canadian Red Cross Society received one recently from a British brigadier who is a prisoner-of-war in an enemy internment camp. The letter acknowledged receipt of 342 parcels of food by British soldiers in Oflag VII C. This gives positive proof that Red Cross food boxes are reaching right hands. Red Cross officials were particularly gratified that these gifts from Canada had gone to Oflag VII C which is one of the German prison camps about which officials have had much to complain. The Canadian Red Cross is shipping 10,000 food boxes each week to British prisoners in Germany. Each box contains a return post card which the recipient is obliged to fill in and return. To date the Canadian Society has received more than 1,000 of these cards from British soldiers held by the enemy.

Time For Germany to Suffer

The systematic bombing of enemy targets on a large scale during the last month was referred to yesterday by Prime Minister Churchill when he told Civilian Defence workers in London that the time has come for Germany to suffer the terror she has dealt on Britain from the skies.

Referring to the ever-increasing air offensive, Mr. Churchill said that "we believe it to be in our power to keep this process going on a steadily rising tide month after month, year after year, until the Nazi regime is either extirpated by us, or, better still, torn to pieces by the German people themselves."

As the offensive continued, Nazi air raids over Britain continued on a small scale, last night activities were confined to Eastern England and some damage was done to a coastal town. Some bombs were dropped at a few other points.

Five Ships Hit

Widespread British air operations yesterday accounted for destruction of 10 Nazi aircraft, including two bombers, and bomb hits on five ships.

Daylight raids were made on the Occupied French ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre, rail yards at Hazebrouck. Bomber Command planes attacked a small convoy off the Frisian Islands in the North Sea.

Three bombs fell on the deck of one vessel of 6,000 tons, another ship was hit astern and an escort vessel was struck twice. No planes were lost in operations against shipping but in the raids on France six planes were lost. Seven Nazi planes were downed.

French Folk Wave Greetings

Pilots returning from the Cherbourg raid reported the experience of having French folk wave greeting, while Nazi anti-aircraft shells burst about their ships. The streets were crowded with cheering, waving citizens as the bombers roared low to fire a ship at the dock and machine-gun Nazi military transports rumbling through the town. Bombs also struck a railway station, factory and locomotive sheds. A 6,000-ton vessel was struck at Le Havre and left half-submerged.

During Sunday night the R.A.F. smashed objectives along the Channel coast and Northwestern Germany including the Nazi cities of Bremen and Vegesack.

BRITAIN, RUSSIA

"Both the British and Russian governments have undertaken to continue the war against Hitlerite Germany to the utmost of their strength and to help each other and not make peace separately.

"The agreement which has been signed, the text of which has been published, cannot fail to exercise a highly-beneficial and potent influence on the future of the war.

"It is of course an alliance and the Russian people are now our Allies.

"General Smuts (Prime Minister of South Africa) has made a comment which as it entirely represents the view of his Majesty's government I should like to repeat now:

" 'Let no one,' said Gen. Smuts, 'say we are now in league with the Communists and are fighting the battle of Communism.

Not Identified With Creed

"If this Hitler, in his insane megalomania, has driven Russia to fight him in self defence, we bless her arms and wish her all success without for a moment identifying ourselves with her communistic creed. Hitler made her his enemy and not us friendly to her creed."

The source added that Britain "has been instrucental in bringing out a very great measure of agreement between the Russian Soviet state and the Polish government" in London.

"These negotiations have not yet reached a conclusion," he said, 'but we are hopeful that, aided by the statesmanship of Gen. Simorski (The Polish Premier), another important step will soon be taken in the marshalling of all the peoples of the world against the criminals who have darkened its life and its future."

An agreement between Russia and Poland presumably would include provision for the release of approximately 200,000 Polish soldiers taken risoners by the Red army in its occupation of eastern Poland.

GERMAN TREATED

"This blow to the German's pride is bad enough, but he can do nothing to change the attitude of the French people. Sometimes he tries reprisals, however.

"The German kommandatur decided he would take action recently following a minor incident in a Touraine cinema. When the Fuehrer appeared on the screen he was greeted with the usual whistles from the audience. Intermingled with the whistles were loud cries of 'hou, hou' from a young girl.

'On leaving the cinema all the offenders, including the girl, were arrested and brought before a German official. "Why did you make that noise when you saw our Fuehrer on the screen?" he asked. "Because I don't know how to whistle', the young lady replied. She was imprisoned for three months".

Read Newspapers

After similar demonstration in another cinema, the kommandatur decided that during the showing of newsreels, the auditorium should be lit dimly to enable the Germans to see those who mocked the Nazis or applauded the British. The audiences replied by adopting a completely disinterested attitude during the performances, some persons even taking out their newspapers and reading them.

The German doesn't like the French to laugh when he cannot see the joke. When he hears newsvenors crying "pourri-soir, pourri-soir", under his nose he never understands why the French laugh. Paris-Soir is the big French newspaper, but "pourri" is French for rotten.

Germans Plunder Foodstuffs

"These light-hearted incidents are but one side of the picture of life in France today", the spokesman continued. "There is a more serious aspect. German plunder of foodstuffs continues. In one important French town the people have not been able to buy meat for three months. All meat has been sent to Germany. Not only does he dispatch trainloads of food to his own country, but he insists, in many cases, that produce grown in France shall be sold bearing the label, 'imported from Germany', to show the Fuehrer's endless bounty towards his conquered foe.

"Everything is plundered. From the street-seller's stalls to the big stores, the German takes his ill-gotten spoils. Fish caught off the French coast is known to be plentiful. But it is not for sale in France. Oranges come from Spain. But they are not for French tables. Last winter living conditions were hard. What will they be like this winter, more than one year after the German's plundering occupation?'

SALE IS RESTRICTED

"We will try to inform all tourists we can that this was an essential step and part of the war effort", said D. Leo Dolan, chief of the Canadian Travel Bureau.

Big commercial trucking companies generally have their own private gasoline vending systems and are not expected to be embarrassed by the restrictions on sales hours.

Smaller trucking companies, farmers and others using gasoline and oil should not have any difficulties, nor are doctors likely to be embarrassed since there is no restriction on night or Sunday driving and they should be able to fill up with sufficient gasoline to carry them past the restriced hours, the Controller said.

Included in the campaign to obtain voluntary co-operation will be a suggestion that in large cities business persons combine in use of their cars so that four people may be transported on one journey instead of driving singly.

To assist motorists in co-operating toward decreased consumption and avoidance of waste, advisers to the oil controller will make widely public 17 ways by which gasoline and oil can be saved. Reduction of speed to 40 miles an hour, abolition of "jackrabbit" starts and racing pickups in second gear, and adjustments to faulty carburetors are among the suggestions. Citizens will be urged to drive only when necessary, and in large cities business persons will be asked to drive four to a car instead of singly.

The loss of ocean tanker tonnage in the Battle of the Atlantic and the consequent adjustments in transportation tonnage have already seriously reduced our stocks of petroleum products usually on hand at this time of year," the Controller said.

Tankers Being Given to Britain

"Further, the transportation facilities available for our use are sufficient only to bring in 75 per cent. of our present rate of consumption. Included with the transportation facilities now supplying products for Canada are eight Norwegian tankers which Britain urgently asks shall be turned over to her at this time. These tankers are capable of bringing in 4,000,000 barrels of crude or 161,000,000 gallons into Canada between now and the close of navigation. The delivery of these tankers will further reduce our stocks, further disrupt our transportation facilities. Nevertheless Britain asks for them: Britain needs them and they must go."

The one-cent increase for a gallon of gasoline, said the controller, is for the purpose of giving partial relief from the increased cost of crude at the base and added cost in transportation. These costs are constantly being checked, he said, in order that the increase in sale prices shall be in line with them.

Prices May Vary

(Present prices in Canada vary because of transportation costs. In the larger cities of Ontario and Quebec the cost for ordinary-grade gasoline is around 29 and 30 cents an Imperial gallon, including eight cents Provincial Tax in each case and three cents Federal Tax).

Mr. Cottrelle's statement said that Canada's requirements of aviation gasoline for the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan—for the R.A.F., the R.C.A.F., civilian and other schools—are mounting month by month, and that requirements for the Department of Defence (Army), running into "millions of gallons per year," are "rapidly increasing."

"The necessity of supplying and keeping available ample quantities of bunker oil, Diesel oil and aviation gasoline on the two costs to fuel the British and the Canadian navies is vital. Apart from the three arms of our National Defence there is our large and increasing war industry.

Millions of gallons Used

"Several hundred million gallons of fuel oil are needed yearly by essential war industry. Without oil, our war effort would fail. Also large quantities of bunker oil and fuel oil are essential for our steel mills, for the aluminum company and the many other large industrial enterprises. Without oil these plants would be unable to do that which is expected of them".

Mr. Cottrelle emphasized that apart from delivering to Britain petroleum products which would otherwise come to Canada, the Dominion's own war effort must be safeguarded and must have priority.

"In order, therefore, to continue our aid to Britain, to increase our aid to Britain, to ensure our war effort, there is no alternative other than the citizens of Canada, must deny themselves pleasure driving, motor boating, the use of fuel oil where another fuel will do. All non-essential uses must be curtailed by at least 50 per cent, and without delay.

Improved Production

"This curtailment must be achieved in British Columbia and the Prairie provinces as well as in the east. All of the petroleum products supplying the British Columbia market come in by way of ocean tanker and while the tankers available may not as yet have been withdrawn, there is no question but they will be withdrawn. The production in the Prairie Provinces this year, as a result of improved methods of operation, will likely be 900,000 barrels greater than the corresponding period of 1940. Nevertheless, the home production will come short of supplying the western market by at least 2,000,000 barrels; more likely to be 2,500,000 barrels. And inasmuch as part of this market heretofore was supplied with gasoline and other products refined in the east and shipped by the lakes by tanker, the shortage in the east will not make these shipments possible to the full extent".

The controller said every effort is being put forth to use methods of transportation that will substitute for ocean tankers.

4,043 Tank Cars in Canada

"Only 4,043 tank cars are owned in Canada, and having regard to the shortage in the New England states, it is difficult to supplement these by lease. A pipe line is being built from Portland, (Maine), to Montreal with a capacity of 56,000 barrels per day which, no doubt, will relieve the situation.

"On the other hand, tankers are still required to supply the pipe lines at the Portland end. In addition to the eight Norwegian tankers presently asked for by Britain, tankers of Canadian registry are also being requested. In view of the requests made of us, and that which Britain needed, we can depend only on retaining such tankers as are necessary to bring into Canada the petroleum products we require for our war effort".

Describing the factors contributing to the situation in Canada, ranks fifth with all other countries in consumption of oil, but 15th in oil production. Only 15 per cent of Canada's consumption of petroleum products in one year is produced in Canada; the remaining 85 per cent comes from the United States and South America.

Meets with General Approval

Toronto (CP)—The restrictions on sale, delivery and distribution of gasoline and oil announced by G. R. Cottrelle, Federal Oil Controller, met with general approval in Ontario today.

The Minister of Lands and Forests, Hon. Norman Hipel, said that "Great Britain's needs come first and nothing else matters. Naturally we will co-operate in every way possible to conserve gasoline." The Department of Lands and Forests is one of the heaviest users of gasoline, mainly for forestry air patrols in Northern Ontario.

Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, criticized the restrictions as merely "shadow boxing" and hurting the tourist trade. "If a man wants a haircut on Saturday he can get it done on Friday," he said. "It doesn't cost him any more. If they want to ration gasoline, do it properly. This is shadow boxing."

In Ontario first grade gasoline sells for 32½ cents and second grade at 30½ cents a gallon, both prices including an eight-cent provincial tax. The new regulations will increase the prices one cent a gallon.

Against Rationing

William R. Campbell of the Automotive Transport Association, which includes the major vehicle companies in Canada, said the association favors the voluntary plan of conservation. He said "we could see the tremendous difficulty entailed in working out a plan of rationing fair to all."

Chester Walters, Comptroller of revenue, said that the new regulations will be "a hard blow," after spending tremendous sums to induce tourists to come here. But the way was more important than tourists.

Mr. Walters said that the gasoline tax revenue is the largest single item of provincial revenue and was calculated to produce a revenue of $26,000,000 in the current fiscal year. It was estimated that the restrictions would result in a loss of $1,000,000.

First Opportunity to Help

The secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Motor League, W. G. Robertson, said "this is one of the first times all the public has been given an opportunity to help Britain. Until more tankers and pipelines are built and until fewer tankers are sunk by the enemy we will have to tighten our motoring belts and go on short rations."

Commenting on the request for a 50 per cent. reduction in consumption by the oil controller, oil company officials said that approximately 807,666,000 Imperial gallons of gasoline are consumed annually in Canada. They estimated that 294,000,000 extra gallons will be made available for the Dominion's war needs by the restrictions.

329,296 TONS SHIPPING LOST BY ALLIES IN JUNE

Position Improving Because States and Greater Speed of Help From United in Turn-Around

79 VESSELS LOST

London, July 15.—(CP)—Merchant shipping losses of 79 ships totalling 329,296 tons during June were announced today by the Admiralty.

The tonnage, which included British, allied and neutral losses, was less than for any month since July, 1940, with the exception of last December and January.

Seventy-four ships aggregating 325,616 tons were admitted lost in December and 59 vessels totalling 309,731 tons in January.

British losses for June were given as 52 ships totalling 222,284 tons—or less than any month in the past 12 with the exception of January, when 41 vessels of 205,473 tons were sunk.

Hereafter, an authoritative source said, shipping losses will not be published at regular intervals "because by this means valuable information is given to the enemy".

"From time to time we shall, however, consider publication of shipping losses as may be required," the source said. "We hope to keep the public fully informed".

Figures Give Hope

"June mercantile losses, heavy as they are, certainly give us hope for better figures in the future and they certainly must be a disappointment to Hitler. His submarine crews are expanding maximum effort, but still they see large convoys of our vessels. Our position is improving because of help from the United States and greater speed in turn-around."

The June losses in addition to the British included 19 allied ships of 82,727 tons and eight neutrals of 18,285 tons, the Admiralty said.

Along with decreased losses, one source said, more Axis shipping is being sunk because of the R.A.F. is expanding its attacks to coastwise vessels and to communication directing the movements of transports.

Revised figures for May showed that 104 British, allied and neutral vessels totalling 497,847 tons were sunk during that month. British losses alone for May were listed as 77 vessels of 380,035 tons.

Exaggerated 165 Per Cent.

British sources recalled the Germans claimed to have sunk 778,283 tons of shipping in June and the Italians claimed 98,500 tons sunk, making a total of 878,783.

These claims, an authorized source said, "represent an exaggeration of just 165 per cent."

The average British, neutral and allied shipping monthly loss for the six months ended July 1 was 430,000 tons.

For the entire war the monthly average is 324,000 tons.

Since the start of the war Britain has lost 1,078 merchant vessels totalling 4,605,132 tons. Allied losses for that period were put at 334 ships of 1,498,047 tons, and neutrals at 326 ships of 1,014,913 tons.

Tre aggregate British, allied and neutral losses since the start of the war therefore were 1,738 vessels of 7,118,092 tons.

Point Traverse

Point Traverse, July 15—Mr. Herbert A. Southam, Toronto, with Gordon Lambert and Arthur Hall, visited the Gull Bar tern colony off here and report the banding of a large number of baby terns by his party.

While in Prince Edward County, Mr. Southam was told that more of the same birds were nesting on an adjacent island. Upon arrival at the islet, to their amazement, no common terns but the nesting colonies of the Caspian terns and ring-billed gulls were found.

Mr. Southam, Dominion Bird Protection Association, is said to be the first man to band the rare Richardson owl.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. John Weber, Toronto, are holidaying here for a fortnight.

Mrs. George Reynolds and son Russel, Louisville, Ky., are visiting her mother, Mrs. B. L. Metcalfe.

To Use Magedoma For Training Ship

Brockville, Ont., July 15 (CP)—The 41-year-old steam yacht Magedoma which has lain idle at her berth here for the past eight years will sail for Kingston, Ont., today to become a training ship of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve.

The Magedoma has been overhauled here by engineer artificers and other naval ratings and will sail under her own steam, manned by a naval crew. At Kingston her hull will be inspected and any further repairs necessary will be made.

The ship is owned by the G. T. Pulford estate and was offered to the government early in the war.

NEW CANADIAN FORCES REACH ENGLAND

A Canadian tank division, which includes many American volunteers, arrives at a camp somewhere in England after a trip through the Atlantic danger zone. They were part of the largest contingent of Canadian troops to reach England. Included in the contingent were, besides tank men, engineers, lumberjacks, gunners, infantrymen, nurses, army doctors and representatives of almost every branch of the Canadian army. Thousands of men made the safe journey across.

Robert Taylor and Maureen O'Sullivan who are featured with Vivien Leigh and Lionel Barrymore in the smash hit, "A Yank at Oxford," now playing at the Mc Carthy Theatre in addition to the exciting mystery-drama, "The Phantom of Chinatown."

SYRIAN PLANES, SHIPS, MATERIALS YIELDED TO ALLIES

Vichy Soldiers and Civilians Given Choice of Joining Allied Cause or be Repatriated

RELEASE PRISONERS

Vichy, June 15 (AP)—All Vichy planes in Syria and Lebanon, all ships in territorial waters of the Mandate and certain war materials are yielded to the Allies under terms of the Armistice of Acre announced here today.

Vichy soldiers, who fought five weeks in a vain attempt to block allied occupation, and civilians were given "a free choice as to whether to join the allied cause or be repatriated" to France.

The armistice was signed at the Palestine port of Acre Monday by British, Free French and Vichy representatives.

While Vichy troops are permitted to return home, some will remain on duty in certain sections, notably the wild Jebel Ed Druz, to keep order until they are replaced by allied units.

Granted Military Honors

The Vichy troops were granted full military honors. Non-commissioned officers were allowed to keep their arms. Police also retained their weapons.

Allied prisoners are to be released immediately under the armistice terms and Vichy prisoners will be freed as soon as the occupation is completed and other conditions of the accord are carried out.

The Allies are to keep an equal number of prisoners of the same grade as hostages until allied prisoners already transferred to France are released.

A concentration of Vichy forces was ordered to be made at noon today, when the allied occupation of strategic points was to start.

Retain Portable Arms

The Vichy troops were allowed to retain portable arms, including field guns, machine guns and tanks, as well as ammunition.

Other war material, such as fixed coastal batteries, anti-aircraft guns and some military vehicles, were ordered concentrated under allied control. The allies were given the right to take over such of it as they need. The rest is to be destroyed.

Public works, as well as planes and ships, are to be handed over to the allies in good condition.

The allies agreed not to take punitive measures against Syrian or Lebanese citizens who took part in the hostilities.

The terms are to be carried out by a control commission at Beirut, Lebanon, the commission to be made up of three members, two named by the Vichy and the chairman, to be named by the allies.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Spy in the Pantry"

A pistol shot in the night . . . a love note from a girl he never knew . . . a dynamite-laden holocaust on wheels . . . together they spell "Spy in the Pantry," hailed as a thrill-filled spell of intriguing drama! The new Columbia film, opening next at the McCarthy Theatre, was directed by Tim Whelan and stars Rex Harrison, the young Englishman who appeared with Merle Oberon in "Over the Moon" and in "Sidewalks of London" with Vivien Leigh and Charles Laughton.

Harrison is seen as a young member of the British peerage who recovers consciousness in a Paris nursing home, ten days after an airplane crash, to find that he has been hospitalized for a bullet wound! An obvious amnesia victim, he attempts to retrace his steps for the ten days in which his mind has been blank, to discover who shot him and why.

He learns that he is employed as a chauffeur in the home of a French military officer, that his employer's grand-daughter is a very attractive young woman indeed, and that he himself is an accredited member of an enemy spy ring.

Whelan's direction of "Spy in the Pantry" is said to exceed the superb feeling for suspenseful action and delightful humor which made his "Clouds Over Europe" so welcome a motion picture. Gay romance highlights the film, providing light-hearted counterpoint to the intrigue-laden, adventure-packed narrative.

Harrison's flair for debonair comedy is especially marked in "Spy in the Pantry" which offers him his strongest screen role to date. Opposing him is lovely Karen Verne, who makes her motion picture debut, and others in the cast inclue C. V. France, John Abbott, Joan Marion, Leo Genn and Anthony Holles. Irving Asher, the maker of "Clouds Over Europe," "U-Boat 29" and other fine films, produced "Spy in the Pantry," which is based upon a Bruce Graeme best-seller.

"King Kong"

"King Kong," the thrillingly imaginative story of how a prehistoric ape is discovered, taken captive and brought to New York, where it escapes its captors, throws the metropolis in a panic and creates tremendous devastation, will be also shown this week-end at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to "Spy in the Pantry."

Fay Wray plays the girl whose frail golden beauty so enhances the great beast that his heart for the first time in its seven million years of existence, knows an emotion of tenderness. It is on the girl's behalf that he fights prehistoric dinosaurs and later panics a great city.

Robert Armstrong and Bruce Cabot portray two adventures seeking to get a motion picture of a legendary ape and to make a drama out of his reactions to the beauty of a woman. This modern thrill adventure is a Cooper-Schoedsack production and once again as in "Grass" and "Chang" they startle and thrill the motion picture audiences.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Give Us Wings"

A skilfully contrived comedy drama, based on a subject of topical interest, Universal's 'Give Us Wings'' is now at the Capitol Theatre and is highly recommended.

Sounding the cry of youth eager to take to the air, the exciting film tells the story of a group of young mechanics whose urge to fly plunges them into the perils of aerial crop-dusting.

As in the recent hit, "You're Not So Tough", Universal again brings out the versatility of the Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys, transplanting them from their customary East Side New York environment into a setting which offers them rich acting opportunities.

Headed by Billy Halop, the Dead Enders, including Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, Bernard Punsly and Bobby Jordan all merit praise for their outstanding performances.

They are seen as young "grease-monkeys" who recklessly accept an offer to fly the decrepit planes of a small-time aerial crop-dusting company. Follows a succession of events, some tragic, some comic—all deftly woven together into a neat story pattern. Of special interest are the sequences showing cotton fields being "dusted" from the air.

"Jennie"

"I'm one wife who dared fight back . . . stand up to my 'in-laws' and hold the man I love".

That's an apt description of Virginia Gilmore, in the title role of "Jennie", 20th Century-Fox film now at the Capitol Theatre. And how she wins her woman's battle against a family tryant promises exciting entertainment.

The trouble starts when "Jennie" marries into a family dominated by a tyrannical father, portrayed by Ludwig Stossel, who scored a tremendous hit in "The Man I Married". In the course of her fight to make a human being out of him, she also teaches the rest of his large and unhappy family what fun living can be.

In addition to Virginia Gilmore and Ludwig Stossel, Executive Producer Sol M. Wurtzel assigned featured roles to William Henry, George Montgomery, Dorris Bowdon, Rand Brooks, Joan Valerie and Rita Quigley.

The same program includes an interesting short subject "Stranger Than Fiction".

AT THE BELLE

"Great American Broadcast"

The 20th Century-Fox production "The Great American Broadcast" is at the Belle tonight, with that sensational trio of "Tin Pan Alley," Alice Faye, John Payne and Jack Oakie, Cesar Romero, the star of "Tall, Dark and Handsome," is starred with them in the hit.

That sensational dance team, the Nicholas Brothers, are even mot devastating than in "Tin Pan Alley" and "Down Argentine Way." Radio favorites, the Four Inkspots, blot out our blues, and these comics of the Follies Beregere, the Weire Brothers, will have you in stitches as they go through their incomparable comedy routines. Beautiful blonde Mary Beth Hughes registers another hit as Jack Oakie's wise-cracking cinema secretary.

"Battle of the Atlantic," a timely film with stirring commentary by Quentin Reynolds, a funny Mickey Mouse color cartoon and the Belle News of the Day, completes the program.

Bette Davis' New Film

The new Bette Davis starring picture, "The Great Lie," will make its local premiere next at the Belle Theatre. George Brent is co-starred with her and Edmund Goulding directed. This is the same trio which collaborated on such outstanding screen successes as "Dark Victory" and "The Old Maid."

"The Great Lie" is the love story of a magnificent cheat. In it, Bette Davis has what many previewers have pronounced her finest role to date. Twice winner of the Academy Award, Miss Davis seems to have a faculty for topping herself in each successive film that she makes. Critical acclaim on her most recent picture, "The Letter" reached so high a peak that it was felt she could not top it. But according to advance reports, the screen's first lady has done just that in the "Great Lie." A deeply moving story of the heights to which a woman can rise for the man she loves, the new film gives Miss Davis her first opportunity in years to portray a normal, modern American girl, completely without any of the "menace" which accompanied a character such as she played in "The Letter."

The feminine "menace" in "The Great Lie" is ably portrayed by Mary Astor, who returns to the screen to give the year's surprise performance. Brent is said to be exceptionally well cast in the leading male role and the fine supporting cast includes Lucile Watson, Hattie McDaniel, Sam McDaniel, Rssell Hicks, Thurston Hall and Jerome Cowan.

Marie Green and her Melody Men in a lively music master symphony and the Belle News of the Day will also be exhibited.

Never since "Alexander's Ragtime Band," such tuneful, romanceful gayety as revealed in "The Great American Broadcast," now at the Belle Theatre, featuring Alice Faye, Jack Oakie, John Payne and a host of famed stars.

SOVIET FRONT HOLDING AGAINST NAZI ASSAULT

Nazi Spearheads Deep in Ukraine Cut Off by Reds

Communique Says Drive on Leningrad Halted and Front on Road to Moscow Holding

ADMIT HEAVY LOSSES

Moscow, July 16 (AP)—The Russian counter offensive is continuing west of the Dnieper River and German forces have been shoved back even farther than the 19 miles already claimed, advices from the front declared today.

Elsewhere, the Soviet communique said Red Army forces were holding doggedly after furious overnight battles to stem the Nazi drive towards Leningrad and Moscow, and the Russian Air Force struck back for the third successive night at Ploesti, heart of the German-used Rumanian oil fields.

The report on the Russian counter-drive in the Rogachevzhlobin sector, southeast of Bobruisk, was printed in Izvestia, the official government newspaper. How far beyond the previously reported 19 miles the Russians have driven into the German lines was not specified.

1,500 Killed In One Battle

Izvestia's information, dated yesterday, said the Germans had lost 1,500 killed and more wounded in the Red Army's recapture of Rogachev, at the northern anchor of a 20-mile line on the west bank of the Dnieper southward to Zhlobin. Recapture of both towns was announced by the Russian command Monday.

Russian troops which crossed the river under a screen of heavy protective artillery fire to take Rogachev, it said, put a number of anti-tank guns and 27 tanks out of commission.

The rationing of some foodstuffs and manufactured articles was ordered by the Government today. Ration cards will be necessary for such purchases, effective tomorrow as far as Moscow is concerned. The purpose of the rationing was given as "the establishment of firm order and organization of continuous supplies for the population of Moscow." How the rest of the country will be affected was not immediately made known.

Bread Cards Issued

Food rationing is applied to bread, sugar, vegetable oils, meat and fish. Cards also are required for textiles, ready-made clothes, shoes stockings and soap.

This is the third time bread cards have been required in the history of the Soviet Union. They were issued first during the Civil War in 1918 and remained in use until 1923. Again they were introduced in 1929 and abolished in 1935.

Germans Stage Aerial Offensive to Prevent Russians From Bringing up Reinforcements

DETAILS VERY VAGUE

Berlin, July 16 (AP)—The German High Command claimed today the German assault on the Stalin line has smashed Red army counter-attacks and is "proceeding favorably."

The High Command's two-sentence report on the eastern front again was terse and void of detail. "In the east operations are proceeding favorably. In several places desperate Soviet counter-attacks have been repulsed with bloody losses for the enemy."

One clash, however, was mentioned specifically by D.N.B., German news agency, which claimed Soviet units at Bjelaja, 37 miles east of Pskov, were "wiped out" by German artillery and infantry.

Agree on Location

At least as far as locating this battle scene, the German and Russian reports concurred. The Red army communique mentioned a continuing battle in the region of Prokhov which is about 40 miles east of Pskov.

The Pskov-Prokhov area is about 100 miles southwest of Novgorod, which a German report yesterday claimed was being approached by German troops.

German dive bombers, ranging ahead of troops thrusting in the direction of Moscow, were claimed to be battering the Red army's transport system between Smolensk and the Soviet capital.

The aerial offensive, apparently was aimed at preventing the Russians from bringing up reinforcements to stave off mechanized units which were claimed to have cracked the "last defences of the Stalin line" somewhere west of Smolensk.

D. N. B. the Nazi propoganda and news agency, source of these claims, failed to say how far the Nazi armies were from Smolensk, which is about 225 miles from Moscow D.N.B. claimed that at least 150 Russian planes were destroyed on the ground and 72 more shot down by Nazi fighters during these operations, bringing Soviet aircraft losses to late to 7,182.

Dispatches from the front left unanswered questions concerning the progress of the German drive toward Kiev, capital of the Ukraine. A high command announcement last Saturday that Nazi troops were "directly before Kiev" left the German public expecting an announcement of the fall of the city at any hour.

Early today a government spokesman said it would be "premature" to assume Kiev is in German hands.

NO INCREASE IN TAXATION

Wellington, July 16—(CP Reuters)—Walter Nash, Finance Minister and Acting Prime Minister, introduced the New Zealand budget today with the declaration there would be no increase in taxation in the current year.

Mr. Nash announced bread, sugar and coal subsidies to aid price stabilization, said other commodity prices would be stabilized later and declared social security benefits would be broadened for families with children.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 16 (CP)—Thundershowers have occurred in many parts of Ontario and it has become cooler in northern districts. Light showers have occurred in Saskatchewan and Alberta; it has been fair and warm.

Nazi Planes, 'Thick as Flies,' Pay Big Price for Attack on A.-A. Sloop

By LARRY ALLEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Alexandria, Egypt, July 16 (AP)—Her stern blown away but all her guns still blazing, the 1,200-ton British anti-aircraft sloop Auckland was sunk June 24 in the Mediterranean under the bomb attack of German planes swarming as "thick as flies," British naval sources reported yesterday.

Thirty-five crewmen were lost and 50 wounded. An officer survivor said the Germans lost seven out of the unusually high total of 80 in the attacking forces.

The Auckland was escorting a ship into the besieged Libyan port of Tobruk when she was attacked 20 miles offshore by 50 Stukas and 30 Messerschmitt 110's—one of the biggest German formations yet to appear at one time along the Libyan coast.

"We were attacked about 6 p.m." the officer related. "They circled around us then started diving in while we opened up with our eight four-inch guns and every machine-gun aboard.

"The dive bombers swept over five times, scoring a hit each time, then started for the ship we were escorting.

"I estimate that the Nazis dropped between 500 and 600 bombs around us and the other ship, but the latter was not hit and finally made Tobruk safely.

"The Germans seemed thick as flies, coming down on us five or six at one time.

"The first of their bombs aimed at us blew off the stern above the waterline but we kept pumping every gun we had, giving the Nazis a terrific barrage. Within the next four minutes we were struck by four more bombs, one aft and three forward.

"Still our gunners kept firing until the ship was going down so fast there hardly was a gun left above water.

"We made the Nazis pay for it. I saw our guns shoot down at least seven dive bombers. They just seemed so thick we couldn't miss."

BAD WEATHER FAILS TO STOP R. A. F. BOMBERS

Oft-Blasted Industrial Centre of Duisburg Heavily Raided

AIRDROME ATTACKED

London, July 16—(CP)—An authoritative source declared today the Germans were withdrawing some of their fighter planes from the Russian front to bolster their western defences.

Reports from other sources that Nazi fighter planes were being pulled back from the east are confirmed, he said, by the increased fighter opposition being encountered by British night bombers of Germany.

One Nazi fighter plane was shot down over Germany last night when, despite bad weather, Royal Air Force bombers swept over again to attack industrial targets at Duisburg and elsewhere in the Ruhr.

It said a coastal command bomber attacked an Axis supply ship of about 3,500 tons this morning off the French northwest coast and scored a hit on the stern with a salvo of bombs.

Fighter planes on offensive patrol attacked a Nazi airdrome in Occupied France with bombs and machine guns. In the night operations three bombers were lost.

(Nazi sources in Berlin said British planes dropped explosives and incendiaries at several places in Western Germany and, as usual, claimed damage was "light".

Meanwhile, the British Isles continued to enjoy its respite from night raiders. A small number of Nazi planes operated over the coastal areas and one dropped bombs on a southeast coast point. Some damage and a small number of casualties were caused in this "nuisance raid".

(The Nazis claimed the "port" of Margate was attacked.)

No Daylight Raid Tuesday

Bad weather prevented continuation of the British offensive against enemy territory during daylight Tuesday but the German cities of Bremen and Hanover were the main targets of heavy raids during Monday night when tons of super-bombs and thousands of incendiaries were dropped. Great fires were started and extensive damage done to docks at Bremen and industrial buildings in Hanover.

Several other German targets weer bombed and a smaller force attacked docks at Rotterdam, The Netherlands. Pilots reported that during the attacks the bombs exploded with "immense flashes".

At Hanover details of buildings hit by bombs were observed clearly. Fires and clouds of smoke arose from blasted Bremen docks. The bombers reported a heavy anti-aircraft barrage over the German cities.

Royal Navy Maintains Life Line at Tobruk Despite Subs, Bombers

By GODFREY ANDERSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Inside Tobruk, Libya, July 14 (Delayed)—(AP) — Getting food, ammunition and reinforcements into this British pocket in the North African desert constitues one of the most daring jobs of the war—and the Royal Navy is carrying it out despite submarines and dive bombers.

Destroyers, slippery decks piled with hundreds of cases of ammunition, foods and other necessities, race full speed under cover of night and swerve into the harbor.

Lighters nose out from the ruins of buildings along the shattered waterfront as soon as the dark form of a destroyer is seen. The lighters thread their way through a forest of masts of sunken Axis vessels and pull up alongside the warship. Every man aboard the destroyer moves at breakneck speed to transfer men and supplies to the lighters on one side while the wounded and out-going material are hoisted aboard from the other.

The night I arrived aboard a destroyer a stick of bombs fell within a few yards of the munitions piled on the deck. Australians, hung like Christmas trees with equipment, stumbled ashore cursing volubly each time a new shower of bombs forced them to duck or miss their footing. Harbor defences pumped a stream of shells at the Axis bombers overhead.

Trucks Carry Provisions

Trucks carry the provisions from the shore into the stronghold. By the time they move the destroyer's job usually is done, the turnaround taking about half an hour. When day dawns the warship is miles away.

The garrison is made up of soldiers from South Australia, Queensland, Tasmania and England. They have frozen the war of movement in this sector of the hot African Desert to one of position not unlike that fought in France in 1914-18. This band of a few thousand has held on here for more than three months, the guns of the stronghold seldom stilled.

Behind a 30-mile perimeter of reinforced former Italian defences and barbed wire, British and Imperial troops fight from narrow trenches. The trenches have strong points, well-equipped with food and ammunition and held by machine guns, anti-tank armament and Tommy guns.

Position Stalemated

There are attacks and counter-attacks over a No-Man's Land separating the Allies from the Axis forces, but the position is stalemated.

Probably the most popular man in Tobruk is an officer who organized a unit of mess cooks, orderlies and other non-combatants into a "bush artillery". The unit fires captured ammunition from Italian guns left here by the Italians last January.

The most unpopualr man is The most unpopular man is two-place German reconnaissance plane who comes down and machine guns anything that moves.

British Raid Successful

London, July 16. — (CP)— A "highly successful" British raid from Axis-besieged Tobruk in Northern Libya was reported today by authoritative circles.

These sources said a patrol of 40 men and a "tank-hunting platoon" of about 50 men struck out from the defence circle south of Tobruk and fell upon Italians Saturday at Bir El Gobi.

More than 50 Italians were killed or injured and five Italian prisoners were taken. British losses were ten wounded and three missing.

EXTENDED ARMY SERVICE BILL SURE TO PASS

Selective Service Recruits in U.S. Army Likely to Stay More Than Year

SENATE APPROVES

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Extended military service for United States Selective Service recruits, National Guardsmen and members of the Army Reserve was reported authoritatively today to be gaining substantial support in the Senate, now that President Roosevelt has given it his formal backing.

Presidential approval of a War Department proposal that the present one-year service limitation be removed was conveyed to Congress yesterday by Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War. In a letter to Speaker Sam Rayburn, Patterson added that to demobilize about two-thirds of the army in the next few months "would be to court disaster."

Later at his press conference Mr. Roosevelt said the issue of holding the men in service beyond the year for which they were called up to Congress. He added he thought it was simple choice to make. In times like these, whether the army should be disintegrated or not.

In the Senate even some opponents of extension legislation said the administration had sufficient votes to assure its passage. One opposition strategist said an informal canvass indicated that if sponsors did not press a proposal—which has, in fact, been shelved—for authority to send troops outside the Western Hemisphere there was little doubt of enactment of the extension legislation.

One indication of dwindling Senate oppositon was seen by some legislators in a statement by Senator Robert Taft (Rep-Ohio) that he was willing to vote for additional service for the draftees, reservists and guardsmen provided proper safeguards were included in the interest of the men.

CONCERNED OVER CONDITION

Bathurst, N.B., July 16 (CP) — Relatives are concerned over the condition of Senator Onesphore Turgeon of Bathurst, who has been ill for some time. Now in his 93rd year, he is the oldest member of the Canadian Senate.

IF MOSCOW FALLS RED ARMY CAN BE "FULLY SUPPLIED"

Widely Dispersed Industries in the Urals Will Supply Needs Says Maisky

WELL HIDDEN

London, July 16 (CP)—Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky said today that even if Moscow should fall to the advancing Germans, the Soviet Union's widely dispersed industries would be able to keep the Red army in the field "fully supplied."

"For years we planned dispersal of heavy and light industries vital to the war effort to guard against air attack," Maisky explained.

"Should Moscow fall, a catastrophe which I do not believe will occur, we will fight on supplied by these factories and growing industries hidden in the Urals."

Although the Leningrad industrial region is threatened by German forces striking through Narva and Pskov, the Ambassador declared that area was not vital to Soviet war production.

"The British have a song, 'It's a Long Way to Tipperary'," Maisky observed. "Well, it's a long way to the industries which will maintain the Red army against Germany, a long hard way by air or land."

Air observers here said proof of Maisky's words lies in the almost total absence of German reports of bombed industrial targets in Russia. They say the Nazi air force has been robbed by distance and by dispersal of targets on which it counted in France and Britain.

NO MORE CLOSED MEETINGS

Washington, July 16 (AP)—The United States' Senate Naval Committee decided yesterday to hold no more closed meetings because, Chairman David Walsh (Dem.-Mass.) said, "We'd rather have the newspapermen get their information here than out in the corridors afterwards."

Walsh's comment came during testimony by naval officers on military phases of the Defence program. He explained that reporters had agreed not to divulge information the army and navy considered military secrets.

8,000-TON AXIS SHIP DESTROYED OFF LIBYAN COAST

Two Heavy Bombs From R.A.F. Planes Strike Vessel Amidships

BOMB GREEK AIRFIELDS

Cairo, Egypt, July 16 —(AP)— At least one Axis vessel was destroyed today by British bombers in an early morning attack on an Axis convoy off the coast of Libya, the Royal Air Force Middle East Command reported.

Two heavy bombs struck an 8,000-ton ship in the convoy, amidships "and completely destroyed it," the communique said, and another ship was damaged by a direct hit.

Heavy R.A.F. bombers struck again at airdromes used by the Germans on the Greek mainland and at Heraclean, on the island of Crete.

At Eleusis, near Athens, which has been an R.A.F. target before, direct hits were scored on hangars and dispersal points causing widespread explosions and fires Monday night.

Several tons of high explosives and incendiaries were dumped the same night on the Italian port of Messina, Sicily, and "great fires were started at the ferry railhead, engine sheds, transformer plant building, warehouses and four lines of trucks were set afire."

In another Axis attack on the Suez Canal last night, the R.A.F. said one raider came down in Great Bitter Lake and another crashed south of Port Said.

It also announced six Junkers 87's and one Messerschmitt 109 were shot down by British fighter planes yesterday guarding British merchant shipping off the Libyan coast.

Occupation of Beirut by Allied Forces Described by Press Correspondent

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Edward Kennedy, Associated Press correspondent accredited to the British forces in the Middle East, has been with the Allies from the outset of their occupation of Syria and Lebanon, June 8. He moved north with them to within sight of Beirut by June 18. His description of the occupation of the city 27 days later under terms of the accord ending the hostilities follows.)

(By EDWARD KENNEDY)
Associated Press Staff Writer)

Beirut, Lebanon, July 15 (Delayed) (AP)—Allied forces entered Beirut today in accordance with armistice terms and speedily proceeded with occupation of all the rest of Syria and Lebanon.

Exactly at noon, Australians who had broken through the Damour line in the greatest battle of this campaign took down an iron barricade thrown across the road at the point of their further advance and moved into the city, led by a squadron of captured French tanks driven by Australians.

They had remained stationary at this point since early Saturday when the cease-fire order became effective.

Outpost Abandoned

They found the French outpost a quarter-mile to the north already abandoned and the column moved slowly five miles to Beirut, cheered by the local population as it went through suburban towns along the way.

Some British and Free French officers were in the vanguard of the column, but the entry into Beirut was for the most part an Australian show.

On entering the city the main body of troops went to camps in outlying districts. A part continued into the centre of the city, where life was going on as usual except for a little excitment over events and some signs of relief that hostilities were over.

Japanese Foreign Policy Leads to Fall Of Government

German Attack on Russia Places Foreign Minister in an Embarrassing Position

JAPAN HAS 2 ACCORDS

Tokyo, July 16 —(AP)— The cabinet of Prince Fumimaro Konoye, which put Japan in the Axis line-up and bound her in a neutrality accord with Soviet Russia, resigned suddenly today.

Its resignation, a palace announcement said, was to strengthen the government's policies in facing the situation at home and the confused problem abroad.

Prince Konoye presented his government's resignation en bloc to the Emperor at his summer palace at Hayama, southwest of Tokyo, and, as usual in such circumstances, received an imperial command to remain in office until another government is organized.

The Emperor and Empress arranged to return promptly to Tokyo.

Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, who was influential in involving Japan in the two major pacts which now are keystones of her policy—the Axis alignment and Soviet neutrality treaty—was among those who went out.

Still sick in bed, Matsuoka was not present at an emergency meeting of the resigned minister but submitted his resignation to Konoye earlier.

The resignation came exactly a year after Prince Konoye was entrusted with formation of the government. The Konoye cabinet was formally inducted July 18, 1940.

Commanded to Remain in Office

The Premier journeyed to Hayama to present the resignation of his cabinet to Emperor Hirohito, who commanded Konoye and his ministers to remain in office until further notice.

The Prince then returned to the capital and called a special cabinet meeting to which he conveyed the Emperor's command.

(The usual formality is for the Emperor to command the resigning cabinet to remain in office until a succeeding government is formed.)

Most widely known of the Konoye ministers was Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, who is considered largely responsible for Japan's adherence to the Rome-Berlin alliance and who personally negotiated a Japanese-Russian neutrality accord at Moscow last April 13.

An Embarrassing Choice

The German attack on Russia confronted the Japanese government with an embarrassing choice between these two obligations and there were reports that Matsuoka might have to step out for that reason. His opponents charged he had presented for the Emperor's approval two international accords which proved contradictory.

U-Boat Losses Very Encouraging Says Alexander

London, July 16—(CP)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told a luncheon gathering today that "the grimmest part of the war is yet to come."

"It is on the battle of the Atlantic that our life depends," Mr. Alexander said, "and if we defeat the U-boat and the long-range aircraft our strength will steadily become overwhelming.

"As to the defeat of the U-boat I am not going to give you facts and figures for which the Intelligence Service of the enemy would certainly be prepared to pay many thousand pounds. I will tell you, however, that during a recent period I received a series of reports which would encourage any First Lord."

In addition to the U-boats reported definitely destroyed, Mr. Alexander said, he was "certain there are many more which do not get back to Germany and Italy."

The recent figures on enemy shipping losses, he added, are "highly satisfactory."

ONTARIO MASONS MEET IN TORONTO

Grand Lodge Members Welcomed by Mayor Fred J. Conboy

Toronto, July 16 (CP)—The 86th annual communication of Grand Lodge, A.F. and A.M., of Canada in Ontario opened here today with about 2,000 Masons present. Fred J. Conboy, Mayor of Toronto, welcomed the Masons to the city.

"Masonry, throughout the ages has been called upon at various times to show reasons for its existance," Grand Master Dr. J. A. Dobbie, Ottawa, said in his opening address. "At no time was this truer than at present. 8The dictators in Europe have striven to supress Masonry and Masonic influence. They may seemingly outwardly have accomplished this, in part, but men who understand the teachings of Masonry will never be forced, under any amount of compulsion, to forsake their Masonic principles."

The activities of the Grand Lodge in connection with the care and comfort of children brought from bombed centres in the British Isles were commended by the Grand Master. He voiced approval of the generous efforts made by subordinate lodges to amass a substantial fund for war victims which to date exceeds $111,000.

A personal tribute was paid to the late Alex Cowan, of Barrie; Charles Slemments, of Chatham, and Dr. Robertson, of Elroa.

OVERCOME BY HEAT, MAN FALLS FROM CAR

Overcome by the heat while driving his railway gas-car from Shannonville to Belleville on the Canadian National Railway, William Conley, 38-year-old Shannonville C.N.R. sectionman, fell from the gas-car and sustained shoulder and hip injuries on Tuesday. Conley was found lying along the railway right-of-way by fellow workers and removed to the Belleville General Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Van Blakslee.

Later it was disclosed that Mr. Conley was patrolling his section of the C.N.R. tracks between Belleville and Shannonville when he was overcome by Tuesday's intense heat and fell from the moving gas-car. Bruises and abrasion to his hip and shoulder were extensive.

THIEF STEALS PULPIT FROM RURAL CHURCH

The theft of a church pulpit is mystifying Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Peterborough.

The piece of ecclesiastical furniture, constructed of oak, disappeared from the Wesley United Church in Peterborough County late last week, Constable Grayling was informed.

Its loss followed the painting on the church door one night last week of a legend that read —"Get out, Brenton".

Rev. K. Brenton is pastor of the church.

LANDING IN CANADA COSTS PILOT $25

An American pilot was haled into police court in Picton this week charged with failing to report to the Canadian customs after landing his aeroplane in Canada. The owner-pilot of the aeroplane, L. R. Layton of Olean, N.Y., was convicted and fined $25.00 following which he was ordered to leave the country with his aeroplane.

The arrest was made by R.C.M.P. Constables Wm. Beatty and E. Gillis of Belleville, after Layton grounded his plane near Picton earlier this week and was taking passengers in flight for remuneration, which is also unlawful without a permit. Layton admitted flying into Canada and landing his plane without reporting to the Canadian Customs, but pleaded ignorance of the Canadian laws. After paying the fine levied, Layton took off from a field near Picton and returned home to Olean, R.C.M.P. officials announced after completing their investigations.

HARVESTING OF OATS WELL UNDER WAY

The oat harvest, insofar as cutting operations are concerned, is well under way in the Quinte district according to district farmers who were in the city this morning. Early oats throughout the entire section of the three southern townships of the county have now been under the binder with threshing operations expected to commence before the week is out.

Pre-season indications of the yield of the current season's grain crop point to an average crop of fall grain, while all spring grain crops will be considerably below normal. The quality of oats, will, it is thought, be good, despite the fact that straw in most cases is so short that difficulty has been experienced in binding.

THUNDER STORM AFFECTS ELECTRICAL SERVICES BRIEFLY

Sharp electrical storms enveloping the entire district, especially in the western part affected the entire Hydro system shortly before noon today. Lights flickered and died out for a few seconds while wire services were temporarily disrupted.

According to Hydro officials, the storm was general and particularly heavy in the western part of the county. No damage was reported at noon.

A deluging rain fell shortly after the first flash of lightning darted over the western horizon and continued until twelve o'clock.

As quickly as it appeared the storm was over. Distant rumblings of thunder marked its departure to the southeast, while in the north and west the blue sky appeared, heralding a clear afternoon.

33-LB. LUNGE CAUGHT BY TORONTO ANGLER

The boys who go after the big muskies are beginning to believe that this must be convention year for the big fellows in the Trent River. At least a dozen of the finny fighters tipping the scales over thirty pounds have been hauled thus far from the prolific waters of this stream.

The latest to join the charmed circle of fishermen who have landed big fish is Raymond Hines, Toronto sportsmen, who hauled a 33-pound beauty after a strenuous battle. With Charles Hines, he took turns playing the fighting fish for nearly an hour until they landed him.

The fish was caught near Percy's Boom and measured 48 inches in length with a girth measurement of 24 inches.

Canada Packers, Employees to Seek Conciliation Board

Toronto, July 16 (CP)—The Packing House Workers' organizing committee has asked the Federal Government for a Conciliation Board to investigate the dispute between Canada Packers Ltd., and 1,500 employees in the company's three West Toronto plants, Fred Dowling union representative, said today.

Dowling said the request for a Conciliation Board is being made following the company's refusal to negotiate with the union. The union sought a collective bargaining agreement for union recognition and wage and hour adjustments.

J. S. McLean, President of the Company, said relations between the company and employees had been conducted for eight years by a plant relations committee. Two weeks ago the union had asked the company to disband the committee and recognize the P.W.O.C. and "we naturally declined because we couldn't abandon, simply on their request, a system that had been in operation for eight years."

Truck Companies Not Affected By Regulations

Ottawa, July 16 (CP)—Large trucking companies, bus and taxi companies and others operating motor vehicles on gasoline from private pumps will not be affected by the new regulations prohibiting gasoline sales at night and on Sundays, spokesmen in the office of oil controller G. R. Cotrelle said last night.

Almost all the large commercial companies have private gasoline vending systems, they said, and these will be usable at any time of day or night for vehicles bearing commercial licence plates.

There are no regulations barring use of taxicabs for private trips and officials said there might be some tendency to use taxicabs to a greater extent from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. on week days and from 7 p.m. Saturday ot 7 a.m. Monday when gasoline stations are closed. But an increased use of gasoline by taxicabs was not expected to be nearly as great as the saving effected by reduction of private motoring because of the higher cost of taxi travel.

While there is no time-restriction on operation of gasoline pumps by consumer-purchasers like trucking and bus companies, the gasoline-conservation order prohibits "the sale and supply of gasoline and motor oil by consumer purchasers to motor vehicles not bearing commercial licences."

Truck Plunges Over Overhead Bridge

Brantford, Ont., July 16 (CP) — Fifty feet of a Canadian National Railways overhead bridge was ripped away today when a transport driven by Kenneth Bridgen of Amherstburg, Ont., loaded with more than five tons of potatoes went over the bridge and dropped on the C.N.R. right of way 25 feet below.

Bridgen and his helper, Lloyd Adair of London, Ont., both escaped with cuts and bruises.

Bridgen said his brakes wouldn't hold when he reached a sharp turn leading to the bridge and "all of a sudden we headed for the bridge railing." The transport was badly smashed and the steel railing, big timbers and heavy planks were all ripped away by the transport.

Police Open Drive Against Double Parking

With the apprehension of a local trucker and a Belleville motorist on charges of double parking along Front Street, city police authorities opened a drive against this unlawful and unwarranted practice of violating city bylaws yesterday.

"The city council voted parallel parking into effect on the west side of Front Street for the express purpose of widening the street and making driving conditions more favourable on our main thoroughfare. There are ample parking lots behind the stores on the west side of Front Street and in conjunction with warnings given out in police court regarding this matter of double parking by Magistrate Butler, constables have been instructed to ticket all motor vehicles found double parked on Front Street," city police officials announced today as two charges were laid.

Otherwise activities were purely routine in police circles, one local citizen being apprehended on a charge of being found in illegal possession of liquor. This matter will be heard in Friday's police court.

Failure to Register Brings Stiff Warning From Attorney-General

In a bulletin issued to all Provincial Police in Ontario, Gordon D. Conant, Attorney-General for Ontario, stressed the fact that persons convicted of failing to register under the National Registration Act be required to register certificates in Court.

"It has been brought to the attention of this Department that some cases have occured in different parts of Ontario, where persons charged with failing to register under the National Registration Regulations, have been placed on suspended sentence without being required to register".

"In all such cases Law Enforcement Officers should see that the accused persons register and produce their registration certificates in Court before being released from custody, or the case is finally disposed of", stated Attorney-General Conant in warning today.

(DNB, German News Agency, said July 11 that the ship had been sunk July 9 by a Nazi submarine off the West African coast.)

Edward Herbert, the only Europeans among the seven rescued—the others were Lascars—said he saw one lifeboat smashed against the ship but lost sight of the others.

DUKE OF WINDSOR HELPING POOR OF BRITISH COLONY

Appoints Labor Advisory Board to Study Living Costs

Nassau, Bahamas, July 16.—(CP) —The Duke of Windsor is taking the lead in providing a helping hand from the government for the poor of this British colony who have been hit hardest by the mounting cost of living.

Soon after he became Governor of the Bahamas, almost a year ago the Duke appointed a Labor Advisory Board to study living costs.

The Board found a constant upswing in the cost of essentials, due largely to the fact the colony imports most of its foodstuffs and has been shut off from all but essential shipping because of the war.

The Governor endorsed a recommendation of the Advisory Board that all common laborers be given a minimum wage by law of four shillings (about 85 cents) for an eight-hour day. This minimum now is imposed only on building construction.

The Legislature balked at extending the minimum wage law, and came back with a counter-proposal that the Governor find employment for those out of jobs, then propose a floor for wages.

Customs Duties Reduced

The Duke, unsuccessful in his first attempt to meet the problem of high living costs, then proposed that the customs duty of essentials be reduced.

The Legislature agreed and, a few days ago, the Governor signed an Act exempting lumber and singles, fresh and salt meat and raffia used in Nassau's straw-work industry from the special five per cent war tax. The same Act reduced the annual licence on radios from £1 to five shillings.

Important foodstuffs, such as eggs and milk, already were exempt from the special war tariff.

The Duke made it plain, in signing the new law, that he still was not satisfied with what had been done to meet the higher cost of living and would ask the Legislature soon for still further reductions on "certain articles which are essential to the life of a large section of the community".

Service Station Operators Hope Public Will Co-operate to Save Gas

Diversity of opinion in predicting the reaction of the motoring public to the government's edict in prohibiting the sale of gasoline and oil on Sundays and week nights, was apparent today in a consensus of garage and service station operators in the city.

One prominent garage owner came out flatfooted with the statement that in his opinion the reduction in consumption would be negligible. "There may be a difference," he said, "but I doubt it very much. The public will buy their gasoline during purchasing hours. However, the driving public should do its best to co-operate with the government, to the best of its ability."

Another stated that he believed it would be a good thing. "We have a red-hot war on our hands and we should do our best to help win it. If the government needs gasoline, I am sure the driving public will do its share, although it may take a little time to educate it."

"The public took the three-cent increase in price which went into effect some time ago, in its stride," yet another operator remarked, "with little or no difference in consumption being marked. In my opinion the public will co-operate, but it is going to take a long time before the co-operation necessary is apparent. It is a tough proposition to change a person's habits overnight, although eventually I think it can be done."

The one-cent increase in the price of gasoline which went into effect today elicited little or no comment from the motoring public, the operators and owners stated. "There was an occasional squawker," one said, "but he paid after getting his complaint off his chest."

Questioned regarding the possibility of curtailment of service station staffs, the majority of those queried stated that it was a problem which would have to work itself out. Those with an extensive lubricating business said they would keep the service open to the public at night, although the gas-pumps would be locked.

"We can go fishing on Sundays now," another laughed.

20,000,000 Italians Would Migrate To U.S. if Allowed Says Former Editor

By PAT McGRADY
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

New York, July 16 (AP)—Alberto Tarchiani, former editor of Milan's newspaper Corriere Della Sera, disclosed today that a group of democratic Italians and Italian-Americans is attempting to supplant ousted Italian Consulates throughout the United States and win over Italians to American principles.

"We are established in 50 cities," said the middle-aged writer who quit Italy in 1925 when Fascists took over his newspaper. "Every day we receive more and more appeals for help and advice. We hope that someday soon the American government will lend us active support in our work."

By "we" he meant the Mazzini Society, named after Giuseppe Mazzini, 19th-century Italian patriot who was exiled for his efforts to unify Italy under a republican form of government.

The group was founded by prominent Italian professors and professional people who left Italy after the Fascists came into power. Most of them now are American citizens.

Tarchiani was asked whether he believed many Italians would return to Italy in the event of restoration of a more liberal form of government.

"I'll answer it this way," he said. "If it were possible for Italians to immigrate freely for just one day, 20,000,000 would come here."

Sun Stroke and Heat Exhaustion Require Different Treatment

Perhaps you have difficulty in telling the difference between heat stroke and sun stroke. Sun stroke is due directly to the rays of the sun, whereas heat stroke occurs indoors in a hot, poorly ventilated room.

The symptoms of sun stroke are headache, great depression, restlessness, thirst, hot skin, flushed face feeling of nausea, and finally unconsciousness. The treatment of sunstroke is to lay the patient in a shady place, remove [illegible] or blouse, and apply cold cloths to back of neck, face, and chest. The head should be kept high and patient fanned with the coat or blouse if towel is not handy. When patient regains consciousness he is given some cool water containing a pinch of salt. Getting him out of the sun and applying "cold" water is, thus, the first thought in treatment of sun stroke.

In heat stroke, it is not the heat of the sun, but the fact that the individual has been rebreathing moist, used, "unventilated" air, which causes faintness, headache, and dizziness. The face is pale instead of flushed as in sunstroke and the skin cold and damp instead of hot and dry. Temperature is below instead of above normal. As the cause and symptoms of heat stroke are different to sun stroke, the patient is placed in a cool spot outdoors, and cold appliances made to the head only. As all the vital forces are low, heat is necessary, so hot water bags, hot bricks (covered, or other form of heat is applied to the body particularly the abdomen and the feet. If the patient is conscious, or when he recovers consciousness, he is given as much water as he can drink, containing a quarter teaspoon of salt to each glass of water. If he is unconscious, this salt solution is used as an enema. In hospitals, the salt solution is injected under the skin.

In most factories, heat exhaustion is prevented by having tablets containing a quarter teaspoon of table salt placed beside the drinking fountain, the employees taking a tablet with each glass of water. It is the loss of water from the tissues that causes the symptoms of heat exhaustion. The cells of the body are like tiny fish and must be bathed in water to remain normal.

Smelling salts (aromatic spirits of ammonia) help restore these patients, or 15 drops in water to drink every fifteein minutes, helps restore consciousness and strengthen heart action.

Considering that Hastings County is probably one of the largest producers of cheese in Ontario we had assumed that the county also had the largest number of milch cows but in this Hastings is surpassed by several other counties according to the 1940 annual report of the Statistics Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. This report covers almost the full list of products of the farm including acreage devoted to the various crops.

As we said above Hastings is sixth in the list having 41,911 head of milch cows while Carleton, Grey, Middlesex, Oxford and Simcoe have up to 6,000 more apiece. Prince Edward is away down the list with 15,322 head. Including cows for beef purposes, calves, yearlings and bulls the province has a total of 2,513,350 head with a value of $102,535,567. Of this Hastings has 74,775 head valued at $2,586,467.

Another on the list is swine numbering 51,428 and valued at $502,965. In the province there are 1,997,957 hogs with a value of $20,690,702. Kent raises the most hogs with a total of 117,746. Fourteen other counties surpass our county in the numbers of porkers. It is interesting to note that the number of hogs in the province has increased over 600,000 since 1938 showing that the farmers are responding to the call for more pork products in a splendid manner.

There are 13,980 horses in the county with a value of $1,425,960 while for the province there is a total of 559,863 being a thousand less than in 1938. Going over the table for the past forty-eight years we note that the value of horses in the province in 1892 was $55,812,920 while in 1940 it was $57,885,123. During the period from 1911 to '16 the figure went above the hundred million mark with a gradual decrease down to the present although the valuation of horses jumped over nine millions of dollars in 1939 over the previous year. It would be interesting to know the reason for the increase.

The raising of poultry in the county is another important item that amounts to no small change each year. Including turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens the county had a total of 481,107 in 1940 with a value of $293,475. There are sixteen counties surpassing Hastings in poultry raising with Huron, Middlesex and Lambton heading the list, each with a total of over a million. We note that Prince Edward County's production in all the above is just about half of what Hastings raises. This, of course, is accounted for by reason of this county's larger area. We have 415,983 acres cleared or a total of 38.71 per cent against 198,547 acres or 84.43 per cent cleared in the county to the south. The highest percentage of cleared land in any county is Peel with 92 per cent although there are several others totalling over 80 per cent.

When it comes to planting of fall wheat we devote just 6,351 acres to this crop with a yield of 185,449 bushels. The county is twenty-ninth in the list in this commodity. Simcoe and Lambton both raise over 64,000 bushels.

The farmers of Hastings raise more oats than any other cereal crop, planting 73,626 acres and getting 3,096,689 bushels yield. This shows an average of 42 bushels per acre. The highest yield was in Essex with 46 bushels. The county was seventh in the amount of oats produced with Grey having the largest production. Prince Edward raised 956,783 bushels from 25,859 acres.

Peas, also, was a popular crop of 24,161 bushels with a market value of over $42,000. In this crop Prince Edward raised 51,607 bushels valued at $91,000. Eleven other counties headed Hastings in this group with Renfrew raising 151,000 bushels.

There are other comparisons that could be made if we had the space but we feel that the foregoing makes it plain that Hastings has a large diversification of crops and livestock which we associate with good farming. In case of one crop failure or poor prices there is something else to fall back on. The Statistic Report is filled with other interesting data and is well worth studying by those connected with the farming industry.

THESE SOFTBALL GALS

"Leather-lunged, flat-chested, be-muscled Amazons," some one once dubbed the gals who seek the athletic fields, hockey rinks and baseball diamonds for their recreation. His statement was supported by a few Victorian-age diehards who still insist women's place is in the home, maintaining her physique by industrious application to knitting needles, crochet hooks, dish-washing, and diaper manipulations.

Never were so many made to laugh by so few.

Kay Genereaux

If our own feminine athletes who twice a week disport themselves on the softball diamonds of the city can be judged as a criterion, the athletic femmes are far from being "leather-lunged" or to fit any of the various adjectives used by the lover of "home-women." True, they live up to all the traditions of the game by their vocal encouragement of their team-mates, or good-natured raillery of the opposition. Their voices may become shrill with excitement, but when the smoke of the contest has drifted away they are still the same soft-voiced gals who an hour or so previous stepped from factory, shop and office arrayed in all the habiliments dear to the heart of the young girl.

Sure, they have inherited all the sports traditions from baseball and hockey, lacrosse or football loving sires. It is a part of the game. They "rag" the umpire, and in one instance that we know of, a feminine left hook suddenly swung up from the cellar in the general direction of the opponent's lipstick. In a second it was all over.. Again, it is part of the game. Who, for the luvamike, wants to see any athletic attraction assume all the rough-and-tumble qualities of a modern sock-darning convention, or a quilting bee.

The youth and beauty of Belleville's young girlhood take their softball seriously. This has been proven time and time again by actual box scores which have shown that one of the teams outclassed in the initial innings of the game, have gamely stuck to their softball guns, and if not emerging victorious, have narrowed the score down to an appreciable margin.

And the gaily-caparisoned lassies have shown and are showing a spirit of sportsmanship that many a team composed of the male of the species would do well to emulate. The best pitchers of all time have at some time or other been driven to the showers because "he wasn't on." The same applies to the gal hurlers, but they take over another position on the team. In a second or so they have forgotten their chagrin at not being able to continue and are cheering their successor with as much enthusiasm as any of their team-mates.

Again, a number of the gals have further demonstrated their interest in the success of their team as a whole by patiently sitting on the bench awaiting the coach's call to go into action. A lot of them never see the diamond in the course of a game, but you will find them in their accustomed position on the bench when the next game s called, in uniform and ready to play.

It is an admitted fact that the girls do not display the same positional ability as do the male mushballers. This, after all, is not to be expected. But what they lack in individual prowess and collective ability is more than made up in their enthusiasm and willingness to give the best that they have at all times. And at that, the girls have "pulled off" some plays that have fairly sparkled, and have demonstrated that, as batters, they are maintaining woman's claim that she can do anything a man can do, and nearly as well.

Ladies on the diamond they are ladies after the uniform is shed for the "pretties." Their enthusiasm equals any of that displayed by participants in any other sport in the city, in fact we feel safe in saying it exceeds the most of them. They conduct themselves with all the keenness of youth in its natural realm of athletics and mingle with each other after games with a friendly rivalry that augurs well for all concerned.

Belleville's girl softball squads are a credit to the city.

IN PERPETUITY

Continuous and perpetual stay
The red geraniums, come what may
Not all men's hate nor all his greed
Can kill the life in poppy seed,
Or check the blossoms as they come
To peony and delphinium.

Man's finest structures through the night
Fall prey to warfare's dynamite,
And any skillful enemy
Can sink his stoutest ships at sea.
War leaves in rubble desolate
All that his genius can create.

But all unguarded in the sun
On walls and trellis ivies run,
In dread of neither gas nor shell
Blossoms the Canterbury bell;
And never any rosebush grows
In terror of another rose.

The things the hand of man creates
Are subject always to his hates
And from the earth may disappear.
But still, forever, year by year,
Will be repeated as of old
The bloom of phlox and marigold.

Hitler and Napoleon

New York, July 16.—In the outright military alliance between Great Britain and Russia, precluding a separate peace, Hitler has suffered his second major political defeat, and Britain is again pursuing politics in the grand manner of her greatest days.

What does Hitler hope for from his invasion of Russia?

Let us ask another question. What did Napoleon hope for from his invasion of Russia? The parallels are amazing.

Napoleon marched into Russia because he could not get a peace with England that would leave him in possession of the Continent and he was afraid to attempt the invasion of England.

In 1807 Napoleon had a non-aggression pact with Czar Alexander of Russia, who was called a traitor by Napoleon's opponents—particularly Prussia, which was the France of those days. In 1812 Napoleon tried to persuade Alexander to change the non-aggression pact into an active alliance against England, while England tried to get the Czar into an alliance against Napoleon. Both failed. The Czar was willing to maintain a benevolent neutrality toward Napoleon, but not to join him against England.

So Napoleon invaded Russia in order to force her into an alliance against Britain. But instead Czar Alexander made an alliance with England against the aggressor and breaker of the non-aggression pact, and with a promise of no separate peace.

Napoleon got to Moscow with "an army of twenty nations," made up of contingents of all the people dependent on him, and he called it a Western crusade of liberation against Asiatic Russia. Alexander, "who could play many parts," also spoke the language of liberalism, invoked justice, proclaimed a war of liberation for Napoleon's captured nations, and prepared for peace with the West by making concessions on his previous policies.

Could Not Get Peace

Napoleon, "with the greatest army every seen in the world," got to the gates of Moscow, and Napoleon dreamed of dictating peace to the world from there. But he could not get peace with the Russians, who coninued to fight, refused to make a separate peace, followed the scorched earth policy, destroyed the whole purpose of Napoleon's campaign and were finally aided by Russia's natural allies, the weather. Napoleon in retreating had to battle the armies and the population that he thought he had conquered. His end came in the West but the beginning of that end came in Russia.

That Hitler's armies will break through the Stalin Line seems altogether likely. But that the effect of this Russian campaign is terrible for German morale, no one who has even an inkling of the internal situation in Germany can doubt. The Russian-German pact was the most popular achievement of Hitler and Ribbentrop.

The German masses, like all masses everywhere in the world, hate the war. Hitler promised them first that there would be no war—that everything would be accomplished by bloodless victories. Then he promised them that the tactics of the blitzkrieg would mean victory with very little bloodshed. He promised them that no air raids would devastate Germany. He promised them that they would not have a two-front war. Now German youth are dying like flies in Minsk and Pinsk and other places here no German in his right mind ever wished to go, while German cities are being bombed.

Political Line Lost

Furthermore, the whole revolutionary elan has gone out of Hitler's war. Intellectuals in Germany, who were not Nazis, were arguing, until this war began, that Hitler was only an incident, that the world was moving toward socialism, and that the two great revolutionary powers were combined against the static reactionism of England.

The German and Italian short-wave broadcasting reveals that the political and propaganda line of the war has been lost. Day in and day out the Nazis are making a crusade for Christianity and conservatism, in complete contradiction to what they were saying two months ago.

An Italian broadcaster the other night warned England that the Atlantic had become an American lake, and that America was preparing to stab England in the back from Iceland! In other words, Mr. Roosevelt, according to the Italians has adopted Lindbergh's policy and joined the Axis. The German and Italian propaganda which up to now has taken a brilliant offensive is now on a very weak defensive. Next week, perhaps, Hitler will be all out for freedom and democracy.

In the United States, the country Hitler most wishes to impress, the holy crusade is a dud of duds, as the Gallup poll of last Sunday reveals. Seventy-two per cent of the people of all income groups want Russia to win against Germany—and for the most simple and unideological common-sense reason: "Russia is not imperialistic, but Germany is. Russia, even if she won, would not menace the United States, whereas Germany probably would."

All Forced to Choose Sides

In all European countries only those whose own minds have been completely confused from the beginning can be rallied to raise volunteers for Hitler's new war. For instance, Marcel Deat, the left-wing pacifist politican and journalist, who reminds one strongly of Norman Thomas, was isolationist toward Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, and wrote the famous article in August, 1939, "Why Die for Danzig?" Deat, who contributed to the defeatism and internal division of France, is now reported to be trying to get volunteers for the crusade against Russia. The pacifist who would not fight for France and her allies is now prepared to fight for Hitler! And this is exactly as it inevitably must be, because in this struggle everybody eventually has to take sides.

The political consequences of this alliance are no less important than the military. It is true, in the most profound sense, that England is the most conservative nation on earth. It is noteworthy that Marxism and Communism have had less success in the English-speaking world than anywhere else on the whole globe. This does not mean that the English-speaking world has or will have escaped the revolutionary trend of the times that arise out of the urge of the masses to a better and more secure existence.

But the English-speaking world, the world dominated by Anglo-Saxon traditions and philosophy, is reformist, empirical and liberty-loving. The difference between German socialism and Russian socialism, which ideologically grew out of the German, was expressed years and years ago in George Bernard Shaw's introduction to "The Perfect Wagnerite." Of all nations and of all people those dominated by the Anglo - Saxon mentality are least likely to throw the baby out with the bath.

End to Bolshevik Menace

The alliance between Britain and Russia and the line that Stalin is taking mean the end of the menace of the bolshevization of Europe.

As the England that fought revolutionary France and Napoleon, but left the French nation intact after victory, took from the French Revolution everything in it that was sound, avoiding all its excesses and madnesses and emerging from its times as the most progressively liberal nation of Europe, so Britain and the United States, when victorious, will draw from the revolutions of these times those elements necessary for progress in the twentieth century.

The people of Continental Europe are more in danger of lapsing into black reaction of a static variety than into a Communist revolution, for the people of Europe are sick and tired of revolution and war and want peace and quiet.

Out of the Axis-Britain-Russia-The United States-China can come the middle way. And Mr. Roosevelt's prophecy, made in his inaugural address, will, I believe, come true: that neither Communism, nor Nazism, but progressive democracy, is the wave of the future.

Great Britain Improving Her Position

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 16 — (AP) — Cryptic and conflicting progress reports from the vast Nazi-Soviet fighting front becloud developments of that crucial struggle; but elsewhere embattled Britain has good reason to hail this July 15 with cheery "thumbs up" gestures.

Just a year ago Britain had been abandoned by her beaten French ally and was bracing to meet alone the full fury of German assault. This mid-July, despite tragic reverses in the twelve months, Britain is immeasurably stronger at home and abroad. Her Nazi enemy is locked in a death struggle with the mightiest foe Hitler has yet challenged, except Britain.

The cost of two-front war on so tremendous a scale is already strikingly apparent. It has not only loosed upon Germany the most powerful and sustained British air attack of the war; but also definitely lessened German ravages on the Atlantic.

London's ship-loss figures for June tell the story. They were the lowest since July, 1940, except for a period in the dead of last winter. Indications are that the present month's losses will fall even lower, due to Nazi air concentrations in the east, to probable withrawal of some German submarines for use against Russia in the Baltic and to British counter measures at sea.

Stronger Now in East

There can be no doubt, also, that outbreak of the Nazi-Soviet war had much to do with collapse of Vichy resistance to the British-Free French allies in Syria and Lebanon. It ended the last hope of the "men of Vichy" for effective German intervention there. Surrender followed inevitably.

That British life lines have been greatly strengthened in the Middle East by the Syrian victory goes without saying, and the political results may be of even greater consequence.

There is another aspect of the Syrian situation which must be causing concern in both Berlin and Vichy. Interwoven in the terms imposed by London upon Vichy is a provision for the first plebiscite test of the Vichy policy of "collaboration" with the Nazis.

To offset the otherwise generous surrender terms in Syria, London stipulated that French officials there, civil or military, shall have the optional right to align themselves with the Free French forces or be shipped back to France. Presumably that prevents Vichy from condemning "in absentia" such as elect to rally to Free French standards.

First Chance to "Vote"

Obviously the Vichy regime fears that the test in Syria might show considerable repugnance for the "collaboration" policy and the "authoritarian" State program. Old Marshal Petain pleaded with the surrendering French forces to remain as "loyal" in peace as they were in war.

It raises an interesting question. Certainly an overwhelming tendency among the French in Syria to line up with the Free French would seriously complicate matters for Vichy and Berlin. Such sentiment might spread to other French colonial areas in Africa, particularly if developments of the Russo-German war indicated a long struggle of uncertain outcome.

There is known popular disaffection with Vichy's policy even in Continental France. Both British and American spokesmen used the recent Bastille Day anniversary to bombard French ears by radio in an attempt to foster public dislike of "collaboration" with Nazidom.

They pictured the tricolor of French democracy flying again some day over both Paris and Berlin. And in Syria some thousands of Frenchmen have their first chance to vote their preference.

SHIPS OF THE DESERT

Despite the mechanization of armies, the camel still plays an important part in warfare.

Thousands of camels are participating in the battles in the Middle East.

The British, French and Italian armies all use camel corps for patrols in desert areas.

Camels are among the oldest domesticated animals and have been used in war for at least 3,000 years.

That these animals were domesticated very early is evident from the book of Job, one of the oldest parts of the Bible, in which 3,000 camels (but no horses) are listed among the possessions of the greatest man in all the east.

In fact camels have been domesticated so long that there are no true wild camels. The so called wild camels in central Asia are believed to be descended from domesticated camels that escaped from their owners.

There are two species of camels —the one-humped Arabian camel or dromedary and the two-humped Bactrian camel.

The word "dromedary" is derived from Greek "dromas," signifying running, and strictly speaking a dromedary is merely a light, swift camel especially bred and trained for fast riding.

It is the dromedary that is used in the camel corps of the armies of the Middle East.

Although a dromedary appears to walk slowly and awkwardly, actually it can outrun a horse.

These remarkable beasts of burden can travel 250 miles without eating or drinking.

Riding on a dromedary makes some people "seasick."

In most parts of Asia and Africa camel caravans have been supplanted by motor trucks on long routes; but camels are still widely used in small numbers for short journeys between desert way stations. It is estimated that about 3,000,000 camels are now in use for transportation.

Camels are peculiar among cud-chewing animals in that their stomachs are divided into only three instead of four compartments.

A camel, as a rule, does not begin to suffer from thirst until the fourth or fifth day.

Camel drivers sometimes tie up the heads of the animals and force as much as 15 or 20 gallons of water down their throats before starting on a long journey over the desert.

When worst comes to worst the driver kills his camel and drinks the water stored in the animal's stomach.

Canadians Contribute $3,360,000 to Help Purchase Aircraft

London, July 16 (CP)—Canadians have contributed more than $3,360,000 for the purchase of aircraft and to help victims of air raids in Great Britain.

Compilation late in June by the Ministry of Aircraft Production of contributions for aircraft placed the Canadian total at £436,488 ($1,974,196). Canadians sent £306,653 ($1,388,938) to the Lord Mayor of London's National Air Raid Distress Fund. Since this compilation was made the totals have, of course, increased.

Canadians from all parts of the Dominion sent money, from a few cents to $1,000,000, to help build bombers and fighter aircraft or to provide comforts for women and children whose homes were destroyed by Nazi bombing.

Largest single contribution was $1,000,000 J. W. McConnell of Montreal sent the Ministry of Aircraft Production to provide fighter planes. Some of these aircraft, with "McConnell's Squadron" painted on their fueslage, already have been in action.

Other large contributions for aircraft included $250,000 from Sir Herbert Holt of Montreal, £10,000 ($45,000) from W. A. Black, Montreal, £26,567 ($119,551) from the Daughters of the Empire.

The Wings for Britain Fund, through which Sir Herbert Holt's donation was made, had sent £93,469 ($420,610) when the compilation was made.

AT THE BELLE

"The Great Lie"

The management of the Belle Theatre has announced that the new Bette Davis picture, "The Great Lie," will open there today. Miss Davis is co-starred with George Brent in "The Great Lie," with Edmund Goulding directing. This is the same brilliantly successful trio who gave us such pictures as "The Old Maid" and "Dark Victory."

"The Great Lie" is an appealing modern love story centering about the eternal triangle, two women and a man. There was Maggie (Bette Davis), a natural, wholesome girl, very much in love with her childhood sweetheart Peter, but worried about his continual drinking. There was Sandra, a brilliant concert pianist, selfish, neurotic and pleasure-loving. And there was Peter, torn between the two. He and Sandra marry after a particularly lively party she gives to celebrate her divorce. It turns out, however, that she celebrated prematurely, for her decree was not yet final. So it is that Peter flies down to Maggie's farm in Maryland and tells her that he is free, and also cured. They marry and to prove how he has reformed, Peter, who is an experienced flyer, offers his service to the government for a special flying expedition through the jungles of Brazil. Maggie and Sandra meet and Sandra tells Maggie that she is going to have Peter's child and she means to use it to get Peter back. A few weeks later, when Maggie gets news that Peter is dead, she goes to Sandra and pleads for Peter's child. Sandra agrees to give it to her and in return Maggie is to stay with her until the child is born, and to give Sandra a sizeable income for life. It is only Maggie's infinite supply of tact and patience that gets them through the long ordeal which follows. When it is over, Sandra gladly turns over the little boy and goes back to her old life of gayety. Maggie goes home to Maryland with her "son."

When Peter is found alive a few months later, he comes home to find a ready-made family and believes the child belongs to Maggie. The three settle down in the happiest of family lives, but the secret Maggie carries in her heart is brought out into the open when Sandra drops in for a visit to welcome Peter home. The unexpectedness of the turn events take from this point onward, make "The Great Lie" one of the most thrilling love stories the screen has ever told. Don't miss it!

Marie Green and Her Melody Men in a lively music master symphony and the Belle News of the Day will also be exhibited.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Spy in the Pantry"

There should be a stock opening paragraph standing in type all the time. It would say "There's another swell English spy melodrama in town that you shouldn't miss. This one is called (Blank For Title) ...." In this case the title blank would be filled in with "Spy in the Pantry" which opens next at the McCarthy, and it will be well worth your time to get out the huskies and mush up to Vince Freeman's Emporium of exciting Empire entertainment and treat yourself to a choice assortment of thrills.

"Spy in the Pantry" doesn't waste any time in getting exciting. First scene shows Rex Harrison wandering down a Paris street and before he has gone more than twenty-five feet he is shot in the head by some unknown assailant. The wound isn't serious, however, but it develops that there is quite a mystery about him as he cannot account for ten days of life. On release from the hospital he finds himself involved with a whole tribe of people he doesn't know, but with whom he has obviously been associated. It all develops into a rip-roaring spy plot to blow up a munition train which is headed down into vast underground fortifications.

The picture is very spesctacular, and the technical work about the train is particularly well done. The blowing up of the train, for instance is tremendously effective.

There's that nail-biting suspense that you have come to expect in this type of British film and in several spots it will make the palms of your hands perspire.

There's also some typically British comedy to supply occasional comic relief. Highlight in this line is actually part of the melodrama when a radio broadcast of "William Tell" inspires our hero to a novel method of breaking down a captured spy.

Mr. Harrison is sauve and polished as usual, but his role in this picture will add to his growing list of fans over here. There's a new face, too, in the person of the heroine, Karen Verne, a devastating blonde. She's really something to see....but then, so is the whole picture. Make a date for a lot of fun and thrills with a "Spy in the Pantry". The added feature presentation with the above will be "King King" a thriller of the first water.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Pirates on Horseback"

Action fans find a 14-karat nugget of entertainment when Hopalong goes on the trail of a lost gold mine in Paramount's "Pirates on Horseback," newest action-filled Harry Sherman picture now at the Capitol Theatre.

Cast in his famous "Hoppy" role, William Boyd and his partners, Russell Hayden and Andy Clyde, head into a new flock of thrilling adventures when they get on the trail of the lost Eldorado, bequeathed by a murdered prospector to Andy. He shares the legacy with a pretty girl, Eleanor Stewart, and she monopolizes Russell Hayden's attention for most of the picture.

Using his Western horse-sense, plus some deduction that would do credit to Sherlock Holmes, Hoppy follows the meagre clues that lead to the golden bonanza. In the thrilling last sequences, he smokes out the man who killed the prospector and makes certain that he is brought to justice.

Everything is not just slam-bang thrill in this Hopalong, however. There is a quantity of smartly developed humor, much of it centering about Andy Clyde's preoccupation with vegetable gardening, and a touching romance between Russell Hayden and Eleanor Stewart. Credit for a consistently fine job of directing goes to Lesley Selander, an old hand at turning out these action stories, whose direction is marked by enthusiasm and a feeling for novelty.

"Mr. District Attorney"

Current audiences at the Capitol Theatre have no less a personage than Tom Dewey to thank for an entertaining and thrill-packed drama which never, for one moment lets them down in suspense. The Republic picture, "Mr. District Attorney," was based directly on the NBC radio program of the same name, which in turn was inspired by the vice crusading and racket busting activities of New York's spectacular district attorney.

With Dennis O'Keefe and Florence Rice in the romantic leads and Peter Lorre in an unforgettable character role, the picture moves rapidly and absorbingly to a climax which leaves its spectators gasping.

Director William Morgan merits kudos for an excellent job; his direction is swift-paced and expertly timed and he further displays a pronounced flair for comedy.

The screen play by Karl Brown and Malcolm Stuart Boylan lives up to the standard set by the scripters of the radio series and proves that ingenuity and skill are by no means dormant in film writing.

The same programme includes the second chapter of "The Mysterious Doctor Satan" and a late news reel.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The British Press Association reports a new German peace offer involving "generous terms" is in the offing. The agency says that Hitler, having so far failed to drum up any enthusiasm for his "holy crusade" against Russian Communism, is "prepared to consider" peace in the West while Germany devotes her whole strength to "saving the world" from Bolshevism.

Strangely, the new peace emanations from the enemy with their talk of "generous terms" come a year to the day after the Fascist editor Virginio Gayda, on behalf of the Axis, proffered Britain a "last chance" to subscribe to Hitler's new order or face "inexorable destruction".

On that same July 16, 1940, Berlin dispatches described preparations in the German capital to give the troops returning from "pending operations against Britain" a festive reception. The dispatches said grandstands and loudspeakers were being erected in the Unter Den Linden with similar preparations under way in other German cities.

A Different Tune

"These preparations" said the Berlin periodical "Dienst Aus Deutschland," "may be regarded as symptoms that the success of the operation against Britain is already regarded as so certain that time can be taken off for preparing for the reception ceremonies of returning soldiers".

The day's dispatches from Rome asserted that Italy, as the strongest Mediterranean power, demanded a protectorate over Palestine. A 1,000-word communique described a 'brilliant Italian naval victory" in the Mediterranean, while in Libya Marshal Graziani's army was getting ready for a triumphant march on the Suez Canal.

Today, a year later, the Axis eats humbler pie. Virginia Gayda still writes his blood-curdling pieces and Hitler's promise to the German people that the war will be won by Germany in 1941 stands unrepudiated. Yet Nazi propaganda today substitutes "generous terms", for "inexorable destruction".

Cool Reception Anticipated

At his press conference in Washington yesterday President Roosevelt said persons in Europe and the Far East have been planting peace ideas among well-meaning Americans as a preliminary in the peace offensive. The British Press Association account said Foreign Minister Ribbentrop had been 'conferring with Nazi ambassadors to several European countries who have been summoned to Berlin" in connection with the peace plan.

Mr. Roosevelt said that almost every week some well-meaning person rushes to Washington with word that persons abroad have told them that it would be a perfectly grand thing if peace could be worked out. The President indicated a cool reception awaits the peace offer if it is made officially.

Juvenile Orange Lodge Winner of Trophy

The Belleville Juvenile Orange Lodge No. 231 were successful in winning the cup for being the best-dressed lodge in the parade of district lodges at the Orange celebration held in Cobourg held on Saturday it was revealed by officials. The Belleville Juvenile Girls' Lodge received honorary mention for their performance in the parade and were the object of many complimentary remarks by those who lined the route of march.

The Belleville lodges, including the Boys' Juvenile Orange Lodge No. 231, accompanied by the Girls' Juvenile Orange Lodge, the Ladies' L.O.B.A. No. 350 and Benjamin Lodge No. 274, proceeded to Cobourg by special train during the morning of the Twelfth, congregating at their Front Street hall and parading to the station under the guardianship of W. J. Nickle and G. W. Cherry. Thomas Scultborpe, proudly bearing the Union Jack, led the parade to the C.N.R. station to the accompaniment of the skirling pipes played by Jamie Clarke with three drummers, Nickle, Cummings and Poste. Bros. H. Leman, H. Barker and F. M. Empey accompanied the Juveniles in their march in the Cobourg parade.

Marching as they were, in competition with seventy-four other lodges from the Central Ontario districts, the success of the Belleville Juvenile Boys' Lodge in winning the award for the best dressed lodge is an achievement. Their costuming was the result of much planning and co-operative work on the part of the members and their parents.

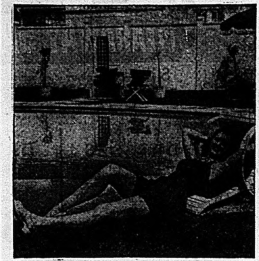
For Beauty—Get in the Swim



Cobina Wright, Jr., believes in taking a swim every day for health and beauty.

By HELEN FOLLETT

OF ALL exercises swimming is one of the best and most delightful. It offers an element of play that is lacking in calisthenics and the dull routine of body movements that discourage many a woman who is working for figure improvement.

Swimming has a beneficial effect upon the organs of the body, the digestive tract, the lungs, the tissue structures, even the skin. It is a helpful means of overcoming certain anatomical defects, like undeveloped chest and poor posture. It is recommended for girls who have desk jobs and for hotel dwellers whose muscular activities may be nil.

Tone Muscles

If muscles that extend from the shoulder blades to the waistline have lost tone, causing round shoulders and poor carriage, get in the swim. The arm movements are perfect for normalizing the back, and a pretty, straight back is a beauty asset that is not to be sneezed at. As arms and legs move through the water, these muscles are constantly stretching, contracting and stretching again, and these movements fill them with vim and vigor.

Complete immersion at the start of the swimming spree is what the doctor orders. That practice equalizes the circulation, bringing a quick reaction that warms the flesh. There must be no going in slowly, the habit of the 'Fraidy Cat. Dip under, get the shock over with.

It is best not to go in the water when the body is overheated from violent exercise.

The girl who goes to the seaside must remember that salt water does no good to her glorious locks. If the hair is wet it should be rinsed with clear, fresh water. If salt remains on the shafts it will cause them to be dry and brittle.

Every swimmer should take along her sun tan cream or lotion. Getting too tanned has a bad effect upon the skin, makes it coarse and leathery.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Planning a Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My mother and I are planning a party for a dear friend of mine who is getting married. We have a large and really lovely house in the country.

1. There will be about fifty guests, and we thought we would ask them to bring something for the bride's kitchen. Would it be proper to give something in the form of a tea?

2. If you tell me you consider a tea the best plan, what about the invitations? Could they be worded so as to convey the idea that the gift is to be for a green-and-white kitchen?

3. Who would be in the receiving line? Would those in the receiving line wear long dresses on the formal side?

4. Could we serve punch instead of tea and coffee? If so, would only one person have to serve?

5. If it is a tea, do the guests bring their gifts before the given afternoon? When does the bride-elect open the gifts? Are the cards or names left on the gifts for the guests to see?

6. What about a bride's book? Should the guests register?

Jean

I approve heartily of your idea of giving the prospective bride a kitchen shower — either a buffet lunch followed by the shower, or a shower-tea.

2. Yes, write cordial little notes of invitation or buy special shower invitations, if you prefer. Give the guests the necessary hint about the bride's chosen color scheme. If possible indicate in some way the shade too .... by referring to a flower-color, perhaps. Perhaps you could get a piece of fabric or wallpaper that is of the right shade, and include, with the invitation, a piece of this.

3. For this informal kind of party there needn't be a definite receiving line. You and your mother, the hostesses, would stand near the entrance of the room to greet the arriving guests, and the guest of honor would stand with you.

In most parts of the country the women at this informal kind of party wear street-length afternoon dresses, but, if in your community they wear long dresses, especially if they are receiving, you may, if you wish, follow this custom.

4. It has been my experience that many guests, even in very warm weather, prefer a hot drink. So perhaps you would like to serve hot coffee as an alternative to punch. This is just as you prefer. If you serve only punch, one "deputy hostess" might be enough.

5. It is usually entirely convenient for the guests to bring their gifts to the party, and then the hostess can quickly place them in whatever decorative way she has planned. The cards are usually enclosed in the gifts. At some convenient time during the party — usually before the refreshments are served — the guest of honor opens the gifts and enthusiastically thanks each giver.

6. It is a delightful plan to have a guest book in which the guests register.

Celebrate Their Silver Jubilee

Mr. and Mrs. William Burd, Mountain View, who celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on July third, were guests of honour at a delightful surprise party arranged by neighbours and by friends in Foxboro community where they formerly resided. About thirty guests were present and the rooms were beautifully decorated with streamers and flowers. The centre of attraction was a two-storey wedding cake. A buffet lunch was served and a social evening enjoyed during which Mr. and Mrs. Burd were presented with several gifts in silver by their friends.

An address expressing the esteem and good wishes of the gathering was read by Mrs. Clarence Fraser and the presentation made by Mr. Everett Prindle.

Weiner Roast Social Aids War Victims' Fund

The British War Victims' Fund was increased by the amount of fourteen-sixty last Thursday evening as the result of a weiner roast and social held at the home of Mrs. Leo Donovan, Cannifton Road. Neighbors of Mrs. Donovan donated weiners and buns and offered their services freely to help in the sale of hot dogs and soft drinks in the booths.

The music of Mr. Harry Wagner and his orchestra added to the evening's enjoyment and Mrs. Donovan on behalf of the community expressed her thanks to the orchestra for offering their services for the occasion.

THE ETERNAL LURE of lace adds to the fascination of one of the loveliest hats of the season. It is of fine black felt, the scoop brim edged with a wide hem of fine black lace that extends to tie softly under the chin after swathing the neckline.

Seafood Addicts Warned Against Mussel Poisoning

At certain times of the year the form of shellfish known as mussel is poisonous. Outbreaks of poisoning have been seen on the Pacific Coast, Nova Scotia, Canada, and in Belgium. Now studies of such poisoning have been made by Drs. Hermann Sommer and K. F. Meyer of the University of California, who find that the original source of the poisoning is a microscopic organism that grows in the ocean. Like all plankton organisms, it is most abundant in the summer, and at times may multiply so largely that there will be 40,000,000 of these germs in a quart of water.

When the germs are present, the water develops a deep rust-red color, so that it is red in the daytime and beautifully luminescent at night. Apparently the organism develops largely in the summer because of the strong radiation of the sun, which offers ideal conditions for the growth of these germs.

The poison developed by these germs has been analyzed and found to be one of the strongest poisons known. It is an alkaloid like strychnine, muscarine and aconitine. So powerful is this poison that one millionth of a gram is sufficient to kill a mouse if it is injected into its body. A fatal dose by mouth for human beings is just a few milligrams, or a thousandth of a gram. It represents about 1-200,000 of a pound.

Plankton, which is found in the ocean, serves as a food or animals on the seashore. When the mussels take in the plankton, they store the poison in their digestive glands. This poison is not harmful to the mussels, but is harmful to the person who eats them. The mussels gradually get rid of the poison in a few weeks, provided they do not absorb any additional organisms.

The muscular tissue, or white meat, of the shellfish does not contain much of this poisonous material because practically all of it is concentrated in the digestive gland—the dark central portion of the mussel.

The condition is not confined exclusively to the mussels, but may also be found in certain clams. The only shellfish which are entirely free from the poison are those which live far from the open ocean, such as the soft-shell clams, native oysters and scallops. Abalones and crabs do not eat the plankton.

While death from this poisoning is not frequent, it occurs with sufficient regularity to warrant a warning. In July, 1936, there were two deaths caused from this source. During 1939, there were several outbreaks on the Pacific Coast.

Any one who gets enough of the poison feels first a prickly sensation in the lips, the tongue and the fingertips, followed by numbness, then failure to coordinate properly in walking, and, finally, ascending paralysis, so that death may result from respiratory failure in from two to twelve hours after eating the poisonous shellfish.

Unfortunately, we do not know of any antidote that will stop the action of the poison once it is absorbed. This means that prevention is most important. Drs. Sommer and Meyer suggest the following rules:

Do not eat the viscera (dark meat), or drink the juice from mussels, clams or similar shellfish from the open Pacific Coast between the 1st of May and 1st of November. The white meat must be thoroughly washed before cooking. The addition of baking soda in cooking shellfish, which has been advocated, helps to reduce the toxicity but is no safeguard against poisoning if highly toxic whole shellfish are prepared.

Excuses No Substitute for Charming Letters

"So busy"
"Yours in haste"

Helpful Pointers Needed!

Tempting to write excuses—"so busy"—when you aren't good at letters. But don't! Nobody's fooled and some are offended—and you can write good letters.

It's as simple as this! In the minute it takes you to write "must rush now" look around you.

If you're on a vacation, you might see the fellow who's such a peppy caller at the square dances. Or the lady who had 13 operations. Or the social director whose moustache wiggles when he says "Having fun?" Write about them!

At home? Gay, newsy material is easy to find in just the simple things you do every day. You made yourself a broomstick skirt—a really cute one. You're learning to dive but so far you're a flop!

You can write a charming bread-and-butter letter, too, knowing gracious expressions like "such a good time," "enjoyed every minute."

Only, do watch your grammar! Slips like "different than" instead of "different from" and "you was" for "you were" spoil an otherwise delightful letter.

Our 32-page booklet gives tips on writing vivid, amusing, correct letters. Has 24 model letters for all occasions—formal, informal and business. Helps you enrich your vocabulary, improve grammar.

EXPELLED AXIS NATIONALS STILL IN N.Y. HARBOR

Were to Have Sailed Yesterday but Ship Delayed for Further Check on Passengers

NO DE LUXE VOYAGE

By JAMES T. CARTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

New York, July 16 (AP)—Instead of awakening on the high seas, nearly 500 expelled Axis Nationals aboard the United States navy transport West Point saw dawn break in New York harbor today.

The giant vessel with its cargo of unwanted aliens was poised at quarantine for a trans-Atlantic crossing to Lisbon first scheduled for yesterday afternoon, postponed until last night and finally held up for a last-minute check of passengers and their effects.

Three reasons were advanced for the delay of the mass departure of ousted German and Italian Consular officials, other Axis agents and their families.

1. Assistant Chief Jesse Edwin Saugstad of the State Department's division of International Communications said the West Point would not be allowed to depart "until everything—passengers and baggage—is checked."

2. A navy department official who did not identify himself declared "submarines and general manoeuvres are taking place off the coast tonight (Tuesday) and it might be safer to wait for daybreak."

3. Marine circles pointed out that the ship is manned by navy crews unfamiliar with handling the West Point and that a daylight negotiation of the busy harbor would lessen chance of an accident.

Wiedemann to Sail

Sixteen Germans, headed by Dr. Hans Borchers and Captain Fritz Wiedemann, Nazi Consuls General respectively at New York and San Francisco, arrived at dusk last night in three chartered transport planes and were taken from La Guardia airport to a coast guard cutter for transportation to the West Point, anchored 10 miles from its Hudson River pier.

State department agents and New York policemen herded passengers into the ship for a voyage that will be far from merry. The ship's bar is gone, gone, too, are the former beautiful fittings. A few officers' suites were available on the upper deck, but many less-important passengers will sleep in the ballroom on cots tiered four high.

The passengers paid from $250 to $300—fare for 20 dogs was $28 each—and had to lay in their own supply of liquor.

For three chartered planes from the coast the price was $14,486, guaranteed by the German Embassy.

At the pier Borchers announced he would not board the cutter until the party received coffee and sandwiches.

"This is an outrage," he shouted, "I'm sure that no German or Italian official would be so neglectful as to permit your American Consuls to go hungry."

Finally a steamship line representative arranged for some food: Several containers of milk and coffee and four sandwiches.

Housework urges you to . . . pause and Turn to Refreshment

When days are so busy you don't know where to turn, why not turn to the pause that refreshes with ice-cold "Coca-Cola." Everybody thinks clearer . . . works better refreshed. And ice-cold "Coca-Cola" refreshes completely. So when you pause throughout the day, make it the pause that refreshes with ice-cold "Coca-Cola".

CANADIANS BEGIN TO PAY EXTRA CENT FOR GASOLINE

Order for Increase Coupled With Appeal for Reduction in Consumption

OTHER REGULATIONS

Ottawa, July 16 —(CP)— Canadians began paying an extra cent a gallon for gasoline, kerosene and distillate today as the first of four new regulations issued by Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle came into effect.

The orders, announced yesterday, were coupled with a general appeal to Canadians for a voluntary reduction of 50 per cent in non-essential consumption of petroleum products.

The three regulations in addition to the price boost—they will come into effect two days after publication of the orders in the Canada Gazette, probably next Monday—are:—

Sale of gasoline and oil for motor cars to be prohibited from 7 p.m. until 7 a.m. on weekdays, and from 7 p.m. Saturday to 7 a.m. Monday.

All sales of gasoline and oil to be placed on a cash basis, with use of credit cards prohibited.

Sale of gasoline and oil to private car owners by dealers other than those licensed to sell retail prohibited;

Mr. Cottrelle, in announcing the restrictions, said they were necessary because of a real crisis created by transportation problems. He could not forecast how long the shortage would last but warned Canadians that if they did not cooperate in the voluntary effort to reduce consumption "we have no alternative but to resort to the rationing card."

Canada's History Traced by Speaker At Kiwanis Club

A brief history of the Constitution of Canada and the various forms of government which have existed in the province since the Peace of Paris in 1763 when Canada became a possession of Britain, down through the years when each province conducted its own form of government until Federation in 1867 united Canada into one dominion, was the subject of an address given b yMr, Ted Follwell, local barrister, at the regular weekly Kiwanis luncheon held in Queen's Hotel on Tuesday.

Mr. Follwell referred to the enactment of the British North America Act which divided the powers of the provinces, giving the Federal Government control over railways, defence, etc., and vesting with the provinces the right of direct taxation and the control over schools.

With the Peace of Paris, English Civil Laws had been put into effect in Canada to govern the population which was then predominantly French, the French being given freedom of religion. With the advent of the American Revolutionary War an influx of United Empire Loyalists had occurred in Upper Canada, now Ontario, with the result that in 1791 the Constitutional Act had been passed dividing Ontario and Quebec.

Dispute Over Language

The rebellion between Upper and Lower Canada was the result of dispute over language, among other matters, which had arisen between the two factions. After the rebellion the advocacy of the provinces being united into one, federation gained momentum until in 1850 the need for a Canadian federation had become apparent. In 1860 Sir George Cartier asked of the British Parliament that such a federation be formed, with the union of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick taking place in 1867, to be followed by the rest of the nine provinces and Northwest Territory within the next 35 years.

Canada is now a self-governed and independent nation having authority to appoint her own foreign ministers, the only control which Britain has over her colony being in the case of war. When Britain goes to war, Canada is automatically at war with her enemy, stated Mr. Follwell.

"It is now 75 years since the present system of government was instituted in Canada, and I see no reason for any change being made," said Mr. Follwell, as he concluded with a prophecy of victory for the Allies in the present international struggle and with a hope for the continuation of Canada's success as a self-governing nation.

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian Ray Grant with club appreciation being expressed by Harold Bateman.

Distribution Underway

Discussion of business pertaining to the forthcoming Kiwanis Karnival was the main item of interest on the business agenda with Mills Marrs stating that the distribution of ticket books throughout the county was well under way. The ticket committee were, he said, relying on the members' active support to make a success of the Karnival. Along the same line of business Ed. Logan revealed that charts with salesmen's names printed thereon would keep an accurate record of the progress made in ticket sales. Salesmen would be awarded merit prizes, he said, while special prizes to high ranking salesmen would be given. George Lee reported on the system of ticket distribution being used, and Frank Domenico reported on the progress of the games committee.

Mr. Leo Riggs, in his first appearance at luncheon since his return to the city, acted as pianist for a period of community singing which was led by Jack Marsh. Clifford Baragar and Ross Stiver introduced the visitors, with Mr. Stivers extending the club members' welcome. President J. A. Barclay occupied the chair.

German Newspapers Bitterly Assail President Roosevelt

Berlin, July 16 (AP)—German newspapers vied with each other today in bitterly assailing President Roosevelt after Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, Foreign Office mouthpiece, had accused him of trying to push the United States into war "arm in arm with Bolshevism."

The Korrespondenz article claimed the policy of President Roosevelt and his advisers was "to leave nothing undone to approach closer to the theatre of war and finally to move directly onto the battlefield."

"In all openness," it added, "Washington circles already discuss, and know politicians like Willkie confirm the fact, that Roosevelt concluded secret obligations with England to combine the British and American fleets and that American armed intervention in Europe definitely is planned."

Karl Megerle, editorial writer for the Boersen Zeitung, spoke bitterly of what he called "the aggressive intentions of the President" in sending armed forces to Iceland, and declared he is "circling like a vulture over the Azores and Cape Verde Islands."

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung charged that Roosevelt "breaks his word, constitutional law and international law and is worthy to stand beside Churchill and Stalin."

"Truly," said the local Anzeiger, "Roosevelt has raised gangsterism to be a symbol in American politics—the United States navy is supposed, in the manner of highway brigands, to create an incident on the Atlantic."

The men present at the meeting voted to return and this morning those who were also out but not at the meeting, approved their action and went back to work as well.

Only 13 Out of 262 Dollar-a-Year Men Worked Full Year

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Today was payday for 262 dollar-a-year men in the United States defence program, but only 13 of them had worked a full year and were entitled to a whole dollar. The rest were paid, on a pro rata basis, from two cents up.

The cheques covered the fiscal year which ended June 30 and the treasury computed them at the rate of 8 1-3 cents a month for the time each executive was on the payroll.

The smallest cheque — for two cents—went to Randolph Paul of the office of Price Administration, but he also received another for an even $1. The larger was for the year ended June 30, the other for the one-week he served during the preceding fiscal year. Officials explained that payments must be on an annual basis, and hence two cheques were necessary.

Softball Executive Arranges Schedule for Playoffs With Corbys Meeting Reliance Squad

Point Anne Will Battle Esquire With Winners Meeting in Finals

GIVE TO WAR SERVICE

It's softball play-off time—

All season the five clubs in the Belleville City Softball League have battled for respective positions to ultimately eliminate one club, which this year happens to be the courageous SACO squad.

The four teams to enter into the City Softball playoffs this year in order of merit are: Corby A. C., Point Anne, Esquire Juniors and Reliance Aircraft.

Extend Play-offs

Last night the league executives met, under President Clem Bowler, and voted to extend the City League playdowns somewhat, owing to the fact there will be no city O.A.S.A. play-offs this season, the Corby A. C. being declared Intermediate "A" representatives, Point Anne Intermediate "C" and the Esquire kids going out into the Junior Provincial softball playdowns without opposition.

However, these four teams will battle it out in the City League playdowns for the Bank of Commerce Trophy with the series opening at Coleman Flats in Belleville on Friday night, when Reliance meet the league leading Corby A. C., while the Esquire Juniors journey to Point Anne for their opening game, as the league provides that the first and fourth and the second and third placed clubs shall play off in the league semi-finals, with the ultimate winners of these series meeting in the league finals for the championship.

Half to War Service

The league executive announced that fifty percent of the gross gate of the first four games played in the series would be given in its entirety to the O.A.S.A. War Service Fund in conjunction with the forthcoming Provincial Softball War Service Week, which commences next week.

After due consideration of services rendered throughout the current season the following umpires were named to carry on the duties of arbiters for the league semi-finals only, with Don Roe, executive member in charge—Ed Schrieder, Bert Pointer, Cy Young, Harvey Scott and Ken Colling. The sum of $15.00 was voted to be placed in the hands of President Bowler to place the Coleman Flats diamond and grandstand in proper condition for the league play-offs.

July 18—Reliance at Corby A. C.
Esquires at Pt. Anne.
21—Corby's at Reliance.
23—Pt. Anne at Esquires.
25—Reliance at Corby's.
Esquires at Pt. Anne.
28—Pt. Anne at Esquires.
30—Corby's at Reliance.
Aug. 1—Reliance at Corby's.
Esquires at Pt. Anne.

Frankie Parker's New Forehand Brings Results

New York, July 16.—(AP)—For the better part of the decade that he has spent in the game's first flight, tennis writers have had the rare privilege of writing about Frankie Parker's new forehand.

This was because for almost each of these years there was a new forehand, and each in turn was so inept the wonder was that young Parker stayed so high up in the ranks of his chosen endeavor.

This, then is a report on the new-new forehand, 1941 style. The latest Parker forehand is, of all things, orthodox. He hits the ball, in other words, the way you would be taught to hit it if you were just taking up the game.

This is strictly in contrast to past years when Frankie used a shovel shot, a push shot and even one patterned on the way a baseball infielder makes his throw to first. The fact that it has taken him the better part of his career to get back to fundamentals Parker blames on over-experimentation.

Parker figures the new forehand has added 50 per cent to his game. Where he used to "dink" he now hits with force and assurance, and since his backhand always was one of the best he can play far more aggressive tennis.

NEWARK BEARS HOLD TOP RUNG

Buffalo Bisons in Second Place 5½ Games Away From Lead

By The Associated Press

Except for the Montreal and Rochester third-place fight, the International Baseball League chase isn't affording much excitement these days.

The leading Newark Bears have 5 1-2 games separating them from the second-place Buffalo Bisons. Likewise, the Bisons are in no immediate danger of losing their position with a three-game edge over Montreal Royals in third place. Rochester's Red Wings trail the Royals by a game and a half after losing a 6-1 decision last night to the Canadians, but from there on down the clubs are well strung out.

Al Sherer outlasted three Red Wing hurlers last night as the Royals took a 3-1 lead in the series and strengthened their hold on third place.

Newark made it four in a row over Baltimore Orioles, hammering five pitchers for a 17-8 victory. Leo Nonnenkamp led the Newark attack with two hame runs and a single.

Buffalo squeezed out a 5-4 victory over Toronto Leafs despite the fact they were outhit, 10-7.

Roy Henshaw pitched Jersey City to a 5-3 victor over Syracuse Chiefs to even the series at two games each.

DEACONS BETTER STANDING BY 21-20 WIN OVER VIKINGS

Establish Long Lead in First Three Innings and Never Headed

PROLIFIC HITTING

Pounding out an avalanche of basehits and scoring runs in every inning but the last, Deacons bettered their fourth-place standing in the Belleville girls' softball league, when at the Armouries lawn last evening, they outhit and outscored Vikings to eke out a close 21-20 decision.

Prolific clouting on the part of both teams was the main feature of the contest with the winners connecting for 20 safeties including one home run and two triples off Rita Rabbi's deliveries while Vikings got to McMurter, Deacons' hurler, for a total of 17 basehits, including two home runs and an equal number of doubles.

In the first three innings Deacons established a long lead as they drove in thirteen runs and despite almost equally hard clouting by the losers, they could not catch up. Near midgame the Vikings narrowed the margin until it seemed as though they might head Deacons to the wire but a string of hits in the seventh scored three runs for the winners to establish a total, that a determined four-run assault in the eighth by the losers could not match.

Ahead in First

The only time Vikings were ahead in the heavy hitting contest was in the first inning when four walks by McMurter and a single by Wright scored three runs. Deacons went one better in their half however as errors on the part of Viking infielders allowed four tallies. Only in the last complete inning played did the girls really get down to play ball with Deacons going out one, two, three in the eighth and the winners turning the same trick in the first of the ninth.

For the winners Jean Muir with three hits one a home run and five runs stood out, with the entire top half of the batting order coming through in good style offensively. For the losers M. Zezedee and Rita Rabbi hit homers with M. Chambers and M. Wright also hitting well.

Line ups—Vikings: B. Zebedee 2b; Chambers cf; Adams lf; M. Zebedee c; E. Adams 3b; Cook 1b; Wright rf; Tummon ss and Rabbi p.

'DUTCH' MEYER AT SECOND BASE FOR GEHRINGER

Recalled From Buffalo Player Makes Good in First Day of Play

DOUBLED IN FIRST

Detroit, July 16—(AP)—A broad-shouldered, square - jawed Texan who once held a football spotlight has moved front and centre on Detroit's baseball stage as successor to the peerless Charley Gehringer.

Lambert (Dutch) Meyer, an acrobatic catcher for slingin' Sammy Baugh at Texas Christian University, made his debut at second base yesterday while the 38-year-old Gehringer watched from the Detroit bench.

All eyes were on the smiling Texan as he took the field against the Philadelphia Athletics, for Manager Del Baker quite frankly has started with him the rebuilding of Detroit's 1940 pennant winner. In his first trip to the plate Meyer doubled Luman Harris' first pitch to left field, scoring Detroit's first run in a 3 and 2 victory. He went hitless three times thereafter.

In the field, Meyer handled six relatively easy chances without a bobble, looking particularly good as pivot in a double play. There had been some fears that Meyer's pivoting would be short of major league standards, but Baker said he was quite impressed by what he saw the first day.

Meyer was a three-sport man at Texas Christian, where his uncle, Leo R. (Dutch) Meyer, is head football coach. The Tiger rookie achieved his greatest success as an end in the Cotton Bowl game of JaJn. 1, 1937, when he caught two touchdown passes from Baugh, booted one extra point and a field goal and left the field with the entire 16-point total scored in the victory over Marquette.

Meyer was sent to Buffalo of the International League for seasoning. He was batting just above .300 when the Tigers recalled him.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Curt Davis and Luke Hamlin, Dodgers—combined four-hit and six-hit pitching performances to sweep doubleheader from Cubs.

Max Butcher, Pirates—checked Giants on seven-hit hurling.

Buddy Rosar, Yankees — tripled with bases loaded to beat White Sox.

Johnny Vander Meer, Reds—shut out Braves on four hits.

Joe Dobson, Red Sox — whipped Indians with four-hit pitching.

Barney McCosky, Tigers — hit home run in seventh for margin of victory over Athletics.

FELLER GIVEN PLAQUE AS "ALL-AMERICAN" BOY

It was a big night for Bob Feller, ace Cleveland pitcher, when this picture was taken. The young fireball star received an award from a baseball publication as the outstanding player of 1940, then this plaque from the Cleveland sandlotters and then went on to pitch a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics, winning the game himself with a mighty triple. Bob's father, William Feller, CENTRE, came from Van Meter, Iowa, to aid in the "Feller Night" celebration. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh is at RIGHT.

Brother Bill Olds pilots the boat, which is named "Ripper" and "Ripper" the dog is the crew.

Two Crucial Series at Once Stir Major Loop Pennant Races; Dimag Continues Hitting Streak

Yankees Meet Indians and Dodgers Take on the Cardinals

VANDER MEER WINS

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Both Major Leagues have reached a crisis in their pennant races at the same time, by some coincidence, and the eventual world series rivals may be tabbed for all to admire before the weekend.

In the next three days the rampaging New York Yankees will have a chance to settle their American League argument in three games with the second-place Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn Dodgers will clash twice with St. Louis Cardinals for mastery of the National League.

The Dodgers swept two games from Chicago Cubs yesterday 7-0 and 8-4. Curt Davis pitched a four-hit masterpiece in the first, facing only 28 men as the result of three double plays. In the nightcap Luke Hamlin pitched a six-hitter.

Meanwhile the Cards had to go 16 innings to wring out a 3-2 victory over the tail-end Phillies. They loaded the bases in the 16th and dribbled home the winning run on a fly by Jimmy Brown.

Nose Out White Sox

The Yankees nosed out Chicago White Sox 5-4 yesterday while Boston Red Sox curbed Cleveland 6-2 and pushed the Indians five games out of the lead.

Joe DiMaggio made a double and a single and was on base four times out of five trips to the plate, to stretch his phenomenal hitting streak to 55 consecutive games, but the heavy duty drive in the Yankee triumph was provided by Buddy Rosar's triple with the bases loaded in the third and by Norman Branch's fine relief pitching.

The Indians were held to four hits by Joe Dobson, whom Cleveland gave to Boston in their big six-player deal of last winter.

In the other action yesterday Buck Newsom showed he is rounding into form again by holding Philadelphia Athletics to seven hits as the Detroit Tigers eked out a 3-2 decision. Barney McCosky hit a homer for the deciding run.

John Vander Meer smothered Boston Braves 3-0 on four hits for his fourth shutout as Cincinnati Reds made good use of their eight blows off Al Javery and Johnny Hutchings.

New York Giants made four errors and gave four unearned runs in kicking away a 5-1 verdict to Pittsburgh Pirates, who benefitted from a seven-hit pitching performance by big Max Butcher.

McCREEDY SIGNS LEAF CONTRACT

Former Winnipeg Puckster is Signed by Connie Smythe

Winnipeg, July 15 (CP) — Wiry Johnny McCreedy, 160-pound, 23-year-old Winnipeg hockey star of three Dominion and one world's amateur championship teams, will report to Conny Smythe, manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League, about Oct. 1 to start his professional career, he announced here last night.

McCreedy, a prolific scorer, fine skater and stick-handler, revealed he signed a two-year contract with Leafs two weeks ago when he stopped off in Toronto en route home from Nova Scotia, where he helped Sydney Millionaires win the Eastern championship last April.

Signing of the right wing speedster broke up the McCreedy-Dick Kowcinak forward combination that has shared hockey headlines since 1937 when Winnipeg Monarchs won the Memorial Cup in the National junior final against Copper Cliff.

The next season, McCreedy, a slim youth standing five feet eight inches, and Kowcinak, his left wing mate, went to Trail where, as members of the Smoke Eaters, they rolled to the Dominion senior championship by defeating Cornwall Fliers.

The 1938-39 season saw the two Winnipeggers flashing rubber past European goalkeepers as Trail won the world's amateur crown in Switzerland with eight straight wins in addition to forty-five triumphs in forty-seven European exhibition games.

Instead of returning to British Columbia they moved into Northern Ontario where as members of Kirkland Lake Blue Devils, McCreedy and Kowcinak played a big part in taking the Allan Cup to that mining centre in 1940.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

Play-off time in our city softball has at last arrived. That final phase of the game the patrons await wondering if the clubs will live up to expectation, when the chips are down. As usual four teams are included in the City Softball League finals—Corby A.C. on top meeting the fourth place Reliance squad the same evening that the third place Esquire juniors journey to Point Anne for their part of the league semi-finals. Last night the league executive met and decided to have a best-in-five series in the semi-finals with a best-in-seven series between the above winners in the city championship for the Bank of Commerce trophy. In cooperation with the proposed O.A.S.A. War Service Fund fifty per cent of the proceeds in the first four games of the series will be given into that fund as the clubs' contribution to war efforts of which the fans are asked to co-operate. The final standing of the league reads:-

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Corbys	10	2	.833
Pt. Anne	8	4	.667
Esquire	6	6	.500
Reliance	4	7	.364
SACO..	1	10	.090

Patrons at last night's gals' softball game at the Armouries welcomed the new portable score board, erected by a soft drink concern. In the future the fans can be kept acquainted with the goings-on and actually who's who and what's what without a guessing contest as to what the score might be. Incidentally Secretary Barney Smith announced last night that the postponed Corbin-SWACO game of last week would be played as a Wednesday night fixture this week, the first half-holiday game of the season. Mike Power's Vikings never did get ahead of "Stub" Barrett's Deacon gals last night on the even inning, although they did make it close with a final 21 to 20 count in favor of the Deacons. Both squads had their batting togs on and made matters rather torrid for the pitchers. Jean Muir, who was moved into the outfield for her hitting qualities, came through with three singles, one home run clout that ended up over on the Post Office steps and now we find the gals' race even more close with the Deacon win.

From the Pacific coast comes a glowing report about old Babe Herman, who used to delight major league fans by stealing second base while it was occupied by a team-mate. He is tearing the cover off the ball, the report says, and so far has not been beaned by a high fly. The Babe probably will keep on playing ball somewhere until they have to send him up to the plate in a wheel chair, for he really can powder out extra base hits.

Do you remember when Jack Delaney, brilliant French-Canadian boxer, won the world's light heavyweight boxing crown 15 years ago tonight by scoring a 15-round decision over champion Paul Berlenbach. Delaney relinquished the title in 1927 to move into the heavyweight ranks.

The hottest tennis team in these parts today is the Canada Cement team from Point Anne. Last week Tom Bowler's "over-the-net" artists took all six matches from the strong Trenton Club for the only ful reverse the netsters from Harry Moore's adopted town had suffered this season. Still in a torrid mood the Ox Point netsters won both the men's singles and men's doubles postponed matches versus the West End Club on Monday night to take eight consecutive points and the leadership in the Trent Valley Tennis League, after languishing in the cellar for the greater part of the season. The results of Monday's two postponed sets were:- Men's singles, Gordon Huck (Pt. Anne) defeated Bill Colclough (West Sides) 7-5, 2-6 and 6-3. Men's doubles, T. Horwood and Joe Deforge (Pt. Anne) defeated M. Clare and Dave Hibbard (West Sides) 6-3, 11-13 and 6-2. Incidentally there are still several postponed sets to be played in the league before the play-off dates can be arranged.

After several months of barnstorming with Budge, Marble and Hardwick, "Tall Willyum" Tilden is prepared to give expert opinion about the all-time ranking of La Marble, Suzanne Leglen and Helen Wills Moody Roark.

Tilden has played with and against Alice Marble in doubles and has watched her nightly duels with Mary Hardwick.

Here's his rating: 1. Suzanne. 2 Alice. 3. Helen.

"Great players, all of them," he said. "But I think that, at her best, Alice would have beaten Helen and the late Suzanne would have beaten Alice.

"Suzanne would have beaten Alice because she wouldn't have permitted her to go to the net."

Joe DiMaggio ran his consecutive game hitting streak to fifty-five games as the Yankees nipped the White Sox 5-4. Strangely enough Joe started his string last May 15th against Eddie Smith and yesterday it was the same chubby southpaw who yielded up a double and single to DiMagg in five trips. Incidentally the Yankees have won 34 of their last 39 starts, which is perhaps the reason they are well out in front of the junior circuit. Joe Dobson of the Red Sox turned the Indians back with four hits yesterday and now the 1940 "Crybabies" are five games behind the Yankees. Remember Johnny "two no-hit" Vander Meer? Well Johnny chalked up his eighth win of the season for the Reds when he blanked the Braves 3-0 yesterday.

SPORT SPICE — Although we failed to get his name, we understand there is a former member of the Winnipeg Ranger junior hockey team now stationed at the Trenton Air Base. . . . We have heard it rumored that Group Captain T. A. Lawrence may be given a promotion out of the Trenton port, which may or may not mean much to local hockey circles. . . . The Baltimore Orioles want to know what they must do to win a ball game. . . . For three consecutive days they scored seven runs against the Newark Bears and lost all three games. . . . Johnny (he gets around) McCreedy, former Winnipeg puck star, will report to the Maple Leaf training camp to commence his professional puck career in October. . . . Joe Louis owns a cattle ranch in Michigan and has a hundred head of pure breds. . . . The Chicago Cubs' new road uniforms. are. powder blue. . . . Goodness me.

APPEAL IS UPHELD

Dalhousie, N.B., July 16 (CP)—An appeal of Charles McAfee, justice of the peace at Benjamin River, from a conviction against him under the Defence of Canada Regulations, was upheld in the Restigouche Court yesterday by Judge J. L. Ryan, who quashed the conviction made by Magistrate A. A. Andrew last November.

Charged wtih making statements likely to prejudice recruiting, McAfee had been found guilty, fined $50 and ordered to pay costs of $125.50, with an alternative of three months in jail.

"CALLING ALL CARS"

Save Gasoline

A NATIONAL EMERGENCY

Canada is right up against an acute shortage of gasoline and fuel oil. Tankers that normally supply our country have been commandeered for vitally important overseas service.

The Commonwealth Air Training Plan, the rapid development of Canada's mechanized army units and the great work carried on by our corvettes make the demand for fuel urgent.

Our crude oil intake is limited. There is just one thing to do if our fighting forces are to carry on with a "full tank". Every Canadian motorist is asked to cut his daily gas consumption in half!

There are many ways by which this 50% saving can be made . . . ways and means to give you more mileage per gallon. You can drive slower so that you will use less gasoline. You can go fifty-fifty with your neighbours, inviting each other to share cars . . . for business, and for pleasure. People can readily go to and from work together, using one car instead of four . . . using one gallon of gasoline instead of several. Women as well as men can make these savings.

The amount of gasoline used in Canada for business, social and non-essential activities is amazingly high in proportion to that used by our fighting forces. One look at the figures would convince you that this situation must be reversed.

17 easy ways towards a 50% GASOLINE SAVING

(Approved by Automobile Experts)

Reduce driving speed from 60 to 40 on the open road.
Avoid jack-rabbit starts.
Avoid useless or non-essential driving.
Turn motor off when not in use, do not leave idling.
Don't race your engine; let it warm up slowly.
Don't strain your engine; change gears.
Keep carburetor cleaned and properly adjusted.
Tune up motor, timing, etc.
Keep spark plugs and valves clean.
Check cooling system; overheating wastes gasoline.
Maintain tires at right pressure.
Lubricate efficiently; worn engines waste gasoline.
Drive in groups to and from work, using cars alternate days.
For golf, picnics and other outings, use one car instead of four.
Take those short shopping trips ON FOOT and carry parcels home.
Walk to and from the movies.
Boat owners, too, can help by reducing speed.

Your regular service station man will gladly explain these and other ways of saving gasoline. Consult him.

GO 50/50 WITH OUR FIGHTING FORCES

Canada does not ask or request you to put your car up. She merely asks for your help . . . asks that you walk sometimes when the distance isn't too great . . . that you take a shorter drive on Sunday afternoon . . . that you look after your car and keep it in good condition . . . that you say to your neighbour: "Let's use my car today, Jim; we'll use yours tomorrow".

Every day, in greater and greater quantity, we must release gasoline and oil by the thousands of gallons to our throbbing munitions plants . . . to our tanks and armoured cars . . . to our fighting planes and bombers . . . to our corvettes and merchant ships that ply the vital sea-lanes . . . so that the day of victory may sooner be at hand.

Will YOU help?

It is also vitally important that you reduce the use of domestic and commercial fuel oil.

Cottrelle Hopes Reduction in Use Of Gas Will be Based on Voluntary, Patriotic Effort of the People

Ottawa, July 16 —(CP)— G. R. Cottrelle, Oil Controller, told The Canadian Press today that his hopes for a reduction of 50 per cent in the non-essential consumption of gasoline and oil were based on the voluntary, patriotic effort of the people, and not upon the new regulations.

Regulations announced yesterday, restricting hours of sale and prohibiting the use of credit cards or charge accounts by private consumers, were merely to lay the groundwork for future regulations that may prove necessary, Mr. Cottrelle said. These regulations are expected to be gazetted tomorrow and become effective Saturday.

"There seems to be an impression that our new regulations are for the purpose of achieving the objective of reduced consumption," Mr. Cottrelle said.

He stressed the point that he was depending entirely upon the people to co-operate as a part of the national war effort, to cut down the consumption of gasoline and oil and thus prevent an acute shortage which might bring on the necessity of rigorous rationing in order to maintain supplies for the war effort at home and abroad.

Mr. Cottrelle explained further the situation with respect to credit cards and charge accounts. These will be prohibited in the case of private users.

No Distinction Made

There will be no distinction between holders of courtesy credit cards and those who have private, verbal agreements with their local filling stations for weekly or monthly charge accounts, the Controlled said.

Charge accounts and credit cards were designed primarily to encourage buying and the intention now is to discourage buying of gasoline and oil, he said.

Another aspect of this system is that the dealers lose money on charge accounts and this contributes to conditions making higher prices necessary for all consumers, Mr. Cottrelle said.

The regulations restricting purchases by private consumers from other than licensed gasoline and oil retailers, are aimed particularly at those who buy from their employers, as in the case of large trucking companies which maintain their own pumps.

Private citizens who have two or more cards and their own pumping stations at home will not be affected because there is no limitation on deliveries to pumping stations. But such citizens will be expected to co-operate in the voluntary effort to reduce consumption, Mr. Cottrelle said.

5th Armored Canadian Division Most Powerful Fighting Unit Ever Organized in the Dominion

13,000 Young Canadians Make Up Personnel of Division

HAS CRUISER TANKS

Ottawa, July 16.—(CP)—Thirteen thousand Canadians and a fast-moving mass of armored equipment will provide a punch to shock Hitler's legions when the 5th (Armored) Canadian Division goes into action, National Defence officials said today.

Training of the modernized force, which has in its organization men from all parts of the Dominion, is proceeding at Camp Borden, Ont., under command of Maj.-Gen. E. W. Sansom, D.S.O. In the measure of equipment, it will be the most powerful fighting unit ever organized in Canada.

"The Armored Division is often confused with the Army Tank Brigade, units of which are already in the United Kingdom", officials said. "The Tank brigade is an armored formation which works with the infantry and is an adjunct or supplement to these forces. The Armored Division is a self-contained organization prepared to give battle by itself if necessary".

Forty Units in Division

The Armored Division consists of about forty units, the main striking strength being contained in armored regiments equipped with powerful cruiser tanks.

Officials said that tanks now being produced in Canada and of the latest pattern would probably be used by the Armored Division, but they recalled the statement of Defence Minister Ralston that when the division went overseas it would be provided with the most modern equipment under arrangements between Canada and the United Kingdom.

It was assumed that Canadian-made tanks, which will roll from the factory in increasing numbers, would soon be available for training in Canada whether or not they went overseas with the Division.

Wide Variety of Skills

Craftsmen with a wide variety of skills are being trained in the armored division, officials said. Wireless experts, anti-aircraft and instrument mechanics, blacksmiths, tinsmiths, coppersmiths, machinists, plumbers, carpenters, electricians, welders, engine artificers, gun-fitters and armorers are all part of the organization.

In movement, the division will maintain contact with its various units by wireless, so that mobility will be given peak efficiency by speed of transmission of messages.

Cruiser tanks will provide the bulk of the shock power but they will be buttressed by other vehicles such as two battalions of motorized infantry which will facilitate any break-through.

The composition of the division was traced by Defence Minister Ralston and officials said it gave a picture of the Canada-wide contribution to the three brigades which, compose it.

Brigades Designated

The First Brigade includes the Lord Strathcona's Horse, and the Fort Garry Horse, western units and the 1st Canadian Cavalry Regiment (Camp Borden, Ont.) all of which are armored regiments, and the Westminster regiment from British Columbia is a motor battalion.

The Second Brigade group includes the 2nd, (Toronto), 4th, (Sussex, N.B.), and 5th (Esquimalt, B.C.), Canadian Motorcycle regiments and the Perth regiment (Hamilton).

In the Third Brigade is one infantry regiment, the Cape Breton Highlanders, and with them will be units of the Royal Canadian artillery and the 41st. (Petawawa, Ont.), 47th, (Kingston, Ont.), and 87th (Woodstock, N.B.), light anti-aircraft batteries.

Allied Victory In Syria to Have Far-Reaching Effect

London, July 16—(CP)—An authoritative summary of the victorious Allied campaign in Syria said today that it would "confirm the Moslem world in its support of our cause."

These other expected results were listed:

1. Removal of the likelihood of Axis penetration into Syria "threatening our whole military position in the Middle East."
2. Air bases from which British planes could defend Cyprus.
3. Contact with Turkey, "thus protecting our ally against encirclement."
4. A continuous line of defence from Turkey to Libya, strengthening the British hold over the eastern Mediterranean.

The statement recalled that the Allies had promised independence for Syria and support of "the dream of Arab Nationalists" for the union of their states.

Britain, it continued, now is in a position "to prove that our friendship is sincere, that our interests and those of the Arabs coincide and that the Moslems would have nothing to gain from the verbal blandishments of the Axis powers."

Ticklish Question For Cadi to Decide

Edmonton, July 16.—(CP)—Magistrate A. I. Millar will decide Monday whether F. Weigalt, who sold shares in his two cows and distributed milk to the shareholders after being refused a milk vendor's licence, is quilty of a charge of failing to have a licence.

Magistrate Millar in police court yesterday adjourned the hearing and said he will give his decision July 21.

Weigalt admitted he didn't have a licence from the city or the commission but said he "wasn't selling the milk", he was "distributing" when questioned by milk inspectors recently.

He explained the shareholders paid $5 or $2 a share and $1 a week for keeping the cow. "Then I gave them whatever milk they wanted".

Evidence revealed Weigalt applied for a city licence in 1936 and had been refused. He said 19 persons owned the two cows which were kept at his home. The animals produced from eight to twenty quarts of milk daily he added.

If there was a shortage, "the customers just have to do without".

Growing Confidence Appears in Moscow

Moscow, July 16.— (AP)— The general atmosphere in Russian quarters tonight appeared to be one of growing confidence as the Germans' second offensive, now in its fifth days, seemed to be failing to gain ground as fast as the first thrust through the Soviet's buffer provinces.

The weight of the battle shifted to the northern and central sectors of the long Baltic-to-Black-Sea front and a Russian counter-offensive was reported still continuing west of Dnieper River. Advices from the front said German forces had been shoved back even farther than the 19 miles already claimed.

Signs of calm confidence were apparent in the capital. The exodus of women and children had slackened. Transport systems continued to function steadily.

U.S. GOV'T BEGINS ROUNDUP OF 29 INDICTED BY JURY

Socialist Party Workers Complain About "Discrimination" and "Persecution"

St. Paul, July 16—(AP) — The United States Government began a roundup today of 29 persons charged by a Federal Grand Jury yesterday with plotting a revolution while the accused National Socialist Workers Party members and heads complained about "discrimination" and "persecution."

Bail in each case was set for $5,000 pending trial in October.

Prosecutors described the action as designed to smash a plot to overthrow the government. Henry A. Schweinhaut, special assistant attorney general, said Socialist Workers Party members in 1938 tested mobilization in a downtown Minneapolis parking lot by summoning "a private army" of 500 within an hour.

James P. Cannon, of New York, National S.W.P. President, said the indictments represented "the cynical payment of a political debt owed by Franklin D. Roosevelt to Daniel J. Tobin, President of International Brotherhood of Teamsters," adding "the object is to help Tobin in his fight against the rank and file of the Minneapolis teamsters who have revolted against his dictatorial rule and gone over to the C.I.O."

Special Prosecutor Schweinhaut said the S.W.P. held target practice and that regular drill sessions were held in the union headquarters and in nearby vacant lots. The government, he said, believes the general plan was modelled after the 1917 revolution that overthrew the Russian Czarist regime.

New York, July 16 (AP)—William O'Dwyer, 51, Irish-born Brooklyn District Attorney and one-time laborer and policeman, was designated as the Democratic candidate for Mayor today by the five Democratic County leaders of New York City.

Mayor La Guardia, who has indicated he would not be adverse to a hird term, has twice beaten Tammany Hall with Republican, American Labor party and Fusion support. Election date is Nov. 4.

NEW VERSION SENT

Washington, July 16 (AP)—The White House sent to the Senate Military Committee today a new version of the proposed Defence Property Seizure Bill which some committeemen characterized as more broad in its terms than measures submitted by the War Department.

Presented by Wayne Coy of the White House Staff, the measure would permit the President to requisition any property in the United Staes he deemed was required for National Defence. A previous War Department version had limited such requisition powers to military articles.

Quebec's War Effort Pleases M. MacDonald

Quebec, July 16—(CP)—Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, fresh from a quick inspection tour of army and air force establishments and war industries in this district, told reporters today that he felt "greatly impressed and encouraged by what I have seen of Quebec's war effort."

"There is the same desire to help in the war and the same eager activity going on here as I have seen in other parts of Canada," said the British High Commissioner, who is spending a week visiting Quebec and the Maritime provinces.

Mr. MacDonald met the Press at Spencerwood, official home of the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Eugene Fiset, whose guest he was during his 24-hour stay here. He left shortly after by airplane for Charlottetown where he was due to arrive late today.

"In the first place I congratulate Quebec Province on 'going over the top' in the recruitment of men for the active services," he said.

"I am so glad to know that every factory and every yard that I have seen here is increasing its production steadily and rapidly every week, and that within a measurable time they will literally have doubled and then redoubled their present huge outputs."

MARITIME OFFICIALS EXPRESS CONFIDENCE

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Merchant ship losses reported by the British Admiralty for June gave rise to increased confidence among Maritime officials today that starting next year the United States will be able to turn out tonnage at a faster rate than Germany can sink it.

The Admiralty said that 79 ships totalling 329,296 tons were lost in June. This included British, allied and neutral losses. While the Admiralty merely reported "tons," officials here said they assumed the losses were reported in gross tons.

Maintenance of this level would mean an annual loss of about 4,000,000 gross tons, considerably below estimates of United States production next year.

The Maritime Commission now expects United States production in 1942 to aggregate 6,642,649 deadweight tonnage runs substantially higher than gross tonnage but even after subtracing 20 per cent—and experts say the difference is not this great—U.S. production would approximate 5,314,351 gross tons.

LEFT $40,620,079 ESTATE

New York, July 16 (AP)—George F. Baker, banker and industrialist, left a gross estate of $40,620,079 and a net estate of $25,689,668 at his death May 30, 1937.

The appraisal disclosed that a charitable trust totalling $3,500,000 had been set up. Members of his family were the principal beneficiaries of the balance of the estate.

The papers showed Baker gave away or set up trusts totalling approximately $50,000,000 prior to his death.

Farmers Should Make Known to Dealers Millfeeds Requirements

Ottawa, July 16 —(CP)— The Agricultural Department said today farmers should make known to their local dealers promptly their requirement of millfeeds necessary to maintain production of milk and other livestock products which effective yesterday were reduced $3 a ton.

"Canadian mills are operating at capacity and the Agricultural Department will have no difficulty in retaining adequate supplies in the domestic market provided farmers make their requirements known to local dealers promptly," the Department said. "It is not the intention to continue control of exports beyond the period of the present emergency."

At present exports are being licenced to insure adequate supplies for Canadian use at standard prices.

Escape of 2 Belgian Airmen to Britain One of War's Most Daring Exploits

By DREW MIDDLETON

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, July 16 (AP)—Two youthful Belgian airmen who escaped from under the guns of German sentries in an ancient airplane they had reconditioned today told the story of one of the war's most daring exploits.

Demobilized from the Belgian Air Force when King Leopold capitulated, the airmen spent months seeking a way out of Belgium. Finally, three months ago, in a barn they found an old single-motored biplane which was once a Belgian army training plane.

The pair scoured Belgium for materials with which to make instruments which the plane lacked. Working at night they manufactured a few simple instruments such as an air speed indicator.

Fuel and instruments were hidden in the barn and for 12 months the fliers made trips to prepare the plane for flight.

When the night for the escape came they found the lock on the door had been changed. Tirelessly they made new keys and got into the barn, only to find the fuel had been stolen. They got more.

Finally they were ready for the flight.

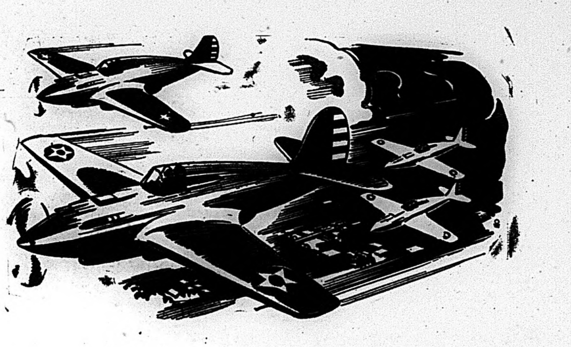
At 2.30 a.m. they took off.

As they left they saw lights on the fields and thought they heard the crack of German rifles. The ancient plane, wheezing mightily, climbed to about 9,000 feet and they "headed for England." German searchlights probed the skies around them for over an hour, but never caught them.

As they neared England an R.A.F. patrol forced them down. The R.A.F. didn't open fire because before leaving the two airmen had painted the red, gold and black cockade of the Belgian Air Force on the side of the old machine.

In their aircraft they carried various documents, including news of the burgomaster of Brussels, Van De Meulebroeck, and a proclamation he plastered on the walls of Brussels when the Germans forced him out of office.

The elder of the fliers, who is 25, said: "It is bad in Belgium, very bad. You do not look at little children because it will hurt. They are starving. They have no future. That is why we came—to fight these dirty Germans. Now we join the Belgian Air Force."



The R. A. F. Scores Again!

Master-General Of Ordnance Now in England

By HAROLD FAIR

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, July 16 (CP Cable) — Victor Sifton, Master-General of Ordnance, Canadian Department of National Defence, arrived in London today after a "beautiful" trans-Atlantic flight.

He paused at a London hotel only long enough to leave his baggage before rushing off to Canadian military headquarters to confer with officials there. Sifton told The Canadian Press he was here solely on ordnance business and was consulting only with Canadians.

"I don't know how long I will stay," he said. "That depends on how soon I clean up my business."

The plane, bringing Sifton, Lt.-Col. K. S. Maclachlan, Acting Associate Deputy Minister of National Defence for naval services, and Commodore H. E. Reid, Deputy Chief of the naval staff, dropped in at an airport so quickly that Brigadier J. H. MacQueen and Capt. C. R. H. Taylor, Senior Naval Officer, who were there to greet them, were still waiting in an office.

The exact mission of the Canadian naval officers was not disclosed apart from the fact they will confer with the British Admiralty.

For the benefit of the British press, Sifton stressed he was "not a Colonel, just a mister."

Morale of Russian Air Force High British Report

London, July 16—(CP)—An informed source said tonight that the British mission in Moscow had reported the morale of the Russian Air Force high and its fliers holding their own in the vast struggle with the German air arm.

Soviet pilots have shown no reluctance to tackle the best the Nazis can send at them, according to this information and have attacked fiercely and successfully.

A high British source described the Russian air arm today as a powerful fighting force, very much intact, and said Soviet fighter planes had done well.

One Russian request through the British mission, this source said, has been for more fighter planes.

These formidable Douglas-made attack bombers pictured in flight, the A-20 series, are the American counterpart of the Douglas DB-7, which the British call "Havocs," and of which cable dispatches from "an airfield somewhere in England" said, "British test pilots praised without reservation the American-made Douglas DB-7 as the heaviest-armed fighter in the world, and one of the fastest big planes ever." Easy to Get Record Of "Victories" if Pilot Picks on Cripples

Berlin, July 16—(AP)—Lt.-Col. Werner Moelders, claimed by the Nazis as this war's version of Baron Mannfred Von Richthofen, received from Hitler today Germany's highest decoration, the oak leaves with swords in diamonds on the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross.

In a special communique issued by the "Fuehrer's Headquarters on the eastern front," Moelders was credited with shooting down 101 planes since the start of the war, 21 more than were claimed for Von Richthofen.

(This is the first indication Moelders is participating in the Russian campaign. R.A.F. pilots who have engaged his squadron in English Channel fighting say Moelders usually remains out on the edge of dogfights ready to pounce on and finish off any disabled British plane forced out of the scrap. Hence his high total of "victories.")

JAPANESE FOREIGN

Reports reaching Shanghai from Japan a few weeks ago said Matsuoka might be replaced by Mamoru Shigemitsu, Ambassador to Britain, who was then in New York en route home for consultations.

The fall of the cabinet might mean either that a complete reorientation of Japan's foreign policy was in prospect or that it had stepped aside to make way for a new government unencumbered by responsibility for the Berlin and Moscow pacts.

Such a government might conceivably follow an even more pro-German policy, definitely choosing Berlin as against Moscow, or it might withdraw further from all European commitments.

Develop New Plane Defence

Members of the Soviet military mission explained the Red Air Force's equipment and tactics for dealing with the now-established plan of German attack.

German tactics involve a smash by the heaviest tanks of an armored division on principal objectives, these spokesmen said, with lighter tanks, armored cars and motorcyclists on the flanks.

They said the attacking forces are closely followed by motorized infantry who tumble from trucks and try to clean up isolated machine-gun and artillery positions which have escaped the tanks.

Soviet Aviation, it was said, has developed two types of special planes to cope with this form of attack—one a twin-engined bomber with cannon to fire armor-piercing shells into tanks, the other a heavily-gunned fighter which swoops simultaneously on infantry and delivers a scorching machine-gun attack.

These machine guns were called "much more effective than bombs against disciplined troops causing higher casualties".

Then, it was explained, when the Russian Commander is satisfied a break has been made in the continuity of the Nazi attack he orders his own infantry, led by light tanks, to counter-charge the German infantry while Russian planes still are attacking the Nazi tanks.

Judy Canova, Married a Month Files for Divorce

Los Angeles, July 16 (AP)—Judy Canova, the movies' backwoods warbler who was "hit in the head by a soft moon" and married unexpectedly in Honolulu a month ago, filed suit yesterday for a divorce or annulment.

The suit, naming Corp. James H. Ripley of Ft. Ruger, Honolulu as defendant, was not specific. It merely charged cruelty as the basis for a divorce plea, and alleged fraud as the grounds for an annulment.

The actress returned here three days after the ceremony, June 14, leaving the bridegroom in an army guardhouse, to which officers said he was assigned for going A.W.L. after the ceremony.

INSPECTING COASTAL DEFENCES

Winston Churchill, British Prime Minister, is pictured with King Peter of Yugoslavia under the barrel of one of the hundreds of huge guns that encircle the British Isle. The British Prime Minister invited the deposed King Peter to witness practise shooting of the guns recently. Salvoes were fired by both King Peter and Churchill.

Provincial Secretary Refuses Comment

Toronto, July 16.— (CP)—Hon. Harry Nixon, provincial secretary, said today that he would not comment on a report that AC. H. A. W. (Bill) Newell, awaiting trial for the third time on a charge of murdering his wife, had been placed in solitary confinement and given six strokes of the strap.

"I won't deny it," Mr. Nixon said, "but I do not wish to make any comment".

It was reported that the punishment had been given for "general misbehavior" at the Don Jail, where Newell is confined. It was said that Newell became unruly when he asked to see his counsel, C. G. Elgie, who was unable to visit him. Newell is reported to have cursed and shouted at the guards and tried to spit on Capt. W. L. Royfield, prison governor, when he was summoned.

104TH SWEDISH SHIP SUNK

New York, July 16—(AP) — The 1,305-ton freighter Aspen—Sweden's 104th ship loss—has been sunk in the North Sea with a loss of two lives, the American Swedish news exchange said today. Survivors were landed at German-occupied Rotterdam.

DIES AFTER OPERATION

Halifax, July 16 (CP)—Seven-months-old Kathleen Gray of Pictou, N.S., died in Children's Hospital here last night following an operation Monday in which a hayseed was removed from the baby's lung. Doctors had decided they could not wait for a special instrument being flown from Philadelphia.

The operation was described as "successful" and the child's condition showed improvement, but yesterday she suffered a relapse.

WEYGAND GOES TO ALGERIA

Vichy, France, July 16 —(AP)— Gen. Maxime Weygand has been named governor-general of Algeria in addition to his present post as commander of Vichy troops in North Africa, it was announced officially tonight.

He succeeds Admiral Jean Abrial as governor of Algeria.

OCCUPATION

The tri-color still floated in the city and a few Vichy French officers were sitting about glumly at cafe tables trying to appear oblivious to the occupying forces.

Bulk in Barracks

The bulk of the Vichy forces were in barracks deciding whether they want to join the Free French, stay here or go back to France. Armistice terms permit the choice.

Local forces such as the Chasseurs Libanaises already were in their homes with their families.

The first person I called on in Beirut was Cornelius Van H. Engert, the United States Consul General, who was the agent thru' whom the Allies and Vichy got together to make their agreement.

He disclosed that the Vichy commander, Gen. Henri Dentz, made the first move in that direction just before the fall of Damascus.

"It's a longish story because it began three weeks ago," he related.

U.S. Consul Delivers Terms

"When Damascus was on the point of falling and it was believed Beirut would fall, too, I was asked if I could find out what terms the British would accord in an armistice. I delivered the reply."

The French then had a few successes at the front and made no further move until Beirut was threatened July 8 when General Dentz sent me a definite request for an armistice which I transmitted. On July 10 I gave him the British reply and negotiations followed."

Dentz and members of his staff left Beirut before the Allies came in. They headed home to France. A number of high Vichy officials still are here, however

British bombing of Beirut was confined to the port area, where great damage was done to military objectives and a number of ships sunk. A few houses immediately adjacent to the port also were hit

NAZI SPEARHEADS

The communique's statement that on other sectors "no large-scale fighting took place throughout the night and no significant changes in the position of troops occurred" indicated the Nazis were making little if any progress through the Ukraine toward Kiev.

The communique said of the northern and central front that "during the night fighting continued in the direction of Pskov-Porkhov, Polotsk and Vitebsk."

An earlier war bulletin reported fierce fighting along the central front where both sides lost heavily, and Nazi tank spearheads cut off deep in the Ukraine.

This was the account the communique gave of the three big fronts through yesterday's fighting:

"In the Pskov-Porkhov sector, (150 to 175 miles southwest of Leningrad) our troops surrounded enemy motorized and mechanized troops and destroyed them section by section, seizing a large number of tanks, guns and all kinds of arms. The remainder of the enemy troops have been hurled back to the west.

"In the Vitebsk sector (300 miles west of Moscow) fighting continued all day long against motorized and mechanized units which endeavored in vain to penetrate to the east. Fighting continues with heavy losses on both sides.

"In the Novograd Volynski sector our troops have been fighting stubbornly, counteracting attempts by the enemy to penetrate to the east and join their tanks, which are in a difficult situation."

Admit Some Penetration

(Mention of the Pskov-Porkhov sector in the Soviet communique acknowledged some further Nazi penetration to the northwest toward Leningrad. Porkhov previously had not been mention in describing this sector, identified earlier this week as the Pskov front. Porkhov is 40 miles east of Pskov. Last week the Russians described this front as the Ostrov sector. Otrov is 35 miles south of Pskov.)

A communique on yesterday's fighting made no mention of the Dnieper River towns of Zhlobin and Rogachev where the Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia yesterday reported Red Army counter drives had driven the Germans back 19 miles west of the river.

Without identifying the scene of the action, the Soviet information bureau said two German infantry battalions of perhaps 2,000 men had been wiped out along a road when ambushed by Russian artillery and infantry.

Many-Front War

S. A. Lozovsky, speaking as assistant chief of the Soviet information bureau, told a Press conference yesterday that Germany's course no longer was one of policy, but epilepsy, and declared the Nazis had on their hands what Germany long had dreaded — a many-front war.

"The bad luck for Hitler and his clique," Lozovsky said, "is that one front extends from the Arctic Ocean to the Black Sea and another includes the whole coast of western Europe from northern Norway via Iceland and the British Isles to Spain . . ."

He said another front "exists within Germany herself — between the Hitlerite gang and the German people and still another in all the German-occupied countries."

"The anti-Hitler front," Lozovsky said, "is in the heart of every patriot loving his country and its culture."

London, July 16 (CP)—Authoritative British quarters said today that the Germans, in the 3½ weeks of fighting in Soviet Russia, have "achieved nothing which cannot be quickly recovered by the Russians" and "accomplished nothing that can be reckoned as final or as substantial advantage."

These quarters said there was stiff fighting all along the front and that German claims of the past week-end "by now have been seriously modified."

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE

BETSY SLID into Tom's arms and was a little surprised that being there should be so very pleasant. There was a marvelous sense of rightness about being there; their steps matched perfectly and the music seemed to lift them up.

"So that's the Big Moment," said Tom dryly.

Betsy set her teeth hard and after a moment she said through them, "If you try to be funny—I'll scream—"

"What do you mean, try?" demanded Tom. "I can be funny about a lug like that without half trying."

Betsy stared up at him. Why, Tom was jealous! How perfectly swell! She all but beamed at him, and Tom, looking down at her said curtly, "Well, what are you looking so smug about?"

Betsy tucked her flushing face once more against his shoulder and said politely, "Nothing—just nothing at all."

Tom looked at her sternly, but before he could persue the subject any further the music stopped and the crowd went back to its various tables.

Natalie gave the signal that separated the groups once more, and her own crowd trouped back to the hotel.

In her own room Betsy stood beside the open window, looking out into the soft, velvet beauty of the tropical night. There was a strange new excitement drumming in her veins. She felt an odd lightness, a sensation as thought she had been running very fast and as though it would be no trouble at all to fly! And that was pretty crazy, because absolutely nothing had happened except that she had casually bumped into a man she had once known. Fantastic to realize that she had thought herself in love with him; incredible that she had cried herself to sleep because he was so far out of her reach; inpossible that she should have burned with jealousy and despair when she had heard the tone of his voice as he spoke to his wife on the telephone. And yet — it was all true!

Once she had thought that her life was doomed to loneliness and bitterness because Dirk Maynard was out of her reach. She laughed aloud at that thought now; and the sound of her laughter was so unexpected in her ears that it startled her for a moment and she put a hand over her mouth to check her mirth lest it disturb some of the others.

The sound of that laugh had scarcely died before there was a knock at the door and Tom came in, looking a little pale, his face set, his eyes tired looking.

"Are you crying, Betsy?" he demanded.

"Why, no, of course not — why should I be?" she answered, startled.

"I heard you—"

"I was laughing!"

"Laughing?" Obviously he thought she was lying, and Betsy laughed again. "What the devil is there to laugh about, unless you're so happy at seeing Maynard again—he IS the man, isn't he?"

"What man?"

"The one you were in love with when you marrieb me, of course," answered Tom, and sounded a little cross that she should require so much explanation. "I knew it the minute I saw you look at him tonight. You went into his arms, to dance, like—like—oh, like a bird going into its nest. As though you belonged there and as though there was no place else in the world where you could feel so at home."

"Oh, Tom—that's not true!" she gasped.

"It is true. Anybody not blind or a fool could have seen it. And—of course you want to be free so you can marry him—"

"In spite of the fact that he's got a perfectly good wife of whom he's very fond?"

Tom made a little gesture and said bitterly, "If he knew you were free, he'd probably get rid of his wife in a hurry—"

He stopped because Betsy had turned sharply away, her face hidden behind her hands, her shoulders shaking violently.

"Oh, darling," Tom said contritely, "please don't cry!"

"I'm n-not crying," sobbed Betsy. "Im laughing."

Tom straightened as though she had slapped him.

"I don't see anything to laugh at," he snapped.

Betsy whirled to face him, her face streaked with tears, her head up, her shoulders back. "Then take a good, long look at me and laugh like the dickens because I've been such a silly, stupid little fool!" she told him shakily. "And then cry with me—because we've lost so much that we can never recapture, you and I."

Tom was very still, his arms going out to her and then drawing back as though afraid to believe what she seemed to be saying.

Betsy drew a deep breath and steadied her voice with an effort. "I'm l-laughing," she told him then, "because for a year or more I made myself miserable by thinking I was in love with Dirk Maynard!"

"Thinking?" Tom caught the word as though afraid it would get away from him.

Betsy nodded. "Thinking," she repeated "And closing my eyes to the lovely thing that was shining like the sun all around me. Thinking I was in love with him, so that I didn't have sense enough to realize that it was really YOU I loved—"

Tom recoiled a little, as though the shock of her words had been a physical impact of great force. And Betsy, misreading the look on his face, said hurriedly, "Oh, I know you're not in love with me. I'm not your type. But—if you'll just take time out to—to—tell me what your type is, I'll learn to be it, I swear I will!"

Tom said something under his breath that sounded like a prayer and an oath and an exclamation of sheer amazement all rolled into one word. Then he was across the room and had her in his arms, and the world obligingly stood still for both of them.

It might have been minutes, it might have been hours later—neither of them was quite certain, for nothing so prosaic as time was real to them at the moment. But a long time afterward Tom said huskily. "I've just about gone out of my mind, having you so near and yet knowing that you were not for me. Oh, Betsy, you darling, I'm so crazy about you I can just barely endure it."

"Even if I'm not — quite the type?"

"You're exactly the type — always have been, always will be, time without end," said Tom. "I only said that because I couldn't bear to see you creeping about the place scared to death of me—as though you were a small, frightened mouse and I a great, wicked cat about to pounce. So I tried to make you see that you were quite safe by telling a most colossal lie."

Betsy looked up at him, touched and sweet and palpitant with happiness. "Oh, Tommy, my dear—to think of all the time we've wasted! Let's go back to the island tomorrow and attend to our own honeymoon before the next colony arrives!"

"Spoken," said Tom ardently, "like my dearly beloved wife! What a word!"

It was then she stood on tiptoe, framing his face between her small palms, and kissed him.

(THE END)

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to eat breakfist with ma and she picked up pop's paper, saying, I might as well snatch a few random headlines before your father comes down and berries himself behind the paper and becomes lost to all human contact.

Well jimminy, ma, why dont you get in back of it first this morning just for a joke and pretend you dont even know pop is anywheres around? I said, and ma said, I just believe I will, I'll be deaf to the world and oblivious to all conversation just to give him an idea, he'll be furious.

Wich just then pop came down and ma quick opened the paper and got all a ways in back of it, and pop started to open his mail, saying, Bills bills, there's nothing like a cheerful bill to start the day right.

Ma just staying behind the paper without saying anything, and pop finished his letters and started to eat his breakfist to himself, and ma peeked around the edge of the paper and pop wasn't even looking at her, so he started to rattle it to attract his attenion, wich it didn't, and pop finished his breakfist and got up, saying, Well my deer, if you don't mind I'll try to get my paper back into a rough approximation of its original folds and depart for my day of toil.

O, so you really know I'm alive, ma said, and pop said, I not only know it, I take keen pleasure in the fact.

That's what you say, ma said, and pop said, Heh, what the dooce is all this?

I'd hardly expect you to know, you dont even know I'm in the room, ma said, and pop said, I know you're in the room, I know you're alive and I know you're kicking, but what the dooce you're kicking about is beyond me when I'm the one should be kicking with my nice new paper looking like somehting left by a hobo on a park bench.

I suppose I should be flattered just to be called names by your royal aloofness, ma said. Such a man, she said.

Meaning pop.

Switzerland consumed about 478,000,000 pounds of meat last year, slightly more than in each of the two preceding years, of which 95 per cent was of domestic origin.

Banned from the field indefinitely by American League President William Harridge for his "strong" talk to umpires, Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox, umpire baiter de luxe, now directs the Sox by remote control. Seated in the stands behind the bullpen, ABOVE, melancholy Jimmy directs the team by signals understood only by Coach Mule Haas on the field.

FENN — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ethel Fenn, who passed away July 16th., 1940.

God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,

Some time, some day, we know not when
We will meet our loved one there.

China Proves Serious Drain On Japan

From an Article by O. M. Green in the London Listener.

The internal situation of Japan is now particularly worth watching. Since these undeclared wars with China began, national expenditure has grown to over eight times, and the national debt to five times what it was before. Taxation has practically reached its limit and the banks have difficulty in absorbing the Government's loans.

In spite of extra workers and longer hours the output from the factories, including metals and machinery, is less than it was in 1939, and seems unable to be stimulated; while increasing sickness, especially tuberculosis, and accidents among the workers, tell an unmistakable tale of weariness and malnutrition. Food supplies, in which Japan had always been practically self-supporting, have declined seriously for want of labor in the fields and fertilizers to replace men sent to China as soldiers.

There are many signs that the more sober-minded Japanese are much worried. The Tripartite Treaty has only got them deeper in the black books of America, of whom they are visibly afraid, while it in no way commits Germany to help them if they become involved in further wars. True, Japan has forced a treaty upon Indo-China which practically puts the French colony's resources at her disposal, but these will take a long time to develop and are no adequate compensation for her losses in China.

I do not say that Japan is near the end of her resources. Her patriotism and readiness to tighten her belt are unsurpassed. I do say that China has very seriously drained Japan's resources and will drain them much more.

The war started in July, 1937, was meant to be over in four months; it has lasted nearly four years. And every recent Japanese observer returning from China has warned his countrymen that no date for the end of the war can be predicted.

Japan can go on plunging about in China, but she cannot make her invasion pay, she cannot conquer China and she cannot get out of it. Japan has broken down in China over two great obstacles — the enormous size of the country and the united and active hostility of the peasants. In former wars the peasant cared little what happened so long as he might be left to till his fields. He cares now, because for the first time he understands.

No one can foretell the future. But I think there is great truth in General Chiang Kai-Shek's words: "If the democracies will lend us arms and economic support", he said, "they need not send their navies and troops to our country. They can safely leave Japan to us."

Reception For Darlan

J. Duchesne in London Listener.

On April 14 Admiral Darlan, head of the Vichy Government, visited Beauvais to confer with the German Kommandantur there. After the conference he had lunch in a restaurant in the old Place Jean-Hachette in the centre of the town.

The news of the admiral's presence at Beauvais spread, as you say in English, like wildfire, so that when Darlan with a group of French officials came out of the restaurant after lunch, he was faced with a crowd of people. He hesitated a moment and then began to address them in a casual manner. After the first few words, someone in the crowd whistled, and this was taken up by other people. Darlan drew back. Another member of the party in civilian clothes stepped forward and, his face purple with rage, shrieked, "Frenchmen, behave yourselves. Frenchmen of Beauvais, remember that the foreigner is watching you."

The crowd howled with rage. Men and women shook their fists and shrieked back, "Whose fault is that? Who signed the Armistice? Who gave us up to the Germans?" Darlan and the whole of the group were forced to take refuge inside the restaurant. For half-an-hour the demonstration outside went on. Then all the demonstrators retired silently, so as to avoid trouble with the Nazi police.

NEW P.G.A. CHAMP RECEIVES TROPHY

Vic Ghezzi, after nine years of trying, received the cup which goes with the coveted title, after defeating Byron Nelson, the defending champion, by sinking a 30-inch putt after Nelson had missed one of the same length, on the 38th hole. Shown at the presentation are, LEFT to RIGHT, Vic Ghezzi, champion; Tom Walsh, president of the Professional Golfers' association; Byron Nelson, runner-up and retiring P. G. A. champion.

Outfielder Dominic Dallessandro of the Chicago Cubs slides safely into home plate on Catcher Clyde McCullough's single to left field that cleared the bases in the third inning of the first game of a double header with the Brooklyn Dodgers at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, N.Y. Second Baseman Hudson and Centrefielder Phil Cavarretta, both at RIGHT, who scored in front of Dallessandro root him home. Umpire Stewart watches the play as Catcher Herman Franks of the Dodgers reaches for the ball. The Dodgers, after losing this game, 10-3, won the second game, 3-1.

Sisti, Boston Braves third baseman, after slamming out a double in the eighth inning of a game between the Chicago Cubs and the Braves, is shown sliding safely into third when Page, Cubs' pitcher, threw a wild pitch to McCullough, catcher, who in turn made a bad throw to Hack, third baseman (note ball in air near Hack's glove) and while the ball rolled into left field, Sisti scrambled up and faced for home to score. The game ended with the Braves on top, 6 to 2.

Nazis in The Netherlands Treated as Outcasts

Germany has shock-troops, which are used for the offensive, but she has also large armies which are stationed in the territories they have occupied. These armies are fighting a hopeless struggle against the deterioration of their morale.

The people of the occupied countries are quick to notice this, and for them it is a cause for optimism. Time and time again we receive messages from The Netherlands which show that the people believe that the war will end this Summer with an Allied victory. In their broadcasts to Holland from London The Netherlands Government have often sounded warnings against this dangerous optimism. We also know that it is very widespread in other occupied countries, especially in Belgium and Norway. We know definitely that of late it has been very prevalent in The Netherlands. The Germans bitterly complain about this stubbornness on the part of the Dutch.

This belief is not based upon the shortage of the necessities which one notices every day — certainly not in The Netherlands. Although the country has been severely robbed by the Germans, life is still bearable. For those who have money conditions might even be called favorable. Not all the stocks the country possessed have been discovered by the Germans, because most families had hoarded large quantities of essential foodstuffs. The Dutch know that life in Holland at present is still better than it is in Germany. The same happened during the last war. The Germans could not loot everything. In the occupied countries there was always more for sale than in Germany itself.

The Dutch are convinced that next Winter will be very hard. But they do not count on the starvation of Germany. What their hope is built on is the morale of the Germans; the behaviour of the German troops in the occupied countries gave rise to this belief.

The personal behaviour of the German soldier is usually quite correct, but this has not made the approach to the population any easier. If a German tries to establish personal contact he finds the way barred everywhere. The German feels that he is an outcast, and it hurts him very much. This attitude of the population hits his softest spot—his inferiority-complex. He knows that the Dutch ridicule him, and against that kind of ridicule he has no defence. It does not offer him any scope or revenge. He knows that plotting against the Germans is widespread, and that there are many secret arsenals which his spies cannot discover. If a conspiracy is discovered, the Germans take the opportunity to punish savagely. Some time ago 15 Dutchmen were executed because they had plotted against the forces of occupation. Their actions had indeed not been harmless. During blackout time they turned traffic-indicators used by the German armed forces. This means a lot in a country like Holland, where a strange driver may end up in one of the many canals.

Sometimes the occupiers encounter spontaneous outbursts of hostility. At the beginning of February they commenced large-scale arrests of the Jews. Nobody took the initiative in rejoinder, but all the same the whole town of Amsterdam was dead at once. The drivers of the municipal trams and buses just left their cars in the streets. The same afternoon Amsterdam had the appearance of a bank-holiday afternoon. "It looked like the Queen's birthday celebrations," an eyewitness told me, "national songs were heard everywhere."

At first the Germans were dumbfounded. No arrests were made, but in the evening panzer cars appeared, which machine-gunned the crowd. The strikes spread. It was three days before they were broken up. Amsterdam and some other towns were heavily fined. Amsterdam had to pay 15 million guilders. The incident, nevertheless, meant a lot to the Dutch. It had been a mock-mobilization for the day of reckoning. They now knew that nearly the whole population could be counted on. The tram and bus-drivers remained the heroes of the population. The Germans ordered that they were to be paid no wages for the days they struck, but the population flooded them with tips.

The Germans know that they are hated — indeed, worse, they are despised. They know also that they have no defence against this moral retaliation. Even the strictest of their regulations are ignored. Listening-in to foreign broadcasts, even to Italian stations, is strictly prohibited, but everybody listens to the BBC and the Radio Orange, a program broadcast from London under the auspices of The Netherlands Government. The German and Dutch Nazi stations, and the Goebbelized newspapers, are not trusted at all. When the war-situation is discussed in private, the Hollanders talk about the news heard from London, which is familiar to everybody.

The Dutch puppets, whom the Germans have put at the head of the Dutch papers, complain bitterly that "the Dutch do not understand." "The Hollander," so these tools say, "must understand that a new Europe is under construction, indeed, already exists, in which Holland has to win its place. This is only possible," so they say, "through a close friendship with the German Reich." The public of course, treats this attitude of the pepers with contempt. Only the coming Allied victory is talked about in private conversation.

The Dutch sometimes show a touch of pity for the pariah, the German soldier, who is in their midst. This attitude of the Dutch makes many a German soldier feel still more humiliated; suicide because of depression, that typical German phenomenon, has occurred among the young soldiers. But the acts of terror committed by the Germans drive all these feelings away; and if this were not sufficient, the hate which the Dutch have for the fifth-columnists would do the trick instead.

The German overlords have no hopes of winning over the Dutch by flattery or the velvet glove. At first they did not want to alarm the Dutch by introducing a ruthless Nazification. At present they are forcing it on them.

Their Dutch friends, who are still more despised than the Germans themselves, have been given controlling powers in education, art and religion. Rost van Tonningen, the most savage of their intellectuals, has been made Governor of The Netherlands Bank. The anti-Jewish measures are steadily increasing. The Germans are ruining the country systematically, by exploiting it in Germany's favor.

All this stimulates the resistance of the Dutch. They make no attempt to play for safety. On the contrary, they become more recalcitrant as time goes on. It is a common ambition for the youth of Holland to escape to England, in order to join the Dutch forces. Sometimes they succeed.

The Germans have never thought this state of mind possible. It has astonished them, and they feel uneasy about it. To stay in The Netherlands at present is a torment for them. And the same applies to other occupied countries. Millions of Germans are undergoing a demoralization-process, which, true to German example, we could appropriately call a rotting process.—By M. Van Blankenstein in the London Spectator.

RAF DESTROYS 100,000 TONS OF NAZI SHIPPING

REDS FIERCELY DEFEND ROAD TO MOSCOW

Seventeen Ships Smashed in Massed Daylight Assault

New Blows Delivered At Hamburg and Industrial Areas of German Reich

ROTTERDAM ATTACKED

London, July 17.—(CP)—Within the past 24 hours British bombers have put out of action 17 Axis ships totalling almost 100,000 tons and have struck smashing new blows at Hamburg and other industrial areas of the German Reich, the Air Ministry announced today.

The ships were smashed in a massed daylight assault yesterday on the port of Rotterdam in the German-occupied Netherlands, from which Nazi garrisons in occupied countries are largely supplied.

The assault on Hamburg and other areas in northwestern Germany was carried out during the night in a continuation of the non-stop offensive against the Reich begun more than a month ago. Bad weather handicapped the raiders but they succeeded in starting many fires and scored numerous direct hits on their targets.

The night raid cost the Royal Air Force three planes and four were lost in the assault on Rotterdam.

Boulogne Again Bombed

In addition to smashing at northwestern Germany during the night the R.A.F. also struck again at the Nazi-occupied French coast damaging docks and warehouses at oft-bombed Boulogne.

The attack on Rotterdam yesterday was made by large forces of Blenheim bombers flying in two waves which dodged heavy anti-aircraft fire to reach their objective.

Summing up results of the assault, a communique said:—

"In all, 17 ships of an estimated tonnage of between 90,000 and 100,000 tons have been put out of action either permanently or for a long time to come. Five more ships totalling between 40,000 and 45,000 tons were severely damaged.

"On land two warehouses and a factory were left burning fiercely".

Eleven of the ships which were "hit and left smoking" varied in tonnage from 10,000 to 2,000 tons. Among the vessels reported badly damaged was the Rotterdamsche Lloyd Liner Baloeran, a motorship of 17,000 tons.

Two Supply Ships Exploded

One bomb fell directly between the funnels of the liner and debris was thrown high in the air by the resulting explosion, returning pilots said.

Two supply ships of 4,000 tons each exploded and went up in flames.

During the night a 6,000-ton German tanker was torpedoed by British aircraft and left sinking in the Channel. Two other ships of about 2,000 tons each were bombed off the west coast of France and another ship of 3,000 tons was left sinking off the Norwegian Coast.

In another daylight attack yesterday targets between Calais and Boulogne in Occupied France were attacked. Increasing forces of Nazi fighters met on this raid and against Rotterdam gave strength to observers' reports that German aircraft had been shifted from the eastern front.

LUXURY LINER, LADY SOMERS, SUNK, 37 LOST

C. N. Steamship Converted Into Naval Auxiliary for War Service

138 RESCUED

London, July 17 — (CP) — The 8,194 - ton Canadian National Steamships luxury liner Lady Somers, converted into a naval auxiliary for war service, has been sunk the Admiralty announced today.

Thirty-seven lives were lost in the sinking of the vessel, the Admiralty announced. The remaining 138 officers and men were picked up by Spanish ships and are being landed at a neutral port.

The fact that survivors were rescued by Spanish vessels might indicate the sinking occurred in the middle Atlantic, on the trade routes between Britain and the Cape of Good Hope, where German submarines have shifted much of their activity since British counter-measures became so hot in the immediate approaches to Britain.

The neutral port mentioned might be in Portugal or Spanish North Africa.

The Lady Somers was built by the Cammell Laird Company at Birkenhead, England, in 1929 for the C.N.S. West Indies service. Until the outbreak of war she was on the Montreal - Bermuda - Nassau - Jamaica run.

As a naval auxiliary the Lady Somers was under the command of Cmdr. G. L. Dunbar, Royal Naval reserve.

The Admiralty announcement, which did not specify the manner of the sinking, said next of kin of casualties are being informed as quickly as possible.

PRINCE KONOYE COMMISSIONED TO FORM NEW GOV'T

Interest Settles Around Appointment of Successor to Matsuoka

WILL CLARIFY POSITION

Tokyo, July 17 (AP)—Prince umimaro Konoye today received the Emperor's command to form a new cabinet to replace that which resigned last night to give way to one more capable of grappling with the "ever-changing world situation."

Konoye, who also headed the retiring cabinet, began assembling a new list of ministers and authoritative sources said it was expected Emperor Hirohito would be able to install a new government tomorrow.

Among Konoye's first consultations was one with Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, the strongly Nationalist home minister in the outgoing cabinet. Observers believed this to indicate that Hiranuma would remain in office, continuing the totalitarian domestic program on which the old government embarked.

Await Choice of Minister

For an indication of the direction of the new government's foreign policy observers awaited the choice of a new foreign minister.

Tonight the premier-designate received Gen. Eiki Tojo and Admiral Koshiro Oikawa, war and navy ministers, respectively, in the old cabinet. This was taken to mean they would be asked to continue at their posts, thus assuring that the government's relation with the armed services, which have exercised a powerful influence on all its policies, would be unchanged.

Lord Halifax Says Russia Doing Better Than Was Expected

Albuquerque, N.M., July 17—(AP)—Sitting in the cab of a westbound streamlined train, Viscount Halifax told newsmen yesterday that Soviet Russia was withstanding the German invasion "much better than any of us expected."

The British Ambassador to the United States, en route with his wife to inspect defence plants on the west coast, said he had climbed into the engine cab of the Santa Fe Super Chief a half-hour earlier.

"I just wanted to see how this train works," he smiled.

Lord Halifax declined to elaborate on his brief comment regarding the war and waved aside questions on the Far Eastern situation.

Despite Countless Raids Besieged Garrison at Tobruk Full of Fight

By GODFREY H. P. ANDERSON

Inside Besieged Tobruk, Libya, July 14 (Delayed) (AP)—Here in the most blitzed town in Africa you can almost set your watch by the daily and nightly Stuka raids.

A thousand tons of bombs have been unloaded on this battered white-walled town and the arid acres surrounding it, yet Tobruk still is far from tottering.

After more than three months it still is holding out, though many of its buildings are crumbled to dust, though the masts and funnels of sunken shipping dot the harbor like tombstones in a marine graveyard.

The sons of Australia still keep vastly superior numbers of Germans and Italians at bay eight miles from town.

The navy keeps the sea route open to assure supplies for Tobruk's men and guns.

There are no comfortable jobs in this blitzed base. Here work which generally is done in a sheltered position well back of the fighting line has to be carried out under front line conditions.

It is estimated that some kind of air raid is in progress over Tobruk almost every hour day and night.

Sometimes a big shell from German long-distance cannon—"Peeping Tom"—screams into town and lops off another roof or topples another tottering wall.

"Lucky we like fresh air," says an Aussie as he and his crew plug a new hole in their draughty billet.

A phonograph grinds out the Blue Danube Waltz from a half-wrecked house on a square which some one has renamed Piazza Brown.

The Britons' "Little Audrey" barks a defiant reply to "Peeping Tom", and work goes on full speed in a town without women, without civilians, without even a drop of beer.

Down at the ordnance depot where they can supply you with anything—well, almost anything—from an engine for a tank to a new cork for our water bottle, clerks calmly issue some of the seventy-five tons of stores the navy ran through the blockade this week.

French Fortifying Key Points in Indo-China To Resist Japanese

Saigon, French Indo-China, July 17—(AP)—A small army of 4,000 Frenchmen and 28,000 natives is quietly fortifying the southern part of this isolated hothouse colony whose northern section is under Japanese domination.

Whether they resist any further Japanese inroads, informed quarters say, will depend on whether Britain, the United States and The Netherlands East Indies offer any guarantee of help when the time comes. It is also noted that the army takes its orders from Vichy.

(Admiral Jean Decoux, Governor General of French Indo-China, in a statement in connection with apparently increasingly strained relations with Japan, said this week the Japanese had not demanded further concessions in Indo-China.)

Just how fast and plentifully help would have to come is indicated by a high French officer who described his army as small, poorly equipped and responsible for defending a long coastline with virtually no aid from a naval force of only six light ships.

But a military secret known to nearly everyone in Indo-China is that the French have been fortifying key points along the east coast, and the west coast near Thailand, ever since the last shot across the Siamese border brought an end to that Japanese-sponsored dispute.

At the same time a strategic road across the waist of the country, dividing the Japanese-controlled north and the French-held south, has been choked with military trucks and native wagons carrying materials to build defence works at the natural Dong Ha pass near Quang Tri and other defendable points along the highways into South Indo-China from this important coastal city.

One theory is that Indo-China is placing herself in a position to offer British forces in Singapore what collaboration she can in the Gulf of Siam should war come to the South Pacific. Indo-China would be able to resist Japanese warships seeking shelter or supplies.

One of the many rumors arising is that a huge airport is being built so that if war breaks out British pilots will be able to fly planes into Indo-China and turn them over to the 250 French pilots who have arrived from France, and who sport medals given them for outstanding service against Germany.

RALSTON STATES ARMY WILL NEED 7,000 MONTHLY

First Official Recruiting Campaign for 32,000 Men Ends Successfully

48,000 VOLUNTEERS

Ottawa, July 17—(CP)—Canada's first official recruiting campaign of the war was ended successfully today but the active army will continue on a less formal basis the search for 7,000 men a month for replacements and reinforcements.

Late yesterday Defence Minister Ralston told a Press conference the recruiting campaign opened by the army May 12 had resulted in 34,625 enlistments up to Tuesday—107 per cent of the quqota of 32,434 set for the whole of Canada.

There had been 48,000 volunteers, he said, but many had to be rejected because of the stiff physical requirements. From May 12 to July 12 navy enlistments numbered 3,500 and Air Force enlistments more than 12,000, raising to well over 60,000 the number volunteering for the three services in the recruiting period.

"The special call has been met, and more than met,' he said later in a radio address heard across Canada through facilities of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

But, he emphasized, the search for men for the army could not stop.

Due to Fine Teamwork

"Men are constantly being discharged and their places have to be filled," he said. "Those who are still hesitating and debating can know the overwhelming sense of relief which men experience when they enlist for active service."

Success of the official recruiting campaign was due to "fine teamwork all over the Dominion between loyal hard-working citizens both in official positions and in private life, the veterans of the First Great War and officers and other ranks of the Canadian army and the personnel associated with the Department of National Defence"

Saint John Leads

Figures given by the Minister at his afternoon press conference showed that Military District No. 7 with headquarters at Saint John, N.B., led all Canada in army recruiting, signing on 2,477 men for a recruiting percentage of 168. M.D. No. 6 at Halifax was second, with 2,885 enlistments, or 136 per cent.

U. S. TANKS PROVE RELIABLE

London, July 17 (CP)—United States-made light cruiser tanks of the "M-3" type have been on the battlefront in Egypt and have "proved to be a most valuable weapon," Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Supply, declared today.

Mechanically, he said in a statement, "it is the most reliable tank in the world."

HEADS OF BRITISH AND FREE FRENCH ARMIES IN BEIRUT

Will Install New Regime in Former French Mandated Territory

TROOPS WELCOMED

(By EDWARD KENNEDY)

Beirut, Lebanon, July 16 (Delayed) (AP)—Sir Maitland Wilson and General Georges Catroux, head of the British and Free French armies in the Levant, entered Beirut today to install a new regime in the former French mandate of Syria and Lebanon.

They were greeted by a Vichy delegation, headed by Admiral Gouton and Emile Conti, representatives of Henri Dentz, who handed over possession of the French fortifications under terms of the armistice signed at Acre last Monday.

The Vichy group then departed, accompanied by an honorary fanfare of trumpets. Immediately after this ceremony, in the palace of the French high commissioner, Syrian and Lebanese leaders were ushered in to pay their respects to the British and Free French commanders.

Offer Congratulations

First to offer his congratulations was Alfred Haccache, Lebanese chief of state. He was followed by members of his cabinet and various Sheiks and brightly-garbed religious leaders representing Syria's innumerable Moslem and Christian sects.

Outside the palace, units of British cavalry were drawn up with Free French Marines as a guard of honor. British planes roared overhead.

British and Free French forces continued their occupation of the country, reaching all the way to the Turkish frontier.

General Dentz Supervising

Vichy military forces remained concentrated chiefly in the region between the River Doog and Tripoli, whcih will be the embarkation point for those returning to France. Gen. Dentz still is there supervising arrangements for getting them away.

Vichy casualties, it was learned, were considerably heavier than those of the Allies, amounting to about 6,000 in all.

There was a slight hitch in the proceedings in the palace when Admiral Gouton, waiting in the high commissioner's office, insisted that Gen. Wilson and Gen. Catroux first call on him there. This Gen. Catroux declined to do.

GASOLINE SALE RESTRICTIONS IN FORCE ON MONDAY

Hours of Sale Will Be D. S. T. or Standard According to the Locality

OTHER PROVISIONS

Ottawa, July 17 (CP)—The restricted hours of gasoline sale in Canada and the ban on the use of credit cards and charge accounts in the purchasing of gasoline, will come into effect next Monday it was shown today in an order published in an extra edition of the Canada Gazette.

The new regulations which call for closing of gasoline service stations from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. on week days and from 7 p.m. Saturdays to 7 a.m. Mondays were made known Tuesday by Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle.

The restricted hours of sale will be standard or daylight saving time whichever prevails in the locality where the filling station is located.

This prohibition applies to the sale of gasoline and crank-case oil for use in the operation of motor cars (tractors excepted), and for motorboats or launches (except those used solely and exclusively for commercial or industrial purposes.)

The order also provides that tank wagon prices of motor fuel sold to consumers shall not be greater nor less than the prices charged retail dealers, effective on and after Aug. 1, 1941, and the same provision is made for lubricating oils.

No Extra Supply Sources

Another restrictive order applicable to the trade is that, effective today, dealers may not be supplied by a greater number of distributors than were supplying such dealers this date.

Amendments to previous orders prohibit motor fuel distributors making loans directly or indirectly to dealers in or consumers of motor fuels, and prohibits a dealer or consumer receiving any concession loans or gifts from a distributor regarding the price of motor fuel and lubricants.

Effective as from July 21, 1941, the order prohibits sale of motor fuel and, or, lubricants for use in a private passenger automobile by other than licenced dealer.

Other amendments applicable to the trade are as follows:

A dealer or consumer who owns equipment to be supplied with motor fuel and or lubricants shall not change from his present distributor to another without giving 10 days notice in a form prescribed by the Oil Controller.

Must Use Own Container

A distributor may not deliver gasoline or lubricant in a container belonging to another distributor.

The order prohibiting installation of new tank, pump or storage facilities for dispensing gasoline and lubricants is subject to an additional clause providing that any tank used for storage of gas and owned by a distributor since on April 30 last, may be installed and used in any existing bulk station

'V' for Victory Becomes Symbol Of Britain's Cause in Occupied Lands

By LOUIS HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 17 —(CP Cable)—J. B. Priestly, author and playwright, last night joined the "V" for Victory Campaign, Britain's latest propaganda idea to crack the morale of the Nazis by drilling into their minds the thought that they cannot win the war.

The author, resuming his contributions to the "Britain Speaks" feature of the British Broadcasting Corporation's North American broadcasts, said that "V" had become the symbol of Britain's cause because "she needed a simple sign of allied defiance, faith and hope and found it in the letter 'V' for victory."

The BBC European broadcasts have been telling the people of occupied countries to paint, chalk or pencil the "V" inscriptions on walls and fences wherever they can and to give the "V" sign in sound, but using the Morse code taps for "V"—three dots and a dash—drumming it on tables in restaurants and knocking it on doors.

"Don't make the mistake of thinking this is a little childish thing," Priestly said. "It is supremely important.......This is not only a war of machines, it is also a war of morale. It is not only a war of plane but also of propaganda. It is a psychological war."

The "V" campaign broadcasts to Europe have been made by a "Colonel Britton" whose identity the BBC refused to reveal.

Citizens of occupied countries were told to start the campaign July 14, Bastille Day, but at the request of the broadcaster it was postponed a week and Britton said he was not at liberty to disclose the reason which is a closely-guarded secret.

There has been speculation of all kinds suggesting "big things" are going to happen, even an invasion of occupied territory, but official sources are all mum.

9 Million Soldiers Locked in Titanic Battle on E. Front

Smashing Blow Dealt Nazis Along Dnieper River Destroying Entire Tank Battalion

NAZI AIRFIELDS RAIDED

Moscow, July 17 (AP)—A fierce all-night battle in which Germans and Russians contended fiercely for mastery of the road to Leningrad and a slashing Nazi tank advance which carried Hitler's banners to within 230 miles of Moscow were reported by the Soviet Information Bureau today.

From dusk to dawn the see-saw battle raged in the Pskov-porkhov area 150 miles southwest of Leningrad, a communique said. There was no indication which side was getting the upper hand.

But in fighting yesterday, an earlier communique reported, the German advance reached to the region of Smolensk, 90 miles east of Vitebsk on the Dnieper where central front operations last had been reported.

While admitting this setback, the Russians claimed they dealt a smashing blow to the Germans farther south along the Dnieper, driving them back from their bridge-heads to the Bobruisk area and cutting off and destroying an entire tank battalion in the retreat.

These battles came to a halt at nightfall, however, and the Soviet Command declared that no important changes in the positions of troops and no major operations took place during the night except around Pskov and Porkhov.

The Red air fleet attacked German landing fields, motor troops and tank outfits during the night, the Russians said.

Capital of Bessarabia Reported Captured By Germans, Rumanian Forces

HEAVY FIGHTING

Berlin, July 17 (AP)—The German high command today asserted 9,000,000 soldiers on the eastern front are waging a "tremendous struggle for a decision" and claimed the Red Army has thrown its "last reserves" into the battle.

"Great successes are in the making," asserted the war bulletin from Hitler's headquarters.

It claimed Chisinau, capital of Bessarabia on the southern wing of the front, has been captured by German and Rumanian forces.

The communique followed earlier claims that German "speed troops" advanced on the central and northern sectors after mopping up pockets of Russian resistance delaying their drives toward Moscow and Leningrad.

DNB, German news agency, claimed that Smolensk, important bomb-battered railway town 230 miles west of Moscow, was in Nazi hands.

A short but bitter fight was said to have preceded Chisinaus' fall and the Germans claimed numerous prisoners taken and equipment destroyed or seized.

DNB claimed the capture also of Polotsk, a point to the rear which, it said, was passed up in the first rushes to the east and entered by a later encirclement. Polotsk, a railroad centre on the Dvina River northwest of Vitebsk, was said by Germans to have considerable military importance.

British armored forces, supported by mobile artillery, have "been active inflicting casualties upon the enemy in personnel and material" in the Egyptian-Libyan frontier area, the communique added.

Sheriff Appeals For State Troopers

Bendix, N.J., July 17 (AP)—Sheriff William R. Browne of Bergen County appealed to Governor Charles Edison to send New Jersey State troopers to restore order outside the Air Associates, Inc., plant where at least six persons were injured today when police clashed with several hundred stone-hurling men and women.

"I expect to get them," Browne said.

A crowd outside the Air Associates plant, making aircraft equipment on national defence orders, this morning prevented day shift workers from entering the plant.

Police used tear gas and fired revolvers into the air to disperse a throng that closed in on a bus carrying about 35 plant workers.

Picketing began Saturday by members of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) in a dispute with the company over dismissal of nine sheet metal workers.

Most of those injured received tear gas burns.

Employees who wished to work started for the plant in a motor caravan and were blocked at the only approach road by a crowd variously estimated from 600 to 2,000.

A bus owned and operated by Thomas McCaughen of Stirling, had stalled on the highway late Wednesday night. Mr. McCaughen had placed out flares as warning to traffic and returned to the scene in his motor car to repair the damage to the bus. It was while McCaughen was repairing his bus, that Herrington's car, proceeding north, was in collision with the flare and parked car, the police stated.

NORMAL APPLE CROP STATES ORCHARDIST

Government predictions of an apple crop of only 40 per cent. in comparison to other years, does not hold true in every orchard, according to Mr. J. Shannon, local orchardist, who states that where orchards' bearing season happens to be this year, the crop is almost up to normal.

Falcons Attack Building Workmen

Montreal, July 17 (CP)—A pair of power-diving falcons caused great consternation in the ranks of a construction company here as the birds insisted upon interfering with workers who were attempting to erect a scaffold atop the Sun Life Building, one of the largest buildings in the British Empire.

Montreal's famous falcons have lived in their lofty nest for five or six years now and showed their resentment at being molested with high-speed aerial attacks on the workers who are doing a "pointing" job on the building.

An investigation by C. E. Hall, a local zoologist, disclosed that there were young birds in the nest and the parents were out to protect them at all costs. Hall attempted to capture the birds that the work might go on, but succeeded in capturing only one of the young.

A newspaper photographer and reporter visited the top of the building to get some action shots of the warlike pair, but were driven to cover by the ferocity of the attack. Later Hall offered to act as bait that pictures might be obtained, but no bait was needed for the birds, capable of diving an estimated 200 miles an hour, were more than willing to dive at any one and every one coming their way.

Construction company officials said it would be necessary to shoot the birds in order that the work, which can be done only at this time of year, might be carried on. Sun Life officials frowned on this idea because the falcons are continent-famous and they wish to preserve them if at all possible.

Authorities in Ottawa have been consulted as to a feasible procedure to capture the birds, but late this afternoon no word had been received as to what should be done. Efforts to capture the birds are being continued.

Marmora Twp. House is Struck

Marmora (Special)—During progress of the electric storm which passed over the Marmora district on Wednesday afternoon the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hamilton on Lot 26 of the 3rd Concession of Marmora Township, was struck. The bolt entered the house from the western end tearing off some boards from the exterior. It followed the course of the telephone wire and shattered the radio. No fire was started. The pig pen also was struck, killing five pigs out of ten which were almost ready for shipment. It was not the first time this fine old residence of sixty odd years standing to be thus struck, but the former occasion was many years ago. Looking across fields on the other side of the road to that which the house is situated on, Mrs. Hamilton said she saw a large blaze of light resembling a bonfire but did not think it was the ignition of any building but the effect of the lightning playing upon a tree.

Little Discipline In Strange School

Young Aborigines in South Australia Do Much As They Please

Adelaide, July 17.—(CP)—Away up in the far corner of South Australia is one of the world's strangest schools.

Its pupils are members of the Pitjantjara tribe of aborigines. They wear no clothes and they come or stay away as they please. The school is not yet a year old but it has 100 children on the roll and the average attendance is 40.

All instruction is given in the native language but reading, writing and arithmetic form part of the curriculum. School opens each day with a communal tal during which the children are thoroughly bathed and dried.

After school the children return to their parents who live the life of the true Myall native eating what the bush affords and sleeping under the stars between two fires.

"For the most part the children are fair-haired, some golden, others even snowy", says their only teacher. "Brown-skinned and healthy, they are free from any disease. They have attractive features, are quick-witted, sensitive, well-mannered, affectionate and easy to control.

"Drawing is their favorite subject and singing comes second. With no appreciable previous experience of music they now sing in two or three parts, and all seem to have a perfect ear".

Ship Crews Feast On Fresh Cod Brought Up by Depth Charges

West Huntingdon, (Special) — Fishermen and anglers may have their fancy bait, lures and whatnot to attract the finny denizens of lake and stream, but give the laddies in the Royal Navy a depth charge or so, and they ask for no other bait.

At least so writes Harold Kingston, son of George A. Kingston, Toronto, formerly of West Huntingdon. Harold who is an officer in the navy states he was out with his ship on patrol duty when the naval craft ran into the wake of a German submarine.

The ship attacked at once with depth charges, and was rewarded with the sight of large oil patches on the surface of the water indicating that the U-boat had been hit.

But, the undersea wolf was not the only victim of the depth charge. Within a few minutes the surface of the ocean was almost covered with dead or stunned codfish. "They floated in great quantities on top of the water," the officer states, "so we lowered boats and pulled them in by hand."

The ship secured enough of the fish to supply all the ships at its base with fresh codfish for the next few days.

Dick Rogers' Orchestra Plays at Oak Lake

Smooth is the word which describes the music of Dick Rogers' Band, playing at the Oak Lake Casino on Monday night, July 21. Basis of Dick Rogers' music is his famed trombone section. Three mallifluous horns which play almost as one, they play into megaphones, football cheer leader size, to add to their smooth effect. The trombones (or slide trombones) to give them for once their proper names, are complemented by the three trumpets which are like no trumpets ever seen before. As a matter of fact they aren't trumpets; they are cornets and slide cornets at that. Against these slide instruments, Dick works a saxaphone section as smooth as they come and he backs up the whole with a rhythm section as rhythmic as any as can be found in the jumpiest, bounciest swing band. The effect is one of dancing on air and the glissandos which trademark the band's music is most pronounced in the introductions and modulcations. This popular band has just finished an engagement at the million dollar pier at Atlantic City.

3 Young Girls Rescue Reckless Woman Bather

A self-styled "swimming instructress and diving expert" owes her life to three young girls after giving a demonstration of diving which resulted in a near-drowning in the Bay near the Victoria Park bathing float, yesterday afternoon.

According to twelve-year-old Gloria Morris, 42 North Park Street, the woman who was unidentified, told her and two companions, Ruth Pedder, 14, and Barbara Maxwell, 13, that she was a diving expert. "Then," said Gloria, "she went out on the low diving board, placed her fingers over her nose and jumped in."

The woman sank and a few seconds later appeared to be in difficulties. Gloria plunged in the water and succeeded in grasping the woman who attempted to pull the young girl under. Seeing that her friend was unable to bring the woman to shore, Ruth Pedder went to the rescue and the two young girls brought the exhausted woman to the float. Barbara Maxwell had by this time notified the life guard and he raced to the scene in time to bring the trio to safety.

Bent Propellor Only Damage When Airliner Lands on One Wheel

Los Angeles, July 17—(AP)—With bent propellor tips the only damage Pilot Lester C. Holtan landed a giant Western Air Lines transport plane late yesterday on a wheel broken in a take-off.

Previously, for three hours and a half, the air liner droned above the city with its five passengers and three crew members, while its powerful engines drank up 420 gallons of gasoline to make the emergency landing less hazardous.

Landing at Long Beach Airport, 15 minutes after leaving Lockheed Air Terminal at nearby Burbank on a flight to San Diego, the retractable carrier on the right wheel had been disabled.

With only enough gasoline left to keep the motors running, Holtan nosed the plane into headwinds and eased it down upon a soft grassy area of the field at a 60-mile speed.

POLICE COURT

"This young man is scheduled to leave for overseas service soon and I would recommend this charge be dismissed," requested Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson when Gnr. Norman Pigden, of the R.C.A. stationed at Petawawa camp, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in today's police court charged with reckless driving.

"I have no objections as only his own car was damaged and there were no serious injuries," added Provincial Constable R. S. Patterson who had preferred the charge after investigating an accident in which a car driven by Pigden had been damaged recently. Pigden paid $10.00 and costs after pleading guilty to driving a motor car without a licence, however. R. A. Pringle local barrister, appeared on behalf of the soldier lad.

Careless Driving

Albert Fobert, Ivanhoe, paid a fine and costs, amounting to $10.50 in all, after being convicted of careless driving, while Gilbert Zebedee Belleville, was assessed $20.00 and costs after being convicted of driving, or permitting to be driven, a truck without the necessary licence plates.

When he failed to respond to his name, after being summoned into court, John Goodfellow, Thurlow was convicted of failing to procure his 1941 township dog licence. His Worship ordered the accused to purchase the licence and pay the costs of the court. The same disposition was made against Malcolm Green, also of Thurlow.

Given Month in Jail

Richard Cottrell, Deseronto, was given a month in jail after being convicted on a second offence intoxication charge. Cottrell stated he was unable to pay the $50.00 minimum fine and took the jail term in default.

Fuel Shortage Worries Eire

Ottawa (CP)—Eire is in the midst of a virtual fuel famine because of the market decline in fuel and gasoline imports due to wartime conditions and especially to concentration of German attacks on shipping, the Dominion department of Trade and Commerce reports.

Stocks of fuel on hand are so limited and possibility of future supplies so uncertain that coal, gasoline and kerosene are strictly rationed.

Householders are allowed only a quarter-ton of coal per month, gasoline is obtainable only for business or professional use and kerosene can be obtained only by farmers and fishermen and then only in limited quantities.

Under normal conditions Eire consumes about 2,500,000 tons of coal a year, of which only five per cent is produced locally. The other 95 per cent must be imported.

Production of peat in Eire, normally about 3,500,000 tons per year, will have to be almost doubled to replace coal. Use of peat in larger quantities will entail the changing of coal burning furnaces and stoves to peat burners, and will cause many difficulties in industry where coal is used to produce power.

Reforestation in Eire, a major government plan in recent years, has not yet reached a stage where the wood is of much economic use.

Consumption of oil in Eire as a heating fuel is very limited. The main effect of the fuel oil shortage will be on road transport services

FOUR KILLED IN PLANE CRASHES

Three of R.C.A.F. Pilots Killed When Plane Crashes on Routine Instructional Flight

Winnipeg, July 17.—(CP)—Royal Canadian Air Force officials today investigated two crashes of British Commonwealth Air Training plan airplanes that took the lives yesterday of three Royal Air Force men and one Royal Canadian Air Force student-pilot.

LAC. Donald Leslie Kennedy, 23, R76159, of Nova Scotia, Flt. Lt. Phineas John Lea, 26 and FO. Allen Alexander Purkiss-Ginn, 23, both of England ,died when their machine crashed near Vauxhall, Alta., 50 miles northwest of Medicine Hat. Their home towns were not made known.

The three were on a routine instructional flight from the No. 34 R.A.F. Service Flying Training School at Medicine Hat. School officials said there were no known eyewitnesses.

LAC. Kennedy, an R.C.A.F. man training at the school, had planned marriage after receiving his wings. His fiancee, whose name could not be learned, lives in Simcoe, Ont.

The second crash occurred near Saskatoon. A twin-engined machine crashed five miles from the city, killing an R.A.F. student who came to Saskatchewan from England. Name of the student was withheld pending notification to his next-of-kin.

FOOD FOR CANADA'S WAR MILLS

With Canada's war industries humming into ever increasing production, more and more scrap iron is being gathered throughout the nation, and patriotic communities from coast to coast are operating salvage depots. In this photo, a big electric crane is shown as it hauls a fresh load of scrap iron to the furnaces of a munitions plant. Eventually, this particular pile of iron will shower down upon Germany in the shape of 500-pound bombs.

Civil Servants Have Recreation Centre in Ottawa

(By ALAN HARVEY)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 17 (CP)—A chartered organization created by a 35-year-old civil servant who "wanted the boys and girls to have a good time" is credited with cheering many a lonely heart in this wartime capital.

Last September Wilfred Sprung took time out from his job as clerk in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics to rent the third floor of a downtown building.

In the two rooms Sprung set up table tennis and card tables, installed his own music system and founded the Ottawa Civil Service Recreational Association—an unofficial, spontaneous answer to the problem of providing adequate recreational and entertainment facilities for the city's fast-expanding civil service population.

An "after-office-hours' 'social centre for hundreds of stenographers, secretaries and filing clerks in the Dominion service, the association has more than 4,000 members who pay 50 cents a year for the privilege of using its facilities.

Statistics show 9,717 tmporary workers in the civil service at December 31, 1940, compared with 4,070 at August 31, 1939. These figures do not include the munitions and war services departments, the foreign exchange control board or the Bank of Canada.

It is estimated unofficially about 15,000 new government employees have come here since the war started, principally from the Western Provinces.

Mr. Sprung came to Ottawa from Brighton, Ont., about ten years ago as a Grade One clerk.

T. B. Infection Shelter Problem

London (CP) — There is no prompt method of dealing with tuberculosis in air raid shelters, according to an article in "Medical World," journal of the Medical Practitioner's Union.

Discussing this "ever insistent" problem, the journal described the case of a homeless girl of 18 or 20 who "visibly wasted away" in a London tube shelter.

The girl had acute tuberculosis but the local authority could find no bed for her without four week's delay, so she lived in the shelter, the journal said.

"What havoc she may have wrought by infecting others no one will ever know. The nightly visit by a doctor and routine inspections by senior nurses produce no suggestion for coping with the problem of this girl. It is true that the doctor protested, but the case had already been reported to the local authority and nothing more could be done about it," the journal said.

"There were several more chronic cases of tuberculosis who came nightly for their dose of cough mixture and then returned to sleep in an atmosphere which favored contagion in every possible way."

Half the Crimes In Wartime Britain Attributed to Boys

London, July 17 (AP)—More than half the crimes in wartime Britain are attributed to boys.

To combat this wave of youthful crime the Board of Education is trying to divert the youngsters' enthusiasm into channels that would help the war effort, through the new Youth Service Corps.

In the first year of war, the Board disclosed, the number of children under 14 convicted of offences was 41 per cent higher than in the previous year; the increase for the age group of 14-17 years was given as 22 per cent.

This year more boys have been convicted of housebreaking, looting and theft than the courts have been able to dispose of.

Reasons advanced for the increase in crime among older boys are:

1. They receive high weekly wages, learn expensive ways of living, then go out after "easy money."
2. Fathers have been called up into fighting services.
3. Many clubs in which youths normally would spend their free time have closed.
4. "Excitement and unsettlement" of war.
5. Easy opportunities for looting, especially in the blackout.

SCOUT RESCUES 15-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Overcome While Swimming at East Pier at Cobourg

Cobourg, Ont., July 17 (CP)—A 15-year-old girl was rescued by a Kingston Scout leader when she was overcome while swimming at the East Pier here last night.

Mary Martynyshyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Martynyshyn of South Porcupine, Ont., dived into the water after having dinner and was about half-way across the fifty yard gap when she shouted for help.

Bill Browning, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Browning, (674 Johnston Street), Kingston, was standing on the pier and on hearing the girl's cry, shed his hoes, coat and watch and plunged in.

He had difficulty in keeping the girl from struggling. Making shore, he was assisted by Town Constable C. Ellison and Provincial Constable David Adair.

TREAT TOURISTS FAIRLY

During the past winter Canada and the provinces, as well, spent several hundred thousands of dollars in the United States to induce the American people to spend their holidays in Canada. The attractions that were advertised included the fine fishing, our beautiful scenery, splendid roads and a warm welcome that would be given to all who entered our country.

It was pointed out prominently that all tourists would have the further advantage of getting ten per cent exchange premium added to his holiday money which, in itself, is no small consideration in cases where family parties stay in Canada for many weeks.

In view of this promise to treat our visitors fairly all those catering to the tourist trade should do everything in their power to make the stay in Canada something to be remembered with pleasure and with a keen desire to return to this country at the earliest opportunity.

One of the easiest ways of doing our share to build up this goodwill is to be careful that the premium on American funds is paid every time a bill is received. There should be no carelessness permitted in this regard for probably there is nothing that causes so much annoyance as to have to argue over money affairs while dealing with strangers. Some persons, also, will not bother to argue over a few cents, nevertheless, they leave the place of business with a sense of rancor that is remembered a long time.

However, complaints have reached this office that certain places are not observing the regulations in some instances, and if these are true this practice should be discontinued immediately, otherwise the proprietors will only be asking for trouble and leave themselves liable to prosecution. The law provides a stiff penalty for anyone convicted of not giving the full premium when accepting a bill of United States currency. Ignorance of the law is not accepted as an excuse and we hope that a warning will be sufficient so that future embarrassment and undesirable publicity will be avoided.

The tourist trade is a big factor in Canada's war economy and for that reason we should make every effort to see to it that these friendly people who are here to enjoy our hospitality and willing to pay their way as well should be made to feel that Canada and Canadians are a grand combination. Let us do nothing to mar that impression.

THOSE WHO DID NOT PASS

At this time of year we have the pleasure of printing the long lists of names of the schoolchildren who have been successful in passing their examinations. We are glad for them for success is always sweet and they richly deserve the reward after the long hours of pre-examination study.

However, our thoughts go out to those children who, when the lists are published, eagerly scan the newspaper to see how they made out, and do not find their names among the successful candidates.

Probably only those who were unfortunate enough in their youth to pass through such an experience can sense the bitter humiliation at the thought of being left behind with the junior pupils while their friends continue on without them. To a sensitive child who has made a sincere effort during the year but who cannot grasp a certain subject, and for that reason failed, this sense of failure leaves a scar on the mind that may never be erradicated. Some parents add a severe reprimand or worse for failure to pass the examinations when words and acts of comfort are needed most. This only adds to the anguish of mind and the feeling of resentment the extent of which can hardly be grasped by the adult mind.

As the weeks pass the sense of defeat is felt less keenly because new interests take the mind off the troubles of the past. The long holidays help to build up young bodies and soothe the tired minds of these young people so recently hurt. For them we wish better luck next year and may they look ahead to the future with unimpaired confidence and a determination to make successes of themselves no matter if the present does appear pretty gloomy.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

THE COMMENTATORS

The commentators talk about
The issues of the day
And no one ever dares to doubt
The truth of what they say.

They chatter at me every night
On W-Z-Z-Z,
And every one of them is right
And none of them agree.

I've tried to listen to them all;
My head is in a whirl,
My graying air begins to fall,
My ears begin to curl......

I'm throwing out my radio
And stacking on the shelf
The maps and charts I used to know—
I'm talking to myself!

AND IT'S UNANIMOUS

Ask any Britisher what he thinks of the possible results of a Nazi invasion, and he will smile grimly and probably make the cryptic remark, "Let 'em come." But perhaps a better example of what the typical Englishman thinks is seen in the sign hung on his store by an Essex proprieter. It read:

"THIS SHOP IS OPEN
"IN CASE OF INVASION, IT WILL BE CLOSED FOR HALF AN HOUR."

THESE POOR DEBBIES

Shed a tear for the poor glamorous gals who have to worry along on $3,000 a week. The silver-spooned debbies are brought into the world on a silken cushion, whirl through a mist of social activities during the gangling stages and are catapulted into society with a party that would make the old Roman festivals look like a boilermakers convention.

A party that fairly staggered the guests with its lavishness was given the other day by a wealthy Philadelphia socialite for his debutante daughter's "coming-out." A special airport was arranged for guests who came by planes. Three imported orchestras ground out jazz, and "sweet and swing." Snow-white swans glided on a moonlit pond. Spotlights played down upon giant blue china frogs.

Eight champagne bars were located over the acres so that no matter where a guest was he could always find a drink. Ho hum, how about a hamburg?

GAS FOR BASS

Since Willy, the Péche Point King of the Bass,
Heard the government's edict to cut down on "gas"
He's been sittin' up nights studyin' ways and means
To do his bit to conserve gasolines.

"I've gotta have bass and the country needs gas,"
He said as he mopped a sweating brow,
"There must be a way to arrive at both
But the question is—what, where and how?"

Then a smile illumined his genial face
As his gaze fell on a counter tank
Of gas for the boys who inhabit the place
To fill their lighters—a daily prank.

"I've got it," he yelled in his Front Street Shoppe,
Swiftly he worked without pause or stoppe,
Brush sped o'er card without quism or quirk
Then Willy stepped back to admire his work.
Today a strange sight met the "customer's" gaze
They rubbed their eyes, in a mental haze.
On the tank was a sign— it was meant for them
"Closed from seven at night to seven A.M."

MORE INVITATIONS NEEDED

While the response to this column's appeal for families and others of the city to offer the New Zealand chaps now at Mountain View Air Station an evening's entertainment has been generous, more offers are needed. If you can arrange to have the lads from "down under" at your home some evening, or take them for a car ride, (Oh oh, we almost forgot the new regulation) get in touch with us and we will arrange the details for you with the Mountain View officials.

Brave Work On Railroads Of Britain

Acts of gallantry by railway men and women under fire continue to be recorded by the Railway Executive Committee.

During a night attack on a West Coast railway dock a young telephone attendant, eighteen years of age, was reporting for night duty when a heavy bomb involved him in its blast. Although somewhat shaken he went to his post and was told that incendiary bombs were falling on the dock sheds. Not being able to get anyone to accompany him he went round to one of the sheds, where he found that several incendiaries had started fires. He dealt with eight bombs by carrying them out, using a tin plate as a tray, afterwards extinguishing the fires by fire-buckets.

After completing this task he found a soldier attempting to extinguish incendiaries in a shed directly opposite, and together they put out fires which were starting against the woodwork of the sides of this building. During this time the raid was at its height and bombs were falling at several points, although fortunately none was sufficiently near to do them any physical damage.

More bombs were extinguished on the wharf, and whilst returning he noticed that another shed was ablaze. Immediately he guided one of the A.F.S. squads and showed them the quickest place at which they could bring their pump into action, also helping to run out and man the hoses which were brought to bear on this fire.

Noticing that a run of railway wagons were berthed too near the shed on fire, he called upon two of the A.F.S. squad to assist him in pushing the trucks out of harm's way.

One signalman was on duty at a junction signal-box when an explosive bomb fell within a few yards of him. Although he was severely shaken he continued to work on, extinguishing incendiary bombs which had fallen. Further high-explosive bombs fell near but this did not deter him from protecting the obstructions caused. Finally when the instruments and telephones were put out of order by bombing, he placed detonators on the lines to protect his trains and gave every possible assistance to restore the working again.

At the goods shed which was damaged by blast and fire three members of the railway police staff rescued a colleague who was trapped near a telephone. When the explosion occurred he was thrown by the blast through a wooden partition into a small adjacent office and pinned down by wreckage. Climbing through the outer wall of the building all three men successfully searched, found, and released their comrade and gave first-aid treatment until he was taken to hospital by ambulance.

By the time the rescue was effected the premises were an inferna, the fire being intensified by oil, which was running through from a store. During the whole time high-explosive and incendiary bombs were falling. The prompt assistance in a difficult and dangerous situation undoubtedly saved their colleague's life.

A railway woman telephone operator, who was due to be relieved at 8 p.m., decided to remain at her switchboard when the alarm signal was received indicating the possibility of imminent danger. A concentrated attack occurred with high-explosive bombs whistling overhead, and at a later stage heavy bombs dropped within thirty yards of the switchboard, blowing in the windows and shaking the structure.

In spite of fires which broke out this brave railway woman carried on transmitting and receiving telephone calls, assisted materially in keeping open communications, and throughout the raid ignored the personal risks which her devotion to duty involved. — Manchester Guardian.

Life in Switzerland

Letter in London Times

Sir: — We hear little from Switzerland these days, and those who know and love that country may be interested to have news of it. The following are extracts from a letter I have received from a friend who is living there:

Lugano, April 1.

"We have 'black-out' at 10 o'clock. There are very few cars about on account of shortness of petrol, and it costs a franc a litre (about 6s a gallon). We are rationed for nearly everything, but there is almost everything to be had, and we thank God continually that we have so far been saved from the general chaotic conditions prevailing. . . . The collections for the Red Cross bring amazing results. All are identified with Red Cross work and help with money and with work. I have made shirts and darned socks until I dreamed of them—four and five hours on end at socks. We have music and entertainment of that type, but very little dancing, and nobody of any decent family would go . . ."

Prophecy Published in Poland In 1893 Is Startlingly Accurate

A prophecy published in Poland in 1893 and almost startlingly accurate in its prediction of both the present conflict and the war of 1914-1918 has reached The Ottawa Journal through Marie Gareyu ski, secretary of the Polish Canadian Club of Ottawa.

It predicted: "Poland will arise from the flames of the world (1914), two eagles (Germany and Russia) will fall broken; but for a long time her fate is still dreadful and her dreams are still unrufled.

". . . The Black Eagle will come to grief when turning its eyes Eastward, spreading its Teutonic customs, it will return with a broken wing."

Foreseeing the time when the double-eagle of Russia would be replaced by the Hammer and Sickle, the seer speaks of "The Eagle and the Hammer occupying foreign soil."

The prophecy continues: The proud White Russia, the wealthy Ukraine enlist under the Polish banners. Our eagle spreads to the Black Sea, returning to its old trails.

"The Danube again soaks in luxury, and at the time peace is made in Warsaw, three kings will water their horses in that river.

"Three countries, together with Rumania at the sovereign's throne of Poland, will unite in an eternal union.
"Poland will rise from set to sea.
Wait for this half a century.
God's blessing will protect us always.
So—suffer and pray."

12 Tanks Against 120

A Despatch by O. D. Gallagher from Cairo to the London Express on the recent Battle of Tanks at Sollum.

At one point—probably the high spot of this three-day action on June 15, 16, 17—12 British infantry tanks held at bay a horde of German tanks estimated to number between 100 and 120.

Our gallant 12 formed themselves into a crescent before Fort Capuzzo. Behind them were units of a famous British regiment of the line. They had smashed their way in, and captured a number of Germans and Italians.

The Italians were found acting as ancillary troops to the fighting men of their German allies. Having achieved their objective, and having performed the necessary demolition of the enemy positions and supplies, it was necessary for our regiment of line troops to retire to their normal positions.

The panzer units were spotted lumbering up in giant dust scuds to Fort Capuzzo. If they surrounded them, our crack motorized troops would be lost. Twelve of our heavy infantry tanks moved forward, formed into a crescent before Capuzzo. It was the modern version of the thin red line.

As the panzers approached nearer it was possible to count them in the screen of dust that rose beneath their whizzing tractors. Over 100 raced at our 12 in crescent formation, watched coldly by the British inside.

Ours withheld their fire till the enemy had rushed up well within range, then all let go together.

The enemy formation visibly staggered as the weight of metal hit them. The point-blank charge at our thin line ended. Skirmishing began.

It resembled somewhat Red Indian tactics in wiping out a Whiteskin laager of covered wagons. The enemy tanks churned up the dust as they madly dashed in intricate evolutions around our 12.

They swept close to our tank line every so often to fire bursts from their heavy tank guns, then wheeled out of range again on one tractor at full speed.

This amazing action, the first of its kind, lasted six hours, with our 12 varying the position of the crescent slightly.

The panzers never got behind our crescent, which did its job of protecting the withdrawal of our regiment of line troops and their German and Italian prisoners.

The value of this action is seen in the results: we did not lose a single man retiring.

More remarkable still, in this Battle of the Tanks at odds at 120 to 12, we lost not a single member of the crew of any of the gallant 12.

Havana, Cuba, July 17 (AP)—A new 18-man cabinet was announced early today by President Fulgencio Batista, less than 24 hours after the old ministry resigned to permit reorganization.

Batista renamed Senator Carlos Saladrigas Premier along with 10 other former ministers. Former President Federico Laredo Bru was named Minister of Justice, marking the first time in Cuban history that a former President has accepted a ministerial portfolio.

SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON

This remarkable book was first published in German in two small volumes, one dated 1812 and the other 1813.

The original German title of the book was "Der Schweizerische Robinson."

It was translated and printed in English in 1820 under the title "Swiss Family Robinson" and since then has been issued hundreds of times in many languages.

In 1719 the English writer Daniel Defoe published his "Robinson Crusoe."

This tale of a shipwrecked man on a desert island was immensely popular and all sorts of imitations and adaptations of the theme were published in different parts of the world.

One of the most notable of these imitations of "Robinson Crusoe" was a German book entitled "The Saxon Robinson" written by Joachim Heinrich Kampe, who had been tutor to one of the two famous Baron Humboldts.

A Swiss clergyman named Johann Davis Wyss (1743-1818) was so fascinated by "The Saxon Robinson" that he wrote his own version of the story for the amusement and instruction of his family without any thought of having it published.

Later Johann David Wyss's son, Johann Rudolf Wyss (1781-1830), professor of philosophy at Bern University and author of the Swiss national anthem "Rufst du Mein Vaterland," had this manuscript published under the title "Der Schweizerische Robinson."

To what extent the younger Wyss edited his father's manuscript is not known. The father was still living when the first German edition was printed in 1812-13.

This is how it happens that some publishers give the author of "Swiss Family Robinson" as J. D. Wyss and others as J. R. Wyss.

Perhaps it would be more just to credit the work to both father and son. Some modern publishers get around the difficulty by saying that the book was begun by J. D. Wyss and completed by J. R. Wyss.

"Swiss Family Robinson" is really not an imitation of "Robinson Crusoe," but rather an adaption of an imitation of Defoe's famous tale.

The Swiss name Wyss is generally pronounced "vis."

Weddings

DAIR—MURRAY

At Bridge Street United Church parsonage on July 12, the marriage took place of Mary Agnes Murray, Belleville, and Claude Willard Dair, Hamilton, Rev. Dr. Semple officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Dair will reside in Hamilton.

SHADDOCK—HURST

A pretty wedding took place in Grace Church, St. Catharines, on Saturday afternoon, June 28, when Marjorie Mina, daughter of Mr. F. T. Hurst, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., was married to Mr. Richard Louis Shaddock of St. Catharines, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Shaddock of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white moire, the train falling from a shirred hipline. Her finger-tip veil was caught with a cluster of moire daisies and she carried a "fan' 'of sweet peas, rosebuds, forget-me-nots and bouvardia. Miss Margaret Shaddock of Belleville, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and was gowned in pink and blue mousseline de soie with a pink shoulder veil. Miss Anne and Miss Mary New were the bridesmaids and were frocked alike in pink and blue silk net with matching shoulder veils. Colonial bouquets of sweet peas, rosebuds and cornflowers were carried by the attendants and each wore a silver bracelet, the gift of the bride.

Mr. Warren Collins was the best man and the ushers were Mr. Donald Hurst, brother of the bride, and Mr. Sidney Delaney. During the signing of the register, Master Jack Shaddock, brother of the groom, sang.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at Lynnwood. Mrs. William Taylor, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Shaddock received. Mrs. Taylor wore a redingote of British tan sheer with white hat and accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Shaddock was gowned in navy blue sheer with white hat and corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Shaddock left on a trip to Ottawa and on their return will live at 3 Woodland Avenue.

Doctor Claims Several Causes For Intermittent Limping

Some people find that after walka few blocks they develop a cramp-like pain or a sense of exhaustion in one or both legs, and must come to a complete stop. In most instances, this is promptly diagnosed by the doctor as intermittent claudication, which is believed to be due to changes in the blood vessels and difficulty with the circulation of the blood in the legs. In other words, in most instances intermittent limping is the first sign of a condition sometimes called Buerger's disease, and known scientifically as endoarteritis obliterans.

Dr. I. Mufson of Columbia University says, however, that there may be other causes for intermittent limping, and that every case should be thoroughly investigated before the conclusion is reached that Buerger's disease is present or threatening.

After all, locomotion depends on the bones, the joints, the nerves, and the blood vessels. Difficulty with any one of these systems may result in symptoms indicating interference with easy action. For instance, failure of the blood to supply a sufficient amount of oxygen to muscles when they are acting will cause cramp-like pains. Spasms of the muscles due to difficulties with the nerves will produce similar pains and force rest periods.

Lack of suitable balance because of the wearing of the wrong kind of shoes, particularly high heels, may produce trouble with the muscles. The importance of determining just which cause is operative is exceedingly great.

People who have heard about Buerger's disease, who fear amputation of a limb because of this diagnosis, frequently postpone study of the case. In some of these cases, it has been found that calf-stretching exercise may bring about complete relief in a short time.

For instance, an actor who had been tap dancing on his toes as a method of employment for many years had developed a shortening of the tendon which goes to the heel. Since he was out of work he had to walk for months seeking employment. This overstretched the large muscle in the back of the leg and threw it into spasms. Proper physical treatment resulted in a cure.

Sometimes the difficulty in walking may be associated with changes in the nervous system, particularly changes in the spinal cord. Thus the limping may be the first sign which directs the doctor's attention to the more serious condition.

Intermittent limping with a pale color of the leg, indicating that the blood vessels are not carrying blood to the tissue, is, of course, a simple diagnosis. It means, however, that the first step which the doctor must perform in such a case is to study the circulation to find out if it is going on adequately. The color of the skin is dependent on an adequate supply of blood. The doctors have a simple test. They raise the leg and then flex the foot several times, which causes the skin to become colorless. Then when the leg is lowered, the pink color returns, if the blood vessels are intact. If, however, there is a considerable delay in the return of the pink color, study must be made of the circulation.

Since the color may be slow in returning if the skin is cold, it is preferable to warm the leg thoroughly before beginning the test.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Attire for August Nuptials

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am being married in August, and I am quite in a dither as to certain questions of attire and reception. Would you please come to my aid?

1. I am going to wear a white lace dress, floor-length, and fingertip veil. Would it be proper for my attendants to wear pastel shades?

2. I am keeping my dress and all the plans for the wedding on the informal side. Should the groom wear a dark business suit, and should he wear dark or light shoes?

3. I am to have a maid of honor and two bridesmaids. Would it be proper to have a best man and two ushers, or should there be more ushers?

4. "Open house" is to be held at my house from about one o'clock to three. Would it be proper to serve a buffet luncheon?

R. E.

1. Yes, it would be seasonable and proper for your attendants to wear pastel shades, how about having them wear pastel organdy? You can have the two bridesmaids wear the same style of dress and the same shade, and have the maid of honor wear a harmonizing shade.

2. Since the groom is to dress informally, he might wear either a dark blue business suit (with black shoes). If he prefers, he might wear white flannel trousers and dark blue coat.

3. The number of ushers you plan to have depends on the number of guests you are inviting. The guests shouldn't have to wait too long to be escorted to their seats.

4. A simple luncheon may be served at this hour, and it is usually more convenient to serve it buffet style.

Mailing Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

We are going to be married very quietly in the chapel of our church.

1. Since my fiance and I are going to announce our marriage ourselves, would it be in good order for us to mail the announcements before or after the marriage ceremony?

2. What is the proper wording to use in the announcements?

P. H.

1. Marriage announcements should not be mailed until after the ceremony has been performed. However, they should be all ready — engraved, addressed, stamped — so that they can be mailed directly after the ceremony.

2. The announcement sent by the bride and groom reads:

Mr. William Worthy and Miss Elizabeth Wells announce their marriage on Tuesday, the twenty-second of July
Nineteen hundred and forty-one
Montclair, New Jersey

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Doesn't Want to Break With Either Boy Friend

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After having been engaged to a young man for six months (I had no ring) he left me for another girl. Of course, I was terribly upset over it, but soon became interested in another young man who has been taking me out for the past year. He is eight years my senior, but has never mentioned marriage.

Now my first boy friend has come back and wants to be reinstated in my good graces, saying he's sorry for the way he treated me. But my mother doesn't think I should take him seriously, as he may leave me again when some other girl comes along.

I still think a great deal of him and would like to give him another trial. But I don't care to be mean to the older man, as he was jilted by a girl once before. Which one of these do you think would be the best choice?

In Doubt

I suggest you keep on going with both the young men, as you're not engaged to either. You haven't given me your age. If you're only about 18 or 19, it is much better for you to have several friends than to consider yourself bound to one, while the young man evidently considers himself free.

I think it would be more prudent, all things considered, if you do not take too seriously the young man who broke his engagement to you once before.

A Widower's Worries

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My wife died about a year ago and I was left with two small children, a girl of five and a boy of seven. The only thing I could do was advertise for a housekeeper, and I was weak-minded enough to take an attractive woman instead of an efficient worker. Now I wish I had taken one of those poor old women who came for the job.

This one has a terrible hold over me and sometimes I am like putty in her hands. What woke me up was that she asked me to transfer my insurance from my children to her. She has been mean to the children and at times has whipped them severely.

My mother-in-law finally came out and said that she would take the case to the proper authorities if I didn't see that this woman left, and she offered to take the children to her home until I could get rid of her.

My housekeeper said I offered to marry her, but honestly, Miss Fairfax, I never did. What would you suggest I do?

Widower

Better ask the children's grandmother to come and stay at your house until you get rid of this housekeeper. Nothing will, I believe, speed the parting guest so quickly. If you let your wife's mother have the children, you may have difficulty in getting possession of them again.

He's Engaged to Another

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Fourteen months ago we were happily in love with each other and then, through a misunderstanding, we stopped going together. Now I understand he is going to marry another. I've never loved anyone else, and have suffered terribly. I go to affairs where I know I'll see him, but he looks at no one but the girl he's to marry.

I try so hard to forget, but that's not easy when one really and truly loves. I remember all the little things he used to do for me, and I'm always looking for his face in a crowd. Should I look him up and tell him how I feel?

Desperate

Don't you think it would be sacrificing your pride uselessly to tell this boy how much you care for him, when you see he is unaware of everyone but the girl to whom he is engaged?

It's not going to be easy, my dear, but you've got to take yourself well in hand. Stop going places where you see him, which only makes you more miserable. Don't scan every face in a crowd hoping it might be his. That is only a sacrifice to your beautiful and fast-fleeting youth.

Make a big effort to take an interest in something else. Take up a course of study, or a hobby, if your heart is still too sore to take an interest in other people.

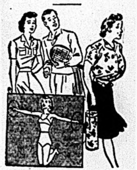
Exercises Can Help You to Reduce



Large Bust Adds Years to Looks

"Too old for us!" they guess.

But she may not be! A large shapeless bust adds years to a woman's looks; as she grows older she's branded "dowager" long before she is one.

Can anything be done about it? Of course. By firming with exercises the pectoral muscles that support the bust, you can make it smaller and more shapely. Normalizing the body weight also helps.

Many women have reduced their bust measurement as much as six to eleven inches with the aid of exercises like this (illustrated in our sketch):

1—Kneel on mat, body upright, arms out to side, palms up, shoulders back. Drop head backward.

2—Make small circles with arms, beginning each circle by moving arms forward. Try to feel the muscles pull between shoulders. Repeat circles 6 times.

3—Drop body forward, arms and head hanging downward. Then repeat exercise 6 to 8 times.

You'll get results! And with the exercise routines in our 32-page booklet you can slim hips, thighs, calves, arms and waistline, too; flatten your abdomen, lose a "dowager's hump." Gives exercises for posture, aching feet, nervous tension, constipation; also general exercises.

Keep Figure Young by Exercise

Lovely Sammie Hill, radio star, demonstrates an exercise for slenderizing the waist line.

By HELEN FOLLETT

DO YOU exercise, dear reader, or are you a slacker? Do you get goosie flesh at the idea of walking a couple of miles? All rightee for you! Mustn't forget that birthdays come galloping along and that you want to retain the svelte shape and youthful agility. Without work, muscles go sluggish. Lazy muscles invite adipose tissue, make for slow movement. You don't want to travel in slow moving traffic, do you?

The woman who is athletically inclined, who enjoys muscle flexing, gets a genuine thrill out of it. She moves with the natural grace of a young animal. She feels vital because exercise acts upon every cell in her body. It is a tonic for her complexion. It is the world's grandest digestion aid.

Ten-Minute Workout

A ten-minute workout in the morning, before the bath or shower, will bring marvelous benefits in a few months' time. It normalizes weight and measurements, is good for the fat and the thin, and for those that are just right and want to stay that way.

Stretching, lifting up on the toes, swinging the arms, twisting and turning at the waistline, touching the floor without bending the knees—all these simple, easy little stunts will ward off the evidences of time. Why not keep within finger touch of your youth? You'll feel well, look well.

Listen, now, like a good girl; the movements must be correct. They must not be jerky, graceless. Always the pose must be snappy, tummy in, chest high, backbone stretched full length.

If you can exercise to music, it will be more like play. Music makes for graceful motions.

Unless you have a regular time for exercise, you'll never get around to it. Make it a habit for one week and you won't think of starting the day without your workout.

Get into the tub of warm water, relax. Close your eyes, breathe deeply. Have a brisk rubdown with a towel that takes hold like the pangs of a guilty conscience. Use the fragrant bath tonic and you're ready for anything the day may bring forth. On the line, now! One! Two! Three! Go!

Made Long Drive At Record Speed

London, July 17 —(CP)— Incredible feats of endurance during the advance of British forces from Kenya to Addis Ababa were described by two officers who took part in the gruelling campaign.

The drive from Kenya to the capital of Ethiopia, a distance of 2,100 miles, was one of the longest and quickest in military history, they said. One of the officers covered 800 miles in seven days while some of the troops covered even greater distances.

The forces left Kenya in three columns and stormed their way to the banks of the River Juba where they encountered superior Italian concentrations. After three days of intense fighting the British decided to send tanks, armored cars and machine gun carriers on a wide flanking movement to attempt a rear attack.

"For two days we heard nothing of this small armored force," said one of the officers. "They had to cut their way through dense forests, hewing down trees sometimes five feet in diameter, skirting marshes and forcing their way through scrub and bush.

"By a wonderful piece of reckoning the force landed 10 miles behind the Italians and then attacked. They first came to his food and munitions dump and afterwards to divisional and brigade headquarters. Finally, when the Italians realized what had happened, they quickly broke."

About the same time a reconnaissance plane reported a large column of Italians marching along the coast flying a white flag. We left two or three lance corporals to collect the prisoners and pushed ahead."

After a slight pause at Morgadiscio, the troops advanced to Harar, 800 miles away. Within seven days the town had been reached and captured. A short time later they overcame further resistance and reached Addis Ababa.

Manchester, England —(CP)— The management of a North of England aircraft factory has asked workers not to spend so much time on a Spitfire fund. Officials said production was suffering.

Lack Propaganda Says King-Hall

Ormskirk, England, July 17 —(CP)—Cmdr. Stephen King-Hall, National Labor Member of Parliament for Ormskirk, criticizing what he called British weakness in propaganda, said in an address that "in the sphere of political warfare our effort is weak, unsatisfactory and altogether deplorable."

Britain needlessly was delaying the final hour of victory "for lack of a sustained, well-thought-out and ruthless attack on the minds of our enemies, an attack which would bring comfort and hope to the minds of our friends now oppressed in occupied countries and encourage them to resist the Nazis."

He said the fighting services had not been supported in every possible way by propaganda designed to weaken resistance of the enemy.

"The Ministry of Information has been organized, reorganized, disorganized, but no tune has come out of the organ after all this organizing. It squeaks a little.

"From the propaganda point of view, Hess (Rudolph Hess, No. 3 Nazi who fled to Britain from Germany) was a great big unexploded bomb sitting in every German brain. But we have him defused and made him into a dud. He is no longer news either here or in Germany. It is lamentable."

The French people were being invited to "manifest their extreme disapproval" of Vichy, he said, while British propaganda should be trying to start a revolution in France and force Admiral Darlan to flee to his "spiritual home" in Germany.

SEAMAN PLEADS GUILTY

Malone, N.Y., July 17 (AP)—A Polish seaman, accused of leaving his ship at Montreal and crossing the St. Lawrence River to Massena in a rowboat, was sentenced in Federal Court yesterday to 30 days in a Federal penitentiary. The seaman, Bodham Maleslewski, 29, pleaded guilty to unlawfully entering the United States.

Retired U. S. Justice 'Adopts' Thirty-Three British 'Blitzed Babies'

Washington, July 17 — (AP) — Henry J. Allen, chairman of the British Child Aid Committee of the Save the Children Federation, said last night that James C. McReynolds, retired United States Supreme Court Justice, had "adopted" 33 British children who have lost their homes in the war.

The children, he said, included 14 girls from one to eleven years of age and 19 boys from one to fourteen.

In a letter transmitting his cheque for support of the children, McReynolds proposed that Allen raise a fund of $10,000,000 for child aid work and offered to be one of 1,000 persons donating $10,000 each.

Americans, paying $30 a year for maintenance, have adopted 9,000 "blitzed babies," Allen said.

Minor Revolts Against Fascists Have Occurred

New York, July 17 (AP)—Home after two years in Italy, Maurice C. Boyd said yesterday that a number of minor revolts against the Fascist Government have occurred in that country caused principally over difficulty in obtaining food.

Boyd is a retired tourist agent, of Bloomfield, N.J.

"The country is full of Germans, both in and out of uniform, and the people hate the Germans," he said.

"The Italian people do not want the war and they have no spirit for it. There have been some minor revolutions against the Fascist Government. There were several in Florence and at least one in Milan last winter, all of which were put down by German soldiers."

FEELS LIKE DIFFERENT PERSON SINCE SYNTONA BUILT HER UP

Suffered Constantly with Sour Upset Stomach, Dizzy Spells and Headaches. Had Rheumatic Pains in Back and Joints. Nerves Were Bad and She Could Not Sleep.

"I'm simply delighted with the way Syntona has helped me, and I will be glad to have others know about it," said Mrs. Ida Waddell, 446 Paling Avenue North, Hamilton, in a recent statement.

"Almost as long as I can remember, I was troubled with indigestion and constipation and I didn't think anything would help my stomach any more. Food I ate just seemed to settle into a solid mass in my stomach. There it would ferment and cause bloat and belching of scalding, sour liquids. My appetite was so poor that I didn't care for food at all and at night I often felt lucky if I got more than an hour's sleep. I felt so weakened from loss of sleep that I just dreaded the thought of all the work I had to do. Then, I began to have frequent headaches and dizzy spells and pains set into my back and joints.

"After trying various medicines with little or no results, I began taking Syntona and I could tell it was helping me in less than a week. It relieved me of all that stomach misery and my nerves became relaxed so I could sleep better. My bowels are regular now and I have more energy. In the short time I have been taking Syntona, the stiffness and pains in my joints have been reduced and the headaches and dizzy spells have left me."

MRS. IDA WADDELL

The reason such good results are produced by a medicine that is compounded to act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels at the same time is simply this: The organs of assimilation and elimination are so closely related that when one becomes ailing, it so often affects one or more of the others. Food that should supply energy and resistance only ferments in the stomach. Soured particles and waste matter are absorbed into the bloodstream and soon the whole system is rundown.

Go to DOLAN THE DRUGGIST, Belleville, and find out how Syntona can help you, too.

Aviatrix Alone When Crash Came

Probe Showed Inflated Coat Looked Like Body When Amy Johnsen Died

Somewhere in England, July 17—(CP)— An inflated greatcoat held the secret of the mysterious "passenger" Amy Johnson was reported to be flying when she parachuted to her death in the Thames Estuary last January.

Eyewitnesses who saw Miss Johnston sink below the choppy waters of the estuary reported they had seen what they thought was the body of a man in the water near the crashed plane.

Captain Norman Edgar, chief liaison officer of the Air Transport Auxiliary, for which the noted long-distance aviatrix flew, cleared up the mystery in an interview with The Canadian Press, declaring it had been proved beyond doubt that Miss Johnson was alone in her plane when she baled out.

"I checked every air field in the country where she might have landed and know that she had no passenger", said Capt. Edgar who conducted the investigation into Miss Johnson's death.

"What people thought was the body of a man apparently was her greatcoat which floated away from the plane. When the air got under it, the coat probably looked like a body, leading people to believe there was a passenger".

Miss Johnson died becaues she disregarded a rigid rule of the A.T.A., not to fly above the clouds. Once above the clouds, she apparently hoped to find a hole through which she could come down to an air field, Capt. Edgar said

But there was no hole, she had no wireless and was afraid to land because of balloon barrage cables. She flew until her plane ran out of gas and then baled out.

"Unfortunately", Capt. Edgar added, "she came down over water".

CALL UP MORE JAP SOLDIERS

Shanghai, July 17 (AP)—Japanese soldiers discharged from the army a year and a half ago after seeing action in China, have been called up for service, foreign sources reported today.

A number of reservists in Manchoukuo also have been called up, these sources said.

It further was reported the Japanese Government has refused foreigners permission to travel from North China or Manchoukuo by steamer to Kobe. This followed a report that the Japanese port had been closed for a 10-day period starting July 15.

Foreigners have been refused permission to go from here to Kobe until after July 24.

Yanks Increase First Place Margin to Six Full Games By Defeating Cleveland 10-3

DiMaggio Hits Safely in 56th Consecutive Game to Set an All-Time High Record

DODGERS BEATEN

BY JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The latest report on the major league pennant races is that they probably are going to follow the same pattern that everybody was accustomed to until last year.

The powerful New York Yankees are right on the verge of running away from the rest of the American League while the National League is in the throes of another of those push-and-pull struggles that may last right down to the finish in September.

The bombers from the Bronx blasted out a 10-3 victory over Cleveland Indians yesterday in the first tussle of their three-game clash and cleared up most of the doubt about being the best club in the League.

With Joe DiMaggio hitting a double and two singles to stretch his hitting streak to 56 consecutive games, and Charley Keller smashing out a triple and his 20th home run of the year, the Yankees rode rough shod to their eighth triumph in eleven games against the Indians this season and increased their first place margin to six full games.

Lead Cut to Three Games

On the other hand the Dodgers, who had a chance to bottle up the Senior circuit just as completely, were raided 7-4 by St. Louis Cardinals and had their lead cut to three games.

The Cardinals' conquest was a deafening explosion for the 32,265 fans at Ebbets Field because the Dodgers made a good start toward humiliating their rivals. In the first four innings Whitlow Wyatt did not allow a hit and his mates raced away to a 4-0 lead.

Then the pitching ace of the National League collapsed. He gave up two runs in the fifth on a double by Enos Slaughter and a triple by Martin Marion and in the sixth he couldn't get anybody out.

With the spotlights in both leagues turned on the struggles of their leading teams, there wasn't much for the other teams to do except tend to their own knitting.

Stave Off Reds' Threat

New York Giants staved off Cincinnati Reds' threat at third place in the senior loop by whipping Bucky Walters 7-4. Gabby Hartnett hit two doubles, one with the bases loaded in the first inning, and Dick Bartell had a perfect day at bat with three singles and batted in three runs.

Pittsburgh and Boston divided a double header, Jim Tobin pitching the Braves to a 4-1 triumph in the first game and then the Pirates rallying with seven runs in the seventh inning of the nightcap to win 13-5.

Chicago Cubs captured a 9-5 decision over the hapless Phillies in their night game, Charley Root gathering in the 198th triumph of his career although needing help.

In the other American League games Boston Red Sox edged out Chicago White Sox 2-1 and St. Louis Browns overpowered Philadelphia Athletics 11-2.

BALMY BEACHERS APPLY TO JOIN THE 'BIG FOUR'

Willing to Replace Hamilton Tigers Who Are Withdrawing This Year

EXECUTIVE TO MEET

Toronto, July 17 (CP)—Interprovincial Union Football officials, lacking a fourth team to round out their usual compact group, need only to give the nod to Toronto Balmy Beach to acquire one.

Beaches, champions of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union, made formal application last night through their president, Ab Box, for permission to fill the spot left vacant in the Big Four when Hamilton Tigers decided last week not to operate this coming season.

Box, one of the game's greatest players a few years back, said the application had been mailed to Jim McCaffrey, Ottawa, president of the Big Four. McCaffrey has already announced a meeting of his executive will be held Saturday to discuss Hamilton's withdrawal and it is expected Beaches' application will be dealt wtih at that time.

If Beaches are accepted into the Big Four—the other clubs are Toronto Argos, Ottawa and Montreal—it will mean the passing of the senior series in the O.R.F.U. The old gold and blue was the only definite entry for hits year, following the decision of Sarnia interests to suspend football operations for duration of the war.

Box, discussing his club's latest effort to "crash" the Big Four, said he couldn't see why the old gold and blue would not serve as a replacement for Hamilton.

"We certainly will not weaken their league any," he added.

Box said that Floyd Muirhead, sponsor of the Beach Club who is also president of the O.R.F.U., had given the club executive a free hand in reaching its decision. The executive, in addition to Box, consists of Coach Alex Ponton, Syd Reynolds, Bob Reid and George Shields. Their decision in the matter was unanimous.

WHEN BATTING POWER FAILS, JOE USES FOOTWORK

Flinging his bat aside, Joe DiMaggio streaks for first base after popping the ball between the plate and third in the sixth inning of the Yankee-White Sox game in Chicago. Joe's fast running enabled him to beat Third Baseman Bob Kennedy's throw to first and he was credited with a single to run his hitting string to 54 games. The catcher is Mike Tresh, the umpire Arthur Passarella and the pitcher Johnny Rigney (left, looking at ball which is visible in upper left corner), who, despite failure to stop DiMaggio, set the Yanks down 7 to 1.

SWIMMING MEET HELD AT VERDUN

Thelma Boughner is Still Canada's Women's Senior Diving Champion

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Verdun, Que., July 17 (CP) — Crack swimmers from various parts of the Dominion, unsuccessful last night in their attempts to set up new records for Canadian swimming and diving championship events, will have a chance during final competition tonight to make another assault on the existing marks.

The records withstood all comers as a dozen preliminaries and seven finals were run off during the opening night's program.

One champion was still a titleholder when the seven finals were completed and she was — pretty Thelma Boughner, of Windsor, holder of the Canadian women's senior diving crown, who is competing for Toronto Dolphines.

Miss Boughner went through her eight dives in near perfect form to gain 93.50 of a possible 100 points. Her closest competitor was Marjorie Bradshaw of Montreal who piled up 86.63 points despite a slight head injury suffered in the first dive. Miss Bradshaw struck her head on the diving board on coming out of a dive and was slightly stunned for a few minutes. Third place in the event went to Evelyn Buchanan of Toronto who chalked up 78.30 points.

Another title went to Toronto when Beverley Dean-Jones ploughed his way to victory in the junior men's 100-yard backstroke event.

Hamilton laid claim to a title when Marjorie Thompson splashed home ahead of the pack in the junior women's 100-yard breast stroke.

HURLER IMPROVES HIS TECHNIQUE

Hank Borowy Winner of as Many Games Now as in Whole of Last Season

(By the Associated Press)

Hank Borowy, former Fordham University pitcher who stepped from college into the lineup of Newark Bears in the International Baseball League two years ago, has shown steady improvement since his arrival.

When he beat Baltimore Orioles 3-2 over 11 innings last night, he equalled the total of 12 victories he racked up for the full 1940 season.

Borowy, in giving the Bears their seventh straight triumph last night topped off a thrilling pitching performance by batting in the winning run himself. A packed house of 17,564 fans witnessed the contest, which ended with George Stirnweiss scoring from second on the pitcher's single.

The victory increased the Bears' League lead over the second-place Buffalo Bison to six full games as rain forced postponement of Buffalo's game at Toronto.

The Jersey City-Syracuse contest was also washed out, and in the only other game Montreal Royals edged out Rochester Red Wings 4-2. Jake Powell's single in the seventh inning scored Roy Hughes with the winning tally, giving Montreal the series 4 games to 1 and increasing their margin over the fourth-place Wings to 2 1-2 games. Chet Kehn went the distance for the Royals for his 12th conquest, giving up six hits while Hank Gornicki allowed nine in defeat.

GOSSIP NEWS COMMENT

"Onkel Fred" Craig, Peterboro' sports scrivener, comes to bat with his all-star team selected from the Liftlock City mushball loop, a selection that includes several names well known in Belleville For instance at second base he placed Art Heale, prolific right-winger of the Petes senior puck squad, while in right field we found the name of Joe Blewett, another well established Peterboro' rubber-chaser. In another field position bobbed up the name of the veteran Chuck Kearns, of Peterboro' baseball and football notoriety, but gone were the old standbys of a decade ago—Bun Kingdon, Eddie Starr and Billie Calladine For the catching duties "Onkel Fred" named Holly Mowry, who is, no doubt, a younger brother of "Mud" Mowry, who handled the slants of Peterboro' pitchers in the C.O.B.L. a decade ago His selection of pitchers included Dave Wilson, Ken Fleming and Bob Strickland Mister Craig says he has a team that can field and punch out base hits in the clutches.

No one ever succeeded in making all-star selections that pleased everybody, but it's always fun. Take our own City Softball League that launches upon its annual play-offs Friday night for instance. Selecting an all-star team here would be somewhat of a task, but here are a few names or the respective positions to pursue over. At first base Johnny Hamilton, of Corby's A. C. would get the call if only for his hitting. At second it's a toss-up between the veteran, Ted Henn of Corby's, and Art Mansfield of the Esquire (the kid's playing strong ball both ways.) At third it's a toss-up between Johnny Ronsky, of Corby's, and Spike Pryke of Reliance, while the shortstop position is really tough with Nicky Sero of Point Anne, Cy Barriage of Corby's and Vince Guay of the Esquire kids all playing godo ball, the former two perhaps outhitting Guay on the season, however. Take your choice between Murney Green and Alf Rowbotham behind the plate and then call in most any pitcher you want and it should be a winning combination.

On July 23rd at Kitchener, Ont., the Intercounty Senior Baseball League will hold their annual all-star game. The all-star team will be composed of eight players from the Stratford Nationals, five from the Galt Terriers (shades of 1922) and four from the Guelph Maple Leafs (what, no Freddie Goyer?) They will face the Kitchener-Waterloo "Stars", league leaders on July 1st at Kitchener. One of the features that has held the Intercounty League together is their annual all-star game, which is featured every year. Too bad the C.O.B.L. didn't think of a similar continuance in years gone by.

Do you remember when Jimmy Wilde, one of the greatest "little men" in boxing, won an unanimous 20-round decision over Pal Moore at London 22 years ago tonight to retain his flyweight title. The champion was awarded the bout after coming from behind with a great two-fisted attack in the late rounds.

Tuesday was the deadline for signing players in the O.A.S.A. and Skipper Harold Bawden availed himself of catcher Alf Rowbotham to bolster his receiving staff to go into the provincial softball playdowns, after Reliance announced their withdrawal from the O.A.S.A. Today Secretary Harry Knott of the Belleville Softball Association announced the district clubs to officially represent this area in the O.A.S.A. playdowns. Corby's A. C. will go out into the Intermediate "A" softball hunt, Bubby Gaulin's Point Anne "Cementmen" drew a bye into the Intermediate "C" ranks and should go far in the series in 1941. Red Townsend's scrappy Esquire kids will represent Belleville in the Junior O.A.S.A. fight, thus giving the local Association three representatives. Trenton has advanced a notch this year and their winner will doubtless meet Corby's A. C. in the first round Intermediate "A" playdowns, commencing anytime after August 18th. In the meantime the City League championship for the Bank of Commerce Trophy will hold the fans' attention.

Friday, July 18th, will be a gala day for the lawn bowlers of group No. 15 of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association which is made up of Kingston, Gananoque, Deseronto, Tweed, Madoc, Stirling and Belleville. On that day the district play-offs will see all of these rinks competing in Belleville at rinks, doubles and men's singles for the district championships and the right to continue on into the Provincial Lawn Bowling playdowns for the Ontario titles. The cream of the district crop of lawn bowlers will vie for these honours, to which the public is invited to attend as spectators.

Maybe it would be a good idea if Corbin's and SWACO forget all about their last meeting. Twice they've tried to get together and were rained out, last night being the finale when old Jupiter Pluvius intervened. In the meantime Zellers clash with the "lockmakers" Friday.

Joe DiMaggio and the Ynakees dealt the Cleveland Indians a staggering blow when they trounced the Ohio State City a bruising 10 to 3 blow right in Cleveland yesterday to extend their lead to six full games. DiMaggio hit safely for his 56th consecutive game and is now just five games away from equalling the world record of 61 games, which is held in the Pacific Coast League. The current three-game Yankee-Indian series was being referred to as "the July pennant series" but any hopes the Indians had of making a sweep of the series were blasted yesterday. The Cardinals beat the Dodgers 7-4 in a National League nocturnal contest to whittle the Flatbush gan's lead to three games over the Mound City entry. Strangely enough in both major leagues the two top-ranking teams are at present engaged in a series that means much in the winning of the league bunting.

NAZI NEW ORDER BROUGHT TERROR TO THE CZECHS

Murder and Torture Are Charged Against Germans in Official Book Published by Exiled Government

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 16 (CP)—Arrest, torture, banishment to concentration camps make up the "black record" of two years of Hitler's "new order" in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, once part of the independent Czechoslovak republic.

Citing specific cases, the official Czech government book "Two Years of German Oppression in Czechoslovakia" said not a single town or village had been without its incident and German power in the protorate "is just as isolated from the Czech population" as it was in March, 1939 when the Nazis entered Prague.

Within two months of the occupation "some 12,000 Czechs found themselves in prison, to remain there for short or long terms," the account said. A fresh wave of arrests followed the outbreak of war when many young Czechs fled to join the independent Czech army established abroad.

The book said the number of arrests in provincial towns and throughout the country could not be stated approximately, but in the middle of last year "Czech circles in the protectorate gave the figure of about 70,000 as the number of Czechs held in concentration camps in Germany." It added the figure has been exceeded since.

Special objects of persecution at war's outbreak were former officers, suspected of arranging departures of Czech soldiers to fight Germany. From "the long list of such officer martyrs" the book selected the cases of several high officers, including Major Klein, formerly of the Czech general staff, and Lt.-Col. Houska.

Officers Tortured

It said Klein was tortured to death Oct. 14, 1939. Houska was tortured for four days about his knowledge of foreign connections until torture "attained such a degree that this man was no longer in control of himself and he was thrown from the fourth floor to a stone pavement." The book said the official doctor was compelled to return a verdict of suicide but private examination showed "most of the wounds were so serious that he would have been unable to commit suicide."

No class was spared from the terrorism following the Nazi occupation. Mayor Kellner of Prague, leaders of various parties and town officials were tortured. The whole administrative staff of the land office, headed by the president, was arrested when the Germans wished to enforce expropriation of Czech soil.

From the beginning of the occupation the Nazis introduced "a system of mass punishment for the deeds of individuals," the book said, calling this "a suitable way to arrest and torture people against whom no other pretext could be found." It cited the arrest of 50 Jews and 50 Social Democrat party members in Pilsen after a German soldier's uniform was stained by acid.

Other arrests were made among factory workers accused of sabotage. The book related that an official order published in the Czech press "for the purpose of intimidation" declared our workers in a plant at Brno were shot "on account of sabotage and the establishment of a secret arms dump."

Murder of Students

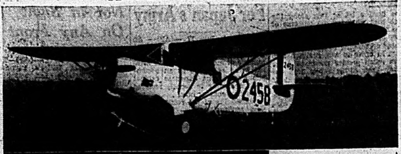
The biggest mass murder took place Nov. 16-17, 1939, following a demonstration a month earlier by Czech students. German troops killed "dozens" when they raided the dormitories and took their captives in buses to the air force barracks at Ruzn where the students were subjected to "sadistic tortures."

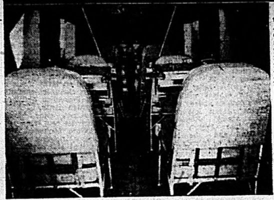
"They were stripped, drenched with icy water and made to lie on the ground the whole night in the ice-cold November weather. Others were compelled to run around the Ruzn riding school, urged on by blows from whips and cudgels, until heart and lungs could stand no more. Others again, bound in groups of three, had the lobes of their ears torn, their eyes struck out by blows from whips," the book said.

The Germans also took there a certain number of girl students, some of whom were "dragged on to large open spaces surrounded by tanks and violated in view of the bound male students."

Later the male students were sent to German concentration camps, while those under 20 were left behind. "If they had not been beaten so much that traces of it were still visible, they were released, after they had, however, been innoculated with a drug which in every case produced the same reaction; a marked condition of apathy and depression."

Ahead of Schedule





Four months before the final due-delivery date, the last of a large group of planes built for training men in Canadian wireless schools under the British Commonwealth Training plan, have been delivered to the government by Noorduyn Aviation Ltd. These ships were ordered in May, 1940. The contract stipulated delivery of the first of the planes on June 1, 1940, but delays in obtaining equipment and training new personnel prevented completion of the first plane until August 21, 1940. The last eight were to be delivered between May and October, 1941, but the company turned over the last plane a few days ago, thus completing the contract for the 38 planes four months ahead of schedule. These are the Norseman type which was used extensively in bush work prior to the war. Improvements have been made and today the Norseman is the standard training plane used in the wireless schools. They carry seven men, including the pilot and are equipped with five wireless sets for training aloft.

Limit Gas Use In New Zealand

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)—Gasoline rationing in New Zealand has allowed the government to build up satisfactory stores of motro fuel for military purposes and at the same time conserve foreign exchange by reducing gasoline imports, said a report sent to Ottawa by W. F. Bull, Canadian Trade Commissioner.

From the outbreak of war use of gasoline in private cars was strictly prohibited and a rigid licensing system for commercial use was adopted. Later, sale of a limited quantity of gasoline for private motoring was allowed. At present, private motorists are allowed enough gasoline to travel 150 miles per month and commercial vehicles are required to operate on 30 per cent less gasoline than they used in peacetime.

"There was considerable disruption of the motor industry, but contrary to general opinion, there was only a small drop in motor vehicle registrations—from 307,814 on Dec. 31, 1939, to 305,034, on Dec. 31, 1940," said Mr. Bull.

"This reduction is more than accounted for by reduced importation of motor vehicles as a result of the import control regulations.

"A large number of vehicles, both private and commercial, were equipped to use gas-producer units made in New Zealand that burn locally-produced charcoal or carbonized brown coal or coke."

Women Dig Up Discard Hose

London, July 17.—(CP)—London's invisible mending stores are doing a thriving business repairing silk stockings that women are digging up from trunks and boxes stored away in attics and cellars for years.

Rationing of clothes and scarcity of silk stockings brought the demand upon repair departments. New girls are being trained as quickly as possible but there still are many vacancies for 'ladder repair" recruits.

"We will take almost any applicant we can get", said the manager of a hosiery repairs establishment. "Our firm alone dealt with tens of thousands of repairs in a month."

Chipmunk, Bitten by Rattler, Bites Woman; She's Now in the Hospital

Suffern, N.Y., July 17.—The rattler bit the chipmunk, the chipmunk bit the woman and today the woman was in "fair" condition in Good Samaritan Hospital here, with symptoms "about the same" as if she had been bitten by the snake, according to Dr. Robert P. Odenwald.

That summarizse an unusual accident that occurred on the rear lawn of Mrs. Catherine Petheram behind her home on Wayne Avenue. Mrs. Petheram was chatting with Mrs. Harvey J. Conklin, wife of a local undertaker, who lives near by.

As Mr. Conklin recounted the mishap, Mrs. Petheram saw a little chipmunk, which she had been in the habit of feeding, apparently in distress on the lawn. She walked away from her friend, reached down to the usually friendly little rodent—and was startled when it snapped at her and caught the second finger of her right hand with its teeth.

She was further surprised when the little animal fell back, plainly near death, and she saw that its furry body was bloodsoaked. But the biggest surprise was to come. Within striking distance, though it did not rattle, a snake at least 3½ feet long glided sinuously.

Mrs. Petheram ran to Mrs. Conklin, who called her husband at his office. Within a few minutes he was on the scene with Sergeant Edson Thompson of the Suffern police. One shot from Thompson's pistol finished the snake.

But by that time Mrs. Petheram's finger had begun to swell and the pain became intense. She was taken to the hospital, where the wound had to be enlarged and drained.

Meanwhile, curiosity spread as to just how the apparent effects of snake bite had been transmitted by a chipmunk. It was easily established that the chipmunk had been bitten by the snake prior to Mrs. Petheram's discovery of either animal. But snake experts at both the Bronx Zoo and the American Museum of Natural History were emphatic that the venom, injected into the blood stream of the victim by the rattler's fangs could not have been transmitted to another by the chipmunk's teeth.

Dr. Odenwald explained the peculiar situation to the N. Y. Times. He said the normally harmless wound inflicted by the teeth of the dying chipmunk had apparently been poisoned by the copiously flowing blood, or the lympth of the rodent, when Mrs. Petheram touched it.

New York authorities had suggested that the saliva of the chipmunk might have carried some specific infection, or that Mrs. Petheram might have been peculiarly vulnerable to such a bite. But all agreed that the rattlesnake venom could not have been directly transmitted by the chipmunk's teeth. They were at the time unaware of the point make by the doctor, that the chipmunk's body was bloodsoaked.

Mrs. Petheram's husband Frank, a retired shirtmaker, said the chipmunk had been virtually a pet of the family.

'Prospects Bright' For Good Tourist Season in Canada

Halifax, July 17—(CP)—W. Rupert Davies of Kingston, Ont., President of The Canadian Press and publisher of The Kingston Whig-Standard, says "prospects are bright" for a good tourist season throughout the Dominion.

"The East and the west coast areas probably will see the largest increase in the number of visitors," said Mr. Davies in an interview upon his arrival here yesterday.

He said he believed that Canadians from the central provinces who normally visit the United States would take advantage of wartime travel restrictions to see other parts of the Dominion.

Mr. Davies did not expect that the gasoline price increase and impending sales restrictions would handicap tourist travel seriously.

He said there was high interest in proposed trips to Canada in the eastern United States. "I am sure that Nova Scotia will see a heavy influx of tourists this year."

Ordnance Master Of Conferences Begins Busy Round

London, July 17 —(CP Cable)—Victor Sifton, Master-General of Ordnance, Canadian Department of National Defence, beginning a busy round of conferences today, told The Canadian Press he plans to visit all Canadian army formations in Britain with an eye to their equipment. Any suggested improvement would be reported to Ottawa.

While he did not comment on the bomb damage to London, he noted the "casualness of the general behavior of the people." He said he had been impressed by the speed with which the wreckage seemd to have been cleaned up.

Canadian naval officials who flew the Atlantic with Mr. Sifton plan to discuss with British officials such subjects as general collaboration, patrol and convoy work, and exchange of information on facilities for construction and handling of ships.

STILL IN RUSSIAN HANDS

London, July 17 (CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Moscow tonight said Smolensk, on the road to Moscow and 230 miles from the Soviet capital, still was in Russian hands this morning.

DOING THEIR BIT FOR THE ROYAL AIR FORCE

Women of the W.A.A.F. (Women's Auxiliary Air Force) are shown testing aerial cameras and camera guns at a firing range of the school of instrument repairers and cine projectionists. These girls do valuable work for the Royal Air Force. The camera guns are used to train aerial gunners without wasting ammunition. When the student gunner makes a hit the camera records it. The camera on the left is a regular aerial camera used by reconnaissance planes.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The reports that Soviet Russia has restored the system of political commissars for the Red Army must be regarded with some misgiving. The Russian radio, as heard in London and Berne, Switzerland, says the commissars will conduct "a ruthless struggle against all cowards, panic-mongers and deserters". That must mean there has been same breakdown in discipline.

The commissars, who divided control with the regular officers and kept the army politically minded, were abolished after the Russo-Finnish war of 1939-40. In that winter campaign the commissars were blamed with contributing largely to the confusion that resulted when the Finns showed themselves much stronger than Moscow had believed. There followed apparently a fierce struggle between the military and political factions for authority, with the former winning out.

Now the Moscow radio is quoted as saying all battalions, brigades and divisions will be assigned political commissars who will countersign all orders of the commanding officers and share responsibility with them. This system tends to undermine the confidence of an officer whose responsibility it is to make decisions in the heat of battle, since there is always the political commissar snooping about and ready to send in an unfavorable report to the Kremlin if he doesn't like the way things' are being done.

Believe Stalin Is Through

Ever since the war began there has been a lot of talk along the line that whatever the outcome of the Russo-German struggle, win, lose or draw, Stalin is through. Those subscribing to this theory say that in order to win, Stalin has to give much greater power to the army than hitherto has been the case, and that once feeling itself sufficiently powerful the army would take revenge for the purge of the Red Army leadership carried out by Stalin several years ago.

But this story has a ring similar to the many that went the rounds in prewar years about the supposed schism between the German army and Hitler. The Nazi regime, indeed, purged the army high command in 1938, about the same time Stalin liquidated his top generals, and there were reports that the army would either overthrow Hitler or curb his powers. It is now apparent that such stories hadn't much basis.

The new Soviet decree reinstating the commissars must be viewed, however, as indicating anxiety at the Kremlin over the possible consequences on Red Army morale of a big German break through and the occupation of one or more of the three major cities of western Russia at which the Germans are aiming—Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow. Presumably the political commissars will be there to see that the troops do their part in carrying out the "burned earth" method of retreat and that they are kept fully aware of the Soviet's good chances of finally bogging down the invaders.

What Does Washington Think?

Ed. Note: L. S. B. Shapiro, the Montreal Gazette's Special Correspondent in Washington gives in column below interesting comment on opinion in the U.S. Capital in a dispatch to his paper.

Washington, July 16. — This is the second column of the new pattern based on the oft-repeated query from constituents, "What does Washington think?"

The opinions expressed here are not official. There is no official expression of opinion on these questions. One can't go to the President or to a cabinet officer and demand a yes or no answer to questions. I dare say, if they were willing they wouldn't know. But a correspondent who listens to Congressmen every day, who sees the President twice a week, who visits the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy and the Chief of Staff several times a week, and who is in constant touch with embassies or with persons who are close to embassies — such a correspondent inevitably reaches conclusions on pressing questions of the day. He instinctively puts together bits and pieces of information and opinion — and makes certain deductions.

Here they are.

Will the United States enter the war?—Nine days ago this reporter answered the question by stating that formal American entry into the war is inevitable Nothing that has happened in the interim has changed this view. Indeed, a Washington staff correspondent of The New York Times made the same flat statement in last Sunday's issue. And other highly respected opinion has sounded the same note.

America will go in the moment victory beckons or disaster threatens. Events of the last fortnight point to a grand opportunity for victory—and Uncle Sam is beginning to flex some very big muscles.

Has the American Navy been ordered to shoot? Orders issued to naval commanders are naturally secret, but it is Washington opinion that United States warships will use their guns and depth charges on sighting Axis raiders anywhere on a broad lane stretching from the Atlantic seaboard to Iceland. When asked this specific question last week, Secretary Knox replied by reading the President's text in which he "directed" the Navy "to keep clear the approaches" between the United States and Iceland. Mr. Knox added that he couldn't make it any clearer than the President did. and he invited newspapermen to draw their conclusions from what he considered the very clear language of the President.

* * *

What will happen when an American warship clashes with a German raider, as it inevitably will? Washington believes Germany will deliver the strongest possible protest and the Nazi press will threaten an immediate declaration of war, but that no formal declaration will be forthcoming from Berlin—as long as Hitler sees one glimmer of hope for victory. It is believed he will declare war on the United States only when he realizes he cannot win the war. He will do this as a last defiant gesture in an attempt to justify his war to the German people on the ground that the whole world was always against the Reich.

What are the chances of the Russians? — Military and political observers in Washington are constantly being surprised by the strength and skill of the Russian resistance. Some observers who gave credence to Berlin's original timetable of three weeks now are talking of a winter campaign on the eastern front. But the higher military sources still strike a pessimistic note and declare there is a good chance the main eastern campaign will be over by August 15. There are two reasons for this pessimism: (1) Not enough is known about Russian army morale to guarantee that it won't crack under persistent pressure of the Germans; and (2) high military authorities, apparently with political advice, have adopted a pessimistic attitude in order to prepare democratic morale for another disappointment and thus rob Hitler of some of the political fruits of victory.

But it may be said with certainty that Russian resistance thus far has exceeded the fondest expectations of Washington.

Will American draftees be retained for the duration?—The answer here is yes. The legislation now under consideration in the House of Representatives to extend the service of those called up is certain to pass by a handsome majority, notwithstanding a bitter fight by the isolationists. It is considered inconceivable that the Congress would ignore the grave warnings of Chief of Staff Marshall. The President has shrewdly manoeuvred the Congress into having to answer this specific question: Now that we have labored and built a fairly effective land force, shall we, at the very height of the emergency, let it fall apart and begin building anew? The Congress can give only one answer.

Are the isolationists gaining strength?—Washington thinks they are definitely losing strength. The reaction to the President's move in sending troops to Iceland has delighted administration supporters. The nation accepted the fait accompli with enthusiasm and every attempt by Senators Wheeler and Taft to frighten the American people into a demand for recall of the Marines has fallen flatter than one of Senator Nye's speeches.

What has alienated most Americans from isolationism has been the insistence of the America First Committee that a negotiated peace should now be reached. Such spokesmen as Lindbergh and Wood might have gained ground on a platform of straight isolation from European affairs; yet they pushed forward the idea of a negotiated peace. Had they been shrewder judges of American opinion, they would have known that the American people are firmly united on one proposition: They don't want Hitler to win. And a negotiated peace now would mean a Hitler victory. Thus they have pushed a great many Americans who might have favored plain isolation into the administration camp. The America First Committee is definitely travelling the road of Verne Marshall's No Foreign War Committee. And where is that? And he?

Will the United States assume protection of the Azores and Cape Verde Islands?—The answer to this, Washington believes, depends on the decision in the Nazi-Soviet war. If Hitler wins a victory during August, a victory stunning enough to allow him to move the bulk of his army westward, the United States will reach an agreement with Portugal to occupy the islands. If Hitler is occupied on the eastern front during the winter, the situation with regard to the islands will remain statis. But it is assumed that plans have now been completed an expeditionary forces readied for departure on a moment's notice. This country is absolutely firm on the proposition that these islands must never fall under Axis domination.

Are American bases being built in Northern Ireland?—The opinion in Washington is that the bases under construction are for eventual use by an American force. They are being built by American craftsmen with American materials on plans formulated by American military engineers. The bases will be used by the British forces — but they are so designed as to fill every specification demanded by the United States Army, if and when.

Call Reservists For Japan's Army

Shanghai, July 17 —(AP)— An undetermined number of Japanese reservists in addition to the vast number of men already under arms are being called up as an accompaniment to the Japanese cabinet shift, according to reports received by foreign sources here.

Summoning of the reservists was first reported early this week, before the Konoye cabinet resigned, and today's advices said that even soldiers discharged from the army in China 18 months ago had been recalled to the colors along with a number of reservists in Manchoukuo.

The reports early in the week were accompanied by disclosure that the Japanese port of Kobe (most likely point of embarkation for any southward military move) had been in effect closed to foreigners for a 10-day period starting July 15.

The general belief here was that the new cabinet would put into effect decision already reached, but whether Japan intends to move north against Russian Siberia, south into French Indo-China, Thailand and the Netherlands East Indies, or intends any special move remained a matter of speculation.

Pending appointment of a new Japanese premier, Shanghai sources admitted they were unable to analyze the Tokyo cabinet crisis. They generally agreed, however, that Japan faced two choices of international policy: to continue in the Axis camp or swing toward the British-American bloc.

Halifax Brings Thanks of People To Plane Factory

Burbank, Calif., July 17 (AP) — Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, today brought the thanks of his people to workers of the Lockheed airplane factory as the 1,000th. Lockheed Hudson Bomber for Britain rolled off the assembly line.

Lord Halifax also brought the personal thanks of an R.A.F. pilot who had flown one of the bombers on a sortie over occupied France. Telling the story, the ambassador related:

"'Hell', the pilot said to me, 'it (the machine) was shot to pieces. Pretty, nearly everything was shot to pieces. Look at the rudder, not much left of it, but the old kite brought us home 350 miles on one lung. Not another aircraft in the world could take the punishment this one did today and yet make its landfall. If you ever get to California drop into the Lockheed factory and tell them thanks for me. This is a kite that doesn't know when it's beaten.'

"That is the quality of sturdiness that has led many high officers in the Royal Air Force to use the words 'the Hudson Lockheed is a household word in our coastal command'."

"All that you give us," Halifax continued, "will be used in the defence of freedom of speech, thought and religion, and the personal liberties, which things the English speaking people the world over value more highly than life itself.

"You know, we know, and if the Nazis do not know it now they soon will, what you're doing.

"This plane (referring to the 1,000th. bomber) when it gets to England will do its bit to swell the stream of war material which one day will become a flood as preparation becomes production. Planes and ships, ships and planes from this country to join those that our men and women at home are turning out, are what we need most."

Grand Master Of Michigan Visits Ontario Grand Lodge

Toronto, July 17 (CP)—D. H. Hesse, Grand Master of the State of Michigan, said here yesterday, "I think the time has come when the Masons of Michigan, by action rather than words, should show what they think of the Canadian people and the regard and affection Masons of Michigan have for the Masons of Ontario."

He was speaking as a visitor to the 86th. annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario.

"Masons must realize," he said, "the responsibility that has been placed upon them in a united effort by the British Empire and the United States to rid the world of the elements of hate and avarice, of the desolation, distress and destruction that brutal dictators are inflicting on innocent and peace-loving people."

Mr. Hesse presented the lodge with a cheque for $500 to be used in the war relief fund, which had been announced earlier to have reached the $111,585 mark. The money is used for relief of distressed Masons in Britain.

The Grand Lodge jewel was presented to a number of veterans of more than 50 years' service. Among them were James Ross of Waterford, mason for 67 years; George Washington Poldon of Norwich, 70 years a Mason, and W. Watchover of Merrickville, who joined the order 68 years ago.

W. J. Dunlop of Toronto, was elected Grand Treasurer, with Ewart Dixon, of Hamilton, being named Grand Secretary.

Nazi Victory Not in Sight On Any Front

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, July 17—(AP)—The fourth week of Hitler's supposed six-week timetable for smashing Russian resistance is waning with only one thing certain about the titantic struggle: That no conclusive German victory is yet in sight.

Even by Berlin's account, Red Armies are still intact and fighting. There has been no collapse in the north under Nazi-Finnish thrusts from the Arctic to the Baltic. In the south no irreparable breach has been carved in Russia's defenses spanning the continent from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

Many days ago the Germans forecast victories that would stagger the world's imagination, but the predictions remain unfulfilled. Berlin's recent statements about "desperate" Russian counter-attacks repulsed on many fronts refute German claims of confusion, dismay and impending disintegration in Russian ranks.

All of that may come. Moscow admits dangerous new Nazi stabs eastward toward Leningrad, bitter and continuous fighting on the wide front that still covers Moscow and German advances toward Kiev. Yet there are gaps measured in hundreds of miles between these dents in the powerful Stalin line.

Aim at Smolensk

It might be expected that somewhere along the colossal front the twin jaws of a German trap would be thrusting out to bite off another great segment of the Russian front and engulf whole Red Armies, but no such development can be discerned in war reports. The nearest approach to that appears to be in the north-central battle sector, the Moscow front.

In the Vitebesk and Mogliev sectors, north and south, respectively, of the great eastward bend of the Dnieper River at Orsha and still nearly, 300 miles from Moscow, tank-fanged efforts to by-pass the Orsha Bastion of the river defense line has been indicated. They are nearly 100 miles apart. Their first objective seems to be Smolensk, some seventy-five miles eastward on the Minsk-Moscow rail and highway route.

Smolensk is a vitally important rail and road junction supporting a sector of the Dnieper River defense system. Its capture or isolation by forward lunging armored divisions would carry them a long step toward Moscow, and probably disrupt the whole Dnieper front for the Russians.

In this north-central area and in the companion German drive toward Kiev in the Novograd-Volynsk-Zhitomir sector lie the greatest danger of crushing disaster for Russian armies. Unquestionably the 300 miles of front from Vitebek to Zhitomir is held by the flower of the Red Army. A repetition there of the successful Nazi entrapment that took place in the first phases of the great battle west and north of the Pripet marshes could shatter the whole Russian defense concept, perhaps destroy even the possibility of successful "scorched earth" withdrawal on the whole front.

Danger is Recognized

That the Soviet High Command recognizes that danger is obvious. The reported Russian counter-attack to retake towns west of the Dnieper on a narrow front between Rogachev and Zhlobin is of prime strategic importance. It was delivered two score miles or so south of the Nazi thrust at Mogliev.

Its northern flank is well protected by marshy ground from a German turning movement southward from Mogliev. If it has speared twenty miles or so west of the Dnieper, as Moscow claims, it is dangerously close to the road and rail communications of the southern or Mogliev jaw of the Nazi pincer attack on Smolensk.

That is the weaker jaw of the Nazi enveloping movement in any case. East of the river from Mogliev lies difficult country. There are no railroads or highways available toward Smolensk as is the case from Vitebsk. High ground, winding streams, marshlands and the like must be traversed by armored columns which jump off east or northeast.

Wears Clothes Old as Century

Sydney, Australia, July 17.—(CP)—Coupons for clothes would not worry Mrs. Daisy Bates who bought her last wardrobe 41 years ago.

"In 1900 I went to a Parisian tailor in Perth", she said. "I told him I was going into the bush and wanted to take with me a complete wardrobe, one that would not date.

"In it were six blue serge coats and skirts, two grey tweed norfolk jacket costumes, another of black broadcloth and a white taffeta ballroom gown. None of my clothes has even been hung and only washable garments pressed. The art of keeping them in perfect condition is to fold them correctly".

Mrs. Bates, who has devoted a lifetime to studying aboriginal lore, collected much information about rapidly-vanishing Australian tribes for presentation to the Commonwealth government.

REDS HOLDING HANKO

Moscow, July 17—(AP)—Pravda, The Communist party newspaper, reported in a dispatch "from the Baltic fleet" today that Russian sailors still firmly hold Hanko, Soviet naval base on Finland's southwestern coast, in spite of German and Finnish infantry raids and artillery borbardments.

The newspaper said the enemy's land mines had been pushed back from the Hanko base on one neighboring island which was occupied by Baltic sailors who crossed a strait and routed their foe.

People of France Very Pro-British Says Former Prisoner

Brantford, Ont., July 17—(CP)—"All the people in France are all for us, body and soul. They're very proud of us and the fight we put up".

These words appeared in a letter just received by Mrs. L. H. Lewis, Galt, from her nephew overseas, who managed to escape from a German prison camp. The nephew is Sgt. S. G. Chamberlain who lives at West Leicester, England.

"I was taken prisoner at Calais in France last year", he wrote. "Two of us made a break and our Guardian Angel must have been with us because we won out. It took us quite a time as we did not get into Spain until December 15, and we were put in seven "klinks" in nine weeks. At the finish our British military attache got our release and we landed at Gibraltar in February".

Creamery Butter and A Pullet Eggs Rise

Toronto, July 17.—All grades of creamery butter solids registered a further advance of ¼ cent a pound in trading on the Toronto open market yesterday, as current demand steadily cleared continued light receipts. A scarcity of A pullets was evidenced in egg trading and prices on this grade were boosted ½ to 1 cent a dozen.

The butter market held steady with a firm undertone and positions of creamery solids were slightly strengthened as good demand proved capable of clearing light offerings. Sellers are now asking 35½ cents a pound for first grade in this section of trading.

A slightly easier tone was developed on the egg market as the small number of fresh arrivals were readily absorbed by good demand. The market was firm and prices remained unchanged on all grades, but A pullets, which advanced ½ cent a dozen in the country dealer section, and 1 cent in wholesale-to-retailer trade. Particularly good demand was reported for this grade.

NO MORE CLOSED MEETINGS

Washington, July 16 (AP)—The United States' Senate Naval Committee decided yesterday to hold no more closed meetings because, Chairman David Walsh (Dem.-Mass.) said, "We'd rather have the newspapermen get their information here than out in the corridors afterwards."

Walsh's comment came during testimony by naval officers on military phases of the Defence program. He explained that reporters had agreed not to divulge information the army and navy considered military secrets.

No tank-wagon or other vehicle to be used for the sale of motor fuel and lubricant shall hereafter be purchased or otherwise procured by any person who does not own and/or operate bulk storage facilities.

Any purchase hereafter of such tank-wagon or other vehicle, as an owner or operator of bulk storage facilities may use such vehicle to handle gasoline or lubricants to or from bulk storage facilities except those owned or operated by the owner of the vehicle.

Rumored Duff Cooper May Be Shifted From Ministry of Information Post

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, July 17 (CP Cable) —Parliamentary lobbies buzzed with speculation today over reports of governmental changes, involving a shift of Alfred Duff Cooper from the Ministry of Information, but commentators avoided too dogmatic predictions.

"A final decision has not yet been made by the Prime Minister and some of those for whom new appointments are predicted were as surprised as anyone to read them," wrote the press association lobby correspondent.

Persons whose names were mentioned included Brendan Bracken, Prime Minister Churchill's Private Secretary, who was mentioned as a successor to Mr. Duff Cooper, and Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

Speculation on possible changes was heightened after Mr. Churchill made known the forthcoming debate on war production would cover a wide range, including the service departments and the Labor Ministry, towards whose manpower policy many criticisms have been directed.

In the meantime there has been persistent pressure for a home front leader to assume the same status as Mr. Churchill on the war front. Critics complained the Prime Minister is too wrapped up with questions of strategy to give proper attention to such domestic problems as food, manpower and economics. But Mr. Churchill's role as Empire war leader appears still unshaken.

Charles W. Fraleigh, Well Known Prince Edward County Farmer, Dies

The Bay of Quinte district in general and the village of Bloomfield in particular suffered a keen loss early today when Charles W. Fraleigh, prominent farmer and cheese industry representative passed away at his village home after an illness of three weeks.

The late Mr. Fraleigh, who was in his 67th year, was taken ill only a short time ago and was taken to Kingston General Hospital for observation and examination. He returned to his Bloomfield home, where he died a few minutes after six this morning.

The funeral will be held in Bloomfield on Saturday at 2.30 p.m. Daylight Saving Time.

Mr. Fraleigh was born in the old Fraleigh homestead where he passed away. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Fraleigh and he resided in the village of his birth all his life.

Possessed of a pleasing personality, he immediately attracted those with whom he came in contact. His life was the simple one, and his sterling qualities soon brought him a richly deserved popularity. Born to the soil, he remained a farmer all his life, later was associated with the cheese manufacturing phase of the dairy industry. Here his amiable disposition, willingness to co-operate for the common good at all times, a feeling that was more than superficial for his fellow man, made him an outstanding character in this phase of his energies.

A Friend of Many People

He was a devoted father and a loving husband. For his fellow man he had nothing but kind words. He took life as it came and enjoyed meeting its vicissitudes as much as he did its blessings. Many people called him friend in a true sense of the word. He will be missed in many a family circle as well as association gatherings.

A member of the Bloomfield United Church, the late Mr. Fraleigh devoted much of his time and energy to the furtherance and betterment of the congregation of which he and his family were a part.

He held many high offices, and an intense interest and feeling for things municipal, fraternal and in business brought him well-deserved recognition. He was a member of the Masonic order and a highly respected official of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

Interested in Municipal Affairs

In municipal fields he enjoyed the confidence and esteem of the district in which he resided. A marked business acumen and ability to administer municipal and civic affairs brought him the positions of responsibility. For years he was the clerk and treasurer of the village of Bloomfield, and treasurer of the Township of Hallowell.

Taking up dairy farming at an early age, his interest soon widened to its many phases. He took a keen interest in the manufacture of cheese and the importance of this phase of the dairy industry to the farmer in general. He was an official of the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association and for twenty years was the secretary of the Bloomfield Cheese Factory.

For the past six years he had acted in the capacity of buyer for the Ayer Company, cheese exporters.

Mr. Fraleigh moved in a wide circle and his passing will be learned with keen regret by not only his home village but the large district that knew him.

Surviving are his widow; one son, Charles, Jr., and two daughters, Mrs. Cyril Ward, Bloomfield, and Miss Marion Fraleigh, at home.

Cold Hands Are Said a Symptom Of Nervous Strain and Anxiety

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor

New York, July 17 (AP)—Cold hands, traditionally called the sign of a warm heart, are more often the danger sign of tension and anxiety.

About nine of every 10 persons show this signal, fingers growing cold with emotion, when the air temperature is 70 or above.

These are recent scientific findings, and they explain some of the ill feelings afflicting a public torn with war fears and other emotions.

The observations were made on 47 persons at New York Hospital and Cornell University Medical College. The results are described by Dr. Bela Mittleman and Dr. Harold G. Wolff in Psychopathic Medicine.

In all except two of these persons, finger temperatures dropped notably when they talked about things troubling them. The drops were 10 to 24 degrees Fahrenheit. Normally the fingers, in an ordinarily warm room, are in the low nineties.

A drop of 21 degrees was recorded in the fingers of a woman in her twenties, who merely sat in the same room with a physician whom she did not like. There was no conversation.

Yet, when she sat in the same room, again in silence, with a physician whom she liked, there was no change from her normal finger temperatures. One of the experimentors remarked that this is an example backing up the common belief, both of laymen and of doctors, that you are more likely to recover from illness, or get well more quickly, with a doctor whom you like and trust, and who makes you feel secure.

Trenton and District

Trenton, July 17—One of the fleet of floating hospitals for the Royal Air Force was tested on the Bay of Quinte this week and will soon be sent to England, where it will rescue airmen from the English Channel.

The boat is just one of a number that have been constructed at Trenton for the Royal Air Force. These 70-foot streamlined powerboats resemble England's "Mosquito" boats which are speedy torpedo boats.

Speeding over the Bay of Quinte with the swiftness of a modern automobile the boat seemed to skim over the top of the water rather than to cut through it. Driven by three high-powered motors, it exceeded the required speed by a fraction.

In the centre of the 14-foot wide hull is a brightly enamelled hospital, where the rescued airmen will be given first aid. Cabinets for holding supplies and surgical equipment have been neatly constructed along the walls of the room. Underneath the cabinets are stretchers and holders where four or five injured airmen can be placed while waiting treatment or being rushed ashore.

The boat is equipped with wireless, gun turrets and sleeping accommodation for the crew. Every part of the speedy craft has been designed for speed and efficiency by Herbert Ditchburn, famous boat designer.

Propose Compromise On Holding Draftees

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Senators Buron Wheeler (Dem-Mont) and Harry Truman (Dem-Mo) today suggested compromise draft legislation which would permit selective service recruits now in service to leave the United States army after one year but require those inducted in future to serve for a longer period.

The proposal was advanced by the two Senators separately as the Senate military committee called Gen. George C. Marshall, army Chief of Staff, to discuss an administration bill which would remove entirely the present one-year limit on the service of the selectees, members of the National Guard and reserves on active duty.

The committee decided to start the hearings today after administration leaders had agreed with President Roosevelt to press for immediate enactment of the legislation.

Truman, chairman of the Senate Defence Committee, expressed belief the highly controversial legislation could be passed in the form sought by the administration but only after lengthy and bitter debate.

As a compromise in this situation he said he believed "it would work" if legislation was enacted to require continued service by National guardsmen and reserves and by all selectees inducted in the future.

BARN BLOWN DOWN

Ottawa, July 17. —(CP)—A barn owned by John Bergin of Maple Hill, thirteen miles south of Ottawa was blown down during an electrical storm which swept through the Ottawa Valley yesterday.

EXPERIMENT PROVES A DUD

New York, July 17 (AP)—Katharine Brush's experiment in the perfect marriage has proved a dud.

Word came from Reno yesterday that the novelist, who has turned out many a formula for marriage in fiction, has filed suit for divorce against Hubert Charles Winans, her second husband, charging extreme cruelty.

When they were married in 1929 they had worked out an arrangement for marital bliss whereby a new proposal and acceptance was required every three years.

(A far-reaching reorganization of the Soviet institutions of political propaganda and reintroduction of political commissars into the Red army meanwhile were announced.

(The decree said the Commissars would assist the Commanders and hare responsibility for military operations. The war has increased the volume of political work in the army, the decree said, and it was necessary that political workers no longer confine their activities to propaganda.)

Smolensk, battered by days of Nazi air bombing, is on the direct rail line from Minsk to Moscow. It is 190 miles east of Minsk.

Hard battling also took place in the north and south where the Germans are aiming at Leningrad and Kiev.

By designating Pskov and Novograd Volynski as the areas of this fighting today's first communique indicated the Nazis still were about 150 miles from Leningrad and 130 miles from Kiev, although it did not definitely say which way the battles were going.

Tank Battalion Destroyed

To the south of the Smolensk sector, the Russian command said, a tank battalion retreating from Rogachev on the Dnieper had been destroyed.

By referring to the front here as in the Bobruisk area, the communique indicated the Nazis had been thrown back approximately 30 miles from their Dnieper bridgeheads in that zone.

It was in this sector that semi-official reports yesterday said the Russians had enlarged their gains after retaking Rogachev and Zhlobin.

(Simultaneously with the Nazi advance toward Moscow, the Russian radio was heard in London and Berne, Switzerland, to announce a reorganization of propaganda within the Red Army and the reinstitution of political commissars in all army units.

London, July 17 (CP)—The Russian military situation remains "exceedingly hopeful" in spite of the grave German threat to Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, a high military source said today.

"The Soviets have the supplies, transport and manpower to hold on" even should the Germans take Moscow and Leningrad also, this informant asserted.

He added that the Russian campaign at this point foreshadows a long, grim battle between Germany and a well-prepared foe "which has almost removed the danger of a German invasion attempt here (in Britain) this year."

This authority said he had been surprised at the way the Russian transport system had survived the first German attack and declared there were "absolutely no signs of the Russian supply system breaking down" or of "the revolt within the Soviet Union which the Germans hoped for at the outset of the campaign."

He asserted that to bolster their armored forces on the eastern front the Germans had reorganized some of their divisions. These new divisions, he said, were made up now of only one tank regiment, one motorized infantry regiment and a supply train, totalling only about 7,000 men as against 11,000 for the armored divisions used in other campaigns.

Rumanian Battalion Goes Over

Moscow, July 17 (AP)—The Red army reported today that a Rumanian Battalion had gone over to the Russian Command on a sector of the southern front, delivering their resisting Rumanian and German officers and the following equipment: Three anti-tank guns, 420 rifles, 12 machine guns, many shells and cartridges, a radio station, five motor cars and 56 carts.

Gen. Wilson finally visited Admiral Gouton, and prevailed upon him to accompany him back to the reception room, where Gen. Catroux was waiting.

Beirut's reaction to today's ceremony was not quite so enthusiastic as the city's welcome to the entry of the Allied troops yesterday, which reached a high point late in the afternoon when Australian troops made an impromptu appearance in the main square with a band playing the rollicking Australian song, "Waltzing Matilda."

PRINCE KONOYE

Interest centred chiefly around the appointment of a successor to Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, who was instrumental in aligning Japan with the Axis under the Berlin treaty of Sept. 27, 1940, and who personally signed a neutrality pact with Soviet Russia last April 13 at Moscow.

Immediately after leaving the palace Konoye held a consultation with Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, his Minister of Home Affairs, the significance of which was not immediately clear.

Will Clarify Foreign Policy

(Japanese circles in Shanghai said today the Tokyo cabinet crisis probably would result in a clarification of Japan's foreign policy, with the government making a definite choice between its commitments to the Axis and the possibility of seeking a rapproachement with Britain and the United States.)

Prince Konoye arrived at the palace shortly after the Emperor had returned from his summer residence at Hayama, where the Prince submitted his resignation and those of his ministers last night. He had been asked then by the Emperor to retain the premiership until a new government could be formed.

Konoye was preceded at the palace by a former Premier, Admiral Mitsumas Yonai, earlier a conference of former Premiers and leading statesmen had been called to recommend a new Premier, and it was reported that sentiment was strong for Konoye.

Cobblers with their mouths full of tacks hammer repairs to another sixty pairs of worn army boots and make new rubber-soled shoes for patrol work out of old inner tubes with the Aussies' felt hats for uppers.

Mechanics practicing what the commanding officer calls 'cannibalism' do marvels making one good vehicle from several damaged ones.

The bakers shove another thousand loaves into their ovens, the post office on "London Street" sells more stamps for letters home, and another issue of the mimeographed newspaper "Tobruk Truth" appears for circulation with rations.

A camouflage unit finds there are more ways of disguising things than with paint, and improvises materials from captured Italian coffee, condensed tomato sauce and flour paste.

Which indicates that Tobruk is not short of food.

Along battered streets of the blitz base, men meet old comrades resting out of the line. They have lived within a few yards of each other in their holes in the ground at the front, but many have not met for months.

"Hullo, you old desert rat", cries a man from South Australia to a pal.

Besides Germans and Italians, the desert rat has had to fight torrid heat of the Libyan mid-summer, which puts a man in a bath of sweat at the slightest physical effort; endure frequent dust storms when a yellow coating of sand covers the body from head to foot, smother food and grit between the teeth; experience myriad hungry fleas and mosquitos and slake a raging thirst with brackish water.

Yet the only evidence I saw of low morale was among Italian prisoners when bombers roar over the Italian wounded in the hospital.

"Don't worry", quips a cheery Cockney orderly. "Them square-headed beggars couldn't hit pins in a pin cushion".

Outside the rest of Tobruk cast a wary eye toward the sky and just carries on.

RALSTON STATES

Three districts failed to reach their quotas—M.D. No. 1 (London, Ont.), M.D. No. 4 (Montreal), and M.D. No. 11 (Victoria).

Col. Ralston announced that the army "very shortly" will issue a call for 1,500 women to form the first unit of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, an army auxiliary. He said Matron-in-Chief Elizabeth Smellie of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps has been asked to supervise organization of the Corps and that he hoped to announce appointment of a commandant soon.

215,000 In Active Army

He said about 90,000 men of the navy, army and air force now are serving overseas and that the active army in Canada includes about 215,000 officers and men.

A group of about 60 members of the Veterans' Guard would be sent overseas shortly for service at Canadian Military Headquarters in the United Kingdom.

Between 300 and 400 members of the 5th (Armored) Canadian Division were being sent to the United States for special training on the newest types of equipment.

Consideration was being given to provision of special badges for young Canadians who have been rejected by the army for medical reasons or have been returned to Canada from overseas on physical grounds.

SEVENTEEN SHIPS

As the British offensive continued to pay ever-increasing dividends, Nazi air activity over the British Isles remained slight. Some bombs were dropped last night at a few points in England but damage was small.

London observers, speaking of the air war, said the weight of British bombs had been felt so greatly by the Nazis they had been forced to withdraw fighter planes from the Eastern front, thus weakening their air force in the Russian war.

Several Ships Hit

Tuesday night, despite unfavorable weather, British bombers attacked Duisburg and industrial targets elsewhere in the Ruhr and shot down a Nazi fighter. Many great fires were seen among industrial buildings as super-explosives crashed into them.

140 Tons Dropped Every Day

The Air Ministry said that between June 16 and July 10 an average of 280,000 pounds of bombs each day have been dropped on the Ruhr, Cologne, and the naval base at Bremen.

The steady bombing has resulted in dislocation of German industries in some centres, particularly at Munster. Other industrial plants, railways and communication lines at Duisberg, largest inland port in Europe, and at Cologne, have been disrupted. The main traffic arteries on the east bank of the Rhine are believed to have been put out of action for weeks. Other points damaged greatly include Heligoland and Bremen, and targets near the manufacturing city of Lille in Occupied France, as well as potential invasion bases along the French coast.

Citizens Cheered R.A.F.

In the Rotterdam attack yesterday, during which four British planes were lost, citizens cheered and waved as the R.A.F. swooped low.

The captain of one bomber, a Canadian from Ottawa, found that the best way to get to the largest ship—a liner of 17,000 tons—was by way of a path between the high wireless aerial on the quay and the liner's mast.

"I had to bank to port," the captain said, "to get between them and while still at an angle of 45 degrees we threw bombs at the ship's side, one at least hitting the ship with a smack as from the stern white smoke rose 200 feet."

Another ship of about 10,000 tons was hit. The rear gunner saw bombs burst "slap bang in the middle." Other ships were hit and left enveloped in black smoke.

The low level of the bombing attacks was proved by the pilots' reports. One plane cut through the cable of a large crane. Another came back from the flight with brick dust of a chimney it had grazed and corn from fields that they had skimmed.

LUXURY LINER.

Well Known in Canadian Ports

Halifax, July 17 — (CP) — The British auxiliary vessel Lady Somers, loss of which was announced by the Admiralty today, was well known here. Before the war the Lady Somers, a 8,194-ton Canadian National Steamships liner, maintained a regular service between this port and the West Indies.

Built in 1929 at Birkenhead, England, by Cammell Laird and Company, she was 420 feet long with a 60-foot beam, and 23 - foot draught.

A Familiar Sight.

Designed as passenger and freight express liners, they captured a large share of the luxury tourist business and carried on a good part of Canada's trade with the islands of the Caribbean.

Some Confusion Caused

Some confusion over progress of the Nazi advance, however, was caused by varying interpretations placed upon a dispatch by DNB, telling of a fierce battle in which several thousand Russians were claimed captured in a forest near Gorodische.

There are several towns in Russia by this name, but spokesmen claimed the dispatch referred to the one near Rzhev on the Riga-Moscow railway 110 miles from the Russian capital.

(Maps show a Pogoreloe-Gorodische in the location referred to by the German spokesman and three other towns southwest or northwest of Moscow named simply Gorodische. One is 70 miles southwest of Minsk, and the other two are in the Leningrad sector—one 150 miles southwest of the city on Lake Peipus and the other 50 miles southwest of Novgorod, which German troops previously have been reported approaching. The nearest of these to Moscow is more than 325 miles distant.)

Prior to reporting the battle of Gorodische DNB claimed that German forces were making progress toward Leningrad, Russias' second largest city.

Sharp running fights were reported taking place east of Pskov, just north of the Latvia-Estonia frontier.

LUCKY FOR LOVE

CHAPTER 1

The Limelight

Lights in the theater dimmed. The audience rustled, leaned forward expectantly. At the right of the stage a spotlight picked up a young man of medium height and build; his dark hair brushed to a patent-leather gloss. A thin aquiline nose was set firmly on well-chiseled features. The stamp of Broadway was on his clothes, from the nipped-in waist of his plaid sports coat and brown woven-leather sandals to his linens, which were a shade known as "red rust," a shade of which even the most forward-looking young man about Millville had, until this day, been totally ignorant.

The Broadway effect of clothes was heightened by the demeanor of the young man in the spotlight. He smiled wearily. His dark eyes, appraising his audience through the dim light, drooped ever so little. He gave impression of one who conceals an almost insuperable boredom beneath a determined effort to please. Women in the shadows preened. Girls reached surreptitiously for their powder puffs and lipsticks. Nothing like this had been seen in Millville since Johnny Shako's band played a stopover engagement in River Park three years before.

"Friends of the theatah," he began in a voice at once resonant and patronizing. "you have chosen and you have chosen well. Your votes for the loveliest flower in the intercity Bouquet of Beauty Contest have been counted. As you know, a rich reward is offered by the Metropole Amusement Corporation — which I represent — to the flower you deem to be the fairest in the Beauty Bouquet of six foremost cities in your splendid up and coming community. Yes indeed, a rich reward, a magnificent reward — a round-trip ticket, a ten-days visit to that superspectacle of all ages- the World's Fair, yes, with sight-seeing trips in and around New York, the magic city of the world and all expenses paid!

"I see you have moved to the edges of your seats, my friends. To the edges of your seats, and no wonder! But listen, you've heard only the half of it. Only the half—the Metropole Amusement Corporation, which I represent, is prepared to offer a companion round trip ticket, a companion ten-days visit with all expenses paid, for any chaperon the lucky little lady may select to accompany her."

"Hi, mister," a hoarse voice jibed from the rear of the theater. "s'pose the lucky gal don't want no chaperon. S'pose she'd rather see the big city on her own?" To the initiated, the voice obviously was a "plant," but the audience roared with laughter. The dark young man on the stage raised his hand, signaling for silence.

"Thank you, my good sir," he said, with a show of humor. "Thank you. Your point is well made. We are prepared to answer it generously, yes, handsomely. If the lucky little lady prefers to be — as you put it — 'on her own,' the Metropole Amusement Corporation, which I represent, will not only chaperon her itself for the duration of her visit, but we will hand her one hundred dollars in cash — ten crisp crackly new ten-dollar bills to spend as she pleases. How's that for a gift! A hundred-dollar fun fund."

"Some handout!" shouted the jiber. "Wisht I'd entered this here beauty contest myself!"

Another roar of laughter from the audience. Another signal for silence.

"And now, my friends, the fateful hour has struck right here in the Bijou Theater, Millville. The race is run. The fairest flower in the Beauty Bouquet is about to step forward and greet you!"

The speaker made a low sweeping bow from the waist, extended his right hand toward the wings. Out from behind the sleasy red curtain stepped a blond young woman in a pink evening dress. Her gait was self-conscious, a little defiant. When she reached the bestower of all this glamour, he took her arm, urged her to the center of the stage, and raised her hand after the manner of a prize-fight referee indicating the victor.

"Ladeez and gentlemen," he cried "Miss Clara Marsh of Millville, the winnah!"

Applause rattled like musketry. There were shouts of acclaim, other noises not so pleasant from disgruntled partisans. The theater lights blazed.

"All right, beautiful," the speaker muttered in an aside to the young woman in the pink dress. "Open your mouth. I told you what to say."

"Oh dear," she whimpered, clinging desperately to his hand. "I can't. I forgot what you said to say."

He stifled a groan. "You would! Just thank 'em then. thank 'em for their votes, and breeze. You can't stand here forever with your mouth hanging open."

The urgency, the impatience in his tone goaded her to action. She began, stammeringly. "I — I — want to — I mean thanks for the votes. I think it was — it was — awfully nice of you to vote for me. I always wanted to go to New York—now I can go — and thanks for the votes."

The young woman in pink did not know how she reached the wings but suddenly she was there and the bestower of glamour was looking at her between half-closed lids. It made her uncomfortable, the way he looked.

"Was I all right?" she asked, anxiously. "Was what I said — I didn't make a fool of myself, did I?"

"Umm," he was noncommital. "You certainly are loose with your 'I's,' beautiful. If you'd tossed in any more of 'em it would have been practically a one-letter speech. Come down to the Bijou tomorrow morning at ten. I'll have the manager here and we'll arrange about your trip. Right now I have to go and keep those five fair flowers in the left-over bouquet from tearing each other apart."

The "winnah" stood for a moment, still dazed with her measure of success, a trifle breathless, more than a trifle afraid that good fortune might be a dream, to dissolve with her waking.

"This way, Miss Marsh!" A stagehand beckoned her down a narrow corridor. "Mr. Kremer says you're to have a dressin'-room all to yourself." Kremer was the Bijou manager.

Clara Marsh followed the man much as would a sleepwalker groping in a trance. Her own dressing-room! The star's dressing-room maybe! "Clara Marsh, famous star of stage and pictures, left today for Hollywood—"

"Here you are, Miss Marsh." The man indicated a door. The young woman in pink disappeared into the room, closing the door slowly behind her. The room was small and musty and not too clean. There were smears of grease paint on the grimy walls and a lingering odor of cheap cosmetics. The young woman saw only a tallish mirror above a long shelf, a mirror framed with six or eight electric lights. The mirror was chipped, cracked at one corner. The lights were dusty and fly-specked. But these details missed her entirely. She was lost in admiration of the figure reflected there. Lovely Clara Marsh of Millville — lovely Clara Marsh, the sensation of New York! She kept striking poses, ridiculously dramatic poses such as she imagined actresses would strike in emotional moments. The results fascinated her.

Actually the image in the mirror fell far short of the fascination with which the original endowed her. The true picture was of a curvish woman in her twenty-third year, neither short nor tall, neither slim nor plump, her yellow-gold hair a bit too yellow, her china blue eyes a bit too blue. Her full red lips were poutingly flirtatious. Men often spoke of the blond Marsh girl as "the feminine type." Women remarked that her "good looks are too darned obvious."

Now the ludicrous posing before the mirror was interrupted by a knock on the dressing-room door, a timid apologetic tapping of knuckles.

"Who is it, please?" The poseur, still busy in the mirror, lifted her plucked brows, raised her bare shoulders. What a nuisance! These autograph hounds — silly —

"It's Ma, Clara." The voice was muffled, pleading.

"Ma! How on earth did you get back here? Wait a minute Ma." She kicked off her silver sandals. They were at least a size and a half too small and had been pinching her feet cruelly. She ran to the door in her stocking feet, opened it with a jerk, seized the tiny woman outside and drew her hurriedly into the room. "Ma, I thought I told you to wait in the candy shop next to the theater."

"I know, daughter, but I got to thinking maybe I could help you with your things, maybe pack them in the suitcase — seemed like you were a long time coming, so I asked one of the ushers in the Bijou and he brought me to you. I was that flustered, you winning the contest and all. I could hardly see where I was going. My Clara, the prettiest girl in six counties—oh my — I'm that flustered—"

"Ma, isn't it marv'lous? Me in New York, the grand big hotels, the night clubs with floor shows, plays with honest-to-goodness actors and actresses in them, taxicabs, swing bands—" Clara danced around the room in her stocking feet; humming a popular song, fluttering her hands airily to the rythm. "It's simply — marv'lous! Ouch. For the lova Pete, help me get out of this dress, it's squeezing me to a pulp. Pick it up from the hem — that's right — then just sort of peel it off. Ouch! Don't peel my hide with it. I'll have to stop eating if I'm going to get into it again. Oh well. It's only an old rag. Stick it in the bag. Hurry so's we can get out of here."

"But, daughter," gently rebuking, "your pink satin. It's the nicest dress you have." Unconsciously work-roughened hands fingered a mend in her shabby old blue foulard, veteran of more seasons than the mother cared to remember. "It's the nicest dress you have, a beautiful dress — and so becoming."

"Skip it, Ma. Wait until you see the nifties I buy tomorrow." Clara slipped into a street dress of teal blue crepe. "What'dya suppose those other dames in the contest are doing, Ma? Are they burned up! I'll bet they hope I'll fall down and—and break my neck or something. I'll show 'em! I'll grow beautifuler and beautifuler." She stepped back to survey the effect of a soft white felt hat

For Friday, July 18
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

FROM THE predominance of factors of secrecy, intrigue, the hidden and obscure, this day may depend on the precaution, vigilance, sagacity and tact with which the affairs are managed. In both business and private activities there is need of dealing with others with astuteness and diplomacy rather than direct measures. There is much to be gained by this technique and much to be lost by disregarding it. Peculiar and undercover situations arise for wise judgments and insight with the private affiliations particularly subject to suberfuge. Beware of all phases of execess and extravagance.

Those whose birthday it is should be on the eve of a year of rather peculiar and bewildering situations in both their business and private associations. The latter are subject to intrigue probably deemed illicit, with a tendency to softness, craftiness, ease and evxtravagance inciting to dubious and treacherous acts and behavior. With tact, sagacity, open and above-board dealings there may be unexpected benefits from these debatable situations, as some of these under-currents arise from worthy spiritual, cmpassionate and generous ideals.

A child born on this day although a great lover of beauty, luxury and indulgence, by proper direction may have singular success in art, music, poetry or other highly creative expression.

Joe Marsh pitching for Latta on the home diamond last night entered baseball's Hall of Fame by pitching a no-hit, no-run game, while his teammates touched Mounk Barbestock for one run in the first on hits by C. Hall, J. Orr, Parks and Empson and added two more runs in the sixth to sew it up for the home team; on hits by Gowe, Empson and G. Score by innings

Peter Lorre once again turns in one of his sinister performances in "Mr. District Attorney," the picture based on the popular radio program of the same name, now on the Capitol screen. On the same bill is the new Hopalong Cassidy saga, "Pirates on Horseback."

Bill Boyd once more portrays Hopalong Cassidy in the new action hit "Pirates on Horseback," now at the Capitol Theatre. The same program includes "Mr. District Attorney," the picture based on the popular radio serial and starring Peter Lorre.

AT THE McCARTHY

"King Kong"

He's loose again! Those three words ring with meaning....five years ago the world was thrilled with the massive screen thrill "King Kong" and now....the same "King Kong" the same star and the same supporting cast relive again the mightiest thrills the screen has ever known, "King Kong" is loose again! He is fifty feet tall. His tread shakes the earth, and his hands are capable of crushing an airplane to matchwood.

Hundreds of moviegoers went two and three times to see "King Kong" the first time Hollywood released the picture and in all its return engagements now, theatres are jammed by crowds seeking to enjoy and marvel at one of the greatest of all spectacular "movies," for "King Kong" is a different kind of relaxation from every other type of film that has ever flashed on the screen.

R.K.O. Radio pictures, release "King Kong" which is a personally directed Merian C. Cooper and Ernest B. Schoedsack production and Belleville theatregoers, including mothers, fathers, sons, and daughters, should not fail to see "King Kong" during its present showing now at the McCarthy. The program also includes Rex Harrison in the fun and thrill hit "Spy in the Pantry."

AT THE BELLE

"The Great Lie"

"The Great Lie," now on the Belle screen is the name of Bette Davis' newest picture and great is the word for both the picture and its star. In one of the most magnificent love stories the screen has ever told, Miss Davis rises to the greatest heights of her entire dramatic career, and the result is the year's finest screen entertainment.

Here is a film story, so sensitively directed, so ably enacted that the audience cannot help but live the events as they unfold on the screen. Miss Davis in the role of a good and honorable woman, holds the audience in the palm of her lovely hand. It is a perfect blending of star and story, and proves once and for all that Bette doesn't have to play a "bad" role in order to be good. She is superbly natural and likeable in the role of a normal modern girl who tells one lie to protect those she loves, and nearly loses them because of it.

George Brent, who has co-starred so successfully with Miss Davis in many films, including two of her greatest, "The Old Maid" and "Dark Victory" is extremely well cast in the leading male role that of a daredevil flyer and explorer, caught in the eternal triangle of good woman, bad woman, man.

As the third angle of the triangle, Mary Astor makes a triumphant return to the screen after a too-long absence. In the difficult role, she gives a finely-shaded performance which should win her recognition as one of the year's finest supporting actresses.

Edmund Goulding, who piloted Miss Davis and Brent through "The Old Maid" and "Dark Victory," has directed with delicate perception, making the points of his story with quick, deft touches, never hammering them home.

Luxurious settings (the action of the story is set against backgrounds of New York and Washington society, and the heroine's charming country home in Maryland), and the exquisite varied wardrobe worn by Miss Davis and Miss Astor, contribute eye-filling loveliness to the drama.

An exceptionally fine supporting cast is headed by Lucile Watson, as a somewhat befuddled Washington society matron and Hattie McDaniel, as the heroine's devoted servant.

Marie Green and her lively musical revue, and "Mexican Jumping Beans", a clever Hollywood novelty precede the feature attraction.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Pirates on Horseback"

Right out of Harry Sherman's never-failing larder of entertainment comes the latest in Hopalong Cassidy's exciting series of adventures, "Pirates on Horseback," which opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre.

Basing the story on the fascinating episode of the hunt for a dead man's mine, "Pirates on Horseback" shuffles the elements of romance, comedy and mystery with the grim and always exciting business of the manhunt.

The climax of "Pirates on Horseback" is fast and furious, marked by some of the most spectacular riding seen in a Hopalong, and by a knock-down and drag-out battle that settles the score for the murdered prospector, and puts the mine safely into the possession of Clyde and the girl.

Still the most engaging of the Western heroes, William Boyd carries his role with a force and conviction exceptional even for himself. Lesley Selander has paced his direction expertly.

"Mr. District Attorney"

"Mr. District Attorney," Republic picture now at the Capitol Theatre, has our enthusiastic vote for one of the outstanding crook dramas of the season.

Based on the radio series of the same name, the film utilizes all the elements of mystery, suspense and humor which have made the radio program a favorite for more than three years.

Dennis O'Keefe scores in the male lead, lending his own, inimitable brand of dash and zest to the role of "P. Cadwallader Jones," the young legal cub assigned to the District Attorney's office. With the stigma of having a politically influential uncle behind him, young Jones succeeds, against great odds in proving his merit on the baffling Hyde case which has stymied the keenest legal minds since the mysterious Mr. Hyde disappeared.

Peter Lorre portrays the role of Hyde, the sinister figure who precipitated a tempest in the political teapot when he vanished into thin air, taking with him several hundred thousands in public funds.

There's always a girl in the case, and the girl in this case is pretty and talented Florence Rice, daughter of the famed sports commentator, Grantland Rice. Miss Rice is cast as Terry, the young newspaper girl whose helping hand plays a large part in bringing about the arrest and conviction of the political powers back of Hyde.

Included also in the cast are such well known character actors as Stanley Ridges, Minor Watson, Charles Arnt, Joan Blair, Charles Halton, Sarah Edwards and Helen Brown.

The same programme includes a late news reel and the second chapter, "Thirteen Steps," of the exciting new serial, "Mysterious Doctor Satan."

FROM SCRAP PILE TO BOMB RACK

Tons of scrap metal now being salvaged from Canadian back yards are being quickly converted into bombs in one of the world's largest bomb plants in the Province of Quebec. In upper left a load of scrap is being picked up by a magnetic crane and carried to the furnaces of the bomb plant. In upper right a charming plant worker is shown beside the completed bomb and in the lower photo another worker gleefully marks a special destination on one of the 500-pound missiles. According to officials of the Department of Munitions and Supply, the normal output of this plant will be over one hundred thousand bombs a year.

Photos—Director of Public Information.

Huge Bomb Plant Rises From Brush Patch

On August 15, 1940, a contractor's truck plowed through loose sand to the middle of a blueberry patch in an out-of-the-way spot in the Province of Quebec, and began to unload tools. Almost as far as the eye could see in any direction there was nothing but rolling sand dunes and low underbrush.

Today one of the world's largest aerial bomb factories stands in the heart of that blueberry patch. Its normal output will be well over one hundred thousand 500-pound bombs per year.

The bomb plant is an excellent example of what can be achieved by a democracy at war. Construction was begun on August 15. Machines and equipment began to arrive almost before the roof was on. Steel was melted for the first time on January 5. The first trial bombs were moulded on March 7, just a little less than seven months after the first sod was turned. Mass production is now underway and the output is growing each day.

One of Largest in World

The new factory is one of the largest in the world with but a single product. It has been expertly designed for maximum efficiency and output. The processes are arranged in production line fashion, reducing to a minimum the costly, time-killing handling operations which would be necessary in an old factory adapted to bomb manufacture.

The production has its beginnings at two points, the sand tower and the scrap heap. Miniature mountains of scrap seel stand at one end of the plant. Rusty automobile engine blocks, old bedsteads. broken farm implements. great chunks of railway steel, bales of old wire, and a weird collection of junk from every section of Canada, are picked up by a giant magnetic crane, loaded in great buckets, and sent to feed the maw of one or other of two seven-ton electric furnaces.

At the other fork of the production line. moulder's sand brought all the way from Illinois is fed from the sand tower into great machines that form the moulds and cores for the bombs. The moulding method is unique, in that four bomb shells, each weighing about 300 pounds are cast at the same time in the same box. Molten steel, sizzling and gurgling at a temperature of almost 3,000 degrees, is carried along the line of moulds by an overhead crane. The furnaces are charged every three hours and each produces sufficient molten steel to make 32 bombs at each pouring.

Finishing Operations

After the moulds have cooled they are taken to a "shake-out machine, a gigantic vibrating platform which jolts the hard-baked sand from the casting and breaks up the central core. At this stage the four bombs are joined together by a criss-cross of metal, but this is removed quickly by acetylene torches. A protruding neck of steel on each bomb, known as the riser, is cut off by a special saw which shears through metal with ease.

The bomb is still rough, but skilled workmen soon finish off the rough spots with portable grinding wheels. The next operation is annealing. About 130 bombs are loaded upon a steel flat car and rolled into a huge oven, where they remain at a temperature of 1,600 degrees for some hours. This softens the steel for machining and makes it more uniform.

The machining operations require a high degree of skill and precision and the operators of the monster special lathes are experts in their art. One set of machines cut and drill and tap the bomb itself so that the tail assembly and exploders will fit perfectly. The other line of machines handle the component base plugs. One of the final operations is that in which a suspension lug is welded to the side of the bomb. his ring, which must withstand a test pull of 3,500 lbs., is used in handling the bomb and in fastening it in place beneath the plane which will carry it to its ultimate destination.

Tested with Air

The bomb is then immersed in a tank of water and filled with air at a pressure of 30 pounds to the square inch, to determine if there is the slightest leak in its walls.

From the test tank the bomb goes to the "de-greaser", where it is bathed with chemicals which remove all oil, grit chips of steel, and other foreign matter. The interior of the bomb is then coated with a special varnish which leaves the inside smooth and gleaming. A coat of white primer paint on the exterior, and a final inspection by Government inspectors, and the bomb is ready for shipment to the filling plant, where its 200-pound quota of high explosive will be put in.

Aussie Pilot Flies Bullet-Riddled Bomber Safely Back to His Base

London, July 17—(CP)—A young Australian pilot flew home from battle today in a bomber almost literally shot out from under him in a raid over German-held territory.

His rear gunner was dead, and his radio operator was injured, but he landed with:

1. Elevators shot away.
2. One rudder useless.
3. Wings bullet-riddled.
4. Gasoline tanks and oil tanks bullet-riddled.
5. Fuselage heavily gashed by shellfire.
6. Undercarriage damaged.
7. Radio useless.

The Air Ministry News Service, describing the exploit as 'one of the most remarkable flying feats of the war," said the bomber was first caught by German shellfire, which killed the rear gunner and sent the plane into a verticle stall because of damaged controls.

Then came a 7,000-foot spin and while the pilot was trying to get back on an even keel a German fighter attacked. The bomber this time was riddled with tracer bullets and cannon shell from nose to tail.

The Australian could not get higher than 7,000 feet, so he next had to fly through a hail of anti-aircraft fire until he was over the North Sea.

Upon landing, the pilot found one more bit of damage.

He had a flat tire.

Windsor, Ont., July 17 (CP)—Windsor police said last night they were ready to charge four youths, three locked in Essex County Jail and the other at Niagara Falls, with three recent armed robberies in Western Ontario.

The trio jailed here are Roy Cunningham, Toronto, Harold Demude, Windsor and Ollie Ignatz, Niagara Falls. John Virago, is in custody at Niagara Falls.

All four are charged with armed robbery of a Harrow meat market, July 5, and a service station near Chatham the following day, and also with the armed robbery of Ben's Service Station at Stratford.

The Stratford charges have arrived at Provincial Police Headquarters and will be read to the three held here in court Saturday.

ROLLED OVER FRUIT JAR

Louisville, July 17 (AP)—Two-year-old Charlotte Vaughn gave her two-month-old puppy a swim in a rainfilled wash boiler, walked away and forgot him. Later, Charlotte's mother discovered the pup apparently lifeless in the water. Mrs. Vaughn revived Perky by rolling him, tummy down, over a fruit jar instead of the customary barrel.

Ma had to cook dinner today on account of Nora being off on account of being Thursday and this morning at breakfist ma said to pop, Is there anything special you'd like for dinner, Willyum?

We had liver and onions only yestidday, so I'm certainly not going to suggest that, pop said, and ma said, Well I hope not for land sakes, I believe you'd willingly eat liver and onions every day of the week.

People look at sunsets every evening with renewed pleasure, dont they? pop said, and ma said, I was thinking it would be nice to have some little novelty for a change. I mean I'd enjoy the feeling of walking into the kitchin without repeating myself. But I wont have time for anything elaborate, so it will have to be simple and easy to prepare, she said.

How about olives and meat balls? pop said, and ma said, Now that sounds like something quite new and attractive, where did you see it?

O, here and there, pop said. You take the stones out of the olive and stuff them with the meat balls, he said, and ma said, Now Willyum would you call that easy to prepare?

Certainly, pop said. You take giant olives and miniature meat balls, and that's what makes it easy, he said, and I said, Well I tell you what, ma, Why dont you have a choice of different things like in a resterant, and then pop can have liver and onions and I can have frakferters and sour kraut and you can have a soft boil egg to help you reduce. That's where the easy part comes in, the egg, I said.

O deer, I think we'll just have have a nice steak, ma said.

Wich we did, being easy without being different.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D

Your Posture or Carriage Depends Upon Your Abdominal Muscles

In America, most cases of poor posture—position of the body standing or sitting — is believed due to carelessness and that the ailments—poor lung and heart development, poor digestion, pain in lower back and ribs— are the "results" of poor posture. In Great Britain, it is believed that weakness of body, perhaps some infection or actual injury, causes poor posture, and not that poor posture causes symptoms.

As a matter of fact most physicians are of the opinion that the American view is right in some cases and the British in others.

Parents can watch their children in the home and correct them when they sit or stand improperly, and teachers can do the same in school.

What is the correct sitting position? In the correct sitting position, the boy or girl sits erect, the pelvis (bones covered with huge muscles on which we sit) rests firmly and "equally" on the seat, with the arms hanging at the sides, and the head placed so that the bones behind the ears are in line with the bones on which the child sits. Of course, if the child is reading or writing, he must have his head and eyes in proper position to read or write. Fortunately school seats today are not too wide and allow the feet to be on the floor with the upper legs and lower legs forming two sides of a square. At home where the seat of chair or sofa is wide, the youngster is apt to sit on outer edge of chair and place his shoulders against the upper part of chair, leaving the lower back unsupported. This is one cause of round shoulders.

The proper position standing is one in which the bones behind the ears, the outer hip bones, and the outer bones of the ankle are in a straight line. The chin should be drawn slightly backward, the chest held forward, and the abdomen slightly backward. The weight of the body should be on the balls of the feet.

The whole position or posture of the body depends upon the abdominal muscles. If these are well developed, they can be seen and often felt beneath fat, as three wide lumps extending from umbilicus (navel) downwards on both sides of middle line of abdomen. They are sometimes called the washboard muscles. These muscles tighten and "shorten" the distance around the abdomen. With abdomen thus held in, shoulders go back and chest goes forward—the proper posture.

Touching or trying to touch the toes, with knees straight, is the simplest way of developing the abdominal muscles.

Planes Concentrate On Nazi Targets In Occupied France

4,000-ton Vessel in St. Nazaire Harbor Struck—Oft-Bombed Cologne Target

FIRE VISIBLE 40 MILES

London, July 8.— (CP)— The Royal Air Force concentrated today on Nazi targets in Occupied France while the Air Ministry announced that British bombers last night smashed at industrial areas of oft-bombed Cologne and elsewhere in the German Rhineland.

Great fires were started by super-bombs and incendiaries in the night raids. Many bombs were seen to plummet on their targets, despite weather not favorable to bomb aimers.

Also attacked during the night was Axis shipping in the French harbor of St. Nabaire. A vessel of 4,000 tons was struck by explosives.

During night offensive patrols by fighter planes, Nazi airdromes in Occupied France were bombed and machine-gunned. From all these operations one plane was lost.

Two Drowned At Gore Bay

Gore Bay, Ont., July 18.—(CP)—Searchers armed with powerful spotlights late last night located the bodies of two drowning victims who went to their death Thursday afternoon in the weedy waters of Julia Cove, two miles west of Gore Bay on Manitoulin Island.

David "Pop" Brooks, 60, of Buffalo, had left early Thurrday on a fishing excursion to the land-locked bay in company with Bill Atkinson, Gore Bay barber. When their upright boat was found drifting near the shore of the bay, a search for the bodies was instituted immediately.

Brooks' body was located about 9.30 last night and Atkinson's about midnight. They were located in eight feet of water about thirty feet apart.

A member of the summer colony at Taylor's Camp on Lake Kagawong for many years, Brooks had been practically alone at the camp this season. Brooks is a retired Buffalo businessman. His body will be sent to Buffalo.

From the location of the bodies, and the fact that the boat was only partially filled with water, with all their fishing equipment still in it, it is believed one of the men had fallen from the boat while casting, hurling the other into the water. Both probably became entangled in the weeds.

Army of 325,000 Italians Crushed In East Africa

London, July 18 — (CP) — The British campaign in Italian East Africa crushed an army of 325,000 men of whom 125,000 were Italians and the rest natives, an authoritative statement said today.

The statement said almost 100,000 Italians were made prisoners, 6,000 still were at large and the rest dead while 60,000 natives were made prisoners and the others either deserted Fascist forces or were killed.

Equipment seized during the campaign, the statement said, included 800 guns, thousands of machine guns, 150 tanks, thousands of motor vehicles, 1,500,000 shells and 3,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition at Asmara, Eritrea and a total of 3,500,000 rounds of rifle ammunition at Iscia and Baidoa, Italian Somaliland.

$25,000 Bail Set On Spy Suspects

New York, July 18 —(AP)— Seven of 33 persons indicted on espionage charges linking them with the German government pleaded guilty in Brooklyn Federal Court today while 23 others pleaded innocent and two failed to appear. One other previously had pleaded guilty.

All were arrested within the last three weeks in what Federal officials called the biggest spy suspect roundup in United States history. They were indicted Tuesday.

Federal Judge Clarence G. Galston set bail at $25,000 each for those who pleaded innocent and set Sept. 23 as trial date.

Both the court and U.S. Attorney Harold M. Kennedy opposed repeated pleas by defence counsel for reduction in bail. Judge Galston based his refusal on "the very serious nature of the case."

Thirty of the defendants were charged with having acted as agents of a foreign government without complying with the law requiring registration of alien agents.

Kennedy said at the time the indictment was returned that the alleged ring used couriers to ports such as Lisbon and Genoa, where Nazi agents were on hand to forward the information to Berlin.

The indictment had this to say about the German government:

"The defendants conspired with each other and with the government of the German Reich and with others."

THREE ADMIRALS, FOUR GENERALS IN JAPAN CABINET

Matsuoka Succeeded by Vice-Admiral Teijiro Toyada

KONOYE PREMIER

Tokyo, July 18 (AP)—Prince Fumimaro Konoye today formed a cabinet with half its members Generals and Admirals and declared that "the Empire's policy for coping with the international situation already has been fixed and it now remains for us to put it into practice with decision and speed."

What action this portended the Premier did not disclose but in a statement to the nation he called for unity because "with the rapid changes that are taking place" in world affairs "the mission of our country is growing heavier and heavier."

Vice-Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, who became Foreign Minister, said Japan's foreign policy might have to be adapted to "the day-to-day international situation."

Little is known of the foreign policy outlook to Toyoda, successor to Yosuke Matsuoka, who concluded the neutrality pact with Soviet Russia after aligning Japanese policy with the Axis while Foreign Minister in the preceding Konoye government.

Wants to Assist People

"With the earnest support of a hundred million Japanese," Konoye's message said, "I intend to do everything in my power to accomplish the great ideal on which the foundation of our Empire was based by overcoming all difficulties that may lie in my country's path."

The new government contains three Admirals and Four Generals and was described authoritatively as a wartime cabinet concentrated power. Domei, the Japanese News Agency, noted that at its first session the only speaker besides Konoye was the War Minister, Gen. Eiki Tojo.

To the new post of Vice Premier Konoye named Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, a former Premier, Home Minister in the retiring cabinet and prominently identified with totalitarian phases of its program.

Toyoda had been Minister of Commerce and Industry in the second Konoye Cabinet, which resigned two days ago. He took that post after a reshuffle last April 4 which lifted him from the post of Vice Minister of Navy. Today he became not only Foreign Minister but Minister of Overseas Affairs as well. The overseas portfolio had been held by Kiyoshi Akita.

Graduate of Naval Academy

Toyoda ended 35 years of navy service to enter the second Konoye Cabinet. He will be 56 in August. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1905, but his real career began with his dispatch to London as naval attache at the Embassy there. He was a delegate to the London Naval Conference.

He has been a member of the Naval Staff College, chief of the "General Affairs" section of the Naval Technical Department, commander-in-chief of the Sasebo Naval Station, director of the Naval

Morale of Rhineland Badly Shaken By Consistent British Bombings

New York, July 17 (CP)—The New York Times correspondent in Turkey today quotes diplomats arriving from Germany on the havoc wrought by British bombing. The Times' dispatch said:

"Duesseldorf is little more than a charred ruin.

"The ports of Hamburg and Bremen have been blasted until the harbor installations are useless;

"Hanover has been subjected to the heaviest bombing of military objectives since the war began . . .

The "Keil Canal is being dredged and dynamited several times weekly to remove the wreckage of shipping sunk by British bombers . . .

"The intensity of recent British raids surpasses anything attempted in aerial operations by the Reich since the war began . . .

"An R.A.F. raid on Hanover blasted the railroad station and buildings for blocks about when Flying Fortresses hurled four 4,000 pound bombs squarely upon their objective.

"A second wave of R.A.F. bombers dropped many high-explosive bombs and thousands of incendiaries transforming the railroad station district into a smoking furnace and creating panic throughout the city . . .

"Railway communications through much of western Germany have been seriously damaged. Some larger villages and cities were suffering from a severe shortage of food and other commodities in consequence.

"Workers are evacuating demolished centres in the Rhineland by the hundreds and the poulations left behind are facing further food shortages.

"German morale, especially in the largest industrial cities, has been seriously shaken."

Rain Threatens to Ground Nazi Bombers and Halt Tanks At Critical Moment Of Nazi Offensive

MANY PLANES DOWNED

Moscow, July 18—(AP)—Hand-to-hand bayonet combat in trench warfare radically altering the Germans' blitzkrieg style was reported to have developed today with the Red Army holding on after a night-long battle on the huge front from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

As the Germans' second sustained offensive drew to the close of its first week, a Soviet communique reported pitched battles at the scenes of major action several days earlier—in the Pskov - Prokhov, Smolensk, Bobruisk and Bessarabian sectors.

A dispatch from the front to Izvestia, the official government newspaper, said a new battle situation had arisen with Russian troops digging in individual trenches to escape the German artillery and aviation and meet Nazi infantry with bayonets.

Have Small Losses

Despite heavy German fire, Izvesta said, the Russians are emerging from bombardments with small losses as a result of these tactics and one battalion was said to have repulsed eight successive German assaults that way.

Another, it was reported, withstood German onslaughts for 20 hours, then counter-attacked at night and caught the Germans by surprise, wiping out a group of staff officers.

The newspaper cited tricks reminiscent of trench fighting in the First Great War. It said the Ger-

KIEV UNDER PRESSURE

Berlin, July 18—(AP)—The communique from Hitler's headquarters today declared "tremendous operations on all sectors of the eastern front are progressing in our favor."

Although the high command reverted once again to its single-sentence report on the battle which is described by the Nazis as transcending any other in history for sweep and size, its bulletin still reflected unreserved confidence.

German spokesmen claimed German troops advancing in the direction of Leningrad have captured a Russian airplane depot with 1,500 planes.

In the same area, these sources clamed Nazi forces captured 4,000 horses, 1,000 trucks and took 1,000 prisoners after inflicting heavy losses on the Red Army.

DNB, German News Agency, claimed from Bucharest that Nazi and Rumanian troops had occupied the Bessarabian towns of Hotin, Soroca and Orhei—all on or near the south bank of the Dniester River.

The Dniester formed the old boundary between Russia and Bessarabia, which the Soviet took from Rumania by ultimatum a year ago.

Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, was claimed to be under heavy pressure, and Berlin was keyed up by the expectation that its fall might be announced at any time.

Seven Sailing Vessels Filled With Nazi Troops Sunk in Mediterranean

London, July 18—(CP) — Seven sailing vessels filled with German troops, gasoline and ammunition have been sunk in the Mediterranean by British submarines, the Admiralty announced today.

Among them, it said, was one whole convoy of a schooner and three large calques which was wiped out.

(Calques are small sailing vessels common to the Eastern Mediterranean. Many probably fell into German hands with the occupation of Greece.)

"In addition to this convoy," the Admiralty said, "one schooner and two large calques which were carrying German troops and military stores have been sunk.

"Both schooners and the five calques were wearing the German flag."

The communique also listed a supply ship, escorted by Italian destroyers and planes, as torpedoed and probably sunk.

Atlantic Ferry Pilots Say Work 'Just Routine'

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 18—(CP)—By day and night a steady stream of United States bombers are flown across the North Atlantic to battle-scarred Britain by a group of young Ferry pilots who consider the trips "just routine" jobs.

For the past year or so, the pilots, 65 to 70 per cent of them Americans, have been delivering the bombers in good and sometimes in bad weather conditons and have lost only one plane on the Atlantic crossing. That was the craft which carried Sir Frederick Banting of Toronto to his death in Newfoundland last December.

Since that crash and before it all machines have reached their destination without incident or interference by the enemy.

Four pilots, allowed by Atfero, the Atlantic Ferry organization, to tell their experiences to newspapermen, said that there was not a single instance where a ferry crew got a glimpse of the enemy either in the sky or on the water.

Among the men, whose names were withheld from publication, was a 28-year-old Texan who once operated an air line service in Arkansas. He has made the eight to 12-hour trip across four times and hasn't laid an eye on an enemy plane yet.

"If the enemy should every try to intercept us, though," he said, "there are usually lots of nice fluffy clouds over the ocean to disappear into.

"Nothing bothered me in the least, and the only time I was the least bit worried was when making low approaches during bad weather."

Work Not Thrilling

All the men said the trips are not what some newspapers are playing them up to be.

Another of the men had 15 years flying experience with the Imperial Airways and British Empire Air Services before taking the ferry job. A third man, a young Canadian from a northern Ontario town, had about 2,000 hours flying time to his credit before accepting his present assignment. He, too, finds the Atlantic trips pretty much routine although quite different from the jaunts he used to take over the northern Ontario busy country.

The fourth pilot, a native of England, flew for an oil company before the war and later was a member of the Air Transport Auxiliary.

ICELAND'S DEFENCE IS NOW PART OF AMERICAN POLICY

FDR Says Necessary To Keep Hostile Powers Away From Island

SEA ROUTE EASY

Washington, July 18—(AP)—President Roosevelt declared today it was the policy of the United States to defend Iceland and also to afford protection for the American Garrison in that North Atlantic Island.

Therefore, he told a press conference, it is what he termed A. B. C. stuff to keep open the sea lanes to Iceland. The orders, he said, are to provide protection against attack or any threat of attack.

And he added that no one in the room, including himself, could define threat of attack.

Mr. Roosevelt discussed the Iceland situation in response to this question:—

"What is being done to keep the sea lanes to Iceland open?"

He referred reporters to his message to Congress notifying it that United States forces had entered the island and said that message was perfectly definite and clear and nothing really need be said further.

He said it was felt by all military authorities who have the best access to information and knowledge of defence needs of the United States and hemisphere that the possible occupation of Iceland by an unfriendly power would be a serious blow at national and hemispheric defence.

So it was necessary, he continued, to help keep out any hostile power by the occupation of Iceland.

Occupation Partially Completed

That occupation had been partially completed, he said, but he was not going to tell of future movements of troops.

"In other words," Mr. Roosevelt declared, authorizing direct quotation, "I don't think it's right that I should pull a wheeler."

Senator Burton Wheeler, (Dem-Montana), critic of administration foreign policy, had said ahead of an official announcement that American forces would occupy Iceland. This statement drew criticism both in this country and in Britain.

Going to Protect Country

The President said the second part of the Iceland problem was whether, having occupied Iceland, the United States was going to leave the garrison there to its own devices or protect it.

Obviously the United States is going to protect it, the President declared, and obviously safe lines of communication will have to be maintained.

That is why, he went on, he had said in his message to Congress that sea lanes to base—he mentioned Newfoundland and Bermuda as examples—must be kept open. And, he added, the lanes to Iceland must be kept open.

But he warned reporters against speculation on this score.

De Valera Rejects Proposal Eire Abandon Her Neutrality Stand

Dublin, July 18—(CP)—A suggestion by James Dillon, Deputy Leader of the Fine Gael Party, that Eire abandon her neutrality stand and co-operate with Britain and the United States was rejected last night by Prime Minister Eamon De Valera.

"If anyone attacks us then every one of us can die if necessary fighting for what we are certain is a just cause," Mr. De Valera told the Dail.

William T. Cosgrave, former President of the Irish Free State and Fine Gael Leader, said he didn't think Mr. Dillon's suggestion was wise.

Mr. Dillon told the Dail he believed neutrality was not the correct course for Eire and declared the Irish should ascertain "precisely what operation Great Britain and the United States might require to ensure success" against Germany. He said the Irish then should "afford to the United States and Britain co-operation to the utmost of their resources."

(Since the outbreak of war the British Government has sought to re-establish naval bases at Cobh, Bere-Haven and Lough Swilly. Prime Minister Churchill has said refusal of Mr. De Valera to turn over the bases and airfields in Eire "put a grievous load" upon the British Navy in its fight against the U-boat menace.")

Mr. De Valera told the Dail that no matter from which side Eire might be attacked the Irish would fight and "that is not a cowardly position."

"If we are attacked at all it will be by one of the big nations of the world," he said. "We have to face it and we are prepared to face it. We are determined to live our own life."

One Death Occurs From Diphtheria In Peterborough

Peterborough, Ont., July 18 (CP)—One child of three is dead from diphtheria and eight more cases have been reported to the Board of Health by Dr. W. J. Gordon, acting Medical Officer of Health. The cases are the first in the city since 1937, the death the first since 1934.

Dr. Gordon advised parents to keep their children at home and keep careful watch over their health.

Dr. Gordon said the infection has been traced to a man who entered a placarded home east of Peterborough. After he returned to the city a three-year-old boy contracted diphtheria and died a few days later. A swab used on the throat of this man showed him to be a positive reactor and that he probably had a mild attack of the disease.

LACK BRITISH CONFIRMATION

Rome, July 18 (AP)—The Italian High Command acknowledged today that British planes had bombed Palermo, Sicily, and reported heavy air fighting over the British Mediterranean base of Malta.

The communique failed to indicate whether any material damage had been done in the raid on Palermo last night.

German fighter planes were reported to have taken part in attacks on British ships, claiming the sinking of two transports and the shooting down of five British escort planes of the Curtis P-40 type.

During the air battle over Malta, it was claimed Italian planes downed five more British planes.

(These claims lack British confirmation).

1942 Shipbuilding Program 2,000,000 Tons Greater Than Last War's Peak

MORE SUPER-BOMBERS

London, July 18 (CP)—The United States is going to build enough ships "to bring goods into the United Kingdom and into every theatre in the world where democracies are fighting Hitler," Harry Hopkins, supervisor of the United States Lend-Lease program, said today.

Here on an official visit, Mr. Hopkins told a press conference he estimated United States shipbuilding yards would build and make ready for sea, 1,000,000 tons of merchantment during 1941 and at least 6,000,000 tons during next year.

Send More Dairy Products

"We are going to see that the adequate amounts of cheese and" adequate amounts of chees and dairy products get over here," he said.

He said American flag ships could, of course, go to Iceland, but he declined to discuss whether trans-shipment of war supplies to Allied merchantmen there was contemplated on a large scale.

"The President has said our goods are going to arrive," he said. "All I can say is that we are going to do it."

And, he added, "we are going to protect our own ships."

Has One Purpose

To questions whether United States merchantmen would send supplies to China, Malaya and Singapore, Mr. Hopkins answered only that "every ship of ours that moves anywhere in the world, has one purpose, the war effort, and it is done in the closest co-operation with your Ministry of War Transport and their representatives in America."

He said he could not comment on whether the United States was sending war supplies to Soviet Russia or to Turkey.

He told his British and American interviewers:

Vast Plane Program

"We have launched our vast program of airplane production which is moving ahead rapidly now. Great new factories are coming into production in the near future, particularly for heavy four-engine bombers."

The bombers, he asserted, would be able to reach into the easternmost parts of Germany.

Outbuild Germany

The 1942 shipbuilding figure is approximately 2,000,000 tons better than United States yards turned out during the peak year of the first Great War's program, he said.

"We are convinced that between England and America we can build far more of these planes per month than Germany—and better ones," he said.

"As a general comment on production in America, I would say production is increasing every month. It is going to increase every month and it is going to be more extensive than anybody realizes.

"The whole production effort of your own country and ours must be to supply munitions of war that are sufficient to overwhelm the dictatorships. That's the only purpose—to whip this fellow.

POLICE OFFICER GETS 4½-LB. BASS

Decision to have a final fling with his rod and line before leaving his summer cottage at Baptiste Lake for his home in Peterborough, had its reward for Provincial Police Constable Price Morris, ex-member of the Belleville Police Force.

Throwing his line into a tributary of the lake as he was leaving, the husky policeman hauled in a bass which tipped the scales at 4 1-2 pounds. The catch was a perfect ending to a summer vacation.

Mrs. J. Ashbury Crossing Street Struck by Car

As she was crossing the street in front of her own home to visit her daughter, Mrs. James Ashbury, 112 College Street, was struck by a hit-and-run motorist and left seriously injured late Thursday night. Mrs. Ashbury was rushed to the hospital in Martin's ambulance, where she was attended by Dr. F. R. Ross. The injured woman sustained deep head and facial lacerations, body bruises and was suffering from shock after being hurled with full force to the pavement by the driver of a motor car, that sped off into the night after extinguishing the lights on the motor car.

Mrs. Ashbury had started across the street to visit her daughter, when she was struck down by a west bound motor car on College Street and hurled over nine feet westerly along the pavement. The woman crashed to the pavement taking the full force of the impact to the street on her face. Her eye glasses were shattered, but fortunately the eyesight was not impaired.

Leslie Jenkinson, Station P.O., who was passing by at the time, told investigating police, that as soon as the car struck Mrs. Ashbury, the driver swerved the vehicle slightly, extinguished the lights and sped away in a westerly direction without indicating any intentions of stopping. Mr. Jenkinson gave the authorities a meagre description of the hit-and-run vehicle, but as the hour was ten o'clock it was difficult to obtain a full description. Constables Arnott and Taylor investigated and took measurements and tire tread markings. Mrs. Ashbury was reported as resting quietly at noon today.

Selective Service Lottery Completed

Washington, July 18—(AP)—Hundreds of 21-year-old men who held draft registration number 196 were but a few short weeks from United States army service today, blind chance in a capsule having determined that among 750,000 of their fellows they should be the first called. They are expected to go to camp Sept. 1.

It was all settled in a national lottery last night in the departmental auditorium. There, a blindfolded Selective Service recruit who has already earned his sergeant's stripes, dipped his hand into a glass jar of 800 small capsules and drew one out. The number it contained was 196. Two hours and 26 minutes later the drawing was finished by another selectee who took out the last capsule, holding number 630.

Today Selective Service Headquarters put its force to work checking a master list of the 800 numbers drawn and by the weekend copies of this list will be sent out to the 7,500 local draft boards throughout the U.S. Their job will be arrange their 21-year-old registrants enrolled July 1 in the order of their registration numbers on the natoinal list and then integrate hem with the registrants remaining from the first Selective Service enrollment last October.

Trenton and District

Connaught Ranges, July 18 — The Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment, under Lt.-Col B. C. Donnan, E.D., with headquarters at Trenton, has won a great deal of praise from the Camp Commandant and other inspecting officers during the past two weeks training at Connaught.

Going into camp with well over three hundred men, the regiment is one of the largest bivouacked at this sprawling camp, 16 miles west of Ottawa. The camp is typical of the military industry being displayed in other areas throughout the Dominion.

After two weeks in camp, the men have become bronzed under the hot sun and health reports are excellent. Capt. F. Nickle, M.O., for the regiment stated that there are very few soldiers who report for sick parade in the mornings. "This is due to the warm weather and excellent food that is being served," he said.

Entering camp on June 29th., the soldiers erected their tents and placed in floor boards before drawing in their blankets and groundsheets. The following morning it was up at six and physical training at 6.15 for ten minutes. At eight o'clock they were on the parade grounds for drill, instruction and training.

Short Rest After Lunch

At noon there was an hour and a half rest for lunch which comprised of soup, meat, vegetables, desert, bread and butter and a beverage. In the afternoon the men were back to their training area until five o'clock. By the time night arrived there wasn't any need for sleeping powders as the men were completely tired out.

There were plenty of groans and rather nasty words said about the band the next morning, and for that matter for a number of mornings, as it persisted in parading up and down the lines at six in the morning playing Colonel Bogie. However, by the time the physical exercises were finished, the band was forgotten until the next morning and food was the important thing. Porridge, eggs and sometimes bacon was the one menu for the men and officers alike.

During the camp the men were given instruction in gas warfare, musketry drill, Bren gun, bayonet drill and many other forms of military training. Special groups of non-commissioned officers spent a number of days on various courses and later will pass on their knowledge to their men.

All Given Chance at Butts

Every man in camp, including the cook, is given a chance to fire a rifle on the butts. Distances were 200 yards, 300 yards and 500 yards, and it is surprising the number of bullseyes by the soldiers which were attained at the five hundred yard mark.

Conditions of active combat are reproduced as nearly as possible once a week during a "blackout." Flares and bombs are used to simulate actual warfare during which each unit has a definite position to hold against possible attack. The warning siren screeches through the night arousing everyone in the camp and the men have three minutes to dress and be on the parade grounds with full equipment. Lights are not permissable. During the blackout which lasts about 15 minutes flares light the sky and thunderflashes make a terrific noise, reproducing the sound of guns roaring.

However, the men do not train all the time and in the evening they relax. A truck runs from the camp into Ottawa each night and returns at midnight, so that those who wish to see the bright lights of the Capital City, the changing of the guards and other sources of interest, including a trip across the river, can do so by paying the small sum of twenty cents. The truck is loaded every night.

The showpiece of the camp is the mascot of the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment, Princess Petawawa. The Princess is a life-size Indian squaw carved from a discarded telephone post by members of the Trenton company last year. The name Petawawa was given to the squaw as she was first put on displayed at Camp Petawawa last year.

Another showpiece is a large refrigerator constructed by the men. It is a large box with a pan inside to hold ice at the top while the food is hung at the bottom. Packed around the outside are sandbags filled with sawdust as insulation. This refrigerator keeps all the food for the H. & P. E. Regiment fresh until it is ready for use. The refrigerator resembles an air raid shelter but it serves the purpose.

The men of the H. & P. E. Regiment do not have to juggle dishes when they get their meal, but instead they carry the dishes on wooden trays. Each soldier has his own tray.

Toronto Man Pleads Guilty to Eleven False Pretences Charges

Tweed—Pleading guilty to eleven charges of obtaining money under false pretences, George Agnew, Toronto, was remanded for sentence until Monday in Tweed police court yesterday by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd. The charges arose from the passing of worthless cheques in Orillia, Harriston, Whitby, Picton, Campbellford, Northbrook and Tweed. Agnew will face additional charges of the same nature in Trenton police court.

He was arrested in Tweed a few weeks ago when Chief of Police Clare Hayes recognized him as he was speeding through the village in a taxicab.

Driving Licence Suspended

Mrs. William Plew, Actinolite, received a suspended sentence of three months, had her driving licence suspended for the same length of time and paid courts costs of $18.25 after pleading guilty to a charge of reckless driving. The charges arose from a motor accident in which Charles I. Myers, Toronto, was injured.

William Lavallie, Tweed, convicted of a second offence of the Liquor Control Act was assessed $50 and costs or six weeks in jail in default of payment.

George Wallace, pleaded guilty to a second offence of being drunk and disorderly and was fined $50 and costs or one month in default of payment.

For permitting drunkenness and disorderly conduct, Philip Simmons was sentenced to one month and fifteen days on the respective charges the sentences to run concurrently. For the same offences Martin Simmons was sentenced to fifteen days on each charge. John Bowman, Ottawa, paid a $15 fine for a breach of the Highway Traffic Act.

Large Bass Takes Minnow and Plug Of Two Anglers

Fish stories of huge 35 and 40 pound 'lunge being caught in district waters are heard almost every day from Isaac Waltons as they boast of catches made on weekend trips and on evening fishing expeditions, but the story of Mr. W. J. Barlow, Bonarlaw and Mr. J. Fitzpatrick, Stirling, as to how they caught the same fish on each of their lines is one decidedly out of the ordinary.

It seems that the two fishermen along with Donald Bell, Bonarlaw, were fishing in northern waters when both had their lines taken almost simultaneously. Both frantically reeled in their lines and it wasn't long until a four and a half pound bass lay gasping in the boat with two fishlines in its mouth.

Which one of the two fishermen laid claim to the bass was not made known, but apparently the fish had swallowed Fitzpatrick's minnow and still feeling hungry proceeded to swallow Barlow's pet plug. It took them thirty minutes to untangle their fishing lines.

Obituary

I. GOUDIE

(Father of Mrs. James Semple)

After a brief illness, Mr. I. Goudie, father of Mrs. James Semple, of this city, died in Kitchener, Ont., on Wednesday, July 16th.

The late Mr. Goudie had reached an advanced age, being in his 89th year. For many years he was active in the business life of Kitchener, being the senior member of the firm of Goudie's Limited, large departmental store. When health permitted he took an active part in church work and he was always keenly interested in civic affairs. He was a man of fine character and his business and social ethics were of a high standard. In the City of Kitchener he was held in high esteem and his death has brought sincere regret to many old and young friends.

Surviving him are one daughter, Mrs. James Semple, Belleville; one son, Mr. Arthur R. Goudie, General Manager of Goudie's Limited and President of the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association; two brothers, the Rev. S. Goudie, now living retired at Stouffville and Rev. H. Goudie, also retired and living at Markham.

The funeral took place this Friday afternoon. The addresses at the service were made by the Rev. John Garden, minister of Ryerson Church, Hamilton, who is an intimate friend of the family and the Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister of Bridge Street Church in this city.

MISS JESSIE M. RANKIN

Although she was in failing health for some time, Miss Jessie M. Rankin died suddenly at her home, 20 Forin Street, on Thursday evening, July 17th. This makes the second death in the family within a short time, her father, William Rankin, having died at the same address on July 9th.

The late Miss Jessie McKinley Rankin was born at Hermon in Hastings County and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Rankin. For the past twenty-nine years she resided in Belleville and was highly esteemed by many friends to whom her sudden death has brought much regret. In religion she was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving her are two sisters, Mrs. Jean Mullin, and Mrs. C. H. King both of Toronto; two brothers, Mr. James Rankin of Belleville and Mr. Thomas M. Rankin of Madoc.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement will be made later.

MRS. ELLEN ROE

Mrs. Ellen Roe, widow of Edward Roe, died at the residence of Mr. Alfred N. Foster, 15 Yeomans Street, this Friday morning. She was in failing health for some time. For many years she resided in this city and was well esteemed. In religion she was a member of St. Michael's Church.

One son, Private J. J. Roe is serving with the Veterans' Guard at Ottawa.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement will be made later.

POLICE COURT

"This man has been turned over to the immigration authorities at Ottawa and I would ask to have this charge of vagrancy withdrawn," explained Chief Kidd to Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., when the name of Jan Smarzyk, a native of Poland, was called in Police Court this morning. Smarzyk was apprehended on a charge of failing to produce his National Registration card last week, but later it was disclosed he had deserted his ship at Montreal after sailing to Canada from England. Smarzyk was given into the custody of the Immigration Department and taken to Montreal where he will be deported.

Assessed One Dollar

Wm. J. Masterson, Belleville, was assessed one dollar and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of double parking. "This man has to park on the street in order to unload furniture from his truck," pleaded E. O. Butler, local barrister appearing on Masterson's behalf. "Some other arrangements will have to be made as this double parking in the downtown area must be stopped," replied His Worship as he levied the fine and costs.

Pays $25 Fine

Claude Harnden, formerly of Napanee now residing in the city, paid $25 in all after being convicted of two charges of infractions of the Highway Traffic Act. Harnden was convicted of failing to notify the Department of Highways of the change of ownership of a motor car and also of failing to register a motor car. Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson informed the court that Harnden had taken the licence plates from one car and placed them on another, while he was driving the second vehicle. Fines of ten dollars and costs in each case were imposed.

Case Enlarged Week

E. O. Boutin, who gave Montreal as his home address and who was apprehended on a charge of vagrancy last night, had his case enlarged for one week. "This man has no registration card and we wish to check the matter with Ottawa," pointed out Chief Kidd.

Reginald Froud, of the R.C.A.F. at Trenton, was arrested last night by Provincial Police charged with being found in possession of goods allegedly stolen from the Airport. Froud was remanded in custody by Provincial Constable Jas. McKenzie.

300 Axis Diplomats Arrive at Ankara

Ankara, Turkey, July 16 (Delayed)—(AP)—Three hundred Axis diplomats, military observers and trade agents—many of them suffering from light cases of dysentery—reached Ankara by special train today after a 15-day trip from Moscow.

Anxious for news of the Russian war which they were unable to obtain while cooped up in Soviet railroad cars, the party poured into the station hot, dusty and thirsty.

Two hundred and thirty-seven Germans were in the group, which also included Rumanians, Hungarians, and Slovaks. They said the French, Danish, Finnish and Italian diplomats remained temporarily on the Russian side of the frontier because of technical difficulties.
